DULUTH, MINN

Hotel Parlor Scene of Harris-Paris Wedding.

The following account of the marriage of Mr. Guy H. Paris, son of the late Newton W. Paris, of Louisville, is clipped from a Duluth exchange:

"In the presence of eighty guests, Miss Edna Z. Harris, daughter of Mrs. Clara A. Harris of 4107 East Superior street, and G. H. Paris were married at 8 o'clock Saturday night in the Spalding hotel parlor by Rev. A. W. Ryan of St. Paul's Episcopal church. The bridal party stood in the bay window which was decorated with green vines over white draperies, and lighted by a cathedral candle in the center and candelabras holding seven candles at the sides. Michaud's orchestra, with Miss Elizabeth Halden, one of the bride's piano pupils, at the piano, played the nuptial music and at the reception which followed the ceremony. James Gray, Joe Jonosky, Percy Oreck and Arthur Ringsred, also pupils of the bride, held the white satin ribbons which formed the aisle for the wedding party.

The bride wore a gown of white point de'esprit trimmed with Irish lace. The short skirt was trimmed with many bouffes. Her veil, which was shirred in cap effect, was held by a wreath of lilies of the valley and her shower bouquet was of lilies of the valley, white sweet peas and green hair fern. She was given in marriage by Henry Cleveland.

Miss Carolyn Bartholdi, the maid of honor, was gowned in peach bloom taffeta with drapery of white chiffon and carried pink sweet peas. Helen Halden carried the ring in a white rosebud. Mr. Johnston was the best man.

The out-of-town guests were Mrs. Joseph Halderman, of Chicago, aunt of the bride, and Jno. Vida, of Chisholm.

At the reception Mrs. Harris was assisted by Mrs. N. F. Huggins, Mrs. William Carlson, Mrs. Halderman and Mrs. Odin Halden. Mrs. Harris was gowned in white crepe de chine and wore pink Killarney roses. Mrs. Halderman's gown was of black lace over white satin. Mrs. Huggins wore a gown of black chiffon, Mrs. Carlson wore shadow lace combined with blue and white marquisette and Mrs. Halden's gown was of blue crepe de chine trimmed with hand-made lace.

A group of the bride's pupils served. They were Miss Etta Bartholdi, Miss Erna Bartholdi, Miss Ruth Olson and Miss Mildred Sanders.

The guests registered in the bride's register which was Dr. Ryan's gift to the couple. Telegrams were received from the bride's uncle, Joseph Halderman, and from out-of-town friends.

After the refreshments, dancing was enjoyed in the hotel ball room. When the bride and bridegroom entered they were showered with rice.

Mr. and Mrs. Paris left for a week's stay in Minneapolis. They will be at home after Oct. 1st, at 321 East First street. The bride's going away suit was of blue velvet with hat to match. The groom is a grandson of Zeke Hughes, of this county, and is related to many of our best people. He is employed by the Western Union Telegraph Co., at Duluth, Minn. His widowed mother lives at Mena, Ark.

GERMAN SUBMARINE

Drops Anchor At Newport 17 Days From Wilhelmshaven. Subsea Fighter Brings Mail.

Newport, R. I. Oct. 10.—Seventeen days from Wilhelmshaven the imperial German submarine U-53 dropped anchor at Newport harbor this afternoon.

Almost before the officers of the American fleet through which the stranger had nosed its way had recovered from their surprise, she delivered a message for the German ambassador, weighed anchor and left the harbor, submerging just inside the three-mile limit. The submarine flew the German naval flag and carried a gun on her forward deck, while eight torpedoes easily visible under her decks showed she was ready to fight.

Lieutenant-Captain Hans Rose said the submarine came to Newport simply to mail to Count von Bernstorff.

The submarine was within American waters less than three hours, assuming she went to sea when submerged outside the harbor. Within that time the German commander paid a visit to Rear Admiral Knight and received from him the official courtesy of a visit.

While the formalities were being exchanged, the British and French patrol fleet off the coast was doubtless being warned of her presence.

Captain Rose's first question was, "Have you heard from the Bremen?" and seemed disappointed when told "no."

The Associated Press correspondent who had been watching for weeks for the Bremen went out by motor boat to the submarine. After asking about the Bremen, Captain Rose demanded his credentials and then entrusted to him a letter for Ambassador Bernstorff to be mailed. The correspondence was contained in one bulky envelope, which should be at the German embassy tomorrow morning.

The submarine anchored in the outer harbor two miles down the bay. No one came ashore, but a representative of the Associated Press was allowed to go aboard and learn the vessel's story.

The U-53, in command of Lieut. Capt. Hans Rose, appeared spick and span upon her arrival here and looked as if she had been out only for maneuvers. Her commander reported that he had not sighted any hostile craft on his voyage over, adding that the boat was plentifully supplied with provisions and fuel and that nothing would be taken aboard her.

The Record Of President Wilson And The Democratic Congress.

Around 20,000,000 happy fire-sides the fathers of America will gather this night with their unbroken family circle, with their children upon their knees and their wives by their side, happy and prosperous. Contrast this with the fathers, husbands and brothers of the Old World dying in the ditches, with the gloom and mourning in broken family circles, where hunger crouches and disease treads. If this be "evil and vacillating," God prosper it and teach it to the rulers of the Old World.

CHOATE'S TRIBUTE TO PRESIDENT WILSON

Republican's Praise of President Endorsed by Noted Editor.

Joseph H. Choate, ambassador to Great Britain in the McKinley and Roosevelt administrations, an ex-president of the American Bar Association, and long a leader of the American bar, and a leading Republican, writing in the Review of Reviews for January, 1915, paid high tribute to Wilson's administration's policies growing out of the war. He said:

"If we can maintain our neutrality and keep out of this war and at the same time prove ourselves friendly to all the nations engaged in it—as I think we shall under the wise and prudent conduct of President Wilson—United States will, I believe, not only be called into consultation by the warring nations, when they are no longer able to keep up the fight, but will practically be able to dictate the terms of peace between them, one of which must, if possible, be an effectual guarantee against any future outbreak of the horrible spirit of militarism which has caused the present war.

"And I am encouraged in this belief by reading the recent message of President Wilson and the annual reports of the Secretaries of War and of the Navy, which, taken together, appear to show a steadfast determination on the part of our Federal Government to have us prepared always for effectual self-defense, which is a necessary condition of our national existence.

"Of course, the end of this war will see us by far the most powerful nation in the world, and if the policy pointed out by Secretary Daniels is pursued, we shall perhaps in the fullness of time become ourselves the mistress of the seas without incurring hostility or attack from any nation, and shall be the great factor of preserving universal peace."

Commenting editorially on Mr. Choate's letter, the editor of the Review of Reviews says:

Surely, there is no more approved friend of international peace in our country than the Hon. Joseph H. Choate. Read then, what he writes in this number of the Review on our need of efficient means of national defense. He is in perfect agreement with what President Wilson has set forth in his message to Congress of December 8. For our part, President Wilson's words seem statesmanlike and noble. They are wholly compatible with strict and efficient attention to the business of getting the best results out of the vast expenditures for army and navy that are met by taxpayers."

Princeton Presbytery

Princeton Presbytery of the Cumberland Presbyterian church met at Rose Creek near Nebo Ky., Oct. 3 1916.

Eight ministers answered roll call and twenty five churches were represented. Mrs. L. M. Woosley of Leitchfield Presbytery and Rev. J. M. Cook of Owensboro Presbytery were with us. Beside the regular routine of business we had splendid preaching and one young man, W. H. Wallace was ordained to the full work of the ministry. We had a good Presbytery. The good people of Rose Creek made us welcome and treated us royally.

School Fair at Seminary

A Day of Success.

One of the most successful days the people of old Crittenden have ever experienced, was the day of the Division Fair held at Seminary last Saturday.

The weather was ideal. The roads were fine with one exception and that was the dust.

There was a large crowd present and everyone seemed to enjoy themselves.

About 12 o'clock a delicious dinner was served. The people showed much gratitude and hospitality.

The exhibits were splendid. The work was good and well displayed. The first prize on general exhibit was awarded to Weston and second prize to Post Oak. Chioning the bar—Oakland, Seminary and Hoods Creek tied and Dempsey won second.

The schools represented and the number of ribbons won by each are as follows:

	First	Second
Weston	17	4
Hoods Creek	9	13
Oakland	7	7
Post Oak	5	7
Seminary	4	3
Baker	4	3
Applegate	2	7

Clippings From Pensacola Paper.

In looking over a Pensacola, Florida paper the editor's eyes happened to fall on an advertisement which attracted his attention, and on reading it he found that a Marion boy was "behind the guns" in the big Pensacola Business College. The ad ran thus: Announcement Extraordinary—Learn Salesmanship at the Pensacola Business Institute. The first class will be under the direct supervision of Prof. O. H. Little a graduate of the Bowling Green Business University, Bowling Green, Ky. Mr. Little is well prepared to handle this subject having had special training under the personal supervision of Prof. Jas. Knox of Cleveland, Ohio. For further information call or phone 897. Prof. O. H. Little is none other than "Oscar" whom we all know and love. He was "bred in old Kentucky" in the bailiwick of Crittenden and is adding new honors to our county's name abroad. We congratulate Florida on securing one of Kentucky's bright young men to head her Business Institute.

Hopkins County Officers Must Make Restitution, Rules Judge Henderson.

Madisonville, Ky., Oct. 11.—County Attorney G. W. Sybert and former County Judge R. B. Bradley Thursday were ordered, in a decision handed down by Circuit Judge Henderson, to pay back to the fiscal court of Hopkins county, $2,600, the amount of salaries claimed to have been illegally paid these officers, with interest from August 24, 1914, until paid. Sybert is to pay back $1,200, and Bradley, $1,400. Similar suits against former County Judge Mills, Sheriff J. B. Stanley and Superintendent of Schools A. J. Fox have been tried and decided against the defendants and affirmed by the Court of Appeals, the sums against each of these ranging from $1,400 to $1,800.

The suits were filed by a number of citizens, through G. W. Lattrip. The salaries of the county officials were raised after their election, which was claimed illegal, the courts so ruling. In the cases of former Clerk Mills and former Sheriff Stanley, fees were collected, it was claimed, that should not have been allowed.

Marion Boy In The Lime Light

The Madisonville Hustler has the following to say of the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Hearin former Marion people. "Elis Hearin, a well known young man of Madisonville, who about two years ago secured a minor position with the Cumberland Telephone Company, of Madisonville is one of the boys who has made good and who is going to make better. At the time he entered the service of the company he was about eighteen years of age.

While in this position he applied himself assiduously to his work. He went in determined to win out. He is sober, moral, truthful, reliable and industrious a christian gentleman, and gifted with the idea of sticking to his business. Less than two months ago he was promoted to the office at Evansville and before he had been there six weeks he received another promotion with headquarters at Jeffersonville, Ind. He was in town Sunday to visit his home folks and left last night to enter on the discharge of his new duties where his friends will know that he will discharge his every obligation. The world needs more young men like Ellis Hearin. There is a place for every one of them."

People Should Be More Careful.

The Illinois Central Railroad Company in doing all it can to educate the people who cross its tracks over any of the thoroughfares of our country to be more careful and before they undertake to cross the tracks they should "stop, look and listen."

There are too many serious accidents happening all over the country and nearly all of them are brought about by the carelessness of the people who cross these railroad tracks.

If the people will only educate themselves to the importance of looking out for trains before they cross the tracks, it will only be a short time until there will be no accidents along railroad tracks.

We have paid some attention to these things for several years and it is a very rare occasion that death or a serious accident would occur along the railroad tracks if the people would only "stop, look and listen" before they undertake to cross.

The railroad company understands this and the people had just as well understand it; if they are not more careful, more deaths and more accidents than ever will continue to occur.

We know our roads are getting better and the facilities are much greater for travel than they used to be, and people take less precautions, but the fact remains, they must take more care or there will be more accidents. If the people will be as careful as the railroads are, serious accidents will very seldom occur.—Messenger.

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

PLENTY OF BEER BUT NO
TOBACCO.

By A. W. MACY.

Beer and tobacco are supposed by some people to be on about the same footing, but a certain company in London 200 years ago did not seem to think so. It was the business of this company to look after the welfare of the emigrants who had gone out from the mother country to seek homes in the New World. In 1629 it sent over the good ship Talbot, loaded with provisions, clothing, etc., to the Massachusetts Bay colony by the same ship the company sent a long list of instructions in regard to their conduct, telling them what they should and should not do. One of the things they were forbidden to do was to cultivate and use tobacco, "unless it be some small quantity for mere necessity, and for physick for the preservation of their health, and that the same be taken privately by antient men and none other."

President Wilson's

Policy of Neutrality.

This policy may not satisfy those who revel in destruction and find pleasure in despair. It may not satisfy the fire eater or the swashbuckler; but it does satisfy those who worship at the altar of the God of peace. It does satisfy the mothers of the land at whose hearth and fire-side no jingoistic war has placed an empty chair. It does satisfy the daughters of this land from whom bluster and brag has sent no loving brother to the dissolution of the grave. It does satisfy the fathers of this land and the sons of this land who will fight for our flag and die for our flag when reason primes the rifle, when honor draws the sword, when justice breathes a blessing on the standards they uphold.—Martin H. ## THE RURAL CREDIT LAW

Is a Full Redemption of The Democratic Platform Promise To The Farmers.

No person can borrow a dollar from a Federal Land Bank except he personally operates or intends shortly to operate the mortgaged farm. No speculator can get a dollar under any conditions. No man can borrow more than $10,000 at any one time. Thus the benefits of the law will go wholly to those who own or who may purchase farms and operate them personally. It is the first banking law to be enacted by the Congress of the United States dedicated exclusively to the interests of farm borrowers. It makes farmers a preferred class of borrowers and will give them money for productive purposes at a lower rate of interest than any other class of borrowers can secure it.—Ralph W. Moss, of Indiana, House Representative.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

MARY

WEATHER DOG.

"The Elves have a dog," said Daddy, "which always goes with them on their trips. His name is Weather."
"I've never heard of such a queer name for a dog," said Nancy.
"Why just think, Daddy," said Nick, "if you called him good Weather, or bad Weather, how funny it would sound. Not at all as if you called him good Jack or bad Jack."
"Well," continued Daddy, "they do call him bad Weather and good Weather, but they really are just as fond of him whether they call him bad or good for his name really means the Weather, and the Elves never care if it rains or snows or is piping hot."

"You see, once upon a time in Elf-land, a little Elf named Midge wanted to know if it was going to rain or if the sun was going to shine."
"Isn't it a pity," said Midge, "that I cannot tell?"
"Why do you want to know?" asked another Elf. "What difference does it make to you? Why you are just as silly as a Grownup!"
"Oh, Grownups aren't silly," said Midge, "and it's rude of you to say so. They just haven't our ways, that's all, and when it rains they get wet and maybe catch cold. Now, whoever heard of an Elf with a cold?"
"You're quite right," said the other little Elf. "But tell us, Midge, why do you want to know if it's going to rain or not?"

"Because I'm giving a party for the Butterflies this afternoon and I especially promised them I would have Mr. Sun. They really don't care about coming unless Mr. Sun is to be with us too. So you see it's not for myself I'm so fussy."

"Bow-wow, bow-wow," sounded from nearby.

"There is our beautiful Doggie, Max. He may tell us some way to know if it's going to rain or not."
"Max came running along, wagging his tail, just as he heard the last few words the little Elf was saying. He was a great, big Dog with huge brown eyes, and such a wise, wise face."

"He talked in Dog talk, wagging his tail, and sticking his ears up in the air, just as you Children use your hands, or shrug your shoulders, or scowl, or laugh. And the Elves knew what he meant. This is what he said:

"I'm so very grateful for my home with the Elves. You picked me up when I was a little wretched Puppy, almost too sick to care if I got well or not. And then you made my coat so fine and silky. You gave me such good things to eat, and the Elves always petted me such a great deal—that—well—I'm very happy, oh very, very happy; and Max's tail began to wag and wag as if it would almost come off."

"So," he continued, "I would be very glad to tell you always what the weather is going to do. Years and years ago my great-great-grandfather was a weather prophet, and the animals used to ask him whether it was going to rain or shine, and he could always tell them."

"Now to show you how very grateful I am I would like to do the same. I'll take three days studying it up as I've almost forgotten all the secrets."

"And after that Max always told the Elves whether the rain was going to pay a visit to the earth, or whether Mr. Sun was going to shine all day. He did this in many strange ways."

"When it was going to rain he would blink his eyes very fast, and if the Elves asked him if it was going to be a fine day he would wag his tail."

If there was going to be a terrific storm he would shake all over and if there was going to be a thunder and lightning storm he would give low, low growls.

"Soon he became known as Weather and not as Max at all. So that is why the Elves always take Weather with them wherever they go, for he can always tell them just what it's going to do, from his great-great-grandfather, who has whispered down through all that family of Dogs just what the Sun and Rain are going to do."

"And so when the Elves are giving parties for the Butterflies they can always be sure of Mr. Sun if Weather tells them he is coming. But these Dogs are only known to Elf-land, for they are the little stray Dogs the Elves have rescued who know these secrets."

Waiting His Turn.
"And when are you going to have the monkeys?" asked the caller of small Tommy, whose little sister had them.

"Just as soon as Nettle gets through with them," was the logical reply.

CROCODILES FOE, AFTER GERMANS

Irish Aviator, Shot Down in Africa, Tells of Remarkable Adventures.

THREE DAYS IN THE JUNGLE

Escapes From a Lion by Climbing a Tree—Three of His Ribs Broken When Machine is Brought Down.

London.—Tales of adventure from the jungles of South Africa, where General Smuts is operating against the Germans, are not uncommon, but it is seldom that the wild events encountered by Capt. A. T. O'Brien of the Royal Flying corps, told here, have been equaled.

The details of his adventures were contained in a letter from his wife to relatives in England and have just become public. It is probable that O'Brien will be decorated for his services to the British government and in recognition of his hardiness in surviving an ordeal that would have meant death to the average soldier.

He reported to General Smuts last April far down in German Africa below Konnoo Inang. His work as an aerial scout ahead of the British troops operating against the Germans won him fame. Flying over the jungles and tangled brush country during the rainy season is difficult. When an army of vigilant enemies is added, the task becomes more than dangerous. The intrepid Irishman finally engaged on the losing side of an argument with enemy anti-aircraft guns.

His Machine Brought Down.

He was flying over jungle country when German guns located him. One of his wings collapsed and the machine side slipped into the trees, which partially broke the fall, then crashed to the ground. Had it not been for the trees both driver and machine would have been smashed to bits. As it was, three of O'Brien's ribs were crushed and for several hours he lay in a swamp unconscious.

Slowly he recovered his senses and took an inventory of his injuries. He could walk without difficulty, but when he swung his arms, the broken ribs hurt cruelly. Holding his arms tight to his sides, he scouted through the neighboring jungles, where he discovered unmistakable signs of the enemy. Later, he heard a column of infantry approaching, and fearing capture he set fire to the aeroplane and dashed off through the underbrush.

Hour after hour he maintained a fast pace with the pain in his side increasing with every step. When night fell he crawled high into a vine-covered tree. Sound sleep was impossible, but at intervals between fighting insects and making way for jungle creepers he managed to rest and in a rough way bandage up his injured side.

With dawn he started out again, and before noon had forded two rivers and swam a third. Toward midnight of the second day he came to a river of considerable width, with a swift current and signs of crocodiles. By this time his hunger and thirst were beginning to sap his strength, but without thought of his condition or the danger he faced, he plunged into the brackish water.

Chased by Crocodiles.

At the first splash a score of huge "crocs" on a point of land down stream made for him. There followed a race between the man and the quarry that nearly ended disastrously for the Irishman. The last few yards were heartbreaking, for as he glanced back over his shoulder he could see the yawning mouths and ridges of jagged teeth staining to reach him. As he scrambled up the muddy bank he heard a dozen vicious snaps.

Almost exhausted, he trudged through the tangled brush near the river. Gaining a point on some higher ground, he looked back at the scene of his escape. To his horror, he saw the shaggy mane of a lion, which was coming toward him with nose glued to his trail. The nearest place of safety was a tall tree, which he climbed, monkey fashion. The king of the forest nosed about the tree for some time, whining in disappointment over his defeat, but eventually he went his way.

By this time O'Brien was well-nigh exhausted. His clothes were torn and his flesh lacerated by the brush. The pain of his wounds produced a high fever, and the brackish water which he was forced to drink made him ill. All night long he staggered on, but he remembers little after sundown of the second day.

Toward noon of the third day after his disappearance a sentry far out ahead of the British lines saw a movement in the brush and thought an animal had strayed near. He raised his gun to fire, when a human hand was raised above a cluster of brush. Amazed, the sentry went forward, and there found O'Brien half crazed with thirst, soaked with mud and covered with blood from scores of slight cuts.

His wife, to whom he had been married but a few weeks before he left for South Africa, had left England to join him before he was reported missing. When he recovered from the fever and opened his eyes for his first conscious look at his surroundings his wife was sitting by his side, having arrived in the meantime, and nursed him through the critical illness.

Salvation Is Free.

A colored preacher was discoursing on the them: "Salvation is Free." At the close of the sermon he announced that a collection would be taken. A man jumped up in the rear of the church and said: "If salvation is free why do you use a collection?" "I'll explain, brother," said the minister. "Dere am a ribb-r down here, and dat water am free, 'fall you have' to do is to kneel down and drink without me never without price. But my brudder, if dat water am piped to your house you has to pay. I'm piping de gospel to you. Pass de hat deacon."

"Get Into Debt" Urges

Louis F. Swift.

In the October American Magazine, Louis F. Swift says that men should get into debt. The writer goes on to explain:

"Louis F. Swift, president of Swift & Company, the great Chicago meatpacking company, has the idea that being in debt is the surest way to succeed. He urges every one of his thirty-five thousand employees to get into debt and to keep in debt, and he has organized a system to encourage them in this and to show them how to do it profitably."

"Get in debt for something of intrinsic value, and stay in debt," he says. "As soon as you get one thing paid up, buy something else, and get in debt again. Stay in debt—never get out."

The Paper Famine.

One of the big dailies of the Northwest announces an increase in its advertising rate, stating that it is forced to this step by the advance in the cost of paper, the increased cost to that paper alone amounting to $150,000 a year.

A Kansas City paper states that its paper will cost about $350,000 more in the next twelve months.

Although some papers are increasing their selling price from 1 to 2 cents and others reducing the number of their columns, they all have to face increased cost for paper as their economies will meet only a small part of the additional cost.

This increase in the cost of white paper, whose prices have advanced from 100 to 200 per cent. or more, seriously threatens the life of a large number of publications.

Had the newspapers of the country, says a trade paper, been as prompt to defend their own interests as they have the interests of others, they, too, would before this have undertaken to save themselves by an advance in subscription price and in advertising rates. Under existing conditions they will be forced to do this sooner or later, and they cannot postpone it much longer without serious financial embarrassment to many of them. Hundreds of the smaller weeklies, including the religious papers, which have had but a very narrow margin between loss and profit, will, we fear, suffer most seriously, and many of them disastrously, unless the public promptly recognizes the situation and accepts an advance in subscription and in advertising rates and thus save the situation.

The day laborer, the mechanic, the farmer and nearly all business interests manufacturing and mercantile, under the activity of the times are showing larger earnings than for years. But the newspapers, as a whole, are meeting a more perplexing problem in the doubling, and in some cases the trebling, of the price of paper, and the absolute inability to contract in advance for supplies, than they have ever had to face before.—Mail Order Journal.

Worth Considering.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

by MARY GRAHAM BONNER

BATS HAVE A JOLLIFICATION.

Nancy had had a Bat fly into her room the night before, but she said she wasn't at all afraid of Bats.

"They are all so glad the Summer has come," said Daddy. "For a long, long time they have been staying in the caves and hiding away in the tops of the corners and crevices. But last night they had their first real Jollification."

"One of the Bats had said it was high time to go out into the world—but another Bat had said it was still too chilly. Then a Bat said:

"Well, what have we wings for? And after that it was decided that they should be off. They had talked a great deal about their distant relatives, the Mice. Some of the Bats had been thinking it would be so nice to pay them a visit—for they knew they lived in dark cupboards and in dark cellars—as it is only when it is dark that a Bat can see."

"But some of the other Bats had said that Mice were very apt to be eaten by Cats—and that Cats were not at all nice creatures to be eaten by—and too, that Mice hadn't any wings and they lived in places where they couldn't use them if they had them."

"So, as you see, after the Bats had talked of doing various things, the one who suggested a good flying Party was the one who decided on the Jollification."

"They waited until it began to grow dark—and then some of the ones who hadn't been sleeping very well got up and flew about a little while."

"Then the others who had been sound asleep woke up just as it became very, very dark. Oh, how the Bats do love the night! They love it just as much as the Birds love the Daytime and the Sun. For, though Bats have wings, they are not at all like Birds and they aren't in the least friendly with any of them."

"So off they started on the Jollification. First they whizzed through the air practicing their different ways of flying. And after they had all the strength back into their wings, they reached the garden of an old, deserted house, where they stopped for the rest of the night.

"There they told stories and chatted and chattered. For they had a great deal to say after their long sleep, and they ran races, and did tricks, and frightened people they saw coming along the road."

"They would get so near that each person would say:

"Oh dear me, I must cover up my head or that Bat will get caught in my hair."

"The Bats thought that was a great joke as they had no intentions of catching themselves up in someone's hair when they could be at the Jollification. But they did enjoy playing pranks on the Grownups."

"And soon, much too soon, Daylight came and the Bats hurried and scurried back to their homes in the caves. "And as they were flying along they were so sleepy they could hardly keep awake at all. And many of them almost fell to the ground with sleepiness."

"But what do you suppose happened? Such a wonderful ending to their Jollification. Didn't those thoughtful little Brownies who had known all about the Bats' Jollification—and feeling rather sorry for the Bats because they don't have such very good times—and some single air boats which picked up the sleepy Bats as they flew along. Then they were carried back to their cold, hard beds in the crevices of the rocks—which they thought were so comfortable!"

"And as they crept into bed, there were never so many happy Bats and pleased Bats as these were at having had air boats bring them home from their Jollification!"

WILLING SISTER SHOULD FLY

If Baby Could Get Back to Heaven So Easily Why Not Get Her Own Little Nightgown?

"Run upstairs, Tommy, and bring baby's nightgown," said Tommy's mother.

"Don't want to," said Tommy.

"Oh, Tommy! If you are not kind to your new little sister she'll put on her wings and fly back to heaven."

Tommy's reply came:

"Well, let her put on her wings and fly upstairs for her nightgown!"

NEW BOMB MOST DEADLY YET

Dropped From Aeroplanes, the Device Will Explode Over Troops—Gas Will Cause Death.

Hempstead, L. I.—Army experts who have experimented here with a score or more of aerial bombs in a search for the most effective form of explosive for use in war aeroplanes, have found a bomb of high explosive power, combined with the use of deadly gases, the invention of an American, which is said to excel in destructiveness any similar weapon known here or in Europe. The tests just concluded proved so uniformly satisfactory, it was said, that a report would be presented to the war department, advising the use of the bomb in the aviation service.

F. E. Barlow, an employee of the Frankfort arsenal, Philadelphia, the inventor, has offered its exclusive use to the United States government. The Barlow bomb is six feet in length and approximately five inches in diameter, shaped like a torpedo. In addition to an explosive charge of trinitrotoluol it contains a gas chamber in which a new and secret combination of gas is used.

Experts estimate that the bomb has a fatal destructive radius of at least 100 yards. With the use of minimum explosive charges, at elevations of 200 to 2,000 feet, the tests were most satisfactory, it was said, although only sufficient explosive was used to crack the shell of the torpedo.

One of the chief features of the bomb, in which it differs radically from bombs which depend for bursting force on contact with the earth or other objects, is that it may be exploded in the air with full power. This is said to enhance its destructive power to a much larger degree than any known form of contact bomb, as it may be exploded over the heads of troops and spread gases earthward over a larger surface.

By means of an electric timing device the operator of an aeroplane, it is stated, will be able to regulate to a second the time of the explosion of the bomb. Another unique feature of this weapon permits of its use as an aerial torpedo when not desired to use it as a "drop" explosive. The bomb may be made with a new type of electric motor and propeller, which would enable the aviation operator to fire it horizontally, or to direct it toward a target at any angle.

U. S. RELIEF TO SYRIA, NOW

Turkish Government Consents to Let America Take Succor to Vast Starving Population.

Washington.—The Turkish government in a communication received at the state department consents to the shipment of relief supplies from the United States to famine sufferers in Syria.

This action reverses the previous attitude of Turkish officials, who had refused two urgent pleas.

Distribution of the supplies is to be made under the Turkish plan, through the port of Beirut. State department officials believe the assent of the entente allies may be confidently expected.

The consent of the Ottoman government with respect to Syria does not apply to Armenia, but negotiations will be continued for similar concessions there.

As forwarded by the American embassy at Constantinople, the Turkish communication fixes only one condition, that the supplies for Syria be distributed from Beirut through the Red Cross and Red Crescent societies.

In previous communications regarding Syria, Turkey had insisted that there was no urgent need for relief supplies. Advice from other sources, however, convinced the state department that many of the inhabitants had been reduced to starvation, and Turkey was informed in July that continued failure to heed the American request for permission to make shipments would put a severe strain on relations between the two countries.

KAISER SWEATS AT HARVEST

Cologne Volkszeitung Tells How the Emperor Worked in Shirtsleeves With His Peasant Folk.

Amsterdam.—The story of the kaiser working in the harvest fields is told by the Cologne Volkszeitung as follows:

"Why do the people run? Why do they rush to the fields? To see the kaiser. It is between 5 and 7 in the evening. The laborers are busy loading their carts with sheaves. Suddenly all hands are idle; all caps are doffed; everybody stands aghast."

"The kaiser is coming. The all highest is already on the spot! He takes off his coat! In his shirtsleeves the head of the German empire works in the field! He lends a hand to secure for himself God's golden blessing. As the kaiser does, so do the high officials and officers. And look! Do you not see our imperial chancellor working? It is true! It is he."

"With surprise the spectators behold the kaiser wiping the sweat from his brow with his sleeve. We see him sitting among the laborers drinking water from a common jug. Like a father he talks to the children. He asks them to run across the stubblefield and, laughing heartily at the enjoyment of the children, gives them little presents."

Called His Bluff.

Flemington, N. J. Oct. 10.—When thieves entered his hen roost recently and stole all but four of his fine flock, Edward McAvoy, a retired sergeant of the United States Marine Corps, who operates a chicken farm near here, posted a bill on his front gate defying the thief to come back some time and get the four he had inadvertently overlooked.

Last night the thief, or thieves carried off the quartette of hens that had been left behind on their initial excursion.

ENTERS LIKE A THIEF IN DEAD OF THE NIGHT

Devoid of All Pity, Catarrh Fastens Its Clutch on Its Victims Unawares.

Catarrh is one of the most prevalent of all diseases. Why? Because it steals upon its victim like a thief in the night. To be forewarned is to be forearmed and ready to combat the condition, but catarrh gives no warning.

Before you know it you have catarrh. Catarrh usually is very hard to overcome.

Catarrh affects almost every organ in the body and will finally produce a condition known as systemic catarrh. The circulation becomes poor and the organs suffer. The patient has a general despondent feeling. Sometimes catarrh resembles chronic malaria and again it resembles nervous prostration. The kidneys become affected, and the bladder and the stomach. Then come indigestion, pains and cramps after eating, kidney affections which so frequently cause backaches, especially arising in the morning, and many other ills too numerous to mention.

At the first sign of catarrh you do something to check its course. The most reasonable, rational treatments if with a tonic; one that will aid digestion, enrich the blood and build up the muscles.

Hundreds of thousands of people have proclaimed Tanlac an excellent remedy for catarrh. First aid should be through the stomach, causing good digestion and from this "hot bed" of human ills, good influence is sent to every portion of the body. Tanlac is composed entirely of vegetable ingredients selected for their purity and potency and gathered in many parts of the world.

Tanlac may be obtained in Marion at J. H. Orme's drug store.

Men's hearts ought not to be set against one another, but set with one another, and all against the evil thing only.—Thomas Carlyle.

Don't be content with doing only your duty. Do more than your duty. It's the horse which finishes a race ahead who wins the race.—Andrew Carnegie.

"We hope to see the stimulus of that new day draw all America, the republics of both continents, on to a new life and energy and initiative in the great affairs of peace. We are Americans for Big America, and rejoice to look forward to the days in which America shall strive to be the world without irritating it or drawing it on to new antagonisms, when the nations with which we deal shall at last come to see upon what deep foundations of humanity and justice our passion for peace rests, and when all mankind shall look upon our great people with a new sentiment of admiration, friendly rivalry and real affection, as upon a people who, though keen to succeed, seeks always to be at once generous and just and to whom humanity is dearer than profit or selfish power.

Upon this record and in the faith of this purpose we go to the country"—Woodrow Wilson.

If women only listened to men in their choice of clothes, they would always be "tailored" on the street and in public places in the afternoon. ## How To Handle

An Acre Of Celery

There is lots of work in handling celery. A writer in Farm and Fireside says:

One acre of celery properly cared for represents a lot of work, extending from the time of planting the seed in the greenhouse or hotbed, transplanting the plants, setting them in the open field, watering, cultivating, spraying, harvesting, bunching, and marketing. But the returns from a bumper crop of say 40,000 heads from the acre, averaging 50 to 60 cents a dozen heads, pay well for the labor and care bestowed on this crop.

Compulsory Health Insurance Will Mean Less Destitution As Result of Disease

By DR. I. M. RUBINOW of New York

Compulsory health insurance is a powerful weapon for combating destitution due to disease. The medical profession must necessarily judge of the efficiency of health insurance largely from its effect on public health.

Only through health insurance can efficient medical treatment be brought within the means of wage-working millions. No physician can afford to treat wage-workers for what wage-workers can afford to pay him individually. Through a collective insurance arrangement the best results of modern economic progress will be made available to the whole people.

From the point of view of public health the provisions for medical aid must be extended not only to the wage-worker but to his family as well, because, in a final analysis, the health of wife and children are socially even more important than the health of the wage-worker himself.

Modern industry has created a large variety of occupational hazards to the health of the producers. The modern city has also created certain dangers to the health of the community. Scientific progress has indicated methods for limiting those new and other old hazards. Health insurance is but a way of making these results of science available to the masses.

Schools Must Not Teach Barbaric Idea That War and Patriotism Are Identical

By THOMAS W. CHURCHILL
Member New York Board of Education

There is something more important than military training in the schools, and that is to impress upon these children the command that thundered down from Sinai, when God said, "Thou shalt not kill." I do not know by what process of alchemy we can teach pedagogy and teach civics at ten o'clock and put a gun in the boy's hand at eleven. It is a barbaric idea that war and liberty and patriotism are identical.

There is none of us who has not reverence for Gettysburg; none of us who does not bow in homage at the names of Buena Vista and Santiago, and all of the rest of the names that live in history. I am not unpatriotic, and I feel, even at this remote time, that if the call came I would feel like those who heard the first call in the Civil war. And I can see the same glamour of the spires of Richmond etched against the southern sun, and understand the cheer and the reason for it that went up to heaven. But there is a better side than that.

Endowed Institution, As Well As the State University, Is Not Always Free

By CHARLES R. VAN HISE
President University of Wisconsin

One of the dangers of the endowed institution is its independence of public sentiment. The governing body sometimes thinks too much of the advancement of the institution and too little of the advancement of the state. A second danger is that it may feel a special obligation to one class of men—those who support it. The funds that support it come from the rich, and it may, to an undue extent, reflect the views of this class. In occasional instances there has been interference with the staff in such a way as to restrict academic freedom.

In consequence of the fact that the state university depends upon taxation, it became necessary for it to feel an exceptional obligation to the state. The first of the dangers of such a university is that it may be interfered with by politics and politicians.

Captain of Industry Who Steals Under Cover of Law Like Pirate of the Seas

By WILLIAM R. MALONE
President Postal Life Insurance Company

The captain of industry who organizes his business under the cover of law to defeat its spirit undermines both law and order. He takes profits just as the pirate took property—abstracts them from the pockets of honest buyers. He operates a selling scheme that steals, not one that earns. He "legally" takes from others what does not belong to him by any moral right. He weakens the foundations of society, for the public is human and therefore capable of righteous wrath; it cannot stand the robbery for long without murmur, without indignation, without revolution. It is the unscrupulous, dominating autocrats, covertly organized, who all but drive the public to distraction and to wreak vengeance whatever betides. The revelations in the investigations of the giant insurance companies, of the money trust, of municipal mismanagement, are in point.

It is a small thing to die. The big thing is to live and let live, to defend and to enrich life, and the problem of life is not an easy one, so conventional have our lives become.

Worshiping of Idols of Various Kinds One of Greatest Evils of Present Day

By REV. JESSE S. DANCEY of Chicago

Too many people have idols. Sometimes they have a certain fixed, definite idea of Christian life instead of the real idea given us by the Almighty.

Others have intellectual conceptions of God. And these are often very narrow. Too many have their special stereotyped duties which they almost worship. There is the ethical idol and the ecclesiastical idol. They spell their church denominations with a capital letter and other denominations with a small letter.

Antireligious people have their conceptions of God which is an idol to them. They are blinded by it and make no progress. The hidebound conservative can see no progress.

We must get away from all this. Christianity comes to us with a new life and a progressive idea of God. The world needs today a thoroughgoing appeal to the moral forces of life. Business, culture, pleasure and religion must not be set aside as departments of life, but must all be equally charged with the spirit of God.

COMMONWEALTH OF KENTUCKY

Crittenden County Court, Regular Term, April 10, 1916. Present And Presiding John G. Asher, Judge.

Ship Beats Off U-Boat

In Desperate Battle.

Newport News, Va.,—A story of a desperate battle with a German submarine off the coast of Algiers is told by Captain Fish off the British steamer Antinous, in port here today for bunker coal and bound from Gibraltar for New York. With her small caliber guns mounted astern, according to the captain the steamer kept the attacking sub at such a distance that she could not fire a torpedo. Many shells from the submarine's guns struck the Antinous it was said but she ran away from the under-sea boat.

WHY YOU ARE NERVOUS

The nervous system is the alarm system of the human body.

In perfect health we hardly realize that we have a network of nerves, but when health is ebbing, when strength is declining, the same nervous system gives the alarm in headaches, tiredness, dreamful sleep, irritability and unless corrected, leads straight to a breakdown.

To correct nervousness, Scott's Emulsion is exactly what you should take; its rich nutriment gets into the blood and rich blood feeds the tiny nerve-cells while the whole system responds to its refreshing tonic force. It is free from alcohol.

Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J.

The Bee Believes In Efficiency.

Farm and Fireside, the national farm paper says.

The ant takes rank over the honeybee in Scriptural commendation as a hustler, but the modern specialized bee directs his activities into commercial channels in a way that leaves the ant way behind. Prof. M. B. Waite, Uncle Sam's bee chief, covered 2,586 apple flowers with gauze netting before they unfolded, and secured only three apples from the experiment. Other apple blossoms, on which bees worked unhindered, set a normal quantity of fruit.

Women Once Invalids

Now in Good Health Through Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Say it is Household Necessity. Doctor Called it a Miracle.

All women ought to know the wonderful effects of taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound even on those who seem hopelessly ill. Here are three actual cases:

Harrisburg, Penn.—"When I was single I suffered a great deal from female weakness because my work compelled me to stand all day. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for that and was made stronger by its use. After I was married I took the Compound again for a female trouble and after three months I passed what the doctor called a growth. He said it was a miracle that it came away as one generally goes under the knife to have them removed. I never want to be without your Compound in the house."—Mrs. FRANK KNOBL, 1642 Fulton St., Harrisburg, Penn.

Hardly Able to Move.

Albert Lea, Minn.—"For about a year I had sharp pains across my back and hips and was hardly able to move around the house. My head would ache and I was dizzy and had no appetite. After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills, I am feeling stronger than for years. I have a little boy eight months old and am doing my work all alone. I would not be without your remedies in the house as there are none like them."—Mrs. F. E. YOST, 611 Water St., Albert Lea, Minn.

Three Doctors Gave Her Up.

Pittsburg, Penn.—"Your medicine has helped me wonderfully. When I was a girl 18 years old I was always sickly and delicate and suffered from irregularities. Three doctors gave me up and said I would go into consumption. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and with the third bottle began to feel better. I soon became regular and I got strong and shortly after I was married. Now I have two nice stout healthy children and am able to work hard every day."—Mrs. CLEMENTINA DUBERINO, 34 Gardner St., Troy Hill, Pittsburg, Penn.

Allies Now Have Upper

Hand In Somme Battle.

London, Sept. 28.—A dispatch from Reuter's correspondent at the British headquarters in northern France says:

"The recent fighting illustrates how completely our army now has the upper hand. We are advancing with deliberate calculation which is only possible to the side of irresistible strength and the German army in the west is now fighting a slow rear guard action.

"The enemy gunfire also has been considerably less in volume than we had reason to anticipate from past experiences. I hear that a patrol, even the word cavalry is mentioned, has been forwarded into positions where, down to a very few days ago, no horseman could possibly have ventured."

GO TO CHURCH The Church Is the Gateway to Real Happiness

GO TO CHURCH if you wish to be saved.

There is a hell. No doubt about that. Like heaven, it BEGINS HERE AND NOW. Recently the newspapers carried a story relating the suicide of a well known man. Ten years before he murdered his young wife and allowed another to be executed for it. He wrote: "I can endure it no longer. Each day the awful secret plunges me into the torment of the damned." For ten years he had lived in hell and then, like Judas, went out into the darkness and hanged himself. No writer, even with an inexhaustible vocabulary, can paint a literal fire equal to the one that exists in many a human soul. If there is no hell, why plan churches, missions, slum settlements?

THE MOMENT A MAN ENTERS A CHURCH HE FEELS BETTER. THE CHURCH IS THE GATEWAY TO HEAVEN. WHY DON'T YOU JOIN THE GO TO CHURCH THROU? YOU'LL FIND THE BEST PEOPLE IN YOUR COMMUNITY IN CHURCH. IF YOU HAVE BEEN A BACKSLIDER GET BUSY NOW. IT IS NEVER TOO LATE TO MEND. YOU'LL FIND THAT IF YOU GO TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY YOU'LL WANT TO GO TO CHURCH THE FOLLOWING SUNDAY.

There are thousands who would not dream of staying away from church on Christmas day or Easter, but who Sunday after Sunday will miss GOING TO CHURCH. It is to these people that this appeal is particularly addressed. If it is wrong to miss GOING TO CHURCH on Christmas and Easter, why is it not wrong to do so on Sunday?

WHEN THE GO TO CHURCH MOVEMENT GOT INTO FULL SWING A YEAR AGO THERE WAS A SPLENDID RESPONSE. THE CHURCHES WERE FILLED. DON'T LET THIS SPLENDID MOVEMENT DIE OUT. IT IS ONE OF THE BEST—IF NOT THE BEST—AGITATIONS THAT EVER WAS STARTED.

DO YOUR PART.

GO TO CHURCH.

Sapulpa, Okla., Oct. 10.—Since cooler weather has come, Chief of Police W. S. Brown thinks one of his troubles is at an end. Those girls will not go bathing any more in the municipal reservoir, he said.

All summer the police chief tried to keep the girls out of the drinking water. The reservoir is a secluded place and many girls went there to swim. Some body found it out and told on them. Chief Brown sent the police matron to stop it. The matron went out one evening at dusk and found 20 girls swimming in the pool.

OUR AEROS UNFIT FOR ARMY

War Experts Say American Makers Have Not Developed Planes for Fighting Work.

New York City.—A memorandum on military aeroplanes prepared in the office of the aviation section, Signal Corps, United States army, appears in Aviation and Aeronautic Engineering, which contains both the first hint of how the United States is going to spend the $13,281,660 appropriated for army aeroplanes and a startling arraignment of the development of aeronautic construction among the building corporations of this country.

According to the army aviation experts who prepared the memorandum, based on knowledge of America's peculiar aerial needs and the lessons taught by the European war, the type of machines new being almost exclusively manufactured in this country is absolutely unfitted for any military purpose save primary training for aviators. Practically nothing has been done toward designing or building the type of machines which experience has shown can alone handle the problem of defending the nation from the air.

"It is submitted that the type which all constructors have attempted to build in this country, the so-called two place reconnaissance tractor biplane with one motor, is a false development," the army memorandum emphatically declares. It is good only for training purposes. It is asserted, cannot defend itself from attack and has been built exclusively only because it was easier to build up by increasing the scale of the first training machines than to design anew.

The types needed, and those for which the $13,000,000 appropriation will be largely spent, are two—the fast little "pursuit" machine, carrying one man and a machine gun, and the heavier, more powerful two or three-man machine that can haul great weights of bombs and fuel for long flight and attack.

In the event of war this country would require that 25 per cent of its entire aerial force should be composed of the "pursuit" machine and fully 25 per cent of the heavier type. About 20 per cent would have to be advance school machines, possibly of small wing spread, for service as tactical or strategic scouts over mountains or forests, where their design would enable them to make safe landings. About 6 per cent would be machines of special design for reconnaissance and gun carrying. The rest, 25 per cent, would be primary training school machines. This is the only type we have now, and even these, the article asserts, would be unfitted because they could not be used for field artillery fire control. Their vulnerability to attack would preclude this.

The "pursuit" machine, for short radius flights for fire control, scouting or attack, is imperative because of its controllability in dodging and outmaneuvering the enemy while maintaining an effective fire with its machine gun and presenting a small target. This machine would be used not only for reconnaissance but to drive off invading hydroaeroplanes from an enemy's feet. It would require a 110 horsepower motor, carry a military load of 200 pounds with 150 pounds of fuel, have a 315-mile flight radius and a speed of 115 miles an hour high and 55 low. A climbing speed of 5,000 feet in ten minutes is required.

The heavier machine would require a 200-horsepower motor. Since no practical single motor of this power has been built, two 130-horsepower engines would be used. It would carry a military load of 1,100 pounds with 600 pounds of fuel if a large supply of bombs were desirable, or 550 pounds of military load with 1,150 pounds of fuel for sustained flights. This would give it a flight radius of 450 or 600 miles in either case, with a high speed of 90 miles.

ONE BEETLE A GAS FIGHTER

It Seems Nature Discovered Value of Poison Fumes in War Before the Soldiers in Europe Did.

London.—The discovery of poisonous gas seems to have been anticipated in nature's laboratory. A little British beetle has been employing poison gas to defend itself for untold ages. One of the strongholds of the bombardier beetle (Brachinus crepitans) is along the shores of the Thames in the Gravesend district. Here it finds a home under the flat stones that are scattered by the river's bank.

The bombardier beetle is very liable to be attacked by some of the fierce ground beetles, or Carabidae, as they are properly called. As soon as the pursuer draws close a very remarkable thing happens. First of all the bombardier beetle ejects a peculiar liquid which, when it comes into contact with the atmosphere "bursts into a sort of a pale blue-green flame, followed by a kind of smoke."

This is seen to have an astonishing effect upon the pursuing beetle. Instantly it seems to be overwhelmed and quite stupefied by the suddenness of the attack. The smoke appears to have a blinding and suffocating tendency, and the effect lasts for a minute or so. During this time the bombardier beetle is able to make good its escape.

FOOD STRINGENCY GRIPPING VIENNA

Prices So High That Only Wealthy People Can Get Enough to Eat.

IEWS HEARD BY SWISS

Soup Kitchens Opened in Austrian Capital—Military Situation Is Judged With Great Pessimism—Further Defeats Feared.

Geneva, Switzerland.—The following facts will give an idea of the present economic and military situation of Austria-Hungary:

The Volksstimme of St. Gall, Switzerland, speaks of the great misery in Austria-Hungary, where the people, the paper says, have not even the strength to revolt. In Vienna, if the accounts of travelers are to be believed, the inhabitants are in the greatest distress. One is impressed by the number of persons driven to suicide by misery. Daily many children die, says Rene Arcus in the Chicago News.

Food has reached such high prices that only the wealthy can get enough to eat. The poor have scarcely anything but potatoes at their disposal.

The first popular kitchens in Vienna were opened in various districts on July 17. The prices are as follows: Three-tenths of a liter of soup cost 10 heller (2 cents); a pint of vegetables, 20 to 25 heller (4 to 5 cents); 200 to 300 grams (about one-half pound) of farinaceous foods (rice, polenta, etc.), 30 to 35 heller (6 to 7 cents).

So far, the Viennese have not shown any great inclination to avail themselves of these kitchens.

The lack of horses is beginning to be felt in the army services. The Munich Neueste Nachrichten announces that the Austro-Hungarian authorities have requisitioned all dogs in Austria-Hungary that can be used as draft dogs.

The Russian advance compelled the immediate destruction of a considerable quantity of provisions which it was impossible to remove without, however, preventing the Russians from seizing enormous stocks of supplies, and at present prisoners, soldiers, women and children are working day and night to carry off all supplies in territories likely to be invaded shortly by the troops of the czar.

Pessimism in Austria. It is said that in spite of the official declarations intended to reassure the alarmed population the military situation is judged even in Austria with great pessimism.

According to a telegram published in the Neues Wiener Tagblatt of Vienna, the object of the Russian offensive is to find a line of combat which will render possible the concentration of large numbers of troops against Hungary. In general the operations are entrusted to the troops of the Caucasus, who are specially organized and selected from the Caucasian front. The columns, commanded by subalterns, advance along narrow footpaths, taking advantage of every cover, and hurl themselves suddenly on the Austro-Hungarian positions.

The Vienna press is silent over the defeat suffered by the Austro-German troops in Volhynia, but in military centers a further retreat of the army commanded by General von Linsingen is expected.

The following comments of the Neue Freie Presse of Vienna give an idea of the general pessimism:

"The sanguinary events occurring on our northwest frontier, on the Isonzo and in Trent, the great battle being fought on the western front, are causing a deep impression. Never, perhaps, has any phase of the war been so important as the present phase, now when men are literally fighting for life or death. Even those nations which have no direct participation in the conflict follow it with deep anxiety, for they know that the entire future of Europe is at stake, and with it their own future. As usual, the important events of the war have a political effect in all directions."

And just when Count Andrassy declares that "peace is inseparable from Austro-Hungarian victory, Hungary is filled with hope and will hear peace spoken of only after her enemy's defeat." It is interesting to hear what Germany thinks of her ally. From Berlin we read:

Relate Reverse of Austrians. "In the problematic expectation of assistance from the Turks, the Austro-Hungarian troops continue to lose territory in Galicia. Their last retreat in the region of Jablonica has enabled the Russians to capture the entire railway line Delatyn-Worochta, for the possession of which a battle has been raging for a week. The Russian attacks which led to this success were directed against Mont Magura, 3,801 feet high, dominating the passage in question and the portion of the railway line Tartarow-Worochta. Worochta is the last station before the Hungarian frontier."

The German papers dwell on German resistance in Volhynia, principally in the environs of Kovel, where the Russians, they say, dispose of formidable means, and they compare this resistance to the weakness which appears to have overpowered the Austrian troops.

ROBT. LEAR KEEPS DOING GOOD.

Has Worked Faithfully.—Left Monday to Hold Two Weeks' Meeting

A few days at home is very acceptable to me after a strenuous campaign of seven months without a break. My work has called me to 5 different states this year, have traveled about 6500 miles, assisted in twelve revivals, attended one District Conference and our Annual Louisville Conference where the 71st session, has just closed with Bishop Murrah in the chair.

This has been one of the best years of my ministry. I have witnessed great revivals in the church and I believe that to be a most important work. We are now living in a hustling, hurrying speculative and inventive age, where the stream is fed from the sources of Materialism, Formalism, Criticism, Russellism and secularism was striking at the Church with such tremendous force and power, that nothing but revivals of the Old Time religion and power will save us from being driven in to the wilderness of doubt, of indifference, of indulgence and suspicion.

Time and space in your valuable paper would not permit me to give a full report of my work neither can I stop to think each one has contributed to my happiness, tho I have not forgotten my friends, but can sincerely say that I remember with deep gratitude the words of encouragement that have been given by those whom I knew when I started in this new field of labor, and those I have learned to love who also have given me encouragement and have stood with me and for me with their personal indorsement.

My next engagement is in Louisville where I have been called to lead a two weeks meeting beginning Oct. the eighth. I am praying that my labors may be abundantly blessed by him who has called me into this field of ripened and falling grain. "Ye have not chosen me, but I have chosen you, and ordained you, that ye should go and bring forth fruit, and that your fruit should remain: that whatsoever ye shall ask of the Father in my name, he give it you."

Faithfully,
Robert Lear

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE by MARY GRAHAM BONNER

LITTLE EDITH'S GARDEN.

"A little girl, named Edith, had a Garden in the back of her Mother's Garden which was all, all her own. She was devoted to this Garden and spent many hours over it. She had a path made of Stones—great, large, flat ones which she called 'Stepping Stones,' and everyone who walked through her Garden had to walk on the Stones. Then she had a little border of Ferns, and in the center were Plants, and Seeds which were going to come up into Flowers.

"She waited for the Seeds to come up—but all she found were Snails. Lots and lots of Snails! They were everywhere! And no leaves or Flowers to be seen anywhere! What could it mean, Edith asked herself. Every year she had had such pretty Flowers and everyone had thought her Garden very beautiful.

"She tried again with more Seeds and when it was time for them to be up above the Ground she looked for them—but not a bit of Green anywhere around—nothing but Snails still.

"I wonder," thought Edith to herself, 'if the Snails eat up my garden?'

"So she tried once more with Seeds and still nothing came up in her garden. The Snails were around and there seemed to be more of them every time she looked.

"Whatever shall I do?" she said to herself. 'I do want to have a Garden so much and yet the Snails eat it up!'

"While she was wondering like this a little Voice whispered in her ear: 'Edith, Edith,' it said.

"Yes," answered Edith looking about her. And then, seeing no one, said: 'Who are you? Where are you?'

"I'm the Fairy Queen," said the Voice, "and you can't see me because I've put on my Invisible Robe—which no one can see but a Fairy. I've come to talk to you. I know how you love your Garden and that you've not been able to make anything grow this Summer. Listen! And a queer swishing sound passed through the Air.

"There!" continued the Fairy Queen. 'I have waved my Invisible Wand and it will bring you luck. Do not plant any Seeds for a week—then the Snails will think you have decided not to have any Garden at all! It will be a joke on them—but they have had enough Feasts and now it is time for you to have a Garden! I shall tell them they had better move, too!'

"Edith heard another swishing sound through the Air, and the Voice in her ear had gone. For a whole week Edith did not touch her Garden. But in the meantime, the Snails had been talking. Daddy Slow Snail had said:

"I thought this would be just the place for us—but we haven't had the right kind of Food for ever and ever so long—almost a week. The children need the fresh, young growing things of the Earth to make them strong—and a Garden just planted is the thing! That little Girl hasn't put any more Seeds in here."

"Yes, we'd better move," said Mother Slow Snail. 'It's very stupid of that little Girl not to give us more to eat. She is being very neglectful—and the reason we liked it here was because we had so much to eat. She began so well—and ended off so badly!'

"And the Snails talked on like that—as if they thought Edith had planted and re-planted her Garden just for them!

"Well, we'd better be starting," said Daddy Slow Snail, and something whispered to the Snail family.

"Yes, you'd better be moving. It's time you had a change of Food anyway!"

"Slowly then the Snails began to look for another Home which they found quite soon.

"And when the week was up Edith planted her Garden again, and to her delight she saw the little green Plants peep up above the Earth—and every night she gave them good drinks of Water from her Watering Pot.

"In a short time she had real Flowers, and her Garden was more beautiful than ever, and often when she was working among the Flowers, she said half-aloud:

"If the Fairy Queen is around me in her Invisible Robe, I want to thank her, oh, so much, for my lovely Garden."

Soft and Beautiful, Although They Are Something of a Strain on the Purse.

The newest ostrich ruff is one of uncurled fronds. This sort is a bit expensive, but very soft and beautiful.

Two shades or colors of ostrich are often combined. White is used with any color—blue or brown or green or black. Tan, too, is combined with colors. Sometimes just the tips of some of the fronds are white, or tan.

Some of the new ruffs are made of taffeta silk, made into points, many of them, and arranged in a full collar about the throat. These are stiff, but very becoming to some persons. They, too, are more durable than tulle.

Tulle, however, is made into so many charming ruffs that it is difficult to resist them, even on the score of fragility. Some of them are made of double puffs of the tulle. Sometimes the tulle has big chenille dots—white on a colored ground.

Soft satin ribbon is shirred into very becoming and graceful ruffs. Like all ruffs of the season, these are not very long.

Non-Slippping Shoes for Babies. One of the first difficulties which attend baby's first lessons in walking is the slippery nature of most little shoe soles. To safeguard the little fellow, there are made shoes which have non-slip, disk-protected soles. The little rubber insets insure non-slipping contact with the floor. The shoes have the further merit of being shaped to fit the foot without cramping or distorting the toes. They are made in several kinds of leather or of a combination of materials, such as black patent leather bottoms and white calf uppers.—Mothers' Magazine.

Yoke Collar. Collars are the decidedly new characteristic of the dresses. They might be termed "yoke collars." They are, as a rule, of white satin and stand about two and one-half inches.

The neckband is elongated, so that the collars are almost as large around as those wide standing collarettes of the furs. Some of the collars round down almost as far as the end of the "V" in the average waist. They are kept soft. The top is not even pressed carefully to make a straight edge.

Detachable Ruffles. It is almost impossible to insist too often upon the snowy dust ruffle of lace or mull. In some of the Paris frocks this ruffle is fastened to a detachable band inside the skirt by snaps. But the best models have a drop skirt of organdie or thinnest silk fastened to the skirt at the belt and upon this drop is the plaited frill often of finest lace, but also of picot-edged mull or organdie.

Summer Sachets. Don't forget to save your rose leaves. You can do much with their fragrance after they have been dried and treated to a potpourri mixture. They may be piled into little heart-shaped boxes, without a lid and tied into a colored silk handkerchief. The perfume will sift out through the soft silk and the whole may be laid in a bureau drawer, hope chest or linen closet.

Darning Tip. To make silk stockings wear longer than they were ever meant to do, buy a small spool of mending floss, just the same color, and carefully darn the heels and toes both ways. This precautionary darning will not spoil the looks of the new hose, and it considerably retards the time when they become threadbare.

Suits for Early Autumn. Wool velour, cashmere velour, serge, gaberdine, velour checks, silvete cloth, velour de laine and duvetyne will be used for early fall suits. Later in the season velvet is to be used for both dresses and suits.

Serge Middies This Fall. Serge is everywhere. There are even to be serge middies in several colors—ideal for schoolgirls.

"I use Arbuckles' because it is stronger than 3" coffee, and Arbuckles' packages are full 16 oz."—Mrs. V., Coldwater, Kans.

There are hundreds of varieties of coffee grown. To get the result you want, the coffee itself must be right. Arbuckles' Coffee is. ## DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER.

LITTLE EDITH'S GARDEN.

"A little Girl, named Edith, had a Garden in the back of her Mother's Garden which was all, all her own. She was devoted to this Garden and spent many hours over it. She had a path made of Stones—great, large, flat ones which she called 'Stepping Stones,' and everyone who walked through her Garden had to walk on the Stones. Then she had a little border of Ferns, and in the center were Plants, and Seeds which were going to come up into Flowers.

"She waited for the Seeds to come up—but all she found were Snails. Lots and lots of Snails! They were everywhere! And no leaves or Flowers to be seen anywhere! What could it mean, Edith asked herself. Every year she had had such pretty Flowers and everyone had thought her Garden very beautiful.

"She tried again with more Seeds and when it was time for them to be up above the Ground she looked for them—but not a bit of Green anywhere around—nothing but Snails still.

"I wonder," thought Edith to herself, 'If the Snails eat up my garden?'

"So she tried once more with Seeds and still nothing came up in her garden. The Snails were around and there seemed to be more of them every time she looked.

"Whatever shall I do?" she said to herself. 'I do want to have a Garden so much and yet the Snails eat it up!'

"While she was wondering like this a little Voice whispered in her ear:

"Edith, Edith," it said.

"Yes," answered Edith, looking about her. And then, seeing no one, said:

"Who are you? Where are you?"

"I'm the Fairy Queen," said the Voice, "and you can't see me because I've put on my Invisible Robe—which no one can see but a Fairy. I've come to talk to you. I know how you love your Garden and that you've not been able to make anything grow this Summer. Listen! And a queer swishing sound passed through the Air.

"There!" continued the Fairy Queen. "I have waved my Invisible Wand and it will bring you luck. Do not plant any Seeds for a week—then the Snails will think you have decided not to have any Garden at all! It will be a joke on them—but they have had enough Feasts and now it is time for you to have a Garden! I shall tell them they had better move, too!"

"Edith heard another swishing sound through the Air, and the Voice in her ear had gone. For a whole week Edith did not touch her Garden. But in the meantime, the Snails had been talking. Daddy Slow Snail had said:

"I thought this would be just the place for us—but we haven't had the right kind of Food for ever and ever so long—almost a week. The children need the fresh, young growing things of the Earth to make them strong—and a Garden just planted is the thing! That little Girl hasn't put any more Seeds in here."

"Yes, we'd better move," said Mother Slow Snail. "It's very stupid of that little Girl not to give us more to eat. She is being very neglectful—and the reason we liked it here was because we had so much to eat. She began so well—and ended off so badly."

"And the Snails talked on like that—as if they thought Edith had planted and re-planted her Garden just for them!"

"Well, we'd better be starting," said Daddy Slow Snail, and something whispered to the Snail family.

"Yes, you'd better be moving. It's time you had a change of Food anyway!"

"Slowly then the Snails began to look for another Home which they found quite soon.

"And when the week was up Edith planted her Garden again, and to her delight she saw the little green Plants peep up above the Earth—and every night she gave them good drinks of Water from her Watering Pot.

"In a short time she had real Flowers, and her Garden was more beautiful than ever, and often when she was working among the Flowers, she said half aloud:

"If the Fairy Queen is around me in her Invisible Robe, I want to thank her, oh, so much, for my lovely Garden."
