REV. NEWMAN VIS- ITS MICA MINES

Makes A Tour of Inspection and Returns Home Much
Enthusiased.

The mines of the Southern Mica Company are situated one hundred miles east of Birmingham, Alabama. Mr. Harry Watkins, of Birmingham, is President and Mr. Louis J. Fox, of Birmingham, is secretary and treasurer of the Company. This company has the fee simple title to 170 acres and also owns the mineral right to a 40 acre tract, making a total at present of 210 acres of some of the best mining property I have ever seen. In addition to the 210 acres the company has an option on a tract of 120 acres which joins one of their properties where the lead is thoroughly developed and good mica showing up. The vein has also been cut on the 120 acre tract, and there are several hundred pounds mined out of a hole not over four feet deep. The company will buy this 120 acres at once, which will give them 290 acres in fee simple besides the 40 acres in mineral right. All of these properties are heavily timbered in long leaf pine and oak, and the timber itself will be a very valuable asset to the company.

I visited the properties in company with Mr. Harry Watkins, of Birmingham, and Mr. J. M. Persons, of Marion, Ky. Mr. Persons is general manager of the company. Judge John W. Blue, of Marion, Ky., is the company's attorney, and their local representative; he is also a stockholder in the company. The general office of the Southern Mica Co., is at Marion, Ky.

Now in regards to the mica on the properties of the Southern Mica Co. I can state positively that the vein shows plainly on all of the properties. This will give the company somewhere near two and one-half miles of the mica, of which there are two distinct veins running parallel to each other. There is also on this property a large graphite vein, and from appearances I would judge it to be 60 feet wide, this much and perhaps more. This graphite of itself may be worth many million dollars to the company. We also visited the other mines which are spoken of so highly in Prof. Clark's report, and which are on the same vein as the Southern Mica Co.'s properties. From my careful observations I can safely say I would prefer owning one-half of only the 40 acre tract owned by the Southern Mica Company to either of these other mines that I visited.

I examined the company's properties thoroughly, which shows mica right on top of the surface. There have been several openings made on these properties, all of which are showing a fine and distinct fissure lead of high grade mica. I must confess I left Marion with some misgivings to make the examinations of this company's property for parties who are about to become interested in the company. But upon my return I am pleased to say I found the properties showing up much richer than any report I had seen or heard of them, indicated. And I wish to say the Southern Mica Company's representatives were very delicate and reserved in any mentions they had to make about the valuation of their property.

With further reference to my own observations will say that none of the many reports or statements I had heard regarding this property has done it justice; and I see no hindrance of these mines becoming money-making, permanent mines, and in all probability to be worth many millions of dollars. I am frank to say I found the mines and property 100 per cent. richer and better than I expected to find them.

The proceeds of any stock sold by this company will go directly into the treasury to be used for the purchase of other properties and for the purpose of opening up and equipping the mines, and I fully believe that in from six to eight months, when the properties are fully developed and the proceeds coming in from the operations and sale of the mica that our stocks will be worth anywhere from 5 to 500 for one. I am very much pleased to become a stockholder in this company and hope to be in position to secure more of the stock shortly. I have no hesitancy in recommending the purchase of this stock to any of my friends as an investment they should not let slip past them.

Furthermore I will take very great pleasure in showing specimens to my friends or anyone who may feel interested in this proposition, also that I am authorized to sell stock for the purpose of working the mines, and those interested will do well to see me for investments.

Card of Thanks.

We desire to express our heartfelt thanks to our friends and neighbors who so tenderly and lovingly rendered assistance in the brief illness and subsequent death of our beloved daughter and sister.

Especially do we thank Drs. Perry and Fox for their faithful care and kindness. While the light and life of our home has been taken from us, the high recognition given her by her friends, has in a great measure, helped to dispel the clouds, and through our tears we can see her sweet spirit waving from the battlements of Heaven to mingle her thanks with ours for their tender care of her and the many precious tokens of love.

Dear friends, we thank you over and over again from deep down in our broken hearts for all these kindnesses, and just how much she appreciated it will only be made known on the day we are all re-united in the land where the sun never goes down. May God's richest blessings rest upon you one and all in the sincere prayer of and daughter.

Sun's Total Eclipse February 3rd.

A total eclipse of the sun is scheduled for the morning of Feb. 3rd, next, occurring some time between eight and eleven o'clock.

The statement made in the almanac is as follows:

"A total eclipse of the sun Feb. 3rd. Visible to North America, the West Indies, the north west portion of South America, southwest Europe and the extreme northwest part of Africa."

This will be the first total eclipse since August, 1869. At that time, according to those who remember, it became so dark that chickens went to roost and the stars could be plainly seen. The shadow of the sun lasted for about two hours which is the duration of the eclipse occurring in February.

The stories told by the old residents of the former total eclipses of the sun are very interesting and many people look forward to the coming event with considerable anticipation. — Independent.

JOINS FIGHT ON LIQUOR HERE

Representative Barkley Offers Bill to Make District "Dry."

In the House, as well as in the Senate, there is now pending a bill to make the District "dry." Representative A. W. Barkley, of Kentucky, is author of the House measure. He introduced it yesterday. The bill is in the precise terms of the Sheppard bill, presented to the Senate several days ago. Both would make it unlawful to manufacture or sell intoxicating liquors in the District after November 1, 1916.

It was regarded as somewhat novel that a member of Congress from the State that procures more whisky than any other Commonwealth in the Union and that now has three-fifths of all the whisky in the United States in its bonded warehouses should blossom forth as a champion of prohibition.

Representative Barkley said it is his intention to push the bill to turn the National Capital dry. He said it is a mistake to accuse Kentucky of being "a whisky State," for 114 out of its 120 counties are dry. — The Washington Post of Friday, January 21st.

Dixon Citizen Pardoned By Governor Stanley.

Dixon, Ky., Jan. 25. — R. L. Watson, who was fined $60.00 and ten days in jail at the December term of court, on an appeal from the quarterly court, on a charge of having liquor in his possession for the purpose of illegal sale, was pardoned of the jail sentence by Governor Stanley. The pardon bore the date of January 15th and has been filed here.

MYSTERY MAKES TANLAC SECURE

Imitation Is Set At Defiance By the Famous Master Medicine.

Tanlac! There is magic in this household word—a magic made by success unprecedented and a fame based very solidly on its accomplishments in more than one million homes.

The ingredients for Tanlac are gathered in the remotest parts of the world. From the far North woods to Argentina, below the equator; in Russian Asia, the Alps, Pyrennes, on the sunny shores of Italy, from Brazil Sumatra, Peru, the West Indies, and the slopes of our own timber topped Rocky Mountains, come the roots, barks, herbs and even flowers that, under the direction of Herr Joseph Von Trimbach, the noted German chemist, are compounded into Tanlac.

There can be no successful imitation of Tanlac. It is compounded as skillfully and as mysteriously as nature distills the famed mineral waters of Europe.

Tanlac, now universally known as the Master Medicine, is proving invaluable against ailments of the stomach, liver and kidneys, and catarrhal affections of the mucous membranes, which, when neglected, so often affect the vital organs themselves. As a general tonic for half sick, run-down men and women, it builds up the tissues, creates a keen appetite, promotes digestion, vit- color to the cheeks, back to the eyes.

Tanlac may now be obtained in Marion at J. H. Orme's drug store, and in Blackford at A. T. Brown's drugstore, where it is being explained daily. Adv.

R. F. Wheeler left last Monday for Milburn, Okla., and will go from there to Huntington, Tex. He has a brother-in-law at the former place and a brother at the latter.

GOVERNMENT SPENDS HUGE SUM FOR 'DOCTORS' TO TREAT RUNDOWN FARMS

There Are Now More Than One Thousand County Demonstration Agents And Planters Have Come To Appreciate Their Worth. --As Described By Robert T. Barry.

Washington, Jan. 25.—A new personage has been born in rural life. He is the agricultural general physician. If a farm is sick and run down, he visits it, diagnoses the cause, and prescribes the remedy.

He is older than the Declaration of Independence, but this new medical adviser, the offspring of a more enlightened era of farm life, has become equally indispensable. He is the county farm demonstration agent.

Nearly $2,500,000 of the Government's agricultural extension funds, or more than one-half of the total amount appropriated is used to carry on the work of county agents.

The county agent is charged with the final distribution of information gathered by the Department of Agriculture in half a century. He is the general farm doctor of every neighborhood. There are now more than 1,000 of these agents or physicians and their number grows steadily as the farmers come to appreciate the value of their service. It is only when the farmer is willing to contribute his share of the expense as a county agent does he attain his full usefulness.

A county agent is a sort of a deputy secretary of agriculture. Properly he is the ~~sole~~ ^{chief} ~~agent~~ ^{representative} of the Department of Agriculture. Through him the neighborhood, the State and the nation give their help to all the farmers in the county.

This help is varied and the list of the county agent's activities is a long one. He supervises the construction of silos, assists in the importation of pure-bred stock, demonstrates the use of serums for the control of hog cholera, anthrax, blackleg and other animal diseases, furthers the work of tick eradication, plans terracing and drainage systems, gives demonstrations in the use of lime and the mixing of fertilizers, organizes cow-testing associations, promotes the formation of co-operative purchasing and marketing associations and helps the farmers in their bookkeeping.

The county agent is a connecting link between scientific and commercial agriculture. It is his task to pour over the land the treasures of the once-de-spised "book-farming."

Agricultural facts were accumulated by the Department of Agriculture by laborious experiment and patient investigation. As Walter H. Page, American Ambassador to Great Britain, said recently, "the department has been reserving an enormous mass of information collected with the people's name which the people are entitled to get."

The agricultural extension law, or, as it is often called, the Smith-Lever act, taps the reservoir. Information that has long lain concealed in the dry pages of Government reports, pamphlets, bulletins and lengthy treatises now is being pumped systematically.

The Government will continue to probe the chemistry of nature and store up discoveries which increase the production and the wealth of the country; but, instead of standing by idly while a few prying souls dig the discoveries out of proxy reports as best they may, the Government now is advertising the contents of its reservoir of farm science vigorously, persistently and systematically.

The appeal is directed straight to the eye and ears of every farmer and every farmer's wife. It is by personal teaching and ocular demonstration, through the county agents, rather than by books and book-talk that results are obtained. A nation-wide system of agricultural instruction has been created to pipe all that the scientists in Washington know out to the farms, where, by State leaders, county agents and other co-operating workers, it is distributed on a scale hitherto unknown. Secretary of Agriculture, David H. Houston, visited last fall in Darlington county, South Carolina, a section with which he had become very familiar when a boy.

A young, alert-looking farmer had stopped to water his horses, a pair of sleek bays. The Cabinet officer, of whose identity the South Carolinian had not the remotest suspicion, opened conversation and found that the young man had just closed a deal for his cotton crop.

"How much did you get?" Mr. Houston asked.

"Twenty cents."

By way of saying, "Quit your kidding," and yet not putting it just that way, Secretary Houston remarked:

"Oh, yes," the Southerner responded promptly, "but the Government has shown us how to raise long-stable cotton here and we got 20 cents for it, despite the war."

Mr. Houston takes a pardonable pride in telling this anecdote. It contains the why and wherefore, and hints the almost infinite promise, of the new agricultural extension act.

The Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, Carl Vrooman's talking with the writer the other day, footed up the annual expenditure chargeable to scientific agriculture in DeKalb county, Ill. Mr. Vrooman's State and DeKalb is neighbor to Taswell, his home county. Here are the figures:

Salary, one county demonstrator	$ 4,000
Salary, one assistant county demonstrator	1,800
Rent of quarters, maintenance of automobiles, labor, seed etc.	4,200
Total	$10,000

This annual outlay of $10,000 is provided as follows: United States Government $ 1,200 State of Illinois 1,200 DeKalb county 7,600 Total $10,000

The local public provides the greater part of the money. That is, DeKalb county is willing to pay an agricultural specialist the fairly husky salary of $4,000 a year, and to put up $3,600 to boot, in order to apply scientific methods upon DeKalb county farms. Is it conceivable that any farming community would countenance such expenditures if it didn't pay big?

The $1,200, which DeKalb county gets from the Government represents the sum which became available to that county this year under the agricultural extension act. Uncle Sam covers dollar for dollar the sum that the States appropriate for this purpose.

During the present fiscal year, 1915-16, nearly $5,000,000 is being spent in the furtherance of this enterprise. Of this sum a little more than $2,000,000 is coming from the United States Treasury; about $1,200,000 from the various State treasuries; a little less than $1,000,000 from county moneys; $225,000 from the State agricultural colleges and the remainder from miscellaneous sources.

Year by year for seven years, more Federal money becomes available under the terms of the agricultural extension act. If the States contribute the share required of them, more than $8,000,000 will be spent annually by the Federal Government alone during the fiscal year 1922.

This year's total of $4,782,270 is divided among the States as follows:

Alabama	$138,800	Arizona	$26,440
Arkansas	$137,633	California	$90,254
Colorado	$53,905	Connecticut	$44,809
Delaware	$16,059	Florida	$83,397
Georgia	$166,378	Idaho	$34,409
Illinois	$149,539	Indiana	$182,962
Iowa	$229,878	Kentucky	$121,888
Louisiana	$107,031	Maine	$26,078
Maryland	$57,607	Massachusetts	$109,890
Montana	$56,232	Michigan	$86,630
Minnesota	$127,721	Mississippi	$125,140
Missouri	$114,718	Nebraska	$115,856
Nevada	$17,134	N. Hampshire	$30,426
N. Jersey	$55,559	New Mexico	$96,914
New York	$219,791	N. Carolina	$117,279
Oklahoma	$142,182	Oregon	$104,555
Pennsylvania	$114,253	Rhode Island	$23,741
S. Carolina	$135,934	S. Dakota	$63,361
Tennessee	$136,604	Texas	$231,537
Utah	$53,410	Vermont	$48,635
Virginia	$130,296	Washington	$61,990
West Virginia	$121,759	Wisconsin	$103,960
Wyoming	$43,641

The work, however, is not confined to farming alone. The law expressly provides that a part of the money appropriated in accordance with its terms shall be spent in giving to women the same assistance in their problems that the men receive in theirs.

It has been thoroughly realized that the production of crops—even the production of crops at a profit—is not the sole purpose of life in the country. The farmer, it is true, must produce to live but he does not live solely to produce. The comfort, the health, the welfare and the happiness of his family depend on many other things than the yield of his fields and herds.

Nearly 400 women county agents are now at work in fifteen Southern States. They assist the farm women in their territory just as their men colleagues assist the farmers.

Among the principal allotments of this year's extension funds are these: Home demonstration work, $542,000; boys' club work, $237,000; movable schools, $218,000; extension work by specialists, $148,000; farm management $96,000; horticulture, $58,000; rural organization, $32,000; agricultural engineering, $30,000; poultry, $23,000.

In nearly all of these activities women are directly interested. Home demonstration has directly to do with woman's work. The "movable schools" include not merely groups of men organized to study orcharding and other farm subjects, but also courses in home economics designed especially for rural women. Much of the education work in poultry and dairying deals with the woman's responsibilities on many farms. Canning club work concerns the women almost solely.

Moreover, anything which benefits the children is of vital interest and benefit to rural women. The work for boys' corn clubs, pig clubs and poultry clubs, as well as that in such organizations as the peanut, baby beef and potato clubs for farm boys and farm girls directly touches the home, and hence operates to the interest of rural mothers, daughters and wives.

The work among women and girls in the North and West is directed by ten women State agents under the general direction of a woman appointed to organize the work throughout this territory. In addition, a large number of men, including many county agents, have a direct part in helping to organize the canning, gardening and other clubs for girls, and in enlisting the services of volunteer women who will act as local and permanent leaders in these activities.

There are over 5,000 women who have volunteered to co-operate with the Department of Agriculture and the State colleges in promoting this work. Many women are giving a large part of their time without compensation. The last available figures show an enrollment of 250,000 young people in the various progressive agricultural clubs under the direction of county agents and women demonstrators, assisted by volunteer experts of both sexes. The volunteer work is increasing in scope, and it is probable that before long 500,000 women will be working in direct co-operation with the Department of Agriculture and the State agricultural agencies to promote the practice of scientific agricultural methods.

Agricultural extension seeks the betterment of agriculture in the interest of the entire rural community, men, women and children. Any activity which increases the profits of the farm reacts to the benefit of the farmer's wife and children. And the introduction of modern methods, plus the application of scientific knowledge, does increase the profits of the farm.

This is the outcome of a petition previously presented by S. B. Anderson, of Memphis, Tenn., and G. L. Drury, of this city. The company agrees for this right to grant concessions to Union county in the way of hauling materials for building public roads. This road is to run from the corporate limits of Uniontown to the corporate limits of

Pinckneyville Girl in Paducah

A quiet wedding on Tuesday morning at 10:30 o'clock in the pastor's study at the First Baptist church was that of Miss Mina C. Wolfe, of Pinckneyville, Ky., and Mr. Richard G. Bebout, of Sheridan, Ky., but formerly of Paducah.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. R. G. Bowers, pastor of the church and the only guests were Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Parsons, relatives to the bride.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Bebout were entertained with a wedding dinner by Dr. and Mrs. Parsons at their home at 1602 Broad street. Mr. and Mrs. Bebout left at one o'clock Tuesday afternoon for Pinckneyville for a short visit to the bride's home and will be at home at Sheridan after Feb. 1.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Ella Wolfe, of Pinckneyville, and is a charming girl. She is a niece of Dr. Parsons. Mr. Bebout is engaged in the mercantile business at Sheridan, where he went four years ago from this city. He was a resident of Paducah for six years, during which time he was connected with the Old Kentucky Manufacturing Company and Ed D. Thurman. He is a brother of Messrs. Louis L. Will Apply More Truly.

The best is invariably the cheapest and will apply more truly to a memorial than to any other work as it is intended to last longer and withstand greater exposure than any other production. Those contemplating the erection of monuments being as a rule quite unfamiliar with the many details of the subject oftentimes feel unprepared for such a responsibility. It is with this in view that I venture with intended delicacy to touch a theme associated with the highest sentiments of life and death and have issued this letter endeavoring to make it interesting and instructive.

In a work of this nature involving so many points which must be left almost entirely to the trustworthiness of the contractor it is obvious that too much care cannot be exercised in appointing those whose facilities promise the highest character of work and whose responsibility insures its most faithful execution.

Our long experience in every department of monumental work to the extent and completeness of our facilities and the fact that we own and operate our own manufacturing plants enable us to offer you better material and better work at less cost than you can find anywhere else.—G. B. Johnson. Adv.

MOTORISTS MAY NOW "PAY AS YOU RIDE"

Local Maxwell Representative Announces a New Deferred Payment Plan

IDEA IS LOGICAL.

Similar to that Employed With Pianos, Real Estate and Other Sales.

Acting on the sound principle that automobiles can and will eventually be generally sold on the same basis as pianos, real estate and other commodities of value, Mr. Alvis Stephens, of the T. H. Cochran Hardware Co., local Maxwell representatives, announces in this issue a time-payment plan by which the prospective motorists of this city and vicinity can secure Maxwell cars without any appreciable encroachment on their financial resources and investments.

"Pay as you Ride" is the concise way in which Mr. Stephens summarizes the details of the plan.

"Modern conditions often demand that a man make use of his entire capital in his business or in his professional equipment," declares Mr. Stephens. "Often, even the relatively small amount needed to pay the cash-down price of even a Maxwell automobile is large enough to keep him from taking his money from the channels in which it is at work.

"The automobile business must recognize this condition. I have worked out a plan which I am putting into effect here, for the benefit of my customers who may be so situated.

"This plan enables the man of average means to buy a car and enjoy it while he is paying for it, and enables him, as well, to pay for it out of his regular income. This plan I am putting at work today. It will be eligible in the case of every car I can secure from the Detroit factory, and my schedule calls for more Maxwell cars than have ever been delivered here in any cold weather month. At present I can make immediate delivery under this "Pay as you Ride" plan." Adv

Piles Cured in 6 to 14 Days

Your druggist will refund money if PAZO OINTMENT fails to cure any case of itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days. The first application gives Ease and Rest. 30c.

FOR BRONCHITIS, WHOOPING COUGH, CROUP, COUGHS AND COLDS

Make the Best Remedy at Home—128 Teaspoonful for 50 cents.

If everything was sold in as liberal and fair a manner as the below named druggists are selling Schiffmann's New Concentrated Expectorant, absolutely no cause for complaint or dissatisfaction could possibly arise from anyone. These druggists say—"Buy a bottle of this remedy and try it for Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, Severe Cough, Croup or any Bronchial Affection, and we will return your money, just the same as we do with Schiffmann's famous Asthmador, if it does not give satisfaction, or if not found the best remedy ever used for any of these complaints." Why not take advantage of this guarantee and try this medicine, and get your money back, rather than buying another purely on the exaggerated claims of its manufacturer or on the strength of testimonials from others and run the chance of getting something worthless and also wasting your money?

In buying this remedy, besides securing an absolute guarantee of its efficiency from these druggists, you also get about eight times as much medicine as you would in buying most any of the old-fashioned, ready-made kinds, which average from 20 to 32 teaspoonful, because 50c worth makes a whole pint (128 teaspoonful) when mixed at home with simply one pint of sugar and one-half pint of water. This remedy positively does not contain chloroform, opium, morphine or any other narcotic. It is pleasant to take and children are fond of it. You will be the sole judge, and under this positive guarantee absolutely no risk is run in buying this remedy. Druggists everywhere are authorized to sell it under the same guarantee as Schiffmann's famous Asthmador or "Money Back," if not perfectly satisfactory. R. J. Schiffmann, Proprietor, Saint Paul, Minn. Guaranteed here by JAS. H. ORME Marion, Ky.

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

DR. FRANKLIN'S POLITE
SARCASM.

By A. W. MACY.

Dr. Benjamin Franklin was noted for his politeness, though he not infrequently tinged it with sarcasm. In 1774 he was dismissed by the British government from the office of surveyor general of the postoffice in America, no reason being assigned except that his majesty the king had no further need for his services. Two years later the Continental congress appointed him postmaster general of all North America; whereupon he could not resist the temptation to write the English minister that the British government need not worry any more about postal affairs in America as they had again been placed in competent hands. Some months after the opening of the war he summed up the situation thus in a letter to a friend in England: "The English have made a campaign here, which cost two million; they have gained a mile of ground, and lost half of it back again. They have lost 1,500 men and killed 150 Yankees. Meantime we have had between 50,000 and 70,000 children born. How long will it take to conquer America?"

A LETTER TO SANTA CLAUS

PROTECT THE FUTURE.

There is only one way in which Kentucky can protect herself in the future from "possum-hunting," tobacco-bed scrapings and other acts of lawlessness. That safe and certain way lies through the careful upbuilding of every rural school in the state. Giving every child an education is not enough; make every child take an education, and the future prosperity of the state is absolutely secure. Allow even a small percentage of the children of to-day to grow up in ignorance and they become the law-breakers of the Commonwealth.

Protect the future welfare of every community with better school houses, with all the children in them, and peace, happiness and prosperity will become a trinity of power in Kentucky.

In this good year 1915 a man without an education is practically helpless. In 1916 his position will be worse and with each succeeding year it will grow even more difficult for him to earn a good living. The child that will grow into a man in 1925 is in school or out of school today. How many will there be in this helpless plight in 1925 will depend upon the schools and the school system of the state now.

WHAT AILS THE BOY?

If the average father who wonders why his boy hates to go to school, would pay a visit to that self same school, he would understand perfectly. Why should the boy care to go to a small country school house that is uncomfortable? Why should the boy be anxious to attend a school where the teacher is underpaid and overworked? Why should he be interested when his parents are so little interested that they never darken the school house door?

Make the school attractive, arrange matters so that the teacher is neither underpaid nor overworked, show interest by visiting the school occasionally, and the average boy will not strive to stay away.

If every small community in the State of Kentucky is able to buy and run half a dozen schools, each one of them can afford a good school. The money paid for the machines is spent, but the money put into the schools would be invested in the future prosperity of the children and the state itself.

No one objects to giving money to build a fine church. Why should the building of a fine school house be a different proposition?

Wind Causes Damage

To Electric Light Wires.

The stiff gale last Friday whipped the electric light wires around until a street light wire, which had gotten across a main line, (1100 volt wire) and rubbed the insulation off of it, soon burned in two and dropped to the street in front of the S. H. Ramage residence on East Depot street. The break, which had to be repaired at once for the safety of the public, was welded and soldered and the current which was shut off at 3:40 p. m. was turned on again at 5:10. During the interval in which the break was being fixed the telephones were kept busy telling the why's and wherefores of the lights being shut off at 3:40.

He Declares that this Session Should Curtail Expenses And Reduce Employees.

Representative Stone, of Crittenden county, the busy member of the house, has introduced a number of good measures and resolutions, which should be enacted into law. Mr. Stone's principle and thoughts are right, but can he carry out those plans is the question? We trust that he can, or help with his ability to land other measures of like nature.

Representative Stone's bills are as follows: H. B. 12, Stone's Two cent fare bill; H. B. 13, To regulate lobbying, requiring lobbyists to register with Secretary of State; H. B. 14, To exempt one dog free from tax to the head of the family; H. B. 15, To prohibit free passes to public officials; H. B. 16, Corrupt practices act; H. B. 204, To abolish hotel inspector; H. B. 167, to abolish fire marshals; To provide for inspection of hospitals, houses of detention and sectarian institutions.

Rep. Stone is a live worker for the interests of the people. We are proud of his efforts to redeem our state from the heavy burden that rests upon her people.

DEATHS

Herbert Alexander, who died near Piney Fork Monday evening was buried at Piney Fork Tuesday morning. He had been ill of typhoid fever for several weeks. He was 24 years of age and a son of the Mr. Alexander who died last week.

Mrs. Sallie Conger, aged 96 years, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William Brooks Hughes Friday night at 11:30 and was buried at Freedom Sunday, Rev. John A. Hunt assisted by Rev. E. M. Eaton officiating. Frank Conger- of the same vicinity is her son.

Buck Burkalow, who was killed in a coal mine in Illinois last Tuesday week was a son of Dock Burkalow. A ton of coal fell on him and it took some days to get the mangled corpse out from under it. The remains were gotten to the train Saturday and reached Crayne Sunday and the interment was held at Crayne Sunday. He leaves a wife and three children.

Mrs. Angeline Holloman died at the home of her son Cellas Holloman Sunday, and was buried Monday at Crooked Creek, Rev. Hosea Paris, her pastor, officiating. She was in her 76th year and is survived by six children—four sons—John, Cellas, Henry, Peter, and two daughters—Mrs. Isaac Meyers and Miss Bertha Holloman.

She was a sister of Peter E. Shewmaker, one of the County's best citizens and was a highly respected woman and life long christian.

Miss Vera Hill, youngest daughter of John Marshall and Edie Hill, of the Hillsdale section died Monday evening at 6:10 o'clock of pneumonia with which she was afflicted for several days. Her father, mother and one sister survive. She was 20 years, 6 months and 9 days of age, and was a member for ten years of Hillsdale Methodist church. The Marinda Minton was born Aug 19th, 1846, and 19 years later she was married to James H. Shutlesworth, and to them were born seven children, all of whom survive. She professed faith in Christ about 35 years ago and joined the Baptist church at Little Union, Union county, and she moved her membership to Repton when the family located in this county. She died Tuesday night, Jan. 18th, 1916 at the home of her son, George A. Shutlesworth. The funeral and interment were held at Repton Thursday and were conducted by Rev. W. T. Oakley.

Limited Catapulted to Valley Below as Slide Strikes.

Seattle, Jan. 24.—A Great Northern Cascade limited train from Spokane struck a snow-slide on the west slope of the Cascades near the summit this morning. A dining car and day coach were carried down an embankment three hundred feet and all persons in the two cars are represented as killed or injured. Physicians have been sent from Everett.

Five employees in the dining car are believed to be dead. It is impossible to say how many passengers were in the day coach. The dining car is reported on fire and cries for help from the cars in the gulch can be heard on the track above.

Marion Choral Club.

The Choral Club met Tuesday evening under the direction of Prof. A. R. Wiggins, of Pittsburgh, Pa., who located recently at Henderson and who is directing choral exercises at Morganfield and Providence as well as Marion. Thirty students have enrolled and great interest is being taken showing that Marion singers realize there is always room at the top, and none are so talented but that they can improve themselves in this day of progress in the arts and sciences. Prof. Wiggins came here Tuesday at noon from Morganfield and left Wednesday morning for Providence.

A Correction.

In the article on W. H. Cardin in last week's paper, an error was made in saying that he died Saturday. He died Sunday soon after eating a hearty dinner. Also in the time he located in Crittenden county. It should have said he came from Virginia to Kentucky in 1835, first settled in Todd county and moved here about twenty-five years later after he had married and lived here over a half century in Crittenden county and in Kentucky over eighty years.

RIPPLING RHYMES

By WALT MASON.

Selfishness.

Jim Kickshaw has a touring car, in which he journeys near and far. There's room for seven in the same, and Jim might bring to many a dame who seldom has a chance to ride, pure happiness ten cubits wide. But Jim would rather ride alone, than take some poor old gent or crone. He'd take a banker or some estate who's made a pile in real estate; he'd load his car with daisies fair, and still insist there's room to spare. He'd gladly take a joyous crew, to whom such rides are nothing new. But there are men with spavined limbs, and poor old dames with worn-out gowns; and crippled kids who sit and sigh, as gorgeous cars go whizzing by; and mothers, tired until their hearts just yearn for rides in choo-choo carts; and maiden aunts who'd trade their hair for three long breaths of country air. But these will never ride with Jim; they're poor, and don't appeal to him; the men don't wear their whiskers straight, the women's hats are out of date, the kids have speedy pinafores, from rolling round on unwashed floors. There's nothing in it, anyway; you haul the poor for half a day, and all you get for it is thanks; they have no assets in the banks.

Letter From New Mexico.

Monument, N. Mexico, Jan. 8, 1916
Mr. S. M. Jenkins,
Marion, Ky.

Dear Friend:
Enclosed please find check for $1.00 to pay for the Record-Press one year. It has been quite a while since I read the dear old paper.

I have filed on a half section of land here. I am located in a pleasant valley, Edy county, New Mexico. I am sixty miles from a railroad town. Carlsbad is the county seat of Edy county. It has a railroad, and it is our nearest railroad. We go there to get our supplies.

I am living in a tent. I can hear the coyotes howling by the dozen every night. They come to the tent at night and pick up bones and scraps. I can hear them cracking bones, but they do not come in the tent. My tent is too small for me and a coyote at the same time. There are thousands of blue quails here, and quite a lot of antelopes. I have had antelope every day this week. I had a nice antelope roast for supper this evening.

This leaves me in the best of health. Wishing you and all my old friends a happy and a prosperous New Year, I will close for the present.

L. S. HARD.

BELLMONT

Some few are hauling off tobacco; letting the buyers have it for a song, and sing it also. Poor farmer, wish he had as much control of selling the things he raises, as the dry goods merchant, grocermen, etc. You go to them for anything they set the price; you give it or let it alone, he don't care which. And if you have anything to sell he sets the price and you have to take it or let it alone. So you see they have all the power and the farmer has no say-so at all, and if it wasn't for the farmer everybody would almost starve. Now why can't you tobacco buyers come across and just about half way give the farmer a show, anyway to live and pay debts also, if he does go half starved and ragged because he gets nearly nothing out of his tobacco. One, two and five seems like nothing as to what it was a few years ago, seven and eight around. Many a poor man and family are depending on his tobacco crop for everything he has to buy. We hope the price will get better, and times will change back to good, then you can look out and see the farmer coming in with a "grin" on his face like a "possum," ready and glad to have the money to pay that old rusty debt, better for you and him also. Don't you think so? What do you say?

Herman Brown's little daughter, Verna, has been quite sick the past week with fever. Dr. Sorey, of Crayne is attending her.

WOMAN AVOIDS OPERATION

Medicine Which Made Surgeon's Work Unnecessary.

Astoria, N. Y.—"For two years I was feeling ill and took all kinds of tonics. I was getting worse every day. I had chills, my head would ache, I was always tired. I could not walk straight because of the pain in my back and I had pains in my stomach. I went to a doctor and he said I must go under an operation, but I did not go. I read in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and told my husband about it. I said 'I know nothing will help me but I will try this.' I found myself improving from the very first bottle, and in two weeks time I was able to sit down and eat a hearty breakfast with my husband, which I had not done for two years. I am now in the best of health and did not have the operation."—Mrs. JOHN A. KOENIG, 502 Flushing Avenue, Astoria, N. Y.

Every one dreads the surgeon's knife and the operating table. Sometimes nothing else will do; but many times doctors say they are necessary when they are not. Letter after letter comes to the Pinkham Laboratory, telling how operations were advised and were not performed; or, if performed, did no good, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was used and good health followed.

If you want advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass.

COURT EDICT AS TO RHEUMATISM

Judge Barhorst Testifies Rheuma Has Given Permanent Relief to Many.

No matter how many so-called remedies for rheumatism you have tried, do not be skeptical about the wonderful curative power of Rheuma.

There is no other preparation like Rheuma. It goes to work so quickly as to leave no doubt in your mind of the ultimate successful and permanent relief. One dose daily acts on the diseased kidneys, blood and joints more readily than any other known remedy. It cleans out the "human sewers" and thus purifies the entire system.

"I, John Barhorst, Justice of the Peace of McLean Township, Ft. Laramie, Ohio, do certify that I was cured of a very bad case of rheumatism by using two bottles of Rheuma. It is now two years since I used the remedy, and I am still as well as ever. Previous to using Rheuma I was a cripple, walking on crutches. I have advised Rheuma to at least a dozen persons and each one speaks as highly of it as I." You can secure a bottle of Rheuma for only 50 cents of James H. Orme or any druggist.

Men Who Fear Opportunity.

In the February American Magazine Hugh S. Fullerton says:

"Thousands of us who are making fairly comfortable livings for families pass plain turning points, refusing to turn or to attack the opening, through sheer timidity. There is no class so timid as the man with a family, who refuses to change because he fears he will risk the small sum he has accumulated to educate the children and provide for the family in case of his death. Ninety-nine out of one hundred men in this class keep straight ahead when they see a turning point clearly."

U. S. a Spendthrift Nation.

"Five hundred and fifty-four out of every thousand inhabitants of Switzerland, or fifty-five per cent," says Merle Crowell in the February American Magazine, "have savings-bank accounts, according to the latest available figures; here in our own country, ninety-nine out of every thousand, or less than ten per cent, have made similar provision for the future. The average savings per capita in Switzerland are $47.03; in America, $4.84."

"Old Hags of 19 and 20."

In the February Woman's Home Companion is a suggestion to American fiction writers from a love-hungry school girl:

"Why do they not write stories of young girls in the bloom of youth?" she asks, "girls in the high school, regular girls, one who likes a certain boy better than the rest. She wants to do what is right to herself, and to him. She has heard so much talk about a boy losing his respect for a girl, if she allows him to kiss her. And yet this certain boy has begged of her one kiss. And she? Does she not want to give it to him? Indeed, yes!"

PEORIA WOMAN TELLS EXPERIENCE

Mrs. W. L. McClellan, of Peoria, suffered torture from indigestion, gas, belching and other symptoms of stomach trouble. She spent large sums of money for doctors' advice and medicine. Still her condition did not improve. She found relief, wonderful surprising relief in a drug store window. "This is her story, as she tells it: 'I suffered so from indigestion and colicky pains that at times I was completely incapacitated for my household work. I saw a window display of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and decided to purchase a bottle, which I did. I have taken only one bottle and the results have been really wonderful. I have not had a pain in my stomach since, and let me say that for the first time in many, many months, two days following I have had a natural movement of the bowels. I feel I cannot say enough for the remarkable virtues of your remedy.'"

Ballard's SNOW LINIMENT

Is the Right Remedy for All Abrasions of the Flesh.

If the wound is cleansed and the liniment applied promptly, the healing process begins at once and the wound heals from the inside outwardly, thus performing a perfect cure that leaves no scar. If the wound heals on the outside too quickly, pus forms under the surface and breaks out into a running sore that is hard to cure and inevitably leaves a bad scar.

Owners of wooded stock prepared for this reason, and they use it not only on fine animals, but on human flesh, as it does its work quickly and thoroughly.

Price 25c, 50c and $1.00.

Letter From Colorado.

Stratton, Colo., Jan. 14, 1916.

Dear Editor: Please find enclosed a check for one dollar which pays my subscription for the Record-Press until 1917.

Kit Carson county had bountiful crops last year, and things look prospective for a bumper this year. Wheat made from 20 to 30 bushels per acre; barley from 40 to 55 bushels per acre; and corn is averaging from 30 to 40 bushels per acre, and several are not through husking yet as hands are scarce regardless of the tempting price of 7 cents per bushel that is paid. Feed is plentiful and stock looking fine. Prices are very good now, wheat 98 cents and corn 55 cents per bushel.

We have had a few snow storms already and it is 20 below zero now.

Health is good.

Wishing the Press and its many readers a prosperous New Year.

Yours truly,
Mrs. W. H. Hughes,

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

A VALIANT IRISH SEA CAPTAIN.

By A. W. MACY.

On May 11, 1775, Capt. Jeremiah O'Brien, owner of a little lumber sloop, chased and captured the British war schooner Margaretta, carrying four light guns and fourteen swivel pieces. O'Brien's crew was thirty-five landmen, mostly Irish, armed with muskets, pistols, blunderbuses, axes and pitchforks. The schooner had more men than the sloop, and was a commissioned war vessel. She had been somewhat disabled in a squall, and a lucky shot from the lumber sloop killed the man at the wheel and cleared the quarter-deck. Another shot killed the British captain, O'Brien gave the order to board, and the schooner was captured after a hand-to-hand fight. About twenty men in all were killed and wounded.

GLASS OF WATER BEFORE BREAKFAST

And Every Two Hours During the Day Wash That Poison From Your System—Every Day.

One of the greatest specialists in the United States says: Rheumatism is easier to avoid than cure. Uric acid continuously accumulating in minute needle crystals absorbed by the blood, then settling in the joints and muscles. The kidneys very often inactive and weak are unable to throw the accumulation off—severe pains set in and this is rheumatism.

Drink a glass of water every two hours with two teaspoonfuls of Eswell in it. This will flush your kidneys and neutralize the uric acid. More relief has been given by this simple remedy to Rheumatic sufferers than you would ever dream of.

The very section in which you live is, or should be evidence enough for you. Mr. B. H. Moredock a well-known traveling salesman, living in Marion, will tell you about it.

He was in a very serious condition—couldn't walk. He is now on the road selling his goods. He spent a great deal of money and lost time without results. Yet in one month he started on his trip after beginning a treatment of Eswell.

MANAGING DADDY

A Story of How Determination And Courage Will Bring Cherished Results.

BY C. I. COOPER

"Oh, mother!" Nellie Agnew whisked, panting into the kitchen with a pail of water which she deposited on the table with such force that a goodly share of the contents was slopped overboard. "Oh, mother! Do you know, daddy has gone over to help Mr. Black today and will be away all day! Why can't you go with me to the picnic?"

"Mrs. Agnew paused, broom in hand, and looked with rather dazed surprise at her tall young daughter. She was such a tiny woman herself. This fifteen-year-old girl of hers towered a full head above her.

"Why—" she said hesitatingly, "I hadn't thought of it."

"But think of it now! Why can't you?" persisted Nellie.

"I don't know—there really isn't anything to hinder that I can see, except—I suppose your father wouldn't want me to leave the house, and—"

"Oh, nothing will bother the house," interrupted the girl impatiently, "I most wish there would," she added with pouting irrelevance, "then, may we'd get a new one. But do please say you'll go, mumsie, there's a dear. You never go anywhere with me and all the other girls' mothers are going, and—"

"And you've got to go too, I won't take no for an answer, so there!" The big girl picked up the little woman, broom and all, and marched twice around the room with her in spite of her efforts to extricate herself.

"Now will you?" she asked triumphantly as she sank into a chair pulling her mother down in her lap and still holding her fast. "Now will you?"

"Well," laughed the mother in mock submission, "I suppose I must bow to the supremacy of superior force, so if you will allow me to finish this floor I will consider the proposition."

At that the young usurper of authority let go her hold.

"That means you'll go!" Nellie jumped up and executed an ecstatic little jig.

"Now, Midget," she continued, using the pet name she had adopted since the day she had discovered her own head rising above that of her diminutive mother, "I'll run up stairs and make the beds while you finish the work here, and then we'll be off in a jiffy!" The light hearted girl went singing up the stairway.

The mother looked fondly after the retreating form, thinking how like her father the child was, and yet how unlike. Everyone said "Nellie Agnew was her father's own daughter." So far as looks were concerned she certainly was, but although she possessed many of her father's traits of character, in her disposition there could be discerned a strong admixture of the mother.

Mrs. Agnew had been a beautiful, vivacious girl, passionately fond of the little vanities and frivolities that play so large a part in the drama of young life. But that was before she married John Agnew. Now she was a thin, faded, little woman upon whose face and figure were stamped the indelible marks of years of incessant toil.

She could scarcely recall the last time she had enjoyed a holiday. On the very few occasions in her early married life when she had ventured to plan some little pleasure or recreation for herself, it seemed that some unlooked for obstacle had always intervened to thwart her. She had long since ceased to plan and almost ceased to hope.

But this morning her daughter's sweet insistence had roused an admiration of her old vivacity. Nellie's effulgence of spirit was infectious and as she listened to the fresh young voice upstairs a song of thankfulness welled up in her heart. Surely she was blessed. She moved briskly about, putting the finishing touches to an already spotless kitchen.

"There," she exclaimed softly to herself with a quick glance at the clock, "everything is in order, I believe, now I must hasten with the lunch. How good it seems to be actually getting ready to go somewhere!"

She almost ran into the pantry, reappearing immediately with a large covered basket which she deposited on the kitchen table. Other trips followed in quick succession, and finally a generous array of picnic dainties were spread invitingly out upon the table, filling the room with their delicious odors.

"Now which goes in first?" she mused, as with arms akimbo, she surveyed the whole. "This chicken, I think, because it can bear a little squeezing."

The plump chicken fitted nicely in one end of the basket, leaving ample room for a pan of flaky rolls. A huge cake of rich, brown, chocolate, brownies reposed on top of the rolls and the remaining space was filled with pickles yellow creamy cheese and sundry other delicacies calculated to appease the ravages of healthy out-door appetites. She worked with feverish haste as if haunted by some shadowy premonition of frustration.

"Hurry, mother, or we'll be late! The wagon will be along pretty soon!" called Nellie's voice over the banister.

"Yes, dear, I'll be there in a minute." She deftly balanced an apple pie on top of the whole and arranged the cover so that it should not be crushed.

She set the basket aside, removed her kitchen apron and hung it on its accustomed nail. Just as she was starting for the stairway the outer door opened and the form of her husband appeared on the threshold. She stared at him in startled surprise that changed to dismay when he unceremoniously dumped an armful of dirty grain sacks into the middle of the floor. She knew what those meant.

"Why, John," she managed to gasp, "I thought you were to help Mr. Black today."

"Made other arrangements," was the laconic reply.

"But," she protested timidly, driven to unwonted boldness, "can't those wait till another day? I—I promised to go with Nellie to the picnic today."

"Picnic!" It was John Agnew's turn to stare. "What picnic?"

"The Sunday school picnic. She'll be so disappointed."

"Picnic be hanged! Can't you find enough to do without gallivanting off to picnics right in the busiest time? I want to take a load of wheat to town this afternoon and I've got to have those sacks by one o'clock. By the way," he hung over his shoulder, as he started for the door, "there'll be three extra men to dinner today."

The door shut with a bang and Mrs. Agnew was left staring at the heap of unsightly sacks. A wave of hot rebellion surged through her whole being.

"If it were not a common occurrence," she cried out in the bitterness of her heart, "but it has always been so." For an instance she entertained a wild idea of running away—somewhere—anywhere—if only she might free herself from the endless drudgery.

There her habit of submission, reasserting itself, she stepped over to the wall and took down her discarded apron.

As she re-arranged herself in the habiliments of her servitude the scalding tears rolled unrestrained down her faded cheeks. The pent up misery of years seemed determined to give expression to itself at last. But at the sound of her daughter's footsteps on the stairs she strove frantically to regain control of herself.

"Mother! Mother! Aren't you coming?" A vision of pink and white loveliness fairly flew into the room, but the girl stopped short at the sight of her mother.

"Why—why mumsie dear! What in the world is the matter?" Nellie gasped in frightened astonishment. She had never before seen her mother cry.

Mrs. Agnew smiled through her tears and essayed to answer lightly, "Nothing, child, I'm an old silly, that's all. Don't bother your head about it, dear. How sweet you look! My! how proud I am of my big girl!"

Nellie still looked troubled, but her thoughts were taken up by the picnic, so she persisted: "Aren't you coming to dress, mother? I am afraid we shall be late."

"I don't believe I can go this time, after all, Nellie. I find I have some work that must be done."

"Not good! Why mama, you promised, and I don't see what is to hinder. I—oh!" The little exclamation escaped her as her eyes fell upon the sacks.

"Mother! You don't mean—where's father? I thought he was gone for the day!"

"So did I, but it seems he changed plans. He wants to take a load of wheat to market this afternoon and needs the sacks."

"Well," exploded Nellie, "if that isn't just like daddy! Did you ever in your life plan to do something pleasant that he didn't come along and spoil it?"

The mother started guiltily. It was such a verticle echo of the thoughts at that surging through her own rebellious heart. She made no answer, however, but silently reached for a chair preparatory to seating herself at her disagreeable task. In a twinkling a tall form interposed itself between her and the chair and she gazed into a pair of determined eyes, as masterful as John Agnew's ever dared to be.

"See here, mother O'mine it's time that father of ours learned that you and I have some rights he is bound to respect."

Now we are going to that picnic as we planned. There's no use making a single objection, because, you little midget you know I can just pick you up and carry you, and that's what I mean to do if you don't come right along like a good girl. Oh, I'll take the consequences. I'm not afraid of that big blustering daddy of mine. I'll manage him." She skirmished around for a pencil and note book, tore out a leaf, and wrote a note hastily scrawled.

"Dear Daddy: Mumsie and I have gone to the picnic. Will be back this evening. NELLIE."

"There!" she said, with a nervous

giggle as she laid it on the table, "I don't believe I care to hear what he says when he finds that."

It was a rather strenuous day for poor Mrs. Agnew. True she enjoyed the renewed associations with her old friends and neighbors. But she was torn with trepidation as to what her husband would say and do. She wondered what would happen if he attempted to prepare anything for dinner on the old cook stove. What a trial that stove had been to her with its cracked lids and its persistent tendency to smoke unreasonably! Two or three times she had made timid appeals for a new stove, but had been met only with rebuffs, and the broken legged table, would that leg fall off and precipitate some more of her scanty store of dishes on the floor. Well, there was some satisfaction in the thought that he would at least find out the inconveniences he had failed to provide for her.

In spite of her efforts at self-vindication it was with considerable fear and trembling that she entered her home on her return that evening. She hurried to the kitchen, but stopped short on the threshold and caught her breath convulsively. Then she rubbed her eyes, wondering in a confused way if by some freak of fate she had gotten into the wrong house.

In place of the old smoking stove that had so harassed her life stood a shining new range with reservoir and warming closet all complete—just what she had always longed for. The rickety table had also disappeared and given place to a beautiful oak dining table flanked on its four sides with chairs to match.

"Nellie," she gasped, as her daughter came up behind her, "Look! What does it all mean?"

Nellie was an Agnew, one glance was sufficient to give her a grasp of the situation.

"Looks like some new furniture, doesn't it, mumsie?" She answered.

"Where's daddy, the old brick! I must find him at once!" And she rushed out of the door.

She found him skulking behind the barn like a great bashful school boy.

"Oh you needn't try to hide," she cried, dragging him out. Then assuming a pretty penitent air, "mumsie and I have come back to 'fess our sins and be forgiven. But we didn't think you were going to heap coals of fire on our heads like this."

He held her off and looked at her with a whimsical twinkle in his eye. "It's easy enough to see who is to blame," he remarked dryly.

"That's what comes of having such an over grown youngster, but—well," as his face settled down in graver lines, "I reckon I'll have to let you off this time since you furnished me such an eye opener. Let's go and find mother."

Together they entered the house. Mrs. Agnew was still standing in the doorway trying to adjust her bewildered senses to the new prospect that seemed opening up before her. She started tremulously toward her husband.

"Oh, John," she faltered, "I didn't mean—can you forgive—"

"There—there—Molly—its all right," he stammered awkwardly, "I—I guess you've got something to forgive yourself, little woman. I've been a thoughtless beast, but I guess I can improve especially with this young amazon to instruct me."

The look he gave his daughter was anything but stern. "But do hurry up and get supper. I'm nearly starved."

"Poor daddy!" Nellie stroke his sleeve. "Didn't he have any good dinner at all?"

"I should say not! That confounded stove—" he checked himself and looked foolish.

Nellie laughed gleefully. "What a pity we didn't set you to cooking on that stove long ago!" She said.

"We'll know how to manage you after this."

"Don't you lead your mother into too much revolt," he replied pinching her pink cheek and giving his wife a sly look, "or I'll have to some manage in."

When they were all seated around the new table Mrs. Agnew asked, "Where did you put those sacks, John? I'll mend them this evening."

"I don't guess you will," remarked John, grinning. "I made a bonfire of them old things," and he applied himself industriously to his plate. Presently he observed in an offhand manner, "By the way, you people had better be getting together your plans for that new house. I've about decided to build this fall."

"Oh, daddy, you dear!" Nellie all but smothered him in her wild delight. "Hold there!" he expostulated, "I'm not ready to die yet. I'd like to live in that new house myself."

Nellie laughed happily as he smoothed her rumpled hair. "It's a pretty good sort of a daddy after all, isn't it, mumsie?" She said.

The little woman smiled contentedly.
