STATE NORMAL

Crittenden County is Represented by Eight Widea-Wake Young People and All Are Doing Extra Well.

The Executive Commitiasm manifested by the faculty and student-body of the above school was a revelation to any one who has not been in actual contact with the work of this institution. At the chapel exercises on Wednesday morning a student representative from each of the fifty-nine counties in the Western District gave the visitors greetings f.om the student-teachers of his county These speeh- 2:30 a. m. Mr. Yates went to Jacsonville this morning on business but will rees were brief and to the point, and showed that the student-body is fully awake turn this afternoon in time for the service tonight. The climax of all is exto the needs of our boys and girls.

Crittenden County is represented by eight wide-a-wake young people. Evening Herald, May 18th. They are Misses Bertha Moore, Myrtle Todd and Mary Guess; Messrs. Lonnie Moore, Fred Stone, Louis Matthews, Hollis Todd and J. R. Travis, They are all doing fine work and are delighted with the school. We bespeak for these young people the conideration of those who are entrusted with the hiring of AMUSEMENT RESORT TO OPEN JUNE SEVENTH teachers for the coming year. The teacher who is willing to spend his meager salary during vacation trying to increase his effectiveness and value as a teacher, should have the best school that can be given him.

We visited the new site selected by the Board of Regents, and we are com effects at the St. Louis World's Fair and will make the State Normal buildings his plans have been carried out and the new buildings are in place, Kentucky the pleasure of their patrons. will have a Normal School that, so far as buildings and grounds are concerned, will not have an equal any where else in the country.

The two State Normal Schools mean much for the future of Kentucky, phur Springs are too well known further mention for their influence will be felt ere many years in the most remote district school in Kentucky, and they are bound to be a great power in the educational uplift fishing tackle, gun and etc., and spend a day with them amidst the forest, and which is coming and is now well on the way.

A year ago considerable dissatisfaction was manifest in various counties on account of the radical changes proposed by the new school law encacted by our last legislature. Wednesday and Thursday afternoons' was devoted to reports of the furty-five superintdents in regard to this new school law. These reports show that, for the most part, opposition has given way to hearty co-op- al buildings were demolished at Mount Washington, a suburb of Kansas City, eration where the people have become acquainted with the provisions of this by severe wind storm.

law. The new law is gaining friends daily and those who think that it will be repealed by the next General Assembly will find themselves very much mistaken, for when the people who live in the country districts once learn how much this law means to them and to their children, they will be a unit in its favor. It will be amended in some minor particulars, but we may rest assured that as regards the main provisions, the new law has come to stay.

In one county of this State, a candidate for renomination to the legislature dared to make a fight on the grounds of opposition to the school law. He wos overwhelmingly defeated in the primary election. This should be the fate of every one who dares to try to make political capital out of an institution so sacred as the public schools.

In a few counties the peanut politicians composing the fiscal court have refused to make the levy recommended by the Board of Education. Presuming in their ignorance of the needs of the schools, to place their petty political ambitions above the interests of the boys and girls in the country districts. Defying the plain provision of the law which says the County Board shall estimate the amount of tax required to carry out the provisons of the law and that the Fiscal Court SHALL make the levy asked by the County Board.

"ROUSMENTS" AT THE TENT LAST

In the language of the old darkie preacher, Mr. Ferguson says, "We sho put on de rousments" last night. A large congregation was present and repronded heartily to the song service that preceded the sermon. Mr. Fergusou preached on the sanctification and showed from a bible standpoint that Christians and not sinners are eligible for sanctification and that it is subsequnt to regeneration. He certainly made the people believe it was a bible doctrine for at ing the experience.

Secretary Thompson at this-ten o'clock Monday night-has just handed me the following resolutions passed by the committee now in session: On motion of J. G. Orsburn, seconded by I. N. Baker, be it resolved that no pooling papers be accepted with any provisions or conditions attached, and the district secretary is hereby instructed not to pay any pooling claims unless the pooling papers for which payment is made be turned in at time of payment. And,

On motion of W. B. Rankin, seconded by I. N. Baker, Resolved, That the ooks be closed on the 1909 crop on the first day of July and all pooling papers The Crittenden Springs Amusement Resort will open for business June be turned in to the secretary by July fifth, and the district secretary is hereby instructed to receive no pooling papers after that date. Carried unanimously.

On motion of J. G. Orsburn, seconded by J. Stokes Taylor, Resolved, that inasmuch as the Association's contracts expire with the different buyers on pelled to say that the location is ideal. Mr. Geo. Dancing every Wednesday and June fourth, all members be requested to get the remnants of crops in to purchasers by June fourth.

> From Committeeman Baker I learn the pooling in Webster county will be quite as satisfactory as was the pooling last year-which is to say it will be practically solid. And the prospects are equally good in Union. Crittenden county will, from present prospects, pool up in the most satisfactory manner. While the hotel will be conducted, as an amusement resort, the company Hopkins county was a little backward in starting, but from Hon. C. C. By the first of June the great bulk of the crop all over the district should be in the Association.-JAMES N. BANKS.

MARION GRADED AND HIGH SCHOOL COMMENCE-MENT MARKED BY BRILLIANT ACHIEVEMENTS

All last week and in fact for days before, all Marion's best citizens have been on the qui vive in the anticipation of pleasure usually attendant on the closing days of the scholastic year of the Marion Graded and High School which exercises were begun Thursday night with a reception at the residence of Prof. J. P. King to the graduating classes and some of their friends.

Friday evening at the auditorium the High School graduates were given an enthusiastic reception by a crowded house. The class roll embraced the following young ladies: - BEULAH CONYER, FREDDA MAE PICKENS, NANNIE MARGARET ROCHESTER, RUTH CARLYLE COOK AND MARCIA MARIE KING, the latter being the valedictorian and the speaker of the class.

They were ranged in a semi circle with Prof. J. P. King and Dr. A. J. Kinnaman, the speaker of the evening.

The class colors, old gold and black were festooned about, and the motto ers, grader, for the Huntington Pro- engraven on the banner hung in the rear of the stage, "age quod agee."

The following program was carried out nicely:- Music by the Marion Orchestra; Invocation-Rev. R. C. Love; Music-Orchestra; Motion Song-Pupils from First Grade; Valedictory-Marcia M. King; Music-Orchestra; Address: "The Needs of Better Education"-Dr. A. J. Kinnaman; Music-Orchestra; at satisfactory prices and grading, for Presentation of Diplomas; Music-Orchestra; Benediction-R. C. Love,

The audience was probably the largest which ever assembled in the auditorium and was quite appreciative.

The orchestra was composed of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Tucker, Jas. L. Travis and Guy Lamb and certainly delighted the music lovers.

The motion song by the first grade pupils was well rendered. Those takaccorded by the two gentlemen above ing part were:-Hubert Crider, Jack Adams, George Clark, John Flanary, Harry Moore, Ethel Drury, Vera Eskew, Fanny Moore, Robbie Fowler, David

Orene Champion and Roxie Taylor. The Valeditorian, Miss Marcia Maria King, received hearty applause and many flowers which proved how well she delighted her hearers, and seldom chance next year if the crop in this have Marion's school advocates been so fortunate as to have so unique and interesting a speaker as Dr. Kinnaman to stand before them. He is one of the faculty of the State Normal at Bowling Green and is an educator of rare ability and national reputation. Throughout his address, of more than an hours length he held the closest attention, and entertained the audience, and after the program was finished he received his share, along with the graduates and the orchestra, of the congratulations

Saturday evening the program of the eighth grade commencement exercises also held at the school auditorium was as follows-Music-Orchestra; Invowhere the church was founded 100 cation-Rev. M. E. Miller; Music-Orchestra; Evangeline, by the Longfellow Club, Miss Postlethwaite, presiding. Boston, May 17.-Dr. John Fair. head of Boston's newest cult, the "New Life," is certain that he has discovered the secret of how to laugh at old age, and how to exist not only for a hundred but a thousand years without pain, evil or sickness. He says 250,000 people have enlisted under his banner. Here are his rules for living to be one thousand years old:

"Dress always in white. White is the prime principle of life. I believe there should be a universal law making it a crime for any person to go attired in black or dark apparel.

Why Some Plays Fail

By DANIEL FROHMAN.

A play may be technically well written, follow all the recognized rules of construction, tell an interesting story and by means of excellently drawn and naturally developed characters and yet fail. I will tell you why, in my judgment, it does so,

Because, in spite of all its good qualities, some of which I have enumerated, the play lacks dramatic vitality. It has no genuine theatrical interest.

The play is for the theater-first, last and all the time. Broaden the interests of the stage as far as you will, they remain, for successful plays, extremely circumstantial. The new interests you have added, if they constitute the heart of a

The vital interests of a play are and will always remain elemental. The most sophisticated writerhe with the widest knowledge of life, cannot write a successful play without appealing to emotions that are primitive in us all. In running over the brief list of successful writers for the stage you may think of some who are exceptions to this rule. But a close enalysis of their pieces will prove that, artfully conealing art as they do, their appeal is made elemenally just the same.

An inevitable subject-one that everybody is inrested in-must be the heart of a play, pumping fe all through it. Love is one universal bject that all races of all ages have agreed upon is theme for the theater. It is not the only one-but he others that will occur as theatrical schemes for ccessful exploitation are as universal and elemental.

Remedy Free

Many people who are otherwise healthy suffer from indigestion, or dyspepsia. When you consider that the stomach and allied digestive organs are the most important organs of the body, it would seem that a disorder there is to be taken very seriously. Dyspeptics cannot eat the things they like; food sours in the stomach; then chronic constipation begins, or, as is often the case, you have been constipated all along, and the stools are forced and treestles.

along, and the stools are forced and irregular.

But there is no use letting indigestion go until it becomes chronic and undermines your health. It is good advice to suggest to you that you go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, the wonderful cure for stomach, liver and bowel troubles. That is what C. Fowler, of Carson City, Mich., did and he is well today. Others who did the same and are cured are Ida A. Fortune, of Grand Junction, Tenn., B. F. Thompson, of Shenandoah, Ia., who actually considers that it saved his life. You can obtain a 50-cent or $1 bottle of the druggist, and, taken according to directions, it will probably be all you need. It is a liquid, acts gently, never gripes, and besides the laxative effect, contains exceptional tonic properties which tone the stomach, and that is what is especially needed in indigestion.

All sufferers from indigestion who have never used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can obtain a free test bottle by writing the doctor. It will be sent direct to your home without any charge. In this way thousands have proven to their own satisfaction Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the very remedy they needed to cure indigestion. When once you use this grand remedy you will throw violent cathartics, tablets, salts, etc., away.

CHAPTER XIX.

In Which We Attain 69° 17' South, When morning arrived the Sea Queen was plunging through an angry sea, in the midst of a raging, snow storm which effectually concealed all our immediate surroundings. With vivid remembrance of those vast ter, and the certainty that numerous ing." bergs were drifting not far ahead, we were compelled to slow down our engines, feeling a way cautiously through the white fog. The ice-cakes buffeting our bows, and scraping along the sides, were a constant menace, requiring men to fend them off so as to keep rudder and screw uninjured; the mainsail had broken loose from its gaskets, and, frozen stiff as the heavy canvas was, proved difficult to secure; while the ice on our forward deck had accumulated to such a thickness as to be weighting us down by the head, and had to be chopped loose and flung overboard in great blocks.

It was not far from noon when the heavy snow-clouds broke and went scurrying away like a flock of birds. leaving the wide sweep of waters clear to our view, with a yellow sun hanging cold in the pale blue of the

I hardly knew where we were, not feeling at all certain about the extent of our drift during the past 24 hours. and so hastily brought my instruments on deck and shot the sun, stepping into the chart house to figure out our position. The result sent a sudden thrill of exultation through me.

"We have attained the spot!" I exclaimed, as I glanced up, and saw her gazing in at me through the open door. "Now we will ascertain the truth of Tuttle's vision."

"The spot? Do you mean this is the point of sea we have been seek-

"Ay! and now, thank God! we can head the other way."

I sprang eagerly past her, clinging to a life-line so as to keep my feet on the deck, too thoroughly excited by my discovery to remain any long-

"Johnson, run below, and call Mr. De Nova. Have him turn out at once."

I watched the fellow slide to the companion, and made my own way to the bridge, sweeping my glasses anxiously about the clearing horizon. Within a minute De Nova had joined me, his eyes still heavy from sleep.

"Mr. De Nova," I said, rapidly, my gloved hand sweeping a semicircle in our front, "I have just taken an observation, and this is latitude 66° 17' south and longitude 119° 30' west. Send your sharpest-eyed lookout to the foretopsail yard with these glasses. Then call all hands."

He went down the bridge stairs es though shot from a gun, and a moment later a young seaman named Symes was swiftly footing the ratlines, their coating of ice breaking under his tread and rattling on the deck below. The men swarmed out from the forecastle and up the main hatch, ranging themselves about the foot of the foremast, watching me eagerly, and occasionally peering up at Symes, now well above the cross-trees.

"Lads," I cried, bending over the rail of the bridge, and staring down into their upturned faces "I've just figured out our position, and this is the spot we've been hunting after in these seas. I've sent Symes aloft to look out for Tuttle's island. If there's any land in sight, well and good; we'll have a try for looting the Donna Isabel of those Spanish pesos. But if not, then we'll call it a wild goose chase, and the Sea Queen points her

There was a faint, half-hearted attempt at a cheer, which ended in a muttering of oaths and a shuffling of feet on the icy planks. The glances of the fellows turned upward toward Symes, now securely posted on the foretopsail yard, the glasses to his eyes. One or two among them, including Anderson, clambered to the top of the forecastle where they could see ahead.

"How the hell," the latter yelled suddenly from that point of vantage,

The crowd turned their eyes on me, and I heard a growl of approval.

"Principally because I say so, Anderson. The chart, with our course pricked on it day by day, is yonder in the chart-house. And my figures ice fields lying off our starboard quar, are there also for this day's reckon-

> "But we don't any of us know anything about that!" "True enough, but there happens to be one on board who can figure it out for you if you doubt my word. Lady Darlington can do it."

The rising medley of growling voices ceased almost instantly, and if I had felt any question as to what her ladyship would do it was immediately silenced. She slipped to the rail of the stairs, her hood thrown back, her hair blowing in the wind.

"I-I believe thoroughly in Mr. Stephens," she said, clearly, "but it is true that I know something of navigation, and if you re ity doubt his statene t ! will figure it out for you." "New you hear that, lads," my to ringing out stern over the hub-

ab. "You'll believe this lady if her "I's are the same as mine. Now on wany orowling."

I hollowed my hands for a hall "What do you pick up, Symes?"

His words came back in a thread f round as he looked down upon us 'rom his bobbing perch.

"Not very much, sir, except water. There's a hell of a big field o' ice out yonder," pointing with one hand, the other gripping the spar, "but it's mostly flat, an' all glistenin' with snow. There's maybe a dozen bergs ahead an' off the port quarter, mostly medium size, but with the devil of a big fellow a point or so to the north."

"Not a sign, sir, unless that's it I take for a big berg. The shadows look dark enough for rock."

"Ease her off two points, wheel-

"Two points it is, sir."

We stood there, silent and motionless, waiting anxiously, the men ranged along the rail, with their eyes all turned forward. I rang for full speed, and the Sea Queen fairly leaped ahead through the icy smother, flinging clouds of white spray over the heedless figures. Within ten minutes we began to perceive the huge mass we were approaching from the deck, and never before had my eyes looked upon so gigantic and majestic a mountain of ice. It was one immense cliff towering into the upper air, being fully 300 feet high, and not less than 1,200 feet in length, with vast glittering pinnacles rising still farther into the sky, its entire front sheer precipice, gleaming in cold blue, with hardly a darker shadow anywhere to yield relief to the eye. We rounded its eastern edge so closeone could have tossed a biscuit from he foreyard against its smooth front, he swell of its motion tossing the daring yacht like an eggshell. Symes clung to his perch aloft with the grip of a monkey, swinging back and forth to the wild swaying of the spar. Suddenly he yelled down:

"There's wind comin' from the ou'west, sir." "Heavy?"

"Looks to be a stiff breeze, an it's bringing more snow." "Lay down from aloft."

I sprang over to consult the binnacle-card, and then cast che swift, omprehending glance at the thickening gloom in the southwest. Beyond doubt the change had come. "Give her two more points north wheelsman; keep her head nor'east by nor'-steady so. Mr. De Nova, send another man up here to the wheel. All hands now; stow everything; tail on to those gaskets lively, my lads; we're in for a blow, and a run for our lives." To my amazement scarcely a man among them stirred, the eyes of the majority turning toward Anderson. Evidently there was an understanding between them; they intended to revolt and had chosen him their leader. He stood just in front of the forecastle. a lumping big figure in his heavy clothes, his coarse face and ugly jaw showing beneath a fur cap. 'What yer turnin' north for in such hurry. Mr. Stephens?" he growled. hoarsely. "It's not by vote o' the crew, an' we're the ones that's got they say of it on this voyage. We're for for a day or so anyhow. Tuttle might 'a' got his figgers tangled an' missed a few leagues. Anyhow, we want the lady to give us her reckoning first."

I felt the hot blood leap to my face, and my teeth clenched as I leaned over the rail gazing down at him. "Lads," I said, striving to master myself. "I've put you exactly where I promised I would; I've shown you all that was here. You can see for yourselves what will happen if we hold on ber like a dog, with their hands over any longer. The wind has swept around; it is going to bring that whole pack of ice down on us. We've got to their heads. Bears, which have no run for it, or be crushed. Now what fear, sleep in any position. The I want to know is, are you with me, or with Bill Anderson?"

They held off muttering, yet casting uneasy glances over the rail. Anderson stamped angrily on the deck.

"Oh, to hell with yer fine words." he said, grimly. "What if the wind has changed a bit? Can't we beat off the floe under steam the same as we did before? We're sailor-men, and noise." not atraid of a rough sea. For one, I'm damned if I leave that gold to rot here without huntin' for it."

Words were clearly useless, and I ripped back my heavy coat, dragging off my gloves, all patience exhausted. "Come on, De Nova," I exclaimed. you've got sense enough to realize what this means."

I was over the rail with a leap, fronting them on the deck. Almost to my surprise the creole landed beside me, and without a word we struck out at he heads in our front. It was a flerce mix-up for a minute yet only a man or wo stood with Anderson, the sudlenness of our assault taking all the ight out of most of them. I struck ig Bill twice squarely in the face. riving him back against the steps eading to the forecastle deck; over here he fell sprawling, his head humping the plank. The next instant had De Nova's antagonists in the ear, and together we laid them out against the rail, and none too gently. The mate's smile had become ugly. and he would have kaped into the rest of the bunch, but I caught his arm.

"They've had enough," I said, breathig hard. "Go back on the bridge, De Nova. Now, you lads, get busy. If one of you soldiers, or talks back to me again, he'll go to his bunk for the est of this voyage. Get up. Anderson and stop that growling! You fellows may as well learn first as last that I am commanding the Sea Queen, and that we are homeward bound."

Within the space of five minutes ? had the whole gan; at it, a profane. shuffling crew enough, yet carryin: out my orders after a fashion, and sufficiently cowed to be obedient. At last I dispatched the starboard watch below, and, leaving De Nova in charge of the bridge, started back to the companion. To my surprise Lady Darlington, muffled to the eyes, still stood, half protected, in the open door of the chart-house.

"What in the world are you doing here in all this snow and blow?" I

"Waiting for you," she explained. her eyes glowing. "I could not go to the cabin until I knew you had really won. Is it true that we are homeward bound?"

happy over her evident pleasure. "The southing Are you glad?"

These impulsive words, natural as they were, nevertheless hurt me, and perhaps my face exhibited it. Her eyes fell. "You cannot know how much I have suffered on this voyage," she said, regretfully. "Only a woman could, My heart cries out for relief, but it is not because I wish to lose any friendship formed on board." "Yet that is what being homeward bound must inevitably mean."

Her long lashes were uplifted, disclosing the depths of those gray eyes. "Not with me, Mr. Stephens; I am not a woman to forget."
