Writers Demand that Hughes Put Himself on Record in Regard to Important Issues Before Nation

New York, Aug. 1 — On behalf of a committee of distinguished members of the press, a letter was sent to Mr. Lindy R. Johnson, President Pro Tempore of the Senate, requesting an appointment with Senator J. Howard Wilkinson of Oklahoma, to discuss the nation's public policy. The letter was signed by a number of prominent journalists, including members of the Senate and House of Representatives, who have been critical of the administration's handling of important issues.

The letter stated that the writer had been informed of the administration's plans for a major television address on the economy, and that the writer wished to discuss the implications of that address with Senator Wilkinson. The writer noted that the administration's proposals had been widely criticized by many members of Congress, and that the writer believed it was important to have an open and transparent discussion of the issues involved.

The letter concluded by expressing the writer's belief that it was essential to have a frank and open dialogue on these important issues, and that the administration should be held accountable for its actions.

BOYS AND GIRLS NEED TO PLAY

It is necessary for every child to have a playmate, and every parent should try to see that every child shall have a place to play and a chance to develop his or her natural ability. Without play, children cannot grow strong, healthy, and happy. play is one of the most important factors in the development of a child's body, mind, and personality.

Play is essential for the proper development of a child's body, mind, and personality. Without play, children cannot grow strong, healthy, and happy. play is one of the most important factors in the development of a child's body, mind, and personality.

Life seems to be made up mainly of three things: Work, love, and play. We cannot live, work, play, and grow without them. and love has its great opportunity in the child. Without the joy of play, there would be no true beauty, no real love, and no real happiness.

It is impossible to think of a child without play, for play is a way of life. It is the way in which the child learns to live, to love, and to work. Without play, the child would be a dull and uninteresting creature.

In conclusion, we must remember that play is a necessary and important part of a child's life. Without play, children cannot grow strong, healthy, and happy. play is one of the most important factors in the development of a child's body, mind, and personality.

Card of Thanks

We receive the c/o of the Record-Press to express our appreciation to all who are so faithfully and devotedly serving the sick, the aged, and the poor. We are grateful for your devoted service and your willingness to help those in need.

The child's need for play is great, and the adult's need for play is even greater. Children need play to develop their bodies and minds, and adults need play to maintain their health and their sanity.
