GREER'S CASE AFFIRMED.

Supreme Court Affirms Circuit Court In The Greer Decision.

Frankfort, Ky., May 4.—The state supreme court today affirmed the decision of the McCracken circuit court in the case of Judge K. Greer, convicted of murdering Charles Troutman.

Greer, who was convicted at the January criminal term, has been in the county jail here since a Marshall jury found him guilty of voluntary manslaughter and fixed his punishment at from seventeen to twenty-one years in the Eddyville prison.

Seventeen to twenty-one virtually means a life sentence, inasmuch as Greer is already past the fifty year mark. He has aged considerably since his arrest which followed the shooting of Troutman in his (Greer's) office in the Yeiser building.

WHOLE OF SERBIA FACES EXTINCTION

Typhus Is Sweeping Entire Country and Outbreak of Cholera Now Feared.

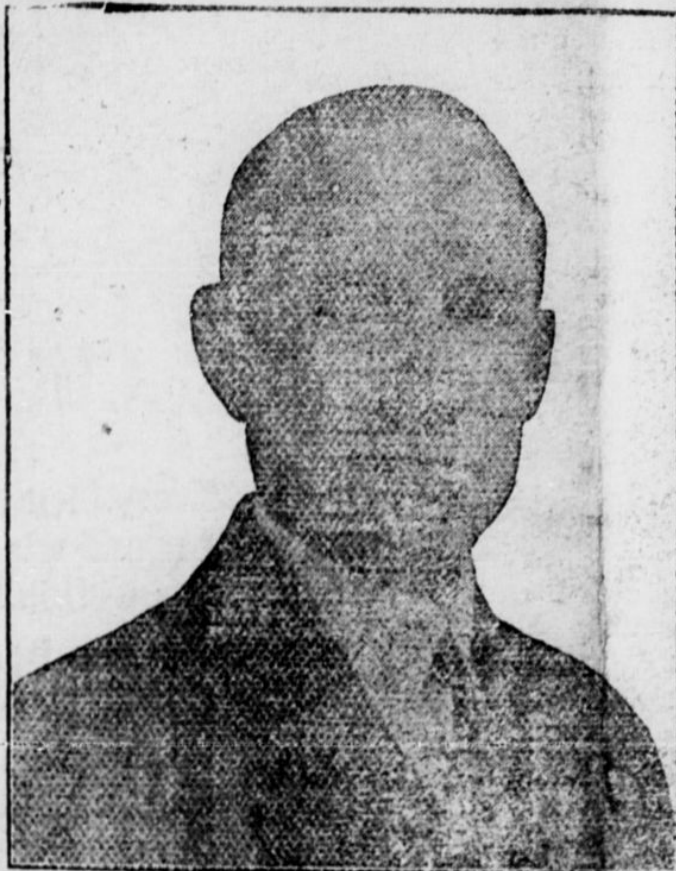

New York, May 3.—The Rockefeller Foundation War Relief Commission made public last night a report on destitution and disease in Serbia in which it is stated that on March 10 probably from 25,000 to 30,000 persons were suffering from typhus in Serbia and that this and other epidemics were "swiftly enveloping the entire nation." The report was transmitted from Berlin.

Cholera was at that time expected with the arrival of warm weather, and no preparations had been made to combat it, the report said. Probably 300,000 persons were destitute. Neither the Serbian Government, absorbed in the war, nor the people themselves were able to control the situation, which the commission described as not only a "menace to the health of the Serbian people, but of the whole world."

It was upon this report that the Rockefeller Foundation, at the invitation of the Serbian government, joined with the American Red Cross in sending to Serbia the American Sanitary Commission, which left here April 3 under the leadership of Dr. Richard P. Strong, of the Harvard Medical School. The Commission proposes as its first step in controlling the epidemic the isolation of the infected.

ROBBED HIS EMPLOYERS.

Man High In The Employ Of Paint Company Admits He Is Guilty.

New York, May 4.—Philip L. White, the $6,000-a-year manager of the Masury Paint company in Brooklyn, on trial as the leader of a band of highwaymen who held up his employers' bank messengers and robbed them of $3,000 nearly a year ago, rose from his chair in the courtroom today, stretched both arms toward Supreme Court Justice Aspinall on the bench, and exclaimed: "Stop! I am guilty. I want to confess my guilt before God and the world."

A court room scene seldom equalled in the annals of New York jurisprudence ensued.

White, trembling with emotion, he turned from the bench and faced the jury.

"I am guilty," he repeated. "It is a bitter cup that is forced to my lips, but it is the Lord's will. I have lived two lives—a decent one and that of a highwayman. I hope that God will forgive me and that I may live long enough to make restitution."

He reached to his coat lapel and fumbled with a gold button in the button-hole, insignia of his membership in a fraternal order.

CRITTENDEN FARM NEWS

Crittenden and Trigg Counties Showing More Interest Than All Others.

This paper desires to call the attention of its readers to the best road that has ever been constructed in Crittenden county. We make the assertion without fear of successful contradiction, that Crittenden county has at the present time, within her borders as good a dirt road as any road in the United States and through the summertime it is as good as a pike.

This road stands out a shining mark for all men to inspect and the citizens who live on this road invite every man in Crittenden county to take a ride over it and see what a good road is like.

This road was worked with a split log drag in the spring. If anyone doubts the efficiency of the split log drag investigate this road and be convinced. This wonderful road is the Piney road and it starts at the corner of Melvin Hughes' field opposite Effie Wilson Jenkins' gate and stretches out to the Caldwell county line. Dosie Hill and Charlie Hunt will give any Crittenden county man instructions free of charge and you can have as good a road as

MARION WINS NEW HONORS.

Miss Lucile Moore Carries Off The Honors In The School Contest At Providence.

Marion has sent many of her gifted sons out into the world, and daughters as well and is destined to feel many thrills of joy as the younger generations come on endowed with the varying talents that make people famous. This week we present a new heroine, as bright as a star, gifted in oratory, imbued with enthusiasm and realizing that industry is one of the cardinal virtues. We refer to Miss Lucile Moore, who, although only 15 years of age and the youngest of the contestants, won the medal without a dissenting voice in the Declamatory Contest of the Central Interscholastic Association, held Friday evening, April 30th, 1915, at Providence, Ky., in which the following program was carried out:

Music Marion High School Orchestra.
DECLAMATIONS
"Cherokee Roses" Prue Wyatt
"The Soul Of The Violin" Cuba Casner.
Music
"The Parting Of Hector And Andromache" Louise Proctor
"The Polish Boy" Mabel Conway

"In conformity with my usual custom of encouraging the hospitals, I will make special concessions with reference to supplying such institutions of your city with Tanlac, as I consider the preparation a superior tonic in all cases of convalescence." The famous medicine, Tanlac, can now be bought in Marion only at J. H. Orme's drug store, and at A. T. Brown's, Blackford, Ky.—Advertisement.

HUNDREDS RUSH TO GET TANLAC

Cooper Besieged With Callers Who Want Famous Medicine.

Louisville, May 5th. Hundreds are now calling almost daily to meet L. T. Cooper, the noted visitor, and to find out just how his famous medicine, Tanlac, is sold, how it is prepared and what the preparation actually looks like.

In commenting upon the rush to meet Mr. Cooper and obtain his celebrated medicine, the manager of the Taylor-Isaacs store, said:

"The success of the opening of the introductory sale of Tanlac exceeded our expectation. We have been agreeably surprised by the knowledge the public seems to have of the preparation. While many came just to meet Mr. Cooper and see what the medicine really looked like, equally as many came prepared to obtain the preparation. These people simple asked for Tanlac, and the facility with which the medicine was distributed throughout the day proved somewhat of a revelation to many of our older men."

Mr. Cooper said: "I am, indeed, gratified to see such marked enthusiasm, and I feel justified in predicting that Tanlac will prove just as successful in Louisville as it has in the larger cities. I do not believe that I am overestimating the success of the medicine when I state that I am confident that from three to five thousand people will call and obtain Tanlac during this week."

Mr. Cooper was asked about the charitable work he intended to perform in Louisville. He replied: "Yes, it is true that I have written the Associated Charities asking that organization to furnish me, as soon as practicable, with the names and addresses of at least fifty of the most deserving poor families of your city, whom I propose to help. I have also written St. Joseph's Orphans' Home, offering certain contributions. I shall communicate with similar institutions within a few days with the view of endorsing their noble efforts by assisting them in some substantial way."

"In conformity with my usual custom of encouraging the hospitals, I will make special concessions with reference to supplying such institutions of your city with Tanlac, as I consider the preparation a superior tonic in all cases of convalescence."

The famous medicine, Tanlac, can now be bought in Marion only at J. H. Orme's drug store, and at A. T. Brown's, Blackford, Ky.—Advertisement.

Orchestra of The Marion High School Charming Entertainment.

The Marion High School Orchestra which went to Providence last Friday afternoon to attend the contests there, were invited to Madisonville by their former leader, Mrs. V. Y. Moore, and left Providence for Madisonville Saturday morning. Their hostess and her husband met them, accompanied by Mr. R. E. Moore, also a former Marionite, and they were given a warm welcome and a "perfectly grand breakfast." After a short rest a tour of sight seeing over the "best town on earth" was taken,

THE HAYWARD MEDAL AWARDED

Miss Lucile Moore the Winner in The Contest Held At The Auditorium.

In the Annual Girl's Declamatory Contest held at the school auditorium in this city on Tuesday evening, April 20, 1915, beginning at 8 o'clock the following interesting program was carried out:

Southern Stars Orchestra
March—Stars and Stripes Forever Orchestra
La Czarine Orchestra
1. The Night Run of the Overland Iva Bigham
Usher, Ruth Travis
2. A Voice From a Far Country Gladys Travis

3. A Little Child Shall Lead Them Virginia Flanary
Usher, Vera Conyer
4. The Bride-Keeper's Story, Katharyn Reed
Usher, Marjorie Paris
Cecile Waltz Orchestra
5. The First Settler's Story, Catherine Moore
Usher, Mary Dollar
6. 'Connor Lucille Moore
Usher, Dorothy Dean
Mill In The Forest Orchestra

The young ladies all did exceedingly well and all had many enthusiastic supporters and each was the recipient of many flowers and other complimentary evidences of the merit of their work, and the esteem in which it was held.

The judges awarded the beautiful Hayward medal to Miss Lucille Moore the last declamer and the youngest of the sextette, and immediately she was cheered enthusiastically by the audience and was congratulated by each of her five opponents, showing that the Judges award was agreed to unanimously.

The happy winner is an orphan and with her brothers and sisters lives with her grand father, Judge James Anderson Moore, on east Depot street. Her father was the late Robert Milton Moore, who died several years ago in Oklahoma as a result of an accident while logging. Her mother who was of Indian descent died soon afterward, leaving the five children among strangers. Judge Moore, and his good wife quickly decided to bring them all to their home here, from which all of their own brood had gone, out into the world, grown to manhood and womanhood. And now they can look with pride on their second family and are reaping their reward for their labor of love in rearing them.

The award automatically put Miss Moore in the Central Association Contest at Providence Friday evening April 30th to represent Marion in the girls' declamatory contest there, a report of which appears elsewhere in these columns.

Rooters Who Went To Providence With The Speakers.

The Marion friends of the speakers chosen to represent this city at the contest in Providence were certainly loyal and interested, judging from the following list of those who accompanied them, some going by rail and others in automobiles.

DR. CHERRY'S VIEWS ON THE STATE ISSUES

Would Enforce Temperance Legislation, But Opposes State-Wide Issue.

PUBLIC SERVICE EFFICIENCY
WITHOUT INCREASED TAXES

Text of Speech Made by Democratic Candidate for Governor at Mayfield on Saturday.

Mayfield, Ky., April 3.—Dr. Henry Hardin Cherry, since its organization, the head of the Western Kentucky State Normal School until the 1st of March, when he resigned to enter the race for the Democratic nomination for governor of Kentucky, subject to the state primary to be held in Kentucky on Aug. 1, spoke to an immense audience at the mammoth courthouse here this afternoon. This is the largest county in western Kentucky, and has a large Democratic majority. Dr. Cherry was in fine voice and his speech was listened to with interest. His remarks in full follow:

My Countrymen: I am deeply grateful to you for your presence upon this occasion. I feel keenly the responsibility of speaking to this great audience. I want to say those things that will bring the great people together rather than divide them into warring factions; and those things that will fire their patriotism and build up the standards of living in the commonwealth. I am here to appeal to the higher motives of men, not to their passions and prejudices. If I can avoid it, I shall not engage in controversy with a single individual during this campaign. I do not believe that the great people of Kentucky are going to permit common demagogues to elect the governor of Kentucky. We have already had too much bitter politics in Kentucky and not enough sincerity, business and statesmanship. Political campaigns are too frequently slaughter houses, where the needs of the people are butchered in the interest of votes, offices and graft. Every public issue should be presented to the people in such a way as to illuminate the question, inform the people and build up their ideals. Every question should be decided upon its merits.

The hope of our country is in a people who read, think and serve; who preserve the right to take the moral and political initiative for themselves and who challenge the right of any man or organization to do their thinking and voting for them. When God opened space and threw millions of worlds into it, he made no two alike. When he swung into existence a young Kentucky, he made no two of its human beings the same. In fact, he made us different and gave us different missions to perform in order that we might have a great state. It has been ordained by nature that there shall be serious and independent thought and a multiplicity of ideas in order to secure the highest development of justice and progress in society. After all there is no music in a democracy so sweet as the singing of a spinning idea as it passes through the spiritual universe; no chorus like the rattle of spiritual artillery; no solo that equals the boom of a moral galling gun; no deed so strong and stately as a fact of white ideas sailing the sea of life. The citizen who preserves his individuality, who hears and obeys the voice of an educated conscience and grows and goes behind a conscientious life is a patriot who fights the battles of the flag and marches at the head of the army of progress, whether he believes in the county unit law, statewide prohibition or some other thing. The people must investigate every question for themselves and seek to be governed by light and justice rather than by an appeal to the passions and prejudices.

I believe in party loyalty and in the principles enunciated by the Democratic party. No man who knows me doubts my devotion to the Democratic party, which was organized and is now being promoted in the interest of justice and human rights. In order for us to be loyal to this great organization, which has done so much in lifting burdens from the shoulders of the people, it is necessary for us to admit the wrongs that exist and to know the needs of the toiling and suffering masses, and with fire in our hearts and steel in our nerves, set ourselves to work correcting the wrongs and providing for the needs. We must put public service above public jobs, the people above the political machine, and the Democratic party above the boss. The noble Democratic party will die in the hands of a coterie of politicians whose eyes are bloodshot with poison, political dope. There are men who talk about their loyalty to the Democratic party, but who at the same time are intoxicated with a desire to secure a public office which they intend to use as a football in the game of depraved politics. I do not know of any reason for the existence of the Democratic party in Kentucky except for the advancement of the moral, intellectual and industrial life of the state. It must carry the message of help and inspiration to the woman in the home, to the farmer in the field, to the laboring man in the factory and to the professional man and all others pursuing honorable human endeavors.

Free From All Entanglements. In submitting my candidacy to the people of Kentucky for the Democratic nomination for governor, I promise that if I am elected I shall be free from all entanglements, and not an appointee or slave of any faction, organization or machine. I would rather live an honest life in a humble home yonder in the woods on the hillside than to live in the governor's mansion yonder in Frankfort and be a victim of depraved politics. I would rather be free and be defeated than be a slave and be elected. If I am elected I shall, upon entering office, be free as mountain air—free to fight for the rights of the people and free to take the executive initiative in the work of transacting public business.

Born in humble surroundings among the sand hills of Kentucky, trained in every hardship known in the experience of a poor boy, and having earnestly worked for twenty-three years with the great common people for the education of their boys and girls, and never turning down a request for assistance that I could grant, I feel that I have a vision of the needs of the toiling masses, and that I am prepared to give every human being a just deal. Not only have my own life and my contact with the masses enabled me to know the needs of the people, but the responsible position which I have held as the head of a great institution for the past twenty-three years has given me a wide experience in the executive field, and a knowledge of those problems that enter into the making of a greater Kentucky. Every plank in the platform upon which I am making this race is a patriotic call for a greater moral, intellectual and industrial state.

The greater Kentucky is in the people. It is the greater spirit. It is a vision of a larger life and a purpose on the part of every citizen to accomplish it. It is a depth, a breadth, a fullness and fineness of human thought and character. It gives every citizen, whether he lives in the country or in the city, on the hill or in the valley, in the hut or in the mansion, a chance to live and grow and an opportunity to be happy and prosperous. It emphasizes the importance of every human being because he is the fundamental unit of the state and the source of the currents of spiritual and industrial thrift. Democracy never intended that a single human being should be neglected by society.

The people do not need material help so much as they need spiritual life in every ignominious human endeavor. They do not need more money in the bank so much as they need more good books and literature in the home. They do not need to work harder with the hands so much as they need to read, plan and think more. The state can not force the citizen to accept the more abundant life, but it can knock at the door of every home and offer every human being a chance to have more life and more of the material blessings of this world. It can not put food in all the hungry mouths, but it can, through a constructive policy, eliminate human lives and sufferings, light up the dark hovels and show the people how they may have more wholesome food. It can not increase the yield of the farm, but it can offer such information and agricultural instruction as will enable the farmer to increase the yield. It can not restore life to the loved one who has died from preventable diseases, but it can teach others how they can avoid dying from the same cause. It can not force the citizen who is having a hard time and who has not succeeded to be a success in his chosen work, but it can put a lamp in his hand that will light up the way to success.

A wise statesmanship recognizes that fundamental reform in every state begins in the houses occupied by our own souls. If you would have a greater Kentucky:

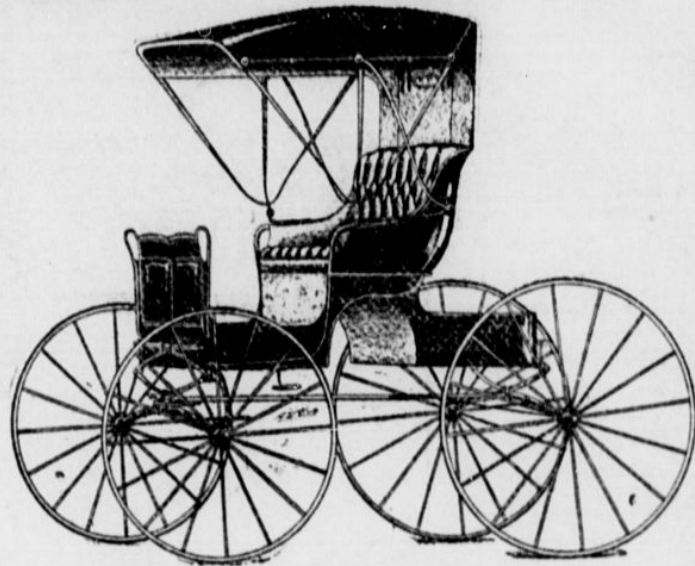

"Go make thy garden fair,
Thou workest not alone;
For he whose plot is next to thine,
Will note and mend his own."

We will never have the greater Kentucky until every citizen leaves his neighbor alone for awhile and goes to work on himself and gives to his country one great life and one noble endeavor; until a father's leadership and devotion, a mother's love and service and Christian ideals and parental authority prevail in every home; until the members of every church practice the religion they teach, in and out of the church, and in private and public life; until teachers and pupils of every school make the school a community life where industrial progress and moral and intellectual individualities flourish; until all the people not away from the rule of selfishness and bigotry, from hatred and envy and in the spirit of unity of co-operation work together for a greater Kentucky.

Our civic, social and industrial problems will be solved when we vitalize every inch of Kentucky life, soil and business and every public office with the right kind of brains and conscience. I sometimes fear we are trying to win a battle at Valley Forge without a Washington, trying to write a Declaration of Independence without a Jefferson, trying to light up Kentucky without having a light in our own souls. The greatest thing in human endeavor is a human being, and the greatest thing in a state is a great citizen. The citizen is the spiritual dynamo that turns the wheels of progress and determines the conduct of the state. Nothing has ever been accomplished by human hands in the outward world that did not begin in some human being. That bridge in southern Kentucky was burned before the blaze was witnessed by the physical eye; that restaurant in western Kentucky was blown up before the dynamite was placed under the building; that citizen in central Kentucky was whipped before he was taken from his home; that mountaineer in eastern Kentucky was shot before the report of the gun was heard by the physical ear; that ballot was mutilated and the election debauched before the voter entered the booth. I am trying to say that the commonwealth's house will be in bad order until the soul's house is put in good order by Christian education. Our troubles vanish when intellect, vitalized by the spirit of honor and service, rules in our land, and when every person feels the responsibility of citizenship and is given an opportunity to live a prosperous and happy life. We can not dream the greater state into existence; it must be achieved through in-

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. It is now cured by the use of Catarrh Cure, a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Mr. Arthur L. Pierce, 2618 Sheridan Ave., St. Louis, Mo. "The curative value of Peruna is truly wonderful. I think it especially valuable as a specific for catarrh of the system, and for a man who has traveled for years as I have and who is certainly exposed to irregular meals and uncomfortable sleeping accommodations, Peruna is one of his best and most needed traveling companions. It throws off disease and keeps him well. I therefore heartily recommend it." Those who object to liquid medicines can now procure Peruna Tablets.

Never Deceive An Animal.

In the current issue of Farm and Fireside appears the following advice as to the training of animals:

"You never can train a colt, a calf, or any animal, wild or tame, unless you gain its entire confidence and affection. To do this you must never deceive it, not even for fun, and always protect it and show that you love it.

"The way to a man's heart is through his stomach," and the road to the affection of an animal is by way of its taste.

"An apple, a bit of tender grass, or some tasty bit will soon make friends with it, and kind words and petting will make it a loving and obedient friend."

Sick Women Made Well

Reliable evidence is abundant that women are constantly being restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The many testimonial letters that we are continually publishing in the newspapers—hundreds of them—are all genuine, true and unsolicited expressions of heartfelt gratitude for the freedom from suffering that has come to these women solely through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Money could not buy nor any kind of influence obtain such recommendations; you may depend upon it that any testimonial we publish is honest and true—if you have any doubt of this write to the women whose true names and addresses are always given, and learn for yourself.

Read this one from Mrs. Waters:

CAMDEN, N.J.—"I was sick for two years with nervous spells, and my kidneys were affected. I had a doctor all the time and used a galvanic battery, but nothing did me any good. I was not able to go to bed, but spent my time on a couch or in a sleeping-chair, and soon became almost a skeleton. Finally my doctor went away for his health, and my husband heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got me some. In two months I got relief and now I am like a new woman and am at my usual weight. I recommend your medicine to every one and so does my husband."—Mrs. TILLIE WATERS, 530 Mechanic Street, Camden, N.J.

From Hanover, Penn.

HANOVER, PA.—"I was a very weak woman and suffered from bearing down pains and backache. I had been married over four years and had no children. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound proved an excellent remedy for it made me a well woman. After taking a few bottles my pains disappeared, and we now have one of the finest boy babies you ever saw."—Mrs. C. A. RICKROCK, R.F.D., No. 5, Hanover, Pa.

Now answer this question if you can. Why should a woman continue to suffer without first giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial? You know that it has saved many others—why should it fail in your case?

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No one sick with woman's ailments does justice to herself if she does not try this famous medicine made from roots and herbs, it has restored so many suffering women to health. Write to LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO. (CONFIDENTIAL) LYNN, MASS., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

ward and efficient individual effort and through the influence of the home, the church, the school, the library and every outward democratic agency of life that approaches the individual, awakens the soul, stimulates self-discipline and prompts human efficiency.

Most of our troubles of all kinds are inherent in the individual. We may look the world over for an easy way to build up a great state. We may employ mechanical means and artificial methods of reform; we may make laws and appeal to the law to find, in the end, that a great state is in the people; that it is a spiritual life, an aggregate human thought that must grow from within. It grows because it has the contagion of good citizenship; because it is itself a great lesson in progressive life; because its public officials, its public sentiment, its vision, its ideals, its patriotism, its laws and its citizens are moral, patriotic and just. It grows because it is a living, growing organism, nourished by a spiritual atmosphere, a spiritual soil, a spiritual sunshine and a spiritual shower. We can not force the growth of a great state through a quill, a human machine or a legislature. Human growth will come when the people rely upon the government for happiness and prosperity. I fully value the importance of safeguarding the intellectual, moral and industrial life of the people through the enactment of law. I am not minimizing in the least the importance of needed legislation, but I am rather emphasizing that any endeavor to improve life that is not founded upon individual character will result in failure and do harm. At any rate, it is possible for us to emphasize the outward at the cost of the inward, the statute at the cost of the citizen. I believe that the need for the making of a few vital laws and for the strict enforcement of the laws already made is greater than the need for the making of many new laws. We are not in need of more laws so much as we are in need of more men who respect and obey the law—men who are straight, decent and fearless and men who do right without having a law flashed in their faces.

No democracy can last without inviolable government, without the silent rule of human lives. Noble and expanding visions and ideals that rule in the citadel of the soul can not be fully expressed in written laws and political platforms; neither can they be effectively transmitted to the lives of the people through laws made by partisan legislatures; and yet they are the invisible things that largely make and govern every great state. There is no greater work that can be done in Kentucky than the crystallizing of human ideals and noble desires that are frequently silent and inactive into a positive public sentiment that will proclaim to the world that Kentucky is a land of optimism, magnetic progress and opportunity, unfit for dead men and knackers and suitable only for live men and boosters. We shall never have the greater state until we develop a public sentiment that will be a fire under the feet of every reactionary in the state, a public sentiment that will brand, banish and disgrace any citizen who would corrupt a great state; a public sentiment that will insure clean elections and the rule of the people. The chief executive of the state enjoys many opportunities to take the lead in the development of public opinion, and if I am elected governor I shall use every proper influence within my power to develop and maintain high standards of private and public conduct through the development of an active and sane public sentiment.

There is an invisible government that is the greatest foe to a free democracy. It is the secret control of the spiritual and industrial properties of the people. It is a government by machine manipulators who pool the people's vote and sell public offices to the highest bidder. It is government by the representatives of great corporations and other special interests who put burdens upon the people and muddy the fountains of justice by using corrupt methods of securing legislation offered in the interest of the few and preventing legislation offered in the interest of the many. This form of control will destroy the self-reliance of the people, put burdens upon their lives and make them slaves of the unscrupulous and avaricious boss. I believe in the rule of the people; in civic righteousness, in social and industrial justice, and if I am elected governor, I shall use every influence within my power to have a corrupt practice act passed that will destroy the influence of the corrupt lobby and keep the offices and the government under the control of the people.

Favors Railroad Regulation.
In developing a greater Kentucky there is no agency that plays a more important part than the railroads of our state. They are the great arteries of commerce that make possible markets for our vast resources. They add greatly to the civilization and education of a country and are entitled to every encouragement possible and to a fair return on their investment. It is, however, too often the tendency of public service corporations to use the great corporate powers they have to impose upon the people and to prevent a proper and adequate regulation of all public service corporations to the extent that the people may not be burdened by exorbitant and unjust rates and restrictions. As regards the state constitution which the governor and all other state officials are sworn to make it unlawful "improperly" for common carriers to give free transportation to state officials and members of the general assembly, and for such officials to accept same, I would, if elected governor, recommend to the general assembly that a law be enacted to put into effect this section of the constitution. The issuing of passes by railroads to members of the legislature and other state officials is fundamentally wrong, and I do not doubt that this practice has defeated much legislation offered in the interest of the people. The legislator and the state official who accepts a free pass over a railroad is likely to be influenced by his act when called upon to decide some question when the interest of the railroad is involved.

No Increase in Taxes.
The most vital question that must come before the next state administration tion is the one that concerns the reorganization of the finances of the state on a sound business basis. It is doubtful whether there is a private business in Kentucky that could continue six months if it were organized and conducted like the business of Kentucky. Our state is an enormous business enterprise that receives and spends more than $7,000,000 annually. This money comes from the taxpayers, and they have a right to demand that every dollar paid by them for the maintenance of the government render a dollar's worth of patriotic service, and that every person elected or appointed to a government position render honest labor and do a full day's work. The people have never objected and never will object to paying for good service and good government, provided they get good service and good government. If I am elected governor, my first message to the general assembly will deal largely with the business conditions of the state and will recommend that the state's financial system be reorganized, waste and extravagance be eliminated and the taxpayer protected, and an equitable, just and progressive system of taxation and business established. I am going to use every power I have to have the debt of the state paid off and her business put in shape so she can meet her obligations when they fall due. I shall work for a more efficient administration of the affairs of the state, and shall stand for the right kind of economy in all public matters. I am unalterably opposed to any increase in the tax rate. I believe with the proper business management we can solve our fiscal problems without any increase in the tax rate. I shall use my influence in having a law passed that will call from its hiding place intangible property, that is largely owned by the rich and is escaping taxation, and force it to bear its part of the expense of maintaining the government. Many, many other wrongs exist and will continue to exist until the business of the state is reorganized. If I am elected governor I shall recommend that no appropriations be made except in cases of emergencies, until the present financial condition of the state is corrected and it is in a position to pay her appropriations when they fall due. I shall recommend abolishing every useless office, and the right kind of economy in every department of the government.

When I was a child I used a minnow hook, a thread and a worm and fished in a hole of water about two feet deep that was under the roots of a sycamore tree that stood by the bank of a creek. A person may fish in this hole of water all his life and he will never catch anything but minnows, because only minnows inhabit it. If he does not go to the larger waters he will never know the difference that comes from the feeble tug of a minnow and the thrilling pull of a five pound bass. I fear sometimes that Kentucky has fished too much in minnow holes instead of putting out boldly upon the great sea of life and feeling the spiritual and industrial swells that come from a larger state manhood. We have sometimes dabbled in the shoals when we should have been out upon the great blue deep. We have played secret and petty politics in secret and dark places in the interest of the few, when we should have been working for the many and transacting the business of the commonwealth. We have been satisfied with inadequate educational advantages for our children when we should have demanded the best. We have in many instances robbed the soil of its fertility, destroyed the timber and polluted the streams instead of conserving them. We have too neglected our agricultural interests, and as a result many rubbles and small crops grow where big ears and large crops should grow. We have been satisfied with muddy roads and willing to pay the enormous mud tax when we should have had good roads. We have shipped our coal into other states to run their machinery, when we should have been using it for home industries. We have been shipping raw material into other commonwealths to be made into finished articles, to be shipped back to us and sold at an enormous profit, when we should have been making these finished articles ourselves and shipping them into other states. In fact, we have done too much fishing in minnow holes and have not had enough of the thrill, pleasure and profit that comes from a larger effort.

Nature has made Kentucky a goodly land, lavished upon her with a prodigal hand, bestowed within her borders natural resources which make her land sanguine in promise and productivity, mighty in industrial opportunity and imperial in the majesty of her soil. Her area is almost as large as England. She is one-fifth as large as the German empire and four times as large as Belgium. If her population were as dense as Belgium, there would be within our area 25,000,000; or as dense as Germany, there would be 12,000,000; or if as thickly settled as England, 26,000,000 souls. She has a great agricultural area, marvelous coal fields, much iron ore, valuable oil and gas reservoirs, inexhaustible supplies of limestone, clay and cement material, and within her area 4,000 miles of navigable rivers, upon whose waves the transportation craft of an empire might find its way into the world's market.

Indeed, Kentucky is a land of optimism. The golden gates of opportunity swing wide open. It is a land of milk and honey, but we shall never get the milk until we have men who can do the milking, and we shall never get the honey until we have men who will make it. Our unworked and undeveloped spiritual and industrial fields are calling for men; for men of brains, brawn and character, who are willing to make a trial at leadership. While we solicit and cordially welcome the energy and money of other states to join us in the development of our resources, we at the same time should not forget that the responsibility of ownership falls heavily upon us, and that our children are entitled to their share of the wealth of our fields, hills and mountains and to as good an opportunity to become leaders as the children of any other state. Vast fields of Kentucky's inexhaustible wealth that are worth millions of dollars and that in-

BELLMONT

(delayed from last week.)

Quite a nice crowd attended Sunday school at Piney Sunday, numbering 73 scholars. Good! We ought to have had two more, but we hope they will all continue to come and bring some one with them.

Ulysis Crider has been quite sick the past week, but is some better at this writing.

Walter Hillyard, of Sugar Grove, was the guest of his sister, Lola Alexander, Saturday and Sunday.

Geneva Andrews is on the sick list.

Charley Curry, of Hopkins county, was the guest of his sister, Mrs. Clarence Spence, last week.

We are sorry to hear of uncle Tom Boswell, of Piney Creek, having the typhoid fever.

Fred Crayne and wife were the guests of Allen Crider and wife the week-end.

Bro. Sidney McNeely passed through here Sunday enroute to Hawridge where he preached Sunday.

Jesse McMican, of Enon, visited his sister, Mrs. Allen Crider, Saturday and Sunday.

Born to the wife of Henry Hunt, April 24th, a girl. Dr. O. C. Cook in attendance. Mother and babe getting along nicely.

Mrs. Frank Boyd, of Shady Grove, who has been with her daughter, Mrs. John McConnell, the past week, returned home Saturday, leaving Mrs. Bell Andrews to stay with her.

Tobacco plants are scarce in this community on account of the dry weather, we suppose. So we hope will bring the price up on the weed.

German Gas Fails:

Met With Hot Shot.

Havre, April 28.—Asphyxiating bombs used by the Germans in their attacks Monday night against the Belgian positions had little effect because preventive measures had been taken by the Belgians who had learned of the effects produced by the fumes from these shells upon the French and British.

Advices received here state that the Germans confident that the gases would prove effective, advanced in compact masses south of Dixmude but were greeted with a hail of bullets from quick firers. A furious bayonet charge then was launched by the Belgians and the Germans retired. Their losses are said to have been very heavy.

Demand the All-Steel Door Frame In Your SILO

Be sure that your Silo has a solid steel backbone in order to prevent bucking or bulging. The All-Steel Door Frame is the keystone to the Silo. As is the case with other necessary Silo improvements, the All-Steel Door Frame is found in the

SAGINAW ALL-STEEL DOOR FRAME

In constructing the All-Steel Door Frame heavy steel angles are placed in a vertical position for the door posts, with solid steel girders or braces 30 inches apart, horizontally across the opening. The Door Frame is built by expert machinist. Heavy pneumatic riveting hammers crush the burr around the rivet hole and girder tight together. See his picture. Note the steel girders that continue past the uprights several inches on either side. Each end of the girder is fastened to the outside of the first stave of the wall with two heavy lag screws.

Now, the other flanges of the upright angles have holes drilled in them at intervals for screws which fasten them to the first staves of the Silo wall, thus making a frame which is absolutely rigid and will not allow the Silo to bulge or buckle nor the doors to bind. You know the results of the binding doors without a steel door frame. It means you have to use a crow-bar or an ax to remove them. There is an immense pressure brought to bear on the door frame by the staves and if your frame is not built of solid steel like ours, it cannot withstand this heavy pressure and your Silo doors or then a source of annoyance every time you want to take them out.

The first stave on either side of the door frame is fastened onto the steel frame before shipment is made, which makes the erection simple and easy for you.

You are beginning to see what extreme care is used in building the Saginaw Door Frame. I wish it were possible for each one of you to go through the wonderfully equipped plant of the McClure Company and see exactly how the Saginaw Silo is made. The best I can do is to show you in our newspaper, right here at home, pictures of the different improvements and descriptions of how the Steel Built Stave Silo is built.

Saginaw Silo Doors and Door Openings.

The Saginaw Silo has continuous doors with perfectly air tight bearings. The handy levers hold them firmly in position. The inside surface of the doors is perfectly smooth, so the silage settles evenly. The Saginaw has largest door openings of any Silo. It is easier for you to get your feed out of the Saginaw. THE SAGINAW COMBINED DOOR FASTENER AND LEVER is the last word in Silo building. Saginaw levers always work smoothly. We do not depend on the silage to hold the doors in place. Sweet, succulent silage always next to Saginaw doors. No wrenches required. A small boy can operate Saginaw doors.

In the May American Magazine James Montgomery Flagg, the famous wit and artist, does an amusing piece in words and pictures entitled, "Wives." Following is an extract descriptive of a man in love:

"There is an impression in some circles that a man in asking a woman to marry him is paying her the highest compliment in the power. Tommyrot! A man is generally dizzy in the head when he proposes. He hasn't the vaguest idea of being complimentary—he just wants the lady to leave her home and live with him in a manner to which she is entirely unaccustomed."

YOUR HEALTH

Don't Endanger It With Calomel.

It is generally agreed by experts in this country and Europe that calomel has a very violent effect on the system. This accounts for the familiar disagreeable feeling accompanying a dose, and the weakened condition following it.

LIV-VER-LAX is a harmless vegetable compound, that is a mild, but effective substitute for calomel. It has all the effectiveness, but not the effect, of calomel. Its splendid value has brought it into such wide use that in some states it has almost entirely replaced calomel.

Just try LIV-VER-LAX once, and you'll never use calomel again. Insist on the genuine, bearing the likeness and signature of L. K. Grigsby, which is guaranteed to give satisfaction or money refunded. For sale by Haynes & Taylor, Marion, Ky.

known all over the country.

"And I surrender my membership in the Mystic Shrine," he continued, tearing the button loose. "I am no longer worthy to remain a Shriner."

White continued his impassioned avowal. He freely confessed the details of the crime, but asked no clemency and made no statement as to the motive which impelled him. When he sat down beside his long time friend, James F. Cinnin, auditor for the Hackett & Wilhelms company in Brooklyn, who was on trial on the same charge, Cinnin arose. "I wish to plead guilty, too," he said, and sat down.

The trial, which has been in progress in the supreme court in Brooklyn for several days, was at once halted. The jury was dismissed and the court accepted the two pleas of guilty. Sentence was postponed a week.

Cinnin and White were charged with having devised the scheme under which two messengers of the Masury company were robbed of $3,000 in the hallway of the building occupied by the firm.

The actual robbery was committed by two highwaymen acting under White's orders. The four afterward divided the money, White getting $900. This was testified to yesterday by Robert S. Roberts, the man who actually took the money from the messenger's hands.

White lived in a handsome residence at Elizabeth, N. J. When he was first arrested after months of investigating by detectives, his employers were astounded, refused to believe him guilty and assisted him to obtain bail.

each young lady being supplied with a Madisonville beau and each young gentlemen with a Madisonville girl. Needless to say this trip continued 'till the big clock tolled out the noon hour, the time for one of Mrs. Moore's delightful luncheons.

In the afternoon a trip was taken to "Loche Mary" and with a number of neighbors a bacon fry was given at the supper hour, which was one of the most enjoyable features of the whole trip. In the evening the Moore home was thrown open to about sixty invited guests, to meet the Marion Orchestra, the hostess being assisted by Mrs. B. M. Slayton. The following especially prepared program was rendered by the orchestra by request:

1. Flag Day
2. It's A Long, Long Way To Tipperary.
3. La Czarine
4. Slip Horn Stuff
5. Mill In The Forest
6. Bullin' The Jack
7. Hunting Scene
8. Burgundy
9. Southern Stars
10. Nights Of Gladness
11. Rosary
12. The Huntsmen

These selections were made by Mr. V. Y. Moore, being his favorites which he had often heard the orchestra play. That the guests were pleased was evidenced by the hearty applause and proved Madisonville a musical city, and one appreciative of talent. The young folks returned home via Nortonville and Princeton, arriving here at 8 o'clock Sunday morning, "having had the trip of their lives." There was only one regret and that was the fact that Miss Elizabeth Cook, a member of the orchestra was ill and unable to go on the trip, she being the only one of the orchestra who did not promptly accept Mrs. Moore's invitation.

IN MEMORIAM.

Mrs. Margaret Ann Hina was born March 3, 1832, in McMinn county, Tennessee. Came to Marion, Ky., in the year of 1847 and later came to Bell's Mines community and has lived there every since.

Her maiden name was Murphrey; she was the daughter of Robert Murphrey. She was married to Joseph A. Hina, July, 1858. To this union were born five children; one girl and four boys:—Mrs. Anna Brightman, George A., Wm. J., John B. and Charles B. Hina.

She professed faith in Christ in her early girlhood days. She was first a member of the Baptist church, it being the only church in the community at that time. When the Cumberland Presbyterian church was organized she was in the organization and was a charter member and has ever lived to the honor and glory of God. She loved her church, and was true and faithful until God said early Wednesday morning at two o'clock and ten minutes, "its enough come up higher." Her spirit took its flight back to God whogave it. Sister Hina desired to be conscious to the last, and it was her prayer she might be, and among her last words she was so sure God had answered her prayers, she knew everything to the last.

She was a devoted wife, a loving mother and a good neighbor. The remarkable thing is, this is the first death in the immediate family.

Sister Hina was 83 years, one month and 25 days old.

She would have been married fifty-seven years next July.

The surviving husband and five children were present at the funeral. The funeral was conducted Rev. W. T. Oakley in the presence of a large crowd, the floral offering was beautiful. The interment was in the cemetery at Bell's Mines, in which church she held her membership.

WHOOPIING COUGH

Well—everyone knows the effect of Pine Forests on Coughs. Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey is a remedy which brings quick relief for Whooping Cough, loosens the mucous, soothes the lining of the throat and lungs, and makes the coughing spells less severe. A family with growing children should not be without it. Keep it handy for all Coughs and Colds. 25 cents at your Druggist.

MATTOON

Mattoon is a beautiful little hamlet situated in a fertile valley midway between Marion and Blackford. Although its population is small, it can boast of a preacher, merchant and doctor.

W. E. Minner, our rural mail carrier, is one man whom everyone is always glad to see, we suppose. We all think him the right man in the right place as he daily deals out our mail with untiring patience.

Miss Delpha McDowell who has been spending several weeks with her brother near Prospect, has returned home.

Owen Roberts left for Texas April 22, to resume his work with the Western Union Telegraph Co. He spent four months here with his wife, and hopes soon to be in a position to send for her and babies.

Bro. Richardson filled his appointment at Rosebud Saturday and Sunday. He was accompanied by his wife and little daughter, Irene.

J. M. Walker and daughter, Miss Gusta, of Rosebud, passed through here Thursday enroute to Marion.

Mrs. Jennie Armstrong who spent last week with Mrs. Frank Burton, has returned to the home of her daughter Mrs. Hepsy Cowan.

Irving Brantley and Miss Cordie Farley, Flavius Richardson and Miss Laura Summers attended church at Rosebud Sunday.

Homer Barry, of Memphis, Tenn., is spending a few days with friends and relatives here.

Mrs. Kate Newcom and son, Earl, were guests of Sister Richardson Monday.

Herbert Lamb and family visited at Fishtrap Sunday.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Finney Moore, April 14th, a boy.

We are sorry to learn of the illness of Rev. Gibbs. Hope he may soon recover his usual health, and be spared to us for several years yet. This is his old home place where he lived and labored for many years.

$20 INCREASE PER ACRE ON LAND

ADJOINING ROADS BUILT UNDER NEW STATE AID LAW

The State Aid Law for Building Good Roads Promises To Be the Greatest Blessing Ever Brought To Kentucky Land Owners, While Burden of the Taxes is Not Thrown Upon Them Through Unwise Legislation.

The new and greater Kentucky, as a result of wise legislation, as against the old Kentucky, with unwise legislation, high taxes, bad roads, poor schools and worse school houses. Which do you prefer?

An increase of at least $20 an acre on the value of all lands adjoining improved roads built under the new State Aid Law is estimated by expert calculators who have gone into the subject very thoroughly.

The building of these public highways will also increase all other lands in proportion in every county and district.

This most notable forward step will prove the greatest blessing that has ever come to the land owners of Kentucky.

It is the intent of this law that all taxable property shall bear its proportionate burden of taxation for this State Fund for road building.

It was not intended that the land owner, though possibly receiving the greatest benefit, should bear the greatest part of the tax burden. Such great sources of revenue as our railroad properties, distilleries, financial institutions and manufacturing enterprises will bear their just part, as well as all other taxable property. The throttling or crippling of any of these great resources by hostile legislation must lay a heavier burden upon the land owners and other tax payers.

More than 100 counties have already levied a tax upon themselves in order to take advantage of this State Aid Fund for the building of Good Roads in their respective sections. This year alone the fund amounts to $658,220. This sum will be increased by levies in these counties so that the sum expended will probably exceed two million dollars.

It is estimated that at least 6,000 miles of good roads will be completed under this new State Aid Law within the next 15 years, costing when completed approximately thirty millions of dollars. It is also estimated that the expenditure of the two million dollars this year will increase the value of property to the extent of at least twenty-five millions of dollars in the counties where these roads are built.

This is a splendid beginning. What a difference this will make to the land owners, the farmers and all others who make use of county roads, whether for business or pleasure. There are many fine farms in Kentucky 20 or more miles from the railroad that are not worth half as much as if they were near a railroad station, for the reason that it is too far to haul farm products to market over the old-fashioned dirt roads, which are practically impassable for nearly half of the year.

What a difference, though, when these same farms shall have been connected with the railroad or the market with a good State road over which it is easy to drive and haul as compared with the old roads. To haul a large load over a good road, even twenty miles, is easier and quicker than to haul it over five miles of the old time winter mud road. These good roads, therefore, will bring the distant farm nearer to the market and add greatly to the profits of the products of the farm.

Under the supervision of competent state and county road engineers, county seats and the most populous sections of the State will be connected by improved public highways, bringing the church, school and market nearer the door of every family. Then will come a new era of prosperity in Kentucky. With the markets thus of ready access, the farmer can market his products of all kinds to better advantage in every way—do it in less time, with more ease, less cost and greater profit than ever heretofore.

While good roads are more necessary and of more economic importance than possibly any other civic improvement to which the people of the State can turn their attention, there are other important things to be done. Such wholesome tax reforms must be inaugurated as will make it easy to raise money to carry on these great works of public improvement, without laying too heavy a burden upon the tax payers, many of whom are now bearing their fair share, and some more than their share. The State's revenues are not sufficient by nearly a million dollars a year to meet the expenses of government. These expenses have to be met out of the taxes paid on the property of our citizens.

Any legislation that would tend to cripple or render less valuable any of the great tax-paying industries of the State, will necessarily transfer the burden to the farmer, merchant and home owner.

It is time for every tax payer to demand that his Representative in the Legislature consider these facts. It is time for them to call a halt to the destruction, or threatened destruction, by hostile legislation, of property interests in the State from which we derive our greatest revenues.

In other words, industries and enterprises that pay the largest taxes and make possible the great benefits to be derived from good roads, good schools, and improvements in agriculture, must not be destroyed or driven from the State.

Good roads bring the country folk and city folk into closer contact—means broader gauged, hand-in-hand attitude toward public matters, toward public good. May our legislators and every citizen of the Commonwealth look forward to, plan and work together for a greater Kentucky; to conserve every source of revenue for meeting the State's obligations, keeping it out of debt; lowering the burden of taxation; placing it where it belongs and not throw the burden of the land owner nor any other one class. May this new dawn of a greater Kentucky forever put a stop to any movement that would tend to cripple or destroy any of our great industries.

Good Roads or no good roads, we can never move forward and take our place in the galaxy of great States around and about us in progressiveness, education, wealth and industry, until we have become constructive rather than destructive in our legislation.

herently belong to the Kentucky child, been purchased for a song by foreign capital and will be left to the child of other states. There are Kentucky boys of the finest human stock who are in need of the comforts of life and who are today working in great coal mines that were formerly owned by their fathers. We must invite foreign capital and give it an opportunity to work in our state, but it is more important for us to get rid of so much bitter and selfish politics, get down to business and wake somebody up in Kentucky.

Pledges Aid to the Farmers.

Universal progress begins and ends with the soil. We must love and intelligently cultivate the farm if we would succeed in building up a greater Kentucky. Improved agriculture is a fundamental proposition and one of monumental importance to every citizen of the state. About 75 per cent of the people of Kentucky are engaged in agriculture. The development of our state depends largely upon the success of the farmer—the most important citizen of the land. We have a significant inheritance and opportunity.

We have the climate, the sunshine, the soil and the people, but the leading farmers and agricultural experts of the state tell us that we are not producing more than one-half of what we should produce and that the yield can be doubled on the same acreage, with but little additional labor. After all the permanent producing capacity of the soil—the basis of all prosperity—depends finally upon the intelligence of the farmer who cultivates it. I believe in every sane and democratic effort in the interest of rural uplift and in a state policy that will aid in building up the rural schools, in constructing good roads, in disseminating agricultural information among the masses, in co-operating with the United States government in its endeavors to improve agriculture, in increasing the productive capacity of the people and in prompting them to develop community organizations that will aid the people of rural Kentucky in establishing markets and in getting good prices for the products of their labor.

With a little effort we can double the earning capacity of our people, and when we do this we will have more money for the necessities of life, for the comforts of the home, for the building of roads, churches, and for private and public improvements of all kinds. I heard the lamented Senator A. Knapp, the great rural uplift chairman and worker, say that if he could instruct each farmer in Kentucky for twenty minutes in the simple fundamentals of corn culture, and if they would faithfully do what he asked them to, he could increase the annual corn yield five bushels per acre. This would increase the annual corn yield in the state 15,000,000 bushels, and at 75 cents per bushel the increase would be worth $12,500,000, enough to pay the deficit in the treasury of Kentucky about five or six times, enough to build a $1,400 school building in every rural school district in Kentucky, and enough, if transmitted into private and public improvements and into human efficiency, to solve many of the vital problems of life and to meet many of the industrial needs of our state. This twenty minutes is one of Kentucky's opportunities which will be lost to the state unless saved through the agricultural education of its people. If I am elected governor I am going to do everything within my power to promote the agricultural interests of the state and to assist the farmers in working out their complex problems.

Good Roads Enthusiast.
I welcome with enthusiasm the good roads awakening that is now sweeping the state. It is impossible to estimate its meaning to the moral, and industrial development of Kentucky. I have always been an earnest advocate of good roads, and if I am elected governor I shall have special interest in doing all I can to promote the building of good roads in every section of the state. I also favor the abolition of the present convict labor system, and the reorganization of the penitentiaries and asylums along modern and economic and humanitarian lines.

The greater Kentucky can not be brought into existence by some magic process. It can not be set up and nailed together like a house. It must grow. If we would maintain a full grown Kentucky, we must attain unto a full grown citizenship, and if we would attain unto a full grown citizenship, we must attain unto a full grown school system developed to the highest degree of civic, social and industrial efficiency. The work of developing schools that inspire leadership, schools that are human, unselfish, where sound ideas grow and individualities flourish, is fundamental reform and the hope of a democracy.

When our brave forefathers founded this government upon human expression they embodied the thought of the public school in the organism of the republic. The Declaration of Independence contemplates universal education. It makes the public school system and other character-making forces a necessity and an implied part of its organism. The Declaration of Independence is by nature the greatest educational program that has ever been enacted by a body of people. Its own life and perpetuity depends upon universal intelligence and righteousness. The world of mind is the field in which the school system works. The system exists for no other purpose except to make patriotic citizens and capable workers in the home, on the farm, in the shop, in the factory, in the professions and elsewhere. The work of making men, of transmitting ideals into life, into government, into industry, into freedom, of giving them wings and making them messengers of peace, is the greatest work delegated to the hands of men. This makes its work universal, establishing a common ground upon which all can unite in the interest of efficiency. The school system belongs to the people. It inherits patrie unity. We stand for it for the same reason we stand solidly for the flag when it has been dishonored by a foreign foe. I know of no patriotism, of no reform that is higher than an organized effort that declares its allegiance to the child who is to become the future Kentucky.

Our noble boys and girls stand by our side armed with ability and nerve, ready to accomplish the greater Kentucky if we will give them the opportunity. I greet Kentucky and recognize her patriotic call for education and more abundant education; ideas and more noble ideas; more government by the schoolhouse and less government by the military camp; more and better schools and fewer jails and penitentiaries; more scholars and fewer criminals; more freedom and fewer slaves; more life and still more life.

We cherish the public school because it is the friend of the boys and girls. It belongs to democracy. It is every man's friend, and above all, it is the poor man's friend. It knocks at the door of the poor and at the door of the rich. It knocked at the door of my humble home when I was a boy, and gave me and eight brothers a glimpse of a new world and an opportunity to learn to read, write and cipher a little. I cherish it because it gave me something that was worth more than gold or silver and because it is going to give every child who takes advantage of it something that is more valuable than rubies.

The development of our rural school is our most important rural problem. About 75 per cent of the children of the state live in the rural sections and most of them are deprived of the educational advantages enjoyed by the children of the city. The development of our state depends more than anything else upon the training of the rural children, most of whom will become tillers of the soil and the makers of homes—the basis of all wealth and progress.

I believe in the development of the material resources of Kentucky, in a magnetic and sane progress that will stimulate effort and efficiency in every honorable human endeavor and add new wealth to our personal holdings and put red blood in the arteries of commerce. But I would make the motive that prompts the effort a moral enthusiasm that will stamp every dollar with integrity and give it a conscience; that will transmute it into ideals and into better homes, better churches, better schools, better roads and all other things that make life joyous and happy. It would be better for us to live and die in a log hut and experience biting poverty, and preserve our integrity, our chivalry and our human sympathy, than to die rich in a mansion and become a commercialized, money loving, selfish people. Neither one is right. The remedy is in a proper use of our inalienable life and property privileges. The state has no higher function to perform than to instruct her people concerning the inherent relation that exists between property and life and between the school and the industrial development of the state. I believe in a state policy that will ring the moral, intellectual and industrial "ring bell" in the lives of all the people.

On the 8th day of January, in announcing my candidacy through the press of the state for the nomination for governor, I made the following statement in reference to the temperance question:

Oppose Statewide.
"I believe in temperance, in law and order and in the enforcement of law. I have always worked with the temperance people and have never cast a vote for the open saloon. I stand for the present county unit law and for making it effective. If I am elected governor and the general assembly should pass a bill repealing the county unit law, or a bill that would render it less efficient, I would veto it. Under the present county unit law, which in its present form has been in operation less than one year, every saloon in Kentucky can be closed and the temperance sentiment promoted. My interest in temperance and in the development of a greater Kentucky causes me to look with deep concern upon any effort to abandon, at this time, the county unit law for statewide prohibition. We should give the county unit law a fair trial before going further. I believe that a wise statesmanship demands that the approaching administration devote its time to the work of interpreting the principles enunciated in this platform into a greater Kentucky; to wiping out the state deficit and to organizing her different institutions and endeavors upon an economic and business basis. We must do something that will assist the people in having more of the comforts of life and more to eat and to wear. This conclusion has become to me a deep conviction. In taking this position, I do not ask any citizen to surrender his views on temperance."

Believing it to be the duty of every Democrat to stand on the platform enunciated at our last platform convention, until the Democrats of the state in convention assembled make a new declaration of principles, and prompted by an earnest desire to do the thing that would be to the best interest of both the party and this great state, I made the above declaration. I submitted the temperance plank, before making my announcement to a large number of temperance workers, including many leaders, and asked them to criticize it freely. With but two or three exceptions it was enthusiastically endorsed. There can be no doubt about there being thousands and thousands of as noble temperance workers as can be found in Kentucky who believe we should give the county unit law a fair trial before going further. They believe, as I do, that the good faith of the people and of the Democratic party are pledged to the county unit law and its complete enforcement; that the time of the next administration should be used in loyally supporting it and in setting the state out of debt and in doing much other vital work that must be done and done immediately in order to relieve the state of its present financial embarrassment. There are many things that can be accomplished by the next administration other than the submission of the statewide prohibition amendment that will have a far-reaching influence on the moral life of the people. Every effort is being made at this time by certain persons to force the wet and dry issue, and make it overshadow all other questions. This is not a wet and dry fight, and any attempt to make it one is a piece of monumental demagoguery. Statewide prohibition, if honestly considered, is simply a question of "smoot as to whether

TOLL OF RAIN, WIND AND ELECTRICAL STORM

Twenty Deaths From Late Hurricane In Texas.

Dallas, Texas May 4—Delayed reports indicate that 20 persons and perhaps more met death Thursday night in the rain wind and electrical storm which was general over nearly all of Texas and Eastern Oklahoma.

Austin felt the blunt of the storm and perhaps the death toll there alone was fifteen. Half a million dollars property loss was also sustained. Other sections damaged will increase the total loss to a million dollars.

THE FARMER AND HIS SON.

A farmer sat on a load of hay,
He had just arrived in town.
His old straw hat and sunburnt face
Both seemed to match his frown.

For as he passed "University Hall"
Many students were standing there.
He heard them shout, "Oh, see the "Rube!"

With hay-seed in his hair!"

"The man upon that load of hay,"
Spoke without fear or shame,
"Is the Grandest Man on earth to me,
I am proud to bear his name."

"That father of mine has a heart so pure,
"Yas," as pure as the finest gold,
And I demand respect for him,
Though he be gray and old."

There was a silence akin to pain
As the boy with faith so strong
Stood praising his grand old father,
Whom he said could do no wrong.

"To this very school that we have here,
My father gave all the lands.
He laid the first foundations
With honest willing hands.

"So doff your hats now every one;
To that dear old man on the hay,
And learn to respect an honest man
While passing on his way."

Three cheers went up with waving hats,
Till their voices filled the air.
They will not forget that son, and man
Who had hay-seed in his hair.

HERBINE

Is the Remedy You Need.

It is an invigorating tonic for a torpid liver. The first dose brings improvement, a few days use puts the liver in fine vigorous condition. Herbine also extends its restorative influence to the stomach and bowels. It helps digestion and food assimilation, purifies the bowels and brings back the habit of regular daily bowel movements. When the stomach, liver and bowels are active, bilious impurities no longer obstruct functional processes, the result of which is renewed energy, mental activity and cheerful spirits.

Fortune Found In Secret Compartment By Carpenter.

When W. F. Weaver, 42, a carpenter of Joins Hill, Campbell county, Ky., broke open an old carpenter's chest Monday, he discovered $2,000 in money in a secret compartment of the chest. The box had been purchased 20 years ago by Mrs. Mary Bishop, Weaver's mother-in-law, at an auction sale at White's Tower, Kenton County, Kentucky.

It was taken to the Bishop home, near Independence, Ky., and shortly after, strange noises were heard in the house. Superstitious neighbors informed the Bishops that the house was haunted and that the spirits were in search of a lost fortune.

The old chest was opened and the contents searched thoroughly but no money found. Shortly after the Bishops gave the chest to Weaver, to use as a tool box, and he left it standing in the yard of his home for years.

Monday Weaver started to clean up his premises and applied an ax to the old chest. The secret compartment burst open and greenbacks in denominations of $5, $10, $20, $50, and $100, were disclosed. The money was the issue of 1865 and bore the likeness of Abraham Lincoln.

Rheumatism Yields

Quickly to Sloan's

You can't prevent an attack of Rheumatism from coming on, but you can stop it almost immediately. Sloan's Liniment gently applied to the sore joint or muscle penetrates in a few minutes to the inflamed spot that causes the pain. It soothes the hot, tender, swollen feeling, and in a very short time brings a relief that is almost unbelievable until you experience it. Get a bottle of Sloan's Liniment for 25 cents at any Druggist and have it in the house—against Colds, Sore and Swollen Joints, Lumbago, Sciatica and like ailments. Your money back if not satisfied, but it does give almost instant relief.

er not it is better to retain the county as the unit or try to change the constitution and make the state the unit in which to enforce prohibition; and believing that the county unit at this time can be made more effective than the state unit, I am glad to be able to conscientiously stand on our present Democratic platform. One hundred and six counties are now dry, by the sovereign votes of their people. Statewide prohibition can not make this county or any of the 106 any drier than your votes and your splendid public sentiment have already made them. I have stood shoulder to shoulder with the temperance people of my county, under our county unit law, in obtaining prohibition conditions and eradicating the saloon from our midst. You have done the same thing in your good county. Every county in the state can do the same whenever their public sentiment demands it and not before, whether under a county unit or a statewide law. The governor has nothing to do with the submission of the statewide amendment. It becomes a law without his signature. He can not even veto it.

The state constitution took from the governor the power to veto an act submitting a constitutional amendment, and put the entire power in the hands of the general assembly. I am at a loss to know where those advocating statewide prohibition got the information that the people want to vote on it at this time. I have heard no such clamor from the public myself, but am rather of the opinion that an effort is being made to force this issue on the people, whether they want it or not, and if such is the case, the effort can be prompted only by some other motive than a patriotic one. It seems strange that any one, having the success of the Democratic party at heart, would attempt to force such an issue on the people at this election, when all the state officers (who have nothing to do with the question) are to be elected, instead of deferring it until some future election when only the members of the general assembly are to be elected, and thus avoid a disruption in the party and its possible defeat in November.

I believe that a wise statesmanship demands that we, at this time, seek to enlarge the dry territory through the operation of the county unit law and through the development of a strong public sentiment, rather than to attempt to put all of the counties under statewide prohibition, regardless of their local sentiment and public opinion. The noblest law known in the experience of man will die in the hands of a people who will not execute it. It will be a civic tragedy that will destroy respect for law and lower the ideals of the people. Law has never and will never rise above public opinion. Good government demands that law follow public opinion and not be forced to travel ahead of it only to be assassinated by its enemies who have protested against it. Our government demands that the citadel of public opinion—the home of law—be established in the hearts of the people before the law is forced upon them. I do not know of anything that injures the standards of people and lowers the standards of living more than a homeless law that is forced upon a governing unit without its consent and over the protest of a majority of the people who live in the unit. Is it wise for us at this time to force statewide prohibition upon counties we know will not enforce prohibition? What do we hope to gain by sending the temperance cause into territories where we know that a majority of the people are against it, and will take advantage of it to discredit the temperance movement?

There are many other phases of the question that I could discuss, but time forbids at this meeting. I shall take them up, however, from time to time through my campaign.

Finally and summarily, I stand for a greater Kentucky, a land of happy homes where moral, intellectual, religious, social and industrial ideals flourish and flowers bloom; a land dotted with schools taught by consecrated teachers, crowned with our noble boys and girls preparing for spiritual and intellectual enjoyment and for service in the occupation they are to pursue; a land of Christian ideals, with good roads leading from neighbor to neighbor and from everywhere to the school, the church and the market; a land where every inch of soil is fertilized with constructive thought with human brains and conscience, yielding an abundant harvest to be transmuted into life; a land of industrial standards made in the image of justice; a land of work, worth and service determining the real value of a man; a land where demagoguery and political trickery and incompetency have been banished and the fundamentals of real progress established; a land where every citizen carries the ballot in his conscience when he enters the voting booth; a land where public opinion forces the right and leaves life; a land of brothers, fellowship, good will, Christian liberty and individuality; a land of lofty ideals, of love, of charity; a land where the spiritual prevails over the material and the intellectual is vitalized with conscience; a land where moral and intellectual initiative is encouraged and individuality is enthroned; a land where honor rules and democracy is crowned.

We cherish the name of our great president, whose constructive brain and Christian heart are leading the Democracy of this country into new fields of service and is making it the agency of a more abundant life and a real worker for the toiling masses. Behind the present national administration, which has accomplished more constructive legislation in the interest of the people than any other for forty years, stands the patriot life of President Woodrow Wilson—the Thomas Jefferson of the twentieth century. All of us should be true to the principles of the Democratic party and work hard to avoid any mistakes that would endanger the success of the party in Kentucky, for our organized and unbroken influence is needed in solving the vital problems of our state and in continuing at the head of the national Democracy America's greatest citadel.

If I am elected governor, I shall try to prove to the people that I appreciate their confidence by working hard and then working some more; and by doing all within my power to make Kentucky, if it is not now, the best place on earth in which to live. I shall gratefully appreciate your positive support. If I am nominated, I shall carry the Democratic banner into November. I thank you for your presence on this occasion.

FIRST SHIPMENT

Brought From Cuba By $4,000,000
Ferry Reaches Cincinnati.

The first shipment to come to Cincinnati from the interior of Cuba via the big $4,000,000 ferry steamer of the Florida East Coast Railroad, was received the other day. The shipment consisted of two cars of tomatoes and one of pineapples, and was consigned to various commission houses of this city.

The placing of the ferry in operation about the first of the year enables the Florida East Coast Railroad to handle all kinds of produce from practically any part of Cuba without change of cars. The tomatoes and pineapples received the other day were packed in Cuba in the cars in which they were received here.

The shipment was handled by rail to Havana, thence the entire train was run onto the ferry, which has a capacity for a train of 36 cars, and transported to Key West. Here the train was run off the boat, connecting with the new double-tracked railroad built over the coral reefs connecting Key West with Miami, Fla. Here it was switched onto the main line of the Florida East Coast and brought to this city by the Baltimore and Ohio Railway.

Genuine Prescription For All Rheumatism

Satisfaction Guaranteed or Money
Back Says James H. Orme.

Rheuma—that is the name of the scientific prescription that is putting old rheumatism out of business. Rhuma cures by driving the uric acid from the blood. It also acts directly on the kidneys and is better for them than most so-called kidney cures. Porter Smith, Dobblin, W. Va., writes: "I have been a great sufferer from rheumatism for about 26 years. The disease had become chronic. I began taking rheuma with little faith in its virtues, but was better from the first day I began its use, and at this time have no more pains."

James H. Orme, Marion, Ky., and all druggists sell Rheuma, and no rheumatic sufferer can afford not to use it 50 cents a bottle. Your money back if not satisfied.

RUSSIANS FOR M'CHESNEY

180,000,000 Russian On The Water Wagon.

In the May American Magazine Caytain Granville Fortescue writes an article entitled, "Battling for Warsaw." It is an account of the great war on the eastern frontier of Germany.

Following is an extract:

"When Russia went to war the Czar with a stroke of his pen put 180,000,000 people on the water wagon. And, believe me, this water wagon 'ikon' is no bluff. It is harder to get a drink in Russia to-day than it is at Lake Mohonk. How wise was this edict of the ruler of Russia is now shown in the condition of his army. Their fighting effectiveness is higher than that of the French and fully equal to the English, measured by the physical fitness of the units composing the forces. On the other hand, the German soldiers nearly all carry flasks of whisky or other spirits. Ivan the Siberian knows this, and I fear that the famous edict is sometimes broken when a batch of prisoners is gathered in. The flasks are certainly contraband of war."

WHAT SHE REALLY NEEDS

Village Deacon Uses Words Of Wisdom In Addressing His Young Lady Friend

"So, my young lady friend, you think it almost unbearable in the old town, do you?" said the Village Deacon to the sweet young thing. "Altogether too dull to suit you. You have grown clear away from life in a quiet, rural place and long for the paved streets, marble cafes, crowded street cars and whirl and bustle of this big city. Of course all you know about city life is what you have heard someone say, what you have read and what you have dreamed—all, by the way, very unreliable sources of information. Time hangs too heavily on your hands here. I notice that your poor old mother has plenty to occupy her time. She is never idle very long at a time. You might jump in and take her burdens a week or two. There are also lots of good books you have never read and your knowledge of fancy work could be written on a postage stamp. You are tired of the same old faces every day. Perhaps you don't know that those old familiar faces are the bulwark that stands between you and harm. If you could get away from here for a few months among strangers those old familiar faces would look so good to you that you would cry at the thought of them. No, you do not need a change of place. What you need is a change of heart."—Kansas City Star.

they, if you will.

More land has been turned over in Crittenden county this year than ever before and it is plowed deeper and worked better than in former years. More interest in farming is manifested and believe in a good crop year this year and we are not going to think otherwise until the last button on Gabe Wathens coat.

After a trip to the barns of Paris & Yandell on the old John Reed place, one cannot help inquiring—

Why the scrub?

Henry Paris has the best herd of Hereford cattle in the county. A few months old Hereford calf that sells for $50, eats no more than the scrub that brings $15 or $20. Therefore why the scrub? Every farmer in the county should think on these things.

There is to be built in our midst, so we are informed two model barns. Mr. Ed Dean and his brother Marion Dean are to be the builders. The plans for these barns will come from the State Agricultural Department at Lexington. These barns will be watched with a great deal of interest.

Information comes also that Mr. Ed Dowell will build a new dwelling on his farm and most interesting of all, that he will build a model cattle feeding barn equipped with water and all up to date appliances.

It might be of interest to our readers to know that Mr. Morgan Hughes who is at the head of all the county agents in Western Kentucky, stated that Crittenden and Trigg counties were showing more interest in improved farming methods than all the other counties in his jurisdiction. Crittenden is certainly moving to the front.

has this to say:

In the contest of the Central Interscholastic Association held in this city Friday evening, Johnson McMurray of Sturgis was the winner in oration and Lucile Moore of Marion, in declamation

This contest was perhaps the most brilliant affair of its kind every held in this section of Kentucky. Between 500 and 600 people assembled in Payne's Auditorium to listen to six boys and six girls, representing the high schools of Clay, Corydon, Providence, Marion, Morganfield and Sturgis, and although ten contestants were disappointed in their hope of winning a medal, the schools represented by them were justly proud of their speeches.

At 2:45 in the afternoon over 200 people from Corydon, Sturgis and Morganfield arrived in a special train over the I. C., and the morning I. C. train brought about thirty students from Marion. Besides these scores of people motored from Marion, Morganfield and Clay.

The program opened at seven o'clock with a selection by the Marion High School Orchestra, one of the best High School Orchestras in Kentucky. At seven thirty the contest in declamation began, and for three hours the packed audience of over 500 people listened with rapt attention to the youthful orators and a few selections from the orchestra.

In the declamation contest the vote of the judges stood two for Miss Moore, of Marion and one for Miss Conway, of Morganfield. In oration two judges voted for Mr. McMurray, of Sturgis and one for Carl Kuykendall, of Providence.

The judges were Mr. James D. Sory, of Madisonville, Principal Joiner of the Madisonville High School, and Superintendent J. S. Lingleton of Uniontown.

At a meeting of the Superintendents of the schools making up the C. I. A. it was decided to hold the next contest at Morganfield next spring.

Sidney Minner Dies

After Short Illness.

Sidney Minner died at the home of his sister, Mrs. Sue Yates, near Sheridan, April 30th 1915, after only a few days illness. The burial was at the Love graveyard, conducted by Rev. J. B. Trotter, of Marion, in a most commendable style in the presence of a large crowd of relatives and friends. Sidney was a son of "Uncle Wes" Minner, a minister of the gospel, who passed away over twenty years ago.

He was a noble man and a true christian and will be missed as only those who know him can tell.

FARMER'S CLUB MEETINGS.

We held 17 farmers' meetings last month, had the best attendance we have had since the move started. Total number attending during the month 565.

We are trying to make all of our meetings interesting to every one, whether they are farmers or occupied in some other business. To do this it takes the co-operation of every one interested. We will have debates on different farm topics, talks from our club members, ladies, and any one who feels interested in this work of making Crittenden county one of the best counties in Kentucky.

We have 296 members in farmers' clubs, 111 corn club boys, 50 boys and girls in pig club. The Farmers' Clubs are open to all, and everybody is invited. Who is for better farming? This will mean better farms, better people and in fact everything better. Read the dates over and make up your mind to be at one or several of the meetings this month. One man told me last month that he had been to three meetings in one week. He said he was interested. I believe it, don't you?

The subject for discussion this month is: "How can a farmer build up his land?"
