GOVERNOR IS POWERLESS ON AMENDMENT

Congressman Ollie James Declares Washington Was Discussed the Kentucky Situation With Much Surprise

Smiles When Asked About gubernatorial Honors.

Congressman Ollie M. James, who arrived in Louisville last night from Washington, enroute to his home at Marion, declared in an interview that the ratification of the income tax amendment to the Federal constitution which bill has passed both houses of the Kentucky General assembly, is a matter in which Governor Willson has no prerogative and that the Governor's reported intention of vetoing it is of no consequence.

"The Governor absolutely has no power in the case," said Congressman James. "The law is explicit in its provisions that amendments to the Federal constitution are adopted by passage of the amendment by Congress and the ratification of that action by the Legislature of three-fourths of the States of the union. The action of the State Legislature is certified to by the Secretary of State to the Secretary of the United States at Washington, who in turn notifies Congress of the action of the State Legislatures."

"The Governor is in no way concerned other than to communicate his desires to the Legislature in a message if he so desires. That plan was adopted by Gov. Hughes, of New York, who is strongly opposed to the amendment, and so informed the Legislature. He has, however, no power to nullify that action."

Governor Is Powerless

"I do not believe Gov. Willson will carry out his reported intention to veto the bill. When the matter is brought to his attention and he investigates he will find that he is powerless. His statement that he would veto the measure has freely been discussed in Washington, and the consensus there is that the Governor was misquoted or laboring under a false impression regarding his authority."

"Every State Legislature which has passed on the amendment has taken favorable action, and there is hardly any question but that the action of Congress will be ratified by practically all of the States."

Congressman James, who is a member of the board investigating Ballinger matter, came to Kentucky to be present at the convention at Paducah Thursday when he will be renominated for Congress from the First district. Mr. James has no opposition, and the committee will have nothing to do but meet and go through the formality of naming Mr. James.

Silent About Candidacy.

Congressman James declined to discuss the gubernatorial or Senatorial situation insofar as he is concerned. His name frequently has been mentioned in both connections, and either it is believed, is his for asking. Many of his friends are urging him to succeed United States Senator Paynter, and it is freely predicted that he will round out his political career as a member of the upper house in Congress.

Mr. James would make no statement regarding the proceedings in the Ballinger probe or the controversy that brought it about. In the capacity of investigator, he occupies a position similar to a presiding Judge, and it would be indelicate for him to make any statement, he said. He expressed the opinion that the investigation will be concluded during the present session of Congress, which he said probably would last until the first of June.

Mr. James is one of the most prominent Democrats in Kentucky and was surrounded by a host of local Democrats of prominence at The Seelbach last night.

THE STUDER WAGON THE BEST

They Are the Best Because They Stand the Test, Leading all the Rest From East to West.

Try One and You Will be Convinced.

Mr. H. C. Paris, of Marion, has delivered fifteen hundred tons of spar, eight hundred tons of coal and five hundred tons of hay on a Studebaker wagon bought of T. H. Cochran & Company and all without the expenditure of one cent for repairs. Surely such a wagon is the best and cheapest. They have more just like this one.

MARION PROUD OF HER GIRLS AND BOYS

Every One of the Contestants Acquitted Themselves Creditably and We are Proud of Them

Miss Lena Holtzclaw Wins Gold Medal.

In the oratorical contest in the auditorium of the Graded School building Tuesday night, there were five contestants, Coleman Foster, Maurie Boston, Allen Foster, Miss Addie Maynard and Miss Lena Holtzclaw, and complimentary to these bright young ladies and gentlemen, the large auditorium was well filled, notwithstanding an admission price of 25 cents was charged.

After the rendition of some splendid music by the Methodist church orchestra, Rev. Adams invoked God's blessing on the large audience assembled and specially upon the five bright young people contesting for the beautiful medal presented by their Superintendent, J. P. King. Coleman Foster lead off on the life of Alexander Hamilton, followed by Maurie Boston on "The Life of Henry W. Grady," and Allen Foster, on "America and International Peace," all three of them handling their subjects beautifully and interestingly—like men and we doubt if statesmen could have done better. Honors seemed to break even here, everybody applauding the one as much as the other. They could not help it. They were all good. After some good music by the orchestra, Miss Addie Maynard, one of the sweetest young ladies of the school, in a clear, comprehensive way, beautifully handled the subject:—"The Destiny of America" and District for the purpose of maintaining a Graded Common School in said District, and for the erection and repairing of suitable buildings therefor, as is provided in Article 10, Section 100, and following sections of Common School Law. This the 23rd day of February, 1910.

The Judges, Prof. J. A. Carnegey, of Paducah, Prof. M. L. Girten, of Morganfield and Jas. W. Green, of Mayfield were all strangers and all universally agree as to the winner.

Prof. Carnegey in an interesting speech presented the medal to Miss Lena, who accepted it so beautifully as to bring down universal applause, foremost among them, her competitors. It was a great occasion and we reiterate. We are proud of our boys and girls.

THE FOURTH ESTATE

Copyright, 1909, by Joseph Medill
Patterson and Harriet Ford.

Through the partition a round hole about five inches in diameter had been cut with a hand saw, and on a table in the morgue a camera had been rested with the telescope protruding through the hole in the partition into a private mail box directly above the desk. The door of this box, into which were placed letters arriving for the managing editor during his absence, had been unlocked. A line of shoe thread had been fastened to the door of the box and extended down behind the desk to the floor and across to the left hand side of Brand's desk. A slight tug on the thread would cause the door of the mail box to open, exposing to the lens Brand's desk, his chair and another chair which had been placed at the right of the desk next to the telephone.

For several minutes the mysterious preparations went on. Just what they meant no one but Brand could tell, and he was strangely silent, except as to directing what should be done.

Hartley was anxious to make certain that the lens aimed directly at Brand's desk. He measured the line with his eye.

"Get it?" called Jeff.
"No, not yet. Wait a minute," Howard answered, dodging around quickly toward the little "morgue." "I haven't got the focus right yet. Hold on!" Jeff lighted a match, held it up and stood between the two chairs.
"How's that?" he cried.
The answering voice came back.
"Yes; that's the very thing. It's all right now."

Brand stepped forward from a corner of the room from whence he had been watching the final preparations for the strange event that was to occur. "Are you all set now, boys?" he asked. "Is your camera in the right place for the flashlight?"

"Yes, sir!" cried Jeff and Howard simultaneously.
"The flashlight is planted here, sir," said Howard, pointing to a narrow pan-"I'm hungry."

in a shadowed spot on top of the mahogany desk and close to the lens.
"Have you tested this?" asked Brand.
"Yes, sir."

"Be careful, sir, or you'll explode the flash," warned Jeff as Brand lighted a match to ascertain the location of the powder.

"Go into room 4, boys, and wait till I send for you," directed Brand. Jeff and Howard went out. Brand went to his desk as the office boy, Durkin, entered.

"Joe Dillon's here," said the lad.
"Hrunk?"
"Just one over."

"Broke?"
"Sure!" The boy grinned.

Dillon, one of the "has-beens" characteristic of the type that prey on the newspaper men at night in the big cities, would ordinarily have received short shrift from a busy man like Brand, but Dillon, an ex-newspaper reporter, had once given Brand, when a beginner, some valuable pointers, which the now managing editor had never forgotten.

"Tell him to come in," ordered Brand. He reached for the office telephone and called the night city editor, "The Patriot has got the town skinned on shipping," he said. "Do you know who's doing it for them? Well, I think you'd better hire him."

Joe Dillon wandered in.
"Good evening, Mr. Brand," he said weakly. Durkin, who had summoned him, followed him in.

"Well, Joe, what is it?"
"Wait a minute, Durkin. Got a story for us, Joe?" queried Brand sympathetically.

"I wasn't going to come to work with the boys instead of with a charity grub," began Dillon plaintively. "I know you mean all right, Mr. Brand. I've tried and tried again to fight it off, but it's useless. I can't. It's too late. I'm a dead one. The hard stuff, the five-cent whisky, has got me. You never heard how this thing started, did you, Mr. Brand? If it hadn't been for my wife!"

"Oh, cut it out!" cried Brand, and Dillon shuffled out of the room.
Dillon hurried in. He had become night editor when the shakeup occurred at the time of Brand's promotion.

"Young Bobbie Goodie pinched again for speeding," he rattled off. "Three show girls in the auto. All of 'em lit up. Bobbie weeping because the girls had to miss the theater, and his mother's at me all evening to keep it out. What'll I do?"

Brand leaned back and smiled.

"Well, it was on her account we kept out his partial elopement with her French maid and the time he kissed the head waiter at the St. Honore hotel in lieu of a tip, and I guess—well, print this one. It may help brace him up."
"Oh, and that disappearance case," reminded Downs. "The girl's come back—old gag, visiting her friends in Jersey, but she's been off on the suit case circuit all right."

"Home now?" jerked the managing editor.

"Yep."

"Think she'll stay there?"

"She might."

"Well, she can't if we print this, so let's forget it."

"But we've had a man on it two days," persisted Downs. "We're the only paper that's got it."

"Well, we won't be the one to kick her down," pronounced Brand, turning his head away to end the conversation.

"All right, just as you say."

The telephone bell rang. Brand took off the receiver.

"Hello! Tell Mr. Dupuy I'm busy!" he cried after taking the message.

"What? Send him in. That's all, Downs. See that they take care of Dillon, will you?"

The night editor nodded in the affirmative and gazed rather curiously at Brand as he went out.

Dupuy came into Brand's office with a most circumspect and deferential air. Dressed in evening clothes, carrying his silk hat in his hand and with a boutonniere of hot-house violets in his lapel, he gave every indication of being the society figure that his name and wealth had made possible for him.

The lawyer lobbyist walked directly to the desk at which Brand was seated. In reply to the managing editor's salutation he bowed stiffly and leaned forward over the desk.

Several moments elapsed before Dupuy spoke. He was trying to put his opening words in the most judicious language, and well he might hesitate when one considers the nature of his evil errand.

"The gentleman who was coming to see you tonight," at last he said carefully, "has had to go to the opera with his daughter. He has asked me to come in his stead."

An expression of complete bewilderment spread over the other's face.

"A gentleman? What gentleman?" he interrogated.

Dupuy was momentarily nonplused.

"Why, the gentleman who—ah, with whom you made an appointment for 9 o'clock this evening—here—at your office."

Brand still refused to show his hand.

"I should be very glad to hear what you have to say, Mr. Dupuy, but, frankly, I don't know what you are driving at."

The visitor was annoyed. He was positive that Bartelmy would not send him on a wild goose errand. Surely the judge and Brand had come to terms regarding the silence of the Advance as to the Lansing Iron case decision. The editor was playing with him now, he knew—dangling him on a verbal hook to tantalize him.

"Oh, come, you know who I mean—Bartelmy!" snapped the judge's despicable tool.

"Judge Bartelmy?" exclaimed Brand in surprise. "Well, what about him?" Dupuy produced a card, which the editor glanced at.

"What's this?" he asked. Then he read: "Dupuy will represent me." In what?

He started to put the card in his pocket.

"Perhaps you would better let me have that so I can return it to him," Dupuy reached eagerly for the card, which Brand slowly extended to him.

"This refers to that transaction of which you and he were speaking this afternoon," continued the lawyer.

Brand laughed loudly.

"Well, Dupuy, I'm a poor hand at guessing riddles. I give it up. What's the answer?"

The lawyer became impatient.

"The transaction involving the abominable investment of a certain sum of money," he explained haltingly.

"A business deal I was going into with the judge?" in amazement.

"Precisely."

"If I had any business with the judge, Dupuy, I would prefer to do it with the judge."

"But I am his plenipotentiary."

"Mhm, mhm!" granted Brand negatively.

"You are rather unreasonable, Brand." A wearied and hopeless look began to show in the lawyer's visage.

The young editor noted this and resolved to temporize with and exasperate this man whom he despised above all others, even above Bartelmy himself. Bartelmy, believed Brand, even if he was a scoundrel, actually had superior mental ability, was a brilliant thinker and acted boldly in many of his dishonest transactions on the bench. But Dupuy—he was to Brand the banger-on, the skinker, the vandial lack-that devoured corpses in the night that braver animals had fought and killed by day. His eyes blinked in the light, did Dupuy's. It was in the underground runways that he coursed the swiftest. And as those thoughts sped through his brain the editor looked away absently.

Dupuy came hot on his trail.

"Shall I make an appointment with him for you, say, tomorrow morning?" he anxiously queried of the newspaper man.

"I don't care."

"Then I'll do it," he said decidedly and moved away from the desk. "And—er—" He saw that Brand was still indifferent. He returned to the desk. "Things will remain stationary until then," he asked.

"Things never remain stationary in a newspaper office," responded the managing editor ironically.

"What I mean is that there would be no story—er—about him until you see him."

"A business deal," "I don't know what you are talking about."

"Can we let it go over for one day?" "I don't know what you are talking about."

"You insist on his coming here personally?" "Of course I don't. I don't insist on anything."

"How much time have we got?" "He knows all about that."

Dupuy was immeasurably relieved at this last remark. It was the first time that Brand had indicated that Bartelmy and he had had an engagement.

"Mr. Brand, I can almost assure you that my client will keep his appointment." The lawyer's voice rang out firmly.

The editor nodded carelessly toward the speaker, who spun on his heel and speedily strode away. The telephone bell sounded. Brand bent over quickly.

"Hello! Who—oh, yes, Mr. Nolan. No, sir, not yet, but I think we'll have him landed all right in about half an hour. Please don't worry about it. It'll be all right. Just go away and hide somewhere, for they'll be doing the baby act as quick as I trap him, and you'll be squeezed to death before we get to press. You promised me this chance. You want to know what's going on? Well, where will you be? Triple 3 Plaza. Get off the wire, Miss Stowe. Yes, Mr. Nolan, they cut in on us. I'll call you up later."

CHAPTER X.

BRAND hung up the telephone receiver with an anxious expression on his face. "Nolan must keep away from this," he muttered tensely. "Let him take a train or go to sleep or bury himself if he wants to. If Bartelmy or Dupuy gets hold of him after I've shown my hand there'll be the merry d—l to pay, and if they find him they might succeed in coaxing—I wonder if Nolan will stick; I wonder if Nolan will stick; he kept repeating over and over to himself.

The noise of voices raised in indignation broke in upon him from the outer hall at his right. "Oh, that's a chestnut," some one cried; "he's always out, always when I come."

The editor glanced around and saw Sylvester Nolan leaning in his friend Powell's coat.

"You're not out, are you, old man?" asked young Nolan of Brand. "Who's that fly duck that tried to keep me from coming in?"

"I'm sorry, Nolan; I'm very busy tonight, and you'll have to excuse me. I'm very busy."

"Brandy, old boy, I came in on business. Want to get a job for my friend Powell here. He's a poet." He dragged the wan-eyed rhymester up to Brand's desk.

The editor looked Powell over.

"We don't carry poets on the payrolls," he grunted.

"But just look at this one. I know, let Mr. Brand see your ode to the opening of the Omaha exposition. He went in the competition with this."

Powell handed the poem to Brand.

"And I see he came out with it," snorted the newspaper man.

"Yes, sir," agreed Powell faintly.

"People haven't time for poetry," commented Brand.

"That's what I've been trying to tell Powell," put in Sylvester. "He was worn after his time."

"How would you like to be a reporter?" asked the editor.

Powell's eyes gleamed with a sickly color that showed that he was enthused.

"A reporter? Oh, yes, sir!" he said. Brand took down the phone.

"Hello! Give me night city editor, please. Hello! That you? I've got a cub here named Powell. Please give him a week's trial. Report to city editor."

"Where is he, sir?" asked Powell, bewildered.

"You're a reporter now. Find out."

"Yes, sir." He started toward the hall door.

"Over here, Powell," cried Sylvester, leading him in the opposite direction.

Joe Dillon now added to the managing editor's troubles by again coming into the office.

"Thank you, Mr. Brand," he began. "Could you spare me a little car fare?"

Brand tossed him a quarter. "Never mind now," he said. "Say, Joe, go out with that cub tonight. It will give him something to do. You've got to take word for word, a conversation I'm going to have here. Go in room 4. You, Jeff, take the receiver."

"Yes, sir."

"And you, Howard, take the extension. Thus you will each hear what is

"How would you like to be a reporter?" you something to think about, and you can show him as much in a night as he'd learn in a month alone. Mr. Dillon, allow me to present you to Mr. Sylvester Nolan. Mr. Dillon broke me into the business," said the editor to the newspaper owner's son.

Sylvester drew a ponderous wad of bills from his pocket and offered the top one to the old "down and outer."

"You want to handle my friend Sylvester with gloves," advised Sylvester. "He's just full of temperance."

The old newspaper man indignantly refused the money which young Nolan held out to him and plunged out of the office.

The poet stood a mute witness to the proceedings.

"Go after him," commanded Brand. "Thank you, sir," and Powell darted frightenedly after Dillon.

"Who is that old joker?" asked Sylvester of the editor.

"He was the best reporter that the Advance ever had."

"What's the matter with him?" "Booze."

"Too bad! Well, a fellow ought to learn to control himself," remarked Sylvester pompously. "Now, Brandy, old boy, I want to ask you just one more favor tonight, in reference to a little actress friend of mine, Miss Guenevere McKenzie."

"Oh—come—don't!"

"Run her picture in a prominent place, won't you?" Sylvester handed Brand a photo. "Miss Guenevere McKenzie. Don't you know her? She's in the second row at the Tyrol, and it's a darn shame. I've got a libretto for her later on. Can't you help her out and get her a small part now?"

"I'm afraid that is hardly in my power."

"You'd be doing a favor to the show, for she's good enough to be a prima donna. She's been kept back by jealousy. Told me so herself. When all you have it in—tomorrow."

"I scarcely think we can do that sort of thing in the Advance. We don't print pictures of chorus girls unless there's some good story about them—lost jewels, barred from a hotel on account of a dog, divorce or—"

Sylvester broke in relievedly. "Oh, she's been divorced!"

"Has she? When?"

"Last year."

"That's dead. Wait till her next. She doesn't go in."

"Why—why—won't you do it?" stammered the young man, who, deeply appreciating the fact that he was his father's son—yes, indeed—failed to comprehend how any employee on the Advance could refuse him anything.

"She's the cutest little girl you ever saw, you old gazoot. You stick to me, and I'll give you an interest in this paper some day. Why, she was in—"

"That all may be," responded Brand, rising to end the conversation, "but the Advance doesn't sue possess to the stage entrance."

Sylvester's jaw fell in his astonishment at this unexpected blow and after a moment, after vainly endeavoring to find appropriate words for a reply, he went on of the room.

Brand was impatient because of the precious time that had been wasted. He had work to do and little time in which to do it, and it was the most important work he had ever done in his life.

He sent the office boy to bring the two reporters, Howard and Jeff. Speaking to Miss Stowe, the "central" of the Advance's private telephone system, he said: "Do not put anybody else on this wire until you hear from me, no matter how long it takes. Understand? Connect this phone with editorial room 4 and have it connected until I tell you. Now be sure about this. Understand? Again he repeated, as it concerned the success of his entire scheme, "Don't break the connection until I tell you myself."

The two reporters came in.

"Now, boys, understand what I want you to do. You've got to take word for word, a conversation I'm going to have here. Go in room 4. You, Jeff, take the receiver."

"Yes, sir."

"And you, Howard, take the extension. Thus you will each hear what is said. Keep it going to your desk and take down every word you hear tonight between Judge Bartelmy and me. The judge will sit in the chair at the right of my desk. I will be in my own chair. The telephone will thus be midway between us. Whatever words he and I say will be said almost directly over the mouthpiece. The phone. Now, you see what I am going to do."

Brand took a lead pencil from his pocket and began a proceeding which the two reporters, accustomed as they were in their business to ingenious strategy, failed at first to understand. Then the scheme dawned on them. Brand took the telephone receiver from the hook, and the metal arm immediately snapped upward, establishing the connection. Then he inserted the point of the lead pencil in the small aperture under the little metal arm or hook and deliberately broke it off. The tiny wedge thus held up the hook. Brand now hung up the receiver, and the pencil point prevented the weight of the receiver from bearing the hook down and breaking the connection. The connection was made continuous without the slightest indication that such was the case. Every word now spoken within a reasonable distance of the mouthpiece would be conveyed to the telephone and the extension telephone in editorial room 4, where Howard and Jeff were to be stationed. They had stenographers' pads with them, or which they were each to take down the conversation in shorthand.

"This phone will be open all the time that Bartelmy is here," announced Brand. "Go in there, Howard, and see if you can hear Jeff and me talking. Sit over here, Jeff." He pointed to the chair at his right. Howard went out.

"Now, Jeff, take down this and take down what you say to me," continued the editor.

Brand turned to Jeff and began to talk in a natural tone of voice.

"Jeff, you know I think the dog is the moon was seven times too slow in his journey through the paths of men having lost 6,749,739,274,480 pounds in his auto northward. Is that your opinion?"

"No, not entirely. Hence and here after we complain of such a miraculous egotism of generality and solecism of peaceful garments and cold thought."

Brand struck a blow on the desk.

"On the contrary, it was unquestionable and with nasty justice, mis-called the editor."

Brand took a lead pencil from his pocket and began a proceeding which the two reporters, accustomed as they were in their business to ingenious strategy, failed at first to understand. Then the scheme dawned on them. Brand took the telephone receiver from the hook, and the metal arm immediately snapped upward, establishing the connection. Then he inserted the point of the lead pencil in the small aperture under the little metal arm or hook and deliberately broke it off. The tiny wedge thus held up the hook. Brand now hung up the receiver, and the pencil point prevented the weight of the receiver from bearing the hook down and breaking the connection. The connection was made continuous without the slightest indication that such was the case. Every word now spoken within a reasonable distance of the mouthpiece would be conveyed to the telephone and the extension telephone in editorial room 4, where Howard and Jeff were to be stationed. They had stenographers' pads with them, or which they were each to take down the conversation in shorthand.

think that you would have learned that much by this time."

"This is my first experience of this kind," said Brand.

"Of course it is," answered Bartelmy, with a tinge of sarcasm in his voice. "It always is the first time. But you are assuredly very lucky indeed, Brand, to do so very well at your first try at—"

"Come, look over the place, and let's get through with it," put in the editor. He crossed and locked the door through which the judge had entered. Then he led his visitor over to the door on the opposite side of the room opening into a hallway which extended to various rooms. He pointed to the room directly across the hall. "It's quite dark, you see," he said. "This is where a couple of editorial writers sit. They go home nights, lucky dogs, not being newspaper men." Bartelmy was quick enough to catch the ironical comment of the busy managing editor on the scholarly men who wrote the opinions of the paper. Brand drew the judge back into his office and locked the door behind him.

"Now we are alone, absolutely alone," commented Brand significantly. He led the way to his desk and pointed out to the judge the chair at the right hand side. Brand dropped into his own chair. "Have a seat, judge,"

SOMETHING FOR HEADACHE

Nothing else, aside from money, is so universally sought for as a cure for headache. Headache powders are not safe and they give only temporary relief in any event. The chocolate coated and capsule shaped pills called Sherman's Headache Remedy and sold by all druggists and dealers at 10 and 25 cents, are recommended as the best headache cure.

TO FORM POOL ON SCHOOL LEGISLATION

Rural Legislators Say They Want Local Self Government And so the Fight is on

By Lee L. Robinson.

Frankfort, Feb. 2.—A pool is now being formed within the Kentucky legislature but it is something besides crops which is

AFTER FOUR YEARS OF MISERY

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Baltimore, Md.—"For four years my life was a misery to me. I suffered from irregularities, terrible dragging sensations, extreme nervousness, and that all gone feeling in my stomach. I had given up hope of ever being well when I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Then I felt as though new life had been given me, and I am recommending it to all my friends."—Mrs. W. S. FORD, 2207 W. Franklin St., Baltimore, Md. The most successful remedy in this country for the cure of all forms of female complaints is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has stood the test of years and to-day is more widely and successfully used than any other female remedy. It has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means had failed. If you are suffering from any of these ailments, don't give up hope until you have given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. If you would like special advice write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for it. She has guided thousands to health, free of

to be made a unit; it is the interests of the farmers of the legislature and the residents of towns and small cities. This element of the legislature has not on a common footing and it has formed an alliance offensive and defensive which is to be used to gain amendments to the school law which will be satisfactory to the signers.

This at least is what L. C. Littrell of Owen county, Marion F. Pogue of Crittenden county, Senator T. J. Smith and those most interested say and from the steps already taken it looks as if the poolers might cut considerable ice. The idea was conceived at a meeting held at the Capitol Hotel for the purpose of discussing the various school bills which have been introduced and the different features of the bill passed two years ago. The contention as to the measure already on the books is that it works an injustice on those in rural districts even though it might furnish a high school for the county seat. Another argument is that it permits at the election of colored men as school trustees, but this is one which it is believed will not carry much weight as such action is regarded as highly improbable.

The third and most important features discussed were the bills now before the House chiefly among them that of Representative Lillard Carter, of Anderson which is No. 2 styled an act to provide for more efficient system of common schools throughout the state.

The chief objection and that for which the rural members have their hammers out good and strong has to do with Article 6 providing for the state board of education. The objectors cite attention to that section which says that the state board of education shall be composed of six members four of which shall be connected with the colleges and high schools, one county superintendent and one common school teacher. It is asserted that this is a ratio of four to two in favor of the college forces and that in addition the county superintendent and common school teacher provided for, being in the minority, naturally would be influenced by the majority. It also is pointed out that the board provided for the appointing of two more members making eight in all, the last two to have salaries of $2,500 per year each and all expenses paid out of the school money for children.

The charge is also made that the Carter bill takes away from the counties the right to grant certificates for teaching and that this shall be done by examiners appointed by the state board thus denying local self government in these matters. Still another very serious objection pointed out by poolers is that the bill gives the state board the right to take money away from the common school fund to help build high schools.

This is what they claim is certain to work a hardship financial and otherwise on the children who have to depend on the rural schools and their parents. Still another objection pointed out is that this state board shall recommend the purchase of all school furniture and educational supplies for use in the common schools. It is charged in this connection that in addition to denying the local authorities and patrons of the common schools the right to have anything to say in connection with the management of the latter that it delegates this duty to a board occupying quarters at Frankfort and not in touch with or cognizant of the wants or desires of the rural school patrons. The section which gives to this board the right to say whether any more colleges shall get charters also is condemned.

At this meeting a letter was read from a young woman who is

Stops Neuralgia Pains

The shooting, tearing pains of neuralgia are caused by excitement of the nerves. Sciatica is also a nerve pain.

Sloan's Liniment, a soothing external application, stops neuralgia pains at once, quiets the nerves, relieves that feeling of numbness which is often a warning of paralysis, and by its tonic effect on the nervous and muscular tissues, gives permanent as well as immediate relief.

superintendent of the schools of her county, in which she says that a member who supports different school bills already introduced should go one step further and offer an amendment to the effect that the office of county superintendent shall be abolished altogether.

The superintendent in question condemns the plan to take away from her the right to appoint examiners and ask if the state superintendent would like to have a similar privilege taken from him, she says that such county superintendent knows the persons competent to be teachers better than any board at Frankfort could know them; she protests against the plan to take the school tax fund out of the superintendents hands and place it in care of a treasurer, saying that this robs the superintendent of prestige and makes him or her merely a bookkeeper; she upholds the present institute plan and objects to having the authority to name an instructor for the institutes taken from her and she asserts that the proposed commission would be composed of college men and women most of whom have never been in a common school.

In conclusion this superintendent says that the passage of the proposed bill would mean that many superintendents would resign as they would not submit to the encroachments on their duties which it provides.

Better Not Get Dyspepsia

If you can help it. Kodol prevents Dyspepsia, by effectually helping Nature to Relieve Indigestion. But don't trifle with Indigestion.

A great many people who have trifled with indigestion, have been sorry for it—when nervous or chronic dyspepsia resulted, and they have not been able to cure it. Use Kodol and prevent having Dyspepsia.

Everyone is subject to indigestion. Stomach derangement follows stomach abuse, just as naturally and just as surely as a sound and healthy stomach results upon the taking of Kodol.

When you experience sourness of stomach, belching of gas and nauseating fluid, bloated sensation, gnawing pain in the pit of the stomach, heart burn (so-called), diarrhoea, headaches, dullness or chronic tired feeling—you need Kodol. And then the quicker you take Kodol—the better. Eat what you want, let Kodol digest it.

Ordinary peptic "dyspepsia" tablets, physics, etc., are not likely to be of much benefit to you, in digestive ailments. Peptic is only a partial digester—and physics are not digesters at all. Kodol is a perfect digester. If you could see Kodol digesting every particle of food, of all kinds, in the glass test-tubes in our laboratories, you would know this just as well as we do.

Nature and Kodol will always cure a sick stomach—but in order to be cured, the stomach must rest. That is what Kodol does—rests the stomach, while the stomach gets well. Just as simple as A, B, C.

Our Guarantee

Go to your druggist today and get a dollar bottle. Then after you have used the entire contents of the bottle if you can honestly say, that it has not done you any good, return the bottle to the druggist and he will refund your money without question or delay. The large bottle contains 2½ times as much as the fifty cent bottle.

Kodol is prepared at the laboratories of E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago.

Rev. N. A. Palmer, president of the Kentucky Anti-Saloon League, as was previously announced, filled the pulpit at the M. E. church Sunday, both morning and evening. He was greeted at the morning service with a crowded house of earnest listeners, but on account of the condition of the weather there were not so many to hear him at night.

The music for the occasion, consisting of piano, organ, cornet violin, clarinet, base and seventy voices lead by our own loved Bill Yates was the best ever heard in Marion.

Rev. Palmer made a good impression here and in exposing the evils of the liquor traffic dealt more leniently with them than perhaps they deserve, his deepest reflection falling on the traitor.
If he had done nothing and said nothing more than the reading of an appeal in his hands from the organized Jailers of Kentucky asking aid from the legislature on account of empty prison in the towns and counties where there are no saloons it would have been evidence enough that nine-tenths of the crimes originates from whisky and the saloon curse. We don't want them or the men to represent us that favor them.

perance people to stand by Senator
Watkins in the following letter to
The Sun:

Sturgis Ky., Feb. 12.—Let the temperance people from the Mississippi river to the Virginia line write their encouragement to Senator Watkins and assure him that we believe he has told the truth on those liquo-rite senators. There may not be just four of them who have been purchased and $20,000 may not be the price paid, but any one who has had any experience with the liquor gang will not, for a moment, question the fact of a trade's having been made to defeat the county unit bill. Let tell Jeff to stand by his guns and we will stand by him.—Morganfield Sun.

Amen. We will do it.

Our devil, on learning of the return of our beloved Congressman Ollie M. James, at once fell into a poetic mood, and produced the following:—

Every town in old Kentucky
Has its sorrows and its joys,
Has it's hopes of future manhood
In the rearing of her boys.
But in all the towns in all the land
There's none I ween that names
A statesman of such rank and worth
As ours, our Ollie James.

He's as modest as a woman
And as gentle as a child,
But you'll raise a "Hell up

Should you seek to get him riled
For he loves the proud old penitentiary
With love as pure and brave
As the boys in Gray, their Southland
Which their life-blood paid to save.

is known that steak and roast

AN AWFUL RECORD

Every year thousands of men and women die of kidney disease who might have been cured if its presence had been discovered in time and a prompt treatment with Kidnets adopted. If you have backache, kidney trouble or other symptoms of kidney disease, being using Kid-nets immediately. Druggists and dealers sell it for 50 cents.

A COUGH.

Is a danger signal and should not be neglected. Take Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey at once. It allays inflammation stops the cough and heals the membrane.

Sample Helps Frail Women

So many women are dragging out weary lives just because their digestive organs are weak. The result is poor circulation, nervousness and the verge of invalidism. It is often very unnecessary and the woman's own fault.

The first thing to do is to look to the weakness of your bowels. There the trouble usually lies. All physicians know that a large percentage of women are habitually constipated, and from this results indigestion, phos, weariness, etc., that women constantly complain of.
But there is no use taking "female remedies" and things of that kind until you have started your bowels to moving.
You will find that when the bowels move regularly once or twice a day all your petty ills will disappear. Take a good, mild laxative tonic like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin for awhile and you will find yourself rapidly getting better and stronger, your bowels will regulate themselves and work at stated times, and then your headaches and dizziness will disappear. Don't take strong cathartic pills or salts, but just such a mild and pleasant-tasting remedy as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

You can obtain a bottle of your druggist for fifty cents or one dollar, and either size may be enough to permanently cure you. Thousands of women use it regularly in the house and will no longer be used with safety by every member of the family, down to the youngest child, but if you have never used it take the advice of Mrs. Earl S.
Cox, 406 Twenty-fifth street, Moline, Ill., and Mrs. Ellen Dungan, Muncie, Ind., and send to Dr. Caldwell for a free trial bottle, as they did, and learn for yourself what it will do in your own case. That it will cure you, as it did them, there is no doubt.
Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail.
For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For other request the doctor's address is Dr. W. R. Caldwell, R. 60 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

CURE YOUR KIDNEYS

DO NOT ENDANGER LIFE WHEN A MARION CITIZEN SHOWS YOU THE CURE.

Why will people continue to suffer the agonies of kidney complaint, backache, urinary disorders, lameness, headaches, languor, why allow themselves to become chronic invalids, when a certain cure is offered them?

Doan's Kidney Pills is the remedy to use, because it gives to the kidneys the help they need to perform their work.

If you have any, even one, of the symptoms of kidney diseases, cure yourself now, before diabetes, dropsy or Bright's disease set in. Read this Marion testimony:

M. Schmale, Main Street, Marion Ky., says:

"For several years I suffered from kidney complaint and I am glad to say that Doan's Kidney Pills relieved me promptly. I had a dull ache in my back and when I did any stooping or lifting, sharp twinges darted throughout my body. I felt languid and nervous and was also subject to dizzy spells. I finally procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Haynes & Taylor's Drug Store and their use effected a cure."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name Doan's and take no other.

IT BLOCKS ALL LEGISLATION

County Unit Idea Continues To Disturb the Sc'ons.

ONE LAW ENACTED IN 38 DAYS

Measure Increasing the Salaries of All Circuit Judges Now in the Hands of the Governor—Colonel Jack Chinn's Unique Plan to Prevent Men From Carrying Concealed Weapons—Legislative Review.

BY J. H. STUART.

Frankfort, Ky., (Special).—It is impossible to write about the doings of the present legislature any week or any day without saying something about the county unit extension bill and what effect it is having on all other legislation. In fact the doings of the legislature have amounted to almost nothing so far because of the fight over this county unit matter. Just now it is claimed that the friends of that measure in the house are retarding the advancement of all bills in an effort to force a vote on the county unit bill. Every day or two some friend of the measure will make a motion to take this bill up and make it a special order for a certain day or hour. It takes a two-thirds vote of those present to thus suspend the rules, and so far the friends of the county unit have never been able to get the necessary votes to get the bill advanced. In fact the fight has been so determined that only one bill had been able to get through both branches of the legislature till 38 legislative days of the constitutional 60 had expired, and that bill was the one which in effect increases the salary of all circuit judges to $4,200 a year. This bill would probably have never been hurried up except for the powerful influence that the many circuit judges brought to bear on the members of the house and induced some of the friends and some of the enemies of the county unit measure to unite in placing that bill on its passage ahead of many others.

The senate had for a time apparently quit taking any interest in the county unit measures, but last Thursday the fight was renewed with much vigor. The committee on religion and morals was called on to report, in the regular course of business. The county unit bill No. 1 was reported without an expression of opinion, which report, under the rules operated automatically to indefinitely postpone the bill. The same committee, however, had another county bill, No. 44, and before the committee could make the report on that Senator Thomas of Bourbon quoted section 46 of the constitution and demanded that the bill, No. 44, be called from the committee. This precipitated a long parliamentary fight. President Cox finally ruled that any senator had a right to call a bill from a committee after the committee had failed to report it in a reasonable time; that the committee on religion and morals had been in possession of the bill, No. 44, for a reasonable time, and that when the bill was so called from the committee it went into the orders of the day just like any other bill that had been reported to the senate without being called out. Senator Combs appealed from his decision and the senate sustained the appeal by a vote of 18 to 16. This would seem to settle the county unit measures as far as the senate is concerned, but the friends of the bill are still hoping and will take advantage of any opportunity to get the bill to a direct vote of the senate for passage.

The joint committee of the house and senate that has been investigating the adjutant general's office has not made a report yet, but one is expected in a few days. The members of the committee decline to tell what they have discovered, but it has leaked out from reliable sources that some very large amounts of money were paid out last year and year before for the service of soldiers during the night rider disturbances. One instance is cited from Hopkinsville, where the committee discovered that one livery stable owner had been paid over $10,000 for horse and vehicle hire for the use of soldiers. It is not claimed there was any graft or overcharges made by the liveryman, but the fact that such a large sum was paid out to one liveryman in one county is cited to show what an enormous sum must have been paid out in all for the same purposes.

TOOK ALL HIS MONEY.

Often all a man earns goes to doctors or for medicines, to cure a Stomach, Liver or Kidney trouble that Dr. King's New Life Pills would quickly cure at slight cost. Best for Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Biliousness, Constipation, Jaundice, Malaria and Debility. 25 cents at Haynes & Taylor.

Each of the chief organs of the body is a link in the Chain of Life. A chain is no stronger than its weakest link, the body no stronger than its weakest organ. If there is weakness of stomach, liver or lungs, there is a weak link in the chain of life which may snap at any time. Often this so-called "weakness" is caused by lack of nutrition, the result of weakness or disease of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. Diseases and weaknesses of the stomach and its allied organs are cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. When the weak or diseased stomach is cured, diseases of other organs which seem remote from the stomach but which have their origin in a diseased condition of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, are cured also.

The strong man has a strong stomach.
Take the above recommended "Discovery" and you may have a strong stomach and a strong body.

GIVEN AWAY.—Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, new revised Edition, is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the book in paper covers, or 31 stamps for the cloth-bound volume. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Milo-na Puts the Stomach in Fine Shape in Five Minutes.

If your stomach is continually kicking up a disturbance; if you feel bloated and distressed; if you belch gas and sour food into the mouth, then you need Milo-na Stomach Tablets.
Milo-na stomach tablets give instant relief, of course, but they do more; they drive out the poisonous gases that cause fermentation of food and thoroughly clean the system and strengthen the stomach so that it can readily digest food with artificial aid.
Milo-na stomach tablets are guaranteed to cure indigestion, acute or chronic or money back. This means that nervousness, dizziness and biliousness will disappear. Druggists everywhere and Haynes & Taylor sell Milo-na for 50 cents.
