FARM POULTRY

HINTS FOR TURKEY RAISERS

One of Greatest Difficulties in Successfully Handling Fowls is Lack of Hardiness.

(By A. BASS, Minnesota Experiment Station.)

Lack of vitality and hardiness in the stock is one of the greatest difficulties in successfully handling turkeys. Bronze turkeys are the largest and hardest of all domestic varieties.

Here are some pointers for turkey raisers:

1. Lice cause great loss in turkeys. Kill them on the hens and on the young turkeys with insect powder, applying once a week when cooped up.
2. Turkeys do best when kept separate from chickens. If the two are kept together the turkeys are likely to take chicken diseases.
3. The growth of turkeys is rapid. Give plenty of nutritious and easily digested food. For the first five days feed four quarts of bread crumbs and one part of boiled eggs. Feed one meal a day of rolled oats and give all the sour milk they will drink. Change gradually, and in three weeks feed six parts of wheat and two parts of corn, with rolled oats once a day. From the time the birds are ten weeks old until maturity give: Wheat, ten parts;

Healthy and Active Type.

whole oats, two parts, increasing to ten parts in two weeks; cracked corn, ten parts.

4. Access to fine gravel, crushed shells and broken charcoal is necessary.

5. Give plenty of green food. It prevents digestive troubles.

6. Black or red pepper and ginger in food or drinking water aids in overcoming chills and prevents bowel trouble, especially on cold, damp days. Plenty of grit and oyster shells, together with well-selected, wholesome food, eliminates this necessity in most cases.

7. If young turkeys get wet, take them to a warm room until thoroughly warm and dry.

8. The more exercise the better. Always give free range in dry weather if possible.

9. Dampness, lice and filth are deadly foes to young turkeys.

TIME TO SELL THE BROILERS

Surplus Cockerels of Quickly Maturing Breeds May Be Marketed to Good Advantage.

(By A. C. SMITH, Minnesota Experiment Station.)

Surplus cockerels, particularly those of the higher and more quickly maturing breeds, may be marketed now to advantage. Poultry raisers, particularly those not largely engaged in the occupation, market their surplus cockerels sooner or later. All realize that cockerels of the lighter breeds become a nuisance very early in life and for that reason it is very desirable to get rid of such at the broiler age. This is comparatively easy to do, as broilers are used at all seasons in the larger cities. So active, in fact, is the demand for chicks under two pounds that often a price of at least two cents a pound above other quotations is offered for them.

While chicks of the broiler size are always salable, it must be borne in mind that they will not always bring the same prices, and that the present is the time of high prices, which—at the top about July 1—drop soon afterwards, and with accelerated rapidity at the season advances.

Don't try to raise ducklings and goslings on dry feed, but give them mash mixed crumbly, but not too wet. A good mash for those more than a week old is one part cornmeal and two parts wheat bran, mixed with milk or water and containing a little grit and a little finely granulated charcoal.

BEST FEED FOR YOUNG BIRDS

Ducklings and Goslings Should Be Given Mash Mixed Crumbly, but Not Too Wet.

Don't try to raise ducklings and goslings on dry feed, but give them mash mixed crumbly, but not too wet. A good mash for those more than a week old is one part cornmeal and two parts wheat bran, mixed with milk or water and containing a little grit and a little finely granulated charcoal.

Colds

should be "nipped in the bud," for if allowed to run unchecked, serious results may follow. Numerous cases of consumption, pneumonia, and other fatal diseases, can be traced back to a cold. At the first sign of a cold, protect yourself by thoroughly cleansing your system with a few doses of

Catarrh Cannot Be Cured

Germans Thrown Back.

Petrograd, Oct. 4.—German troops in the region of Lake Naroc, on the northern end of the Russian line, launched a gas attack lasting two hours yesterday, and in the intervals between the gas waves dense columns of Teuton troops advanced against the Russian position, says the Russian official statement issued today. The attacking forces, the statement adds, were driven back each time.

What Does Catarrh Mean?

It means inflammation of a mucous membrane somewhere in the head, throat, bronchial tubes, stomach, biliary ducts or bowels. It always means stagnant blood—the blood that is full of impurities. Left alone, it extends until it is followed by indigestion, colds, congestion or fever. It weakens the system generally and spreads its operations until systemic catarrh or an acute illness is the result.

Peruna

Is the nation's reliable remedy for this condition. It restores appetite, aids digestion, checks and removes inflammation, and thus enables the membranes, through which we breathe and through which our food is absorbed, to do their work properly. Forty-four years of success, with thousands of testimonials, have established it as the home remedy—Ever-Ready-to-Take. Its record of success holds a promise for you.

Don't Forget.

Don't forget that you must reap what you sow.

Don't forget that you will pass over life's highway but once.

Don't forget to do all the good you can today, for you may be missing tomorrow.

Don't forget that the world will move on without you when you are gone, as though you had never lived.

Don't forget to give the gossip a cool reception when she enters your home.

Don't forget that there is some good in every man, and that it is your duty to give him credit for it.

Don't think you are the only pebble on the beach. There are others, perhaps that are worth far more than you.

Don't forget that in the other world you will be judged by what you really are and have ten worth to a wicked word, and not by your dollars and cents.

Don't forget to turn your face away from all you meet as you pass along, if you are hateful and scornful, for, if you don't you might cast a shadow over their lives.

Don't forget to speak to all you meet as you pass along, for you might miss speaking to a King.

Don't forget that you and the beggar are made of the same material. The only difference is the life you both live.—Princeton Leader.

Overheard in 2000 A. D.

"Now, this is the skeleton of a man who lived in the twentieth century." "Why is one arm so much longer than the other, professor?" "This is not an unusual case. You will notice that the right arm is several inches longer than the left and is due to the custom quite common in those days of clinging to a strap with the right hand while holding a newspaper in the left hand."

AFTER SIX YEARS OF SUFFERING

Woman Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Columbus, Ohio.—"I had almost given up. I had been sick for six years with female troubles and nervousness. I had a pain in my right side and could not eat anything without hurting my stomach. I could not drink cold water at all nor eat any kind of raw fruit, nor fresh meat nor chicken. From 178 pounds I went to 118 and would get so weak at times that I fell over. I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and ten days later I could eat and it did not hurt my stomach. I have taken the medicine ever since and I feel like a new woman. I now weigh 127 pounds so you can see what it has done for me already. My husband says he knows your medicine has saved my life."—Mrs. J. S. BARLOW, 1624 South 4th St., Columbus, Ohio.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound contains just the virtues of roots and herbs needed to restore health and strength to the weakened organs of the body. That is why Mrs. Barlow, a chronic invalid, recovered so completely.

It pays for women suffering from any female ailments to insist upon having Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

First Load of New Tobacco.

Sam Brown, a Tennessee tobacco grower, residing near Dukedom, has the distinction of bringing the first load of this year's crop of tobacco to town this season. None of the buyers here was expecting tobacco at this early a date and were not on the lookout for it. But Johnny Wilson made the best bid on in and took it at 9 1-2 and 4c.

More tobacco is expected to come in now in dribbles for the next few weeks, when the season will begin to open in full blast.—Mayfield Messenger.

FOR KENTUCKY WOMEN WHO ARE TIRED OUT, NERVOUS, SLEEPLESS, OR RACKED WITH PAIN.

Louisville, Ky.—"When I was in need of a woman's medicine I saw Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription advertised. I was nervous, tired out, and it seemed as if I was unable to meet my work. After I began using the 'Prescription' I became better and so much stronger. I used five bottles of this remedy and was entirely cured. I have never been bothered since. I am glad to recommend it because I desire to help others similarly placed."—Miss Mary Schmitt, 2221 Bank St.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a true friend to women in times of trial and at times of pain when the organs are not performing their functions. For headache, backache, hot flashes, catarrhal condition, bearing down sensation, mental depression, dizziness, fainting spells, lassitude and exhaustion women should never fail to take this tried and true woman's medicine.

For girls about to enter womanhood, women about to become mothers and for the changing days of middle age, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription should always be on hand.

It's a temperance remedy that is extracted from roots with pure glycerine and its ingredients are published on wrapper. Any medicine dealer can supply it in either liquid or tablet form. The cost is modest, the restorative benefits truly remarkable. Write Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., for free 136-page book on woman's diseases. Every woman should have one. You can also have confidential medical advice without cost.

Worth Considering. "I'm going to a summer hotel that makes a specialty of good things to eat. The manager weighs nearly 300 pounds and his wife tips the scales at more than 200 pounds." "Still, I wouldn't jump to conclusions. How do you know they eat there?"

Invade German Colony.

Lisbon, Oct. 4.—An extensive invasion of German East Africa by Portuguese troops is reported in the official statement issued by the war office. The statement says:

After the passage of the Rovuma river our columns advanced eight miles and occupied Miboi. The left column seized Katabu, and the German barracks and then proceeded towards Nacoas. The columns on the center and right, marching toward the Migomba depot, reached Taketo, on Rovuma bay. The enemy retreated in the direction of Sissaxara, west of Lindi. The natives willingly accepted Portuguese domination.

No Servant Problem Here.

The servant problem has not bothered Mrs. H. L. Garland of Opelousas, La., according to the American Magazine. She has had one servant in her family for 63 years, a negro woman who commenced her duties as servant eight years before the Civil war began. The name of this paragon, who shows that the old-time darky devotion still exists, is Mrs. Sophie Simma.

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

DR. FRANKLIN'S POLITE SARCASTIC.

By A. W. MACY.

Dr. Benjamin Franklin was noted for his politeness, though he not infrequently tinged it with sarcasm. In 1774 he was dismissed by the British government from the office of surveyor general of the postoffice in America, no reason being assigned except that his majesty the king had no further need for his services. Two years later the Continental congress appointed him postmaster general of all North America; whereupon he could not resist the temptation to write the English minister that the British government need not worry any more about postal affairs in America as they had again been placed in competent hands. Some months after the opening of the war he summed up the situation thus in a letter to a friend in England: "The English have made a campaign here, which cost two million; they have gained a mile of ground, and lost half of it back again. They have lost 1,500 men and killed 150 Yankees. Meantime we have had between 60,000 and 70,000 children born. How long will it take to conquer America?"

POULTRY

CHICKENS RUNNING AT LARGE

Unlimited Range Is Nuisance When Fowls Are Given Privilege of Stables, Sheds, Etc.

Unlimited range has its advantages, but if unlimited range means that the fowls have the privileges of the stables, wagon sheds and roosting on the wheels and machinery, then the unlimited range is a nuisance. To give poultry plenty of room does not imply that the fowls should go where they please. A hen has no place in a stable any more than a cow has the right in a poultry house. Little by little the droppings accumulate during the season until everything is too filthy to handle, and the work of cleaning will be more than the real value of the fowls. Keep poultry away from other stock.

GUINEAS AS SUMMER LAYERS

Egg Is About Two-Thirds as Large as That of Chicken—Has Decidedly Better Flavor.

There are two different breeds of guineas, the white and the pearl. Both breeds are excellent summer layers, and the eggs are of superior quality. The guinea egg is about two-thirds as large as the hen egg, and has a decidedly better flavor. The guinea hen begins to lay as soon as the weather gets warm in the spring. If they are well fed during the winter they will begin to lay earlier than if they are only half fed through the winter.

If there are as many male birds in the flock as there are hens they will mate off in pairs, but if only a few male birds are kept several hens will mate with one male and all or nearly all of them will lay in the same nest. Most guinea raisers recommend keeping one male bird for every five hens; we kept only two male birds with 20 hens last year and the eggs hatched as well as they did when we kept more males. The fewer male birds that are kept in the flock, the less quarrelsome they are.

HEN IS THE BIGGEST EATER

Fowl Turns Out More Food, According to Weight, Than Best Dairy Cow—Marvel of Efficiency.

The hen is the biggest eater of all domestic animals. A three and one-half pound hen, according to Doctor Rice of Cornell, will eat 110 pounds of food in a year. She will lay 30 pounds of eggs, or perhaps more. Eggs are highly concentrated food, and the hen that transforms a hundred pounds of bran, grass, grain and gravel, and other scraps into one-third their weight of fresh eggs, is a marvel of efficiency. The hen therefore turns out more food, according to her weight, than the best dairy cow.

TO BREAK HENS FROM SITTING

Wait Until She Gets Well Settled Then Place Her in Open Coop—Soon Forgets Desire.

To break a hen from sitting let her sit a day or two until she gets well settled, then put her, preferably with two or more other hens, into an open coop in full view of the poultry yard, where she can see her free sisters scratching around enjoying themselves. Hens are jealous creatures and a sitting hen placed in such a position and well fed, soon forgets her desire to sit, and when given her freedom on the morning of the fourth or fifth day she will happily resume the duties of hen life.

GLAD TO BE HOME AGAIN

Mrs. Ida Roberts Returns Home a Six Months Visit

Providence, Ky., Sept. 25, 1916.

Editor Record-Press,

I left Oakman, Okla., the 30th day of August after spending the summer in that State. I came around by Hickman, Ky., and spent ten days there on my return trip, arriving home the tenth day of September after an absence of more than six months. In greeting old friends almost every one is ready to ask, "How do you like Oklahoma?"

Well I like it pretty well. Oklahoma is rapidly advancing to the front.

I doubt if any other state has made more advancement in the last few years. It is wonderful to have noted the progress, and to have seen the changes that have taken place even in the last decade. Sections of country that were then sparsely settled with few cultivated fields and rude huts have now given place to fine farms and handsome up-to-date residences. So many towns and cities have sprung up that one is led to wonder how so much could have been accomplished in such a short time.

Great interest is taken in educational work and handsome and substantial school buildings are seen in almost every school district.

The farmers of Oklahoma have suffered greatly from drought in the past, but they are now studying crops that are suited to grow and produce without so much rain. Diversified farming is being taught.

The government has undertaken the task of teaching both men and women on the farm to make the best of conditions both favorable and unfavorable, and to derive from the ground which they till a living all the year round.

Women are being taught to can every vegetable without acids or preservatives—the government way.

Even the Indians who have

The Strong Withstand the Heat of Summer Better Than the Weak.

been considered shiftless and improvident are catching the spirit of thrift and enterprise and many of them are now imitating their pale-faced neighbors in the race for advancement and progress.

Oklahoma has always been a fine country for raising cattle and this employment still forms one of the most important industries of the State.

Traveling from near the center of the state to the southern border I saw some beautiful country. Level prairie farms, with fine pastures and green fields with scarcely a stump or tree in sight, only in the blue distance.

In Washita and Red river bottoms the ground is especially rich and fertile.

All things considered though, I do not like Oklahoma any better than I do Kentucky. And while I had a nice time there, and expect to return at some future date (if I live) still I confess that as I found myself in the vicinity of home, and heard the names of adjacent towns called out, I leaned forth with pleased expectancy until my eyes rested on old familiar scenes.

At present I am visiting my son at Providence. I attended church here last night and heard Rev. King of the Methodist church, deliver his last sermon before going to Conference. He did well, and the truths which he spoke should be sounded forth to all the world.

While I have been visiting this year I have striven to improve the time for the Lord. Have attended public worship a number of times and have testified to the goodness and mercy of God. Though weak and unworthy, I can say like David of old, "I have praised thy name O God, in the great congregation."

Moving around from place to place I remembered the divine injunction, "Sow beside all waters."

And not only in public but in private life, I have tried to be an example and walk circumspectly that I might be a blessing and a help to all whom I came in contact with.

Yours as ever,

IDA M. ROBERTS.

If you could look into a million homes

Could you look into one home in every twenty in America and see in all of them a coffee being served that is good enough to make breakfast as happy as this—

If you saw all these homes using the same coffee—

You would never rest until you had tried that coffee.

Your grocer has it for you—

Arbuckles'. It is by far the most popular coffee sold in America today!

Like the women in these million homes, you will find that Arbuckles' has the rich, full flavor you have always wanted.

Until you serve it you will never know how much pleasure coffee can give.

To supply the women of America with their favorite coffee, ships of Arbuckles' Coffee are on the sea every day, bringing coffee from the coffee growing countries to their big plant on the New York waterfront.

We read and hear much about

Commission form of Government or Commissioners to constitute the fiscal court of our county. We would like to read an article from some one explaining this new law. Some one who is well informed on questions of public interest,

and will give a true explanation.

Four years ago they sneeringly called Woodrow Wilson the school-teacher. Then his class was assembled within the narrow walls of Princeton college.

They were the young men of America. To-day he is the world teacher, his class is made up of kings, kaisers, czars, princes, and potentates. The con-finer of the schoolroom circle the world. His subject is the protection of American life and American rights under international law. Without orphaning

a single American child, without widowing a single American mother, without firing a single gun, without the shedding of a single drop of blood, he wrung

from the most militant spirit

that brooded above a battlefield

an acknowledgement of American rights and an agreement to American demands.—Ollie M.

James, Senator from Kentucky,

Democratic National Convention

in his speech at St. Louis, Mo.

The President's National Policy.

In the crisis he faced the woman, and child in America.

For it developed that Mr. Wilson pursued exactly the right course.

Any other attitude of the President would have plunged us either into war or prolonged the submarine controversy. No matter what other construction may be put, I say Germany's answer

was an open admission that Wilson was not only right, but fair.

Another President might have

went to war with Germany,

without sending any kind of note. And we all ought to thank God that there was a Woodrow Wilson in the White House to withstand the pressure of the war seekers on the one hand and

and the war partials on the other.

Wilson's course was the middle road, and he fearlessly took that road. We have all much to be thankful for, for that,

as true Americans and with allegiance to one flag, and one flag only.—Charles Lieb, of Indiana, House of Representatives,

July, 1916.

STOP! LOOK! LISTEN!

The increasing number of serious accidents at railroad grade crossings is a matter about which we should all give more serious consideration. As more people come to use the automobile, unless they use greater care than ever before, these terrible accidents will multiply.

The location of these crossings is well known to the drivers and it is difficult to understand why anyone should run the risk of accidents by driving over them

without taking the time to look

or listen for approaching trains.

And they should remember that the noise of their machine makes the sense of hearing not infallible. The question now is not one of liability, it is a case of life and death. No matter what one may conceive his rights to be at railroad crossings it is an obvious truth that any man is a fool who contests the right of a locomotive engine by seeking to occupy the crossing first with his own vehicle. No matter what the hurry, there is certainly time enough for everyone to take precautions for his own safety at such places, and the simplest precaution ordinarily will suffice. "Safety First" is the right motto to bear in mind.

On the 22nd, of September an observation was made at the

in this city.

The observer stood at this crossing from 8:00 a. m. to 12:00 noon

and from 1:00 p. m. until 4:00 p.

m. During this time 58 horse drawn vehicles and 12 automobiles passed over this crossing, and during the same time there were

6 passing trains. The observer reports that each one of the trains gave warning of its approach by whistle and ringing of the bell. Not a single one of these vehicles, either horse drawn

or automobile, stopped or slowed up to "look or listen." The drivers of six of the fifty eight horse drawn vehicles, before attempting the crossing, did look to the right and left. None of the other horse drawn vehicles

and not a single automobile driver looked either to the right or left. Upon this state of facts the drivers of such vehicles are courting death, and, unless more care is exercised, it is simply a question of time until the town

will be shocked with the details of a terrible accident at some of these grade crossings.

AN INVITATION OF WAR.

It is reported by a staff correspondent of the World, cabling

from Copenhagen, that Amba-

sador Gerard is returning to the United States to discuss with the President "the growingly dangerous situation regarding submarine-war resumption which is strongly urged" throughout

Germany.

The German Imperial Chancellor, in his speech in the Reichstag yesterday, frankly recognized that sentiment and pander-

ed to it in his assertion that—

A German statesman who would hesitate to use against

this enemy every instrument of battle that would really shorten this war—such a statesman should be hanged.

It was hardly a week ago that

Ernest Bassermann, one of the leaders of the National Liberal Party, said in a speech to his constituents that "the submarine campaign had been only postponed, not abandoned."

Whether the submarine issue will inevitably be interpreted in Berlin as a complete repudiation

of his policies. The German-

American campaign against the President's re-election will justify this interpretation. The Imperial Government will naturally assume that it need no longer be obligated by its pledges to President Wilson. It may not be sure that Mr. Hughes' policies will be pro-German, but it will know

the President has been defeated and that Hughes cannot take office before March 4, 1917.

Between the election and the inauguration there will be a state of diplomatic chaos if the President is beaten, and the German Government will have every temptation to take advantage of

it. This state of chaos will in reality endure much longer, for a Hughes Administration means

a President and a Cabinet with no first-hand knowledge of the situation and no definite information about the details of previous negotiations and understandings. It means, likewise, the appointment of new Republican Ambassadors who are no less ignorant than their official superiors.

Out of such a situation almost any international disaster may result.

Should the American people reject the President they must expect that German popular sentiment will construe that rejection most favorably to the German cause and put new pressure upon the Imperial Government to resume submarine operations. The Imperial Government is more and more susceptible to popular sentiment, and the defeat of President Wilson would furnish a golden opportunity to renew the business of submarine murder, in the belief that no

real risk had been assumed of a war with the United States.

No thoughtful American citizen, unprejudiced by partisan

considerations, can contemplate

even the possibility of President

Wilson's defeat without grave apprehension. It seems to The World that on this issue alone

States into doubt and confusion,

to chance calamity for the sake of a change in Government without even knowing what the change means—that cannot be reconciled with the sober,

thoughtful, responsible character that the American people have hitherto shown in great crises.

The defeat of President Wilson would be an invitation to war. It can mean nothing else.

School Fair at Crayne Saturday a Success.

There were many present to enjoy the kind hospitality of the good people of Crayne and to help make the day pleasant and profit- able.

Crayne won first place, Chapel Hill, second. Other schools made good showings.

One of the best school days the county has ever had was the day of the Division Fair held at Crayne last Saturday. The day was ideal, the roads were fine. Long before the time which had been set for the beginning of of the program, people from all the schools in that part of the county were gathering to show their interest in and their ap- preciation of the splendid work which is being done by the schools in that division.

The first part of the morning was given to the selection of the judges for the day and then af- ter that task was finished the remainder of the morning was given to the contests in arithma- tic and reading. At twelve o'clock a sumptuous dinner was served and in this the good people of Crayne showed their ap- preciation of the many people who had come to spend the day in their little town. The people of Crayne together with the people of the surrounding coun- try showed themselves equal to occasion and with true Kentucky hospitality did every thing in their power to make the day a success and to make their guests for the day feel that it was good to be there.

Immediately after dinner, the drawing contests were held in the schoolhouse and the contests in story telling and spelling were finished in the church. The spell- ing contest was one of the most interesting features of the work. The first prize was won by Dy- cusbury and the second by Chapel Hill.

The exhibits were splendid. The work was good and well dis- played. Most of the schools had booths and the work on display was a credit to the schools of the county. Most of the schools had splendid exhibits in Manual Training, Domestic Science and Agriculture. The first prize on General Exhibit was awarded to Crayne and the second prize to Chapel Hill. Athletics are always an interesting feature of the school fair program. All the first prizes in athletics went to Francis, Chapel Hill getting two seconds and Jackson one. The schools represented and the num- ber of ribbons won by each fol- lows:

	First	Second
Crayne	18	13
Chapel Hill	9	15
Francis	7	1
Dycusbury	7	5

A young bride of seven months at Evansville has sued her hus- band for divorce alleging among other things that he refused to eat the meals she prepared for him. Girls the moral of this is that domestic science is more important than china painting.

The thing to do is to take a course in domestic science from Miss Susie Boston.

MOTHER LOVE AIDS SON IN TRENCHES

It Brings Relief To Boy Standing His Watch Deep in Mud.

Once upon a time, only a few months after this terrible world war had begun, Private Bailey, a soldier in the ranks had stood for days in the trenches "somewhere in France." The cold rain soaked him to the skin; the mud was deep. He had no rest. Weary and aching with rheumatic pains, he recalled the faith his mother had in Sloan's Liniment. He asked for it in his next letter home. A large bottle was immediately sent him and a few applications killed the pain, once more he was able to stand the severe ex- posure. He shared this wonderful mus- cle-soother with his comrades, and they all agreed it was the greatest "rein- forcement" that had ever come to their rescue. At your druggist, 25c., 50c. and $1.00 a bottle.

JUDGE C. S. NUNN

Delivers A Strong And Able Ad- dress To The Democrats At Princeton Saturday

The second public speaking for the Democrats in this county during the present campaign was held here Saturday after- noon when Judge Clem S. Nunn, of Marion, formerly Appellate Judge from this district address- ed a large crowd at the court- house on the political issues of the day.

Judge Nunn made a very force- ful and statesman like address, dealing with the President's foreign and domestic achieve- ments in such a manner as to show the folly and absurdity of the Republican's criticisms of our great President. He made a strong appeal for the re-election of the Democratic ticket and showed by the record the Demo- crats have made during the past 3 1-2 years that they justly merit an indorsement which we confi- dently believe the American peo- ple will give on Nov. 7.

IS THERE AN APOSTASY IN MORALS?

By REV. J. H. RALSTON, D.D.
Secretary of Correspondence Department,
Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT—And even as they did not like to retain God in their knowledge, God gave them over to a reprobate mind to do those things which are not convenient.—Rom. 1:28.

In scripture the perfect man is described as the man of clean hands and a pure heart, that is of correct life and pure motives. Every law of nature and ethics proves that to have a pure stream there must be a pure fountain, however pure the course of the stream may be. It is no wonder, then, that every good man prays: "Create in me a clean heart, O God, renew a right spirit within me."

For some years many of the greatest teachers of the word of God have insisted that the race of mankind is now in the apostasy referred to in Paul's second letter to the Thessalonians in the use of the term "a time of falling away." With very many observers this falling away has been along the line of impurity in religious teaching.

But it is not to any such apostasy that we now wish to refer, and we ask very earnestly, is there a present apostasy in morals? We are not going to dramatize and insist that there is, but we wish to think of a few things with reference to the present state of morals.

How can we check up on morals? Christians might start with the law of the Christian life—the law of grace—which in itself is the law that produces the best results; or the Sermon on the Mount might be in view, which is below that of the Christian law, and above that of the decalogue. The moment we begin to estimate a man from the Sermon on the Mount we are overwhelmed, for obedience to that law has very scanty illustration with the race of mankind as a whole, and all are guilty with respect to the supreme love to God demanded. But we descend at once to the ten commandments which are not abrogated as far as a general standard of morals is concerned.

The first two commandments deal with the worship of God. Are not the words of the text true that men do not like to "retain God in their knowledge"? Do they not worship practically everything else but God? The third commandment deals with profanity, and while we cannot check up comparatively, we know that today the name of God is most profanely used by men, and quite said to say by large numbers of women. The idea of a day set apart for the worship of the holy God, and separation from the world, is now ridiculed, and such a day is practically gone.

Coming to the sixth commandment, which says "Thou shalt not kill," let us pause. Popularly speaking murder is put at the head of the list of heinous crimes, and that is usually designated as the taking of the life of another unlawfully. Three years ago it was a common saying that the brotherhood of man was so far advanced, that the federation of the world was so nearly realized, that anything like bodies of men making war on each other was utterly unthinkable. What is the situation today? A dozen nations are in the most bloody grip of war that the race has ever known; the soil of Europe, Asia and Africa is stained with the blood of thousands and tens of thousands of men, and while some of the forms of barbarism which characterized ancient times are absent, other things have taken their place, their object being to destroy foes by death or maim for life.

It was with reference to the breach of the seventh commandment that the expression of "the reign of lust" was made. Evidences of low morals as to this commandment are somewhat difficult to obtain with accuracy, but the statistics of the divorce courts; the statistics of various cities set the steady demand of the habitues of the theaters for plays that accentuate marital infidelity and the exposure of the persons of women; the advertisements in many popular pictorial publications, furnish some evidence and, probably at the present time as never before, the style of dress of a very large number of women concerning which delicacy forbids further remark, reaches a climax.

If the breach of the eighth, ninth and tenth commandments are not comparatively as conspicuous as those of the sixth and seventh, yet dishonesty, lying and covetousness still carry down their victims and no man escapes their touch.

Reformatory movements of various kinds; good laws on morals well enforced; the rise of public sentiment against impurity and murderous cruelty of the day, will do much to relieve the situation, but the only adequate and lasting method of public reform is the power of God given in the new birth.

SCHOOL AUDITORIUM, OCT. 5TH

SCHILDKRET'S HUNGARIAN ORCHESTRA.

For ten years the Schildkret Hungarian Orchestra has appeared on Lyceum courses and Chautauqua circuits, and it has been stated repeatedly that Samuel Schildkret, the leader, can get as much music out of his six men as many directors can draw from an orchestra of ten or twelve. He is proud of the fact that he gives an audience about five times its money's worth. Ordinarily the leader of a band or orchestra has a notion that it is best to take things calmly, with plenty of time for intermissions. Not so with Schildkret. There are no so-called "breathing spells" when Schildkret leads the band. He and his men are busy every minute.

It is a fact that the Schildkret Orchestra has on frequent occasions while playing a selection on the regular program caused such enthusiasm that eight or ten encores have been demanded and given. It is stated on good authority that the Schildkret Orchestra has in its repertoire enough selections to last from the first curtain in the evening until breakfast the next morning. It is not unusual for this organization to play forty selections during an evening's entertainment.

The program used by the Schildkret Orchestra is made up of both classical and popular pieces. Regardless of whether an audience is distinctly musical or not Schildkret is sure to please. Naturally Director Schildkret's playing of the piccolo and flute is a big drawing card. Also he greatly interests his audience in his unique announcements and comments.

The zymbaloe, the national instrument of Hungary, is introduced by the Schildkret Orchestra.

USE NO BANDAGES IN NEW SURGERY

Latest Method of Healing Obstinate Wounds Proves Great Success.

ARE SPRAYED WITH OZONE

Stream of Gaseous Substance Flows into Deepest Recesses, Killing All Microbes—Horrors of Dressing Wounds Eliminated.

London.—Bandages are eliminated in the latest methods of healing obstinate wounds here. This is one of the marvelous developments of surgery to which the war has given impetus. One of the horrors of hospitals is dressing wounds. Strong, brave men scream involuntarily with pain every day when the bandages are removed and the wounds treated.

At Queen Alexandra's military hospital today several patients were exhibited undergoing the new treatment. Two of these men were most severely wounded in September of last year, and for ten months had been treated in the customary way without any sign of healing. On August 2 they were brought to this hospital, the bandages were flung away, the wounds were subjected to repeated applications of a stream of ozone, being lightly covered with a loose layer of lint in the intervals, and in four days healing was in rapid progress.

This treatment is simplicity itself. Oxygen passes from a reservoir into an electrical machine which converts it into ozone; the ozone flows out through a fine metal tube. The machine is wheeled close to the patient's bed, the wound uncovered, and a stream of the microbe-killing ozone flows into the deepest recesses. No painful dragging off of bandages, no rebandaging of the limb to hurt and exhaust the patient.

New Treatment a Success. Here was seen a soldier who had lost his right foot, with a stump covered with skin so healthy and hard that he could walk upon it, a surgical marvel.

What might be called the open-air treatment of wounds has come to stay. At the Herbert hospital is a soldier with a bad compound fracture of the leg. The limb is not swathed in many yards of bandages as was the custom, but lies between sandbags to secure immobility and is covered only with a single layer of lint. The lint is kept constantly wet with peroxide of hydrogen. Surrounding the leg is a large cage covered with a sheet of thin butler muslin, so that the wound is continually refreshed by a free current of air. Extremely rapid healing and freedom from the agony of manipulation are the great gains from this mode of treatment.

The whirlpool bath is entirely a war invention, from which excellent results in cases of stiff joints have been obtained in France. It consists of a small oblong bath, filled with water which is kept in continuous movement by a miniature propeller revolved at a very high speed by means of an electric motor. A stiff arm or leg, hand or foot, placed in the bath and kept there for some time is much improved by the stimulus of the running water. Marvelous examples of bone carpentry are to be seen, such as the transference of a large piece of bone from the leg to fill a gap in the arm bone or jaw.

Trench foot is being more or less successfully treated by massage, operation, and other methods.

After the Surgeon the Masseuse. All sorts of joint injuries go to Hammernsmith hospital, and there, as well as at other hospitals, is to be seen a collection of ingenious exercises for restoring mobility. When the surgeon has done all that he can the patient goes to the masseurs and the exercisers. If his wrist is stiff he twists a bar with graduated resistance; if he cannot fully close his hand he grasps a thick bar and turns it, passing on to thinner and thinner bars as the hand improves; the patient with a stiff knee is put to exercise on a stationary bicycle; others, according to the nature and situation of the defect, practice rowing, climbing ladders, pulling on weighted ropes; and with these curative exercises is combined massage, with electric treatment, and other remedies.

In the laboratories of the Royal Army medical college vaccines are made to secure the men against typhoid fever, which used to be more fatal in war than the bayonet and the bullet combined; paratyphoid fever, so rare formerly, so common now in France; the cholera of Saloniki and Egypt; and pneumonia, one of the soldier's worst trench enemies in cold weather.

About ten million doses of these vaccines have been sent out from Millwall since the war began. Among them is a most valuable mixed vaccine which gives protection from both typhoid and the two forms of paratyphoid fever. This has been in use since January last. Quite new, since the war began, are the measures taken for discovering whether anyone who comes in contact with soldiers is carrying the infection of spotted fever at the back of his nose, for, although himself quite free from the disease, such a carrier might create an epidemic in a camp.

BRITISH PILE UP SHELLS AT BASRA

End German Dream of Proposed Terminus of Berlin-Bagdad Railway Line.

CAPTURED SHIPS IN TIGRIS

Simple Possession of the River Tigris Is Sufficient to Control the Population for Many Miles Inland.

General Headquarters Mesopotamian Expeditionary Force, Basra.—The culmination of Germany's immediate eastern aspirations was the creation of Basra as the Persian gulf terminus of the Berlin-Bagdad railway system, writes Louis Edgar Browne in the Chicago News. The Germans in their wildest dreams could hardly have imagined Basra as it is today. It is the headquarters and main base for British operations in Mesopotamia. The term "base" has come to mean a place where thousands of troops are encamped in glistening white tents, carefully arranged in rows and blocks with military precision; mountains of food stores for the men and fodder for the animals; hospitals and headquarters and dispatch riders dashing about as though the angel of death were after them.

Basra is all that and more. Never was there a more unique campaign than this one, where there is every contrast between east and west.

The Tigris is all important in the campaign. It is fickle, personified. It floods, subsides and spreads cholera with absolute impartiality. Hardly two engagements out of all the furious encounters that have marked the steady progress of British troops up the river have occurred more than eight miles from its banks. The British objective has been to take possession of the river. The Turks have tried only to hold it. Simple possession of the river is sufficient to control the population for many miles inland.

British Ships Everywhere.

One stands on the army commander's pier and realizes that Britain does control the seas. As far as one can see, either up or down the river, there are ocean-going ships tugging at anchor chains drawn taut as bow strings by the swift current. The ships are anchored one behind the other in a long column. They hail from many corners of the earth and among their cargoes one may find everything from a big howitzer shell to a skein of embroidery for some Arab harem. The ships are nearly all British. They fly one of the varied designs of the British flag. It may be the white ensign of the royal navy or the red ensign of the mercantile fleet or the blue ensign with India's rising sun or the Australian flag with its four stars depicting the southern cross.

Every day a few ships draw into midstream and with half exposed propellers thrash their way toward the sea. They have before them a terrible tossing about by the Arabian sea monsoon, but even at that they must be thankful to the depths of their souls. Basra is all that is vile. The very air one breathes is rank poison. The temperature runs up to 118 degrees on the river. It will go higher. The shore is a smelly swamp where dangerous mosquitoes breed by billions. Heat apoplexy hangs over every man's head like a sword suspended by a thread. Cholera comes in the night.

Tried to Block Channel.

A funnel top, a jumble of topmasts and a few shreds of loose cordage snapping in the breeze bear mute evidence of the way the Turks attempted to block the river. British monitors were pressing close upon the retreating Turkish army, hurling high explosive shells into its rear guard. The Turkish admiral hurriedly threw three ships across the river and scuttled them. The middle ship was a fine German liner containing cargo. The British contemplated salvaging her. The others were smaller ships—one a light ship and the other a small steamer. The plan was admirable, but it was engineered with characteristic Turkish inefficiency, and the small steamer on the right swung clear of the channel and fouled the liner before she sank. The Turks are a bit superstitious about the Tigris and they declare the river foiled their plans because it did not wish to bore through the river bank to form a new channel, which it would have done had the admiral been successful.

Anchored in the stream is a great black ship, with a golden star and the letters "P. S. S." painted on her funnel. The letters translate "prize steamship." I have seen so many prize steamships in the East that it seems as though British captures of Germany's mercantile marine must compensate largely for her losses through Germany's submarine campaign. The prizes still retain their German names, probably for the purpose of identification, although they fly the red ensign and are operated by government crews.
