WE MUST EAT IN ORDER TO LIVE

Food Production and Food Conservation by Health Officer,
Dr. T. Achison Frazier

Our beloved country has taken up arms against a foreign foe. We have set out to fight for a great principle, and it will be a fight to the finish. We must win, and to win every man woman and child will have a part to play in this the greatest of all wars.

The world is a stage and we are the actors. We must play our parts, and play them well if "Old Glory" is still to wave over the land of the free, and the home of the brave.

To win this war we must produce food not only for ourselves, but for our allies as well. The humblest among us can and must contribute some thing to the cause of liberty, to the cause of the "Great Ruler" who holds the destiny of man kind in his hand.

The first proposition is we eat to live, none of us can live long without eating, few of us can work without an abundance of nourishing food. None of us want to go hungry. The nearest route to a mans heart is through the stomach, and the better the food the closer you get to his heart.

There are three main elements that go to make up the proper food for the nourishment of our bodies. Fats, protien, and carbohydrates. We must have a proportion of all of them to maintain the integrity of the body. The human body is well compared to the blacksmiths forge, the lungs are the bellows and the food is the fuel. This food is actually burned in the body by the oxygen we breathe and it produces the heat that warms our bodys, builds our muscles and supplies the energy that enables us to perform the work that is neces-ary to our very life.

We hear the hog and cattle breeders talk of the balanced ration for their animals. They tell you that it is necessary for their proper growth and development, that is all true enough, and it is equally true of the human animal.

The number and activity of the body cells determines the amount of food necessary to maintain bodily vigor and energy. The man or woman who does hard manual labor requires more food than the ones who lead a sedentary life. That the manual laborer requires more food than mental laborer.

Protiens should make up about one tenth of our food, they are found principally in lean meats, beans, and peas. Meats are extremely high, and we would do well to eat the meat contents of our food at least one half or two thirds. Most all people who suffer and die from the chronic diseases of the kidneys are heavy meat eaters, and we would be just as strong and healthy if we got most of our protein from beans and peas.

Beans and peas can be produced very cheaply and it takes but little land to grow enough of them for the use of a family. Any of the great variety of these are good food and every farmer in this county should produce enough for his family and have some to sell.

Secure your seed now and be ready to plant them about the first of June. It does not require very rich land to grow these, and I do not believe there in any land in old Crittenden that will not sprout a black eyed pea.

Fats consist of fat meats, butter, cream, and the various oils. They are essential to the proper nourishment of the body, but we do not need large quantities of them to meet the needs of the body.

If you will give Old Jersey the proper chance she will furnish most of this element of food in the most perfect form it can be had, and it does make our bread taste so good.

The third element necessary to the conservation of health and vigor is the carbohydrates. The principal carbohydrates that enter into our food are sugar, syrups, and starches. Our bread is principally starch and all starch must be converted into sugar before it can be utilized as fuel for the body.

We should eat some coarse bulky food at each meal to furnish the waste matter for the body and to help fill that aching void that most of us have about three times a day.

It does not matter so much what we eat along this line just so we eat plenty of it. Mustard, lettuce, carrots, beets, cabbage, and many others of the coarser foods can be eaten and relished with much benefit to the human economy. Of course these coarser foods all have some food value, and should be an essential part of our diet.

Now the all important question arises where are we going to get all these things? The answer should be with most of us grow them. The average person in this county has not the faintest idea as to how much food can be grown on an ordinary garden. Most of our gardens will grow two or even three crops if we will do our duty. Tickle the soil with hoe and rake take for your motto let one weed grow where twenty grew last year! Make two crops grow where only one grew last year. Grow everything you can, all vegetables are good to eat.

Now to last proposition, let us conserve the food we grow, we should not let anything go to waste, see that it is fed to man or animal, or that it is properly prepared for future use. Can, dry, or preserve, the excess you grow and save it for the future or sell it to people who are not so fortunate as to have an excess of food.

There is another large question we should take into consideration in this connection. The health and happiness of the people depend very largely upon the nourishment of the body. People who are under fed fall easy prey to diseases. The infectious and contagious diseases prove fatal to a much larger percent of under fed people than to people who are well nourished.

The poorly nourished when they do recover are slow recuperating. Their vigor and vitality are at a low ebb and they build up slowly, their convalescence is lowly and they lose more time from their work thereby entailing a greater loss.

Our death rate will increase just as the necessary food supply decreases. Statistics show that in all times of famine there is a tremendous increase in the death rate. So the economic loss to the country will be beyond computation if we do not produce and conserve enough food for the proper nourishment of our bodys.

It has been well said that an army moves on its stomach, and it is literally true, our soldier boys must have plenty to eat and that the very best that can be had. There is nothing too good for the boys in the trenches. There is nothing too good for the boys who will defend with their blood the honor of old glory.

Let us all work together to make this the most productive year in the history of this country. We can not all fight for our country, but we can all work for our country. There is just as much patriotism in making and conserving food as there is in going to the front with knapsack and rifle.

T. Achison Frazier,
Health Officer.

OUR BANKS WILL CO-OPERATE

To Lend Money to Farmers and Producers in Need of Such To Finance Crop.

The banks here have received the following letter which explains itself and to show their willing co-operation they have issued the circular letter which follows:

Office of the Executive Committee of the Council for National Defense for the State of Kentucky.

To the Marion and Farmers Banks, Marion, Ky.

Dear Sirs:

A meeting of the bankers of this Commonwealth at the Seelbach Hotel, Louisville, Ky., Friday, April 27th, 2 p. m. was called by Gov. A. O. Stanley for the purpose of enlisting every bank in the State in a patriotic work.

Three hundred and twenty seven banks were represented by enthusiastic Kentuckians, who responded to the call from a patriotic standpoint, and they unanimously adopted the enclosed letter, submitted by the Executive Committee of the Council for National Defense for the State of Kentucky, as a form of letter to be mailed to each of its customers.

If this letter does not in every sense, measure up to the requirements of your community, you are at liberty to change it to suit your ideas, but we would suggest that the material points of it should not, in any respect, be changed or altered.

It is imperative that you should have these letters printed, at once, and mailed to your customers at the very earliest possible moment.

Your hearty cooperation in this great undertaking will, I am sure be thoroughly appreciated by those who are seeking to help as well as by your State and Nation.

Yours very truly,

G. G. Speer, Secretary.

In accepting the suggestion of the co-operation our banks wish to make the following statement to their patrons.

"Your country and mine is now actively engaged in the greatest war the world has ever known. There can be no doubt that the countries, best able to maintain their food supplies will be the victors in the end. We and our allies must, for the good of humanity, win this conflict.

The farmers of the United States must furnish the food supplies for ourselves and our allies. It will be not only profitable but patriotic to do so.

1. These banks desire to do its part in helping you in this great undertaking. We are willing to extend to you any amount of credit that your conditions will warrant, to purchase more stock, tools, seeds or for the hire of additional labor. If you know of any worthy man who needs credit of this sort, kindly send him to us.

2. There will be a large crop of vegetables and fruits, none of which should go to waste, but should be canned or dried, for winter use and for sale on the market. There will be greater demand for the excess than can be produced. The women on the farm are especially to can all vegetables and fruits that they possibly get containers for.

We believe there will be some difficulty in procuring cans and jars unless steps are taken to secure them. You should let your merchant know, at once, the number that you will need in order that he can get an adequate supply on hand. This bank will do its part in helping secure a sufficient number of these containers for this county.

3. In the opinion of the best experts there is every indication that this war will not end quickly but will be long drawn out. Farmers should not therefore, sacrifice immature animals but should make them as large as possible.

Breeding stock should be kept. It will be needed more than at any other time in the history of our country. Very truly yours, Marion Bank, by J. W. Blue, Farmers Bank by O. S. Denny.

Last Chance to Join

Officers' Reserve Corps.

Major John L. Hughes, Coast Artillery Corps, United States Army, has taken up headquarters in the Hotel Madison, Madisonville, Ky., for a few days, to receive and examine applicants for the Officers' Training Camp, to be held at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indianapolis, Indiana, beginning May 14, 1917.

Major Hughes has full authority from the War Department to examine and pass and accept applicants. The only enlistment required is for three months period in the Officers' Training Camp, and in the Officers' Reserve Corps.

Those applicants who are found, after training, to be suitable for commissions in the Officers' Reserve corps, will be so commissioned. During the period of training, applicants will be paid $100.00 per month, under act of Congress now in process of being passed, and if commissioned, will receive the regular army pay while in the Federal Service.

Major Hughes can be communicated with in person or by telephone, at all hours of the day and night, at his headquarters, and all applications made to him will receive due consideration.

The War Department has thus brought to the people's door the opportunity for all men with suitable educational qualifications to enter the army from civil life, without previous military experience as commissioned officers, and it is hoped that the public will take proper interest in it, and suitable persons will get into communication with Major Hughes, at the earliest possible moment.

Butler-Tyner

NEW TRUSTEES ARE ELECTED

Mrs. G. P. Roberts and Mr. C. J. Pierce Are Chosen By Good Majorities

The school election last Saturday passed off quietly. There was considerable interest as a lady, Mrs. George P. Roberts, was nominated, she being the first lady ever nominated for trustee here. The other names offered were J. G. Rochester and W. T. McConnell who are members now but whose terms had expired and C. J. Pierce. The result was as follows:

Cort J. Pierce	172
Mrs. George P. Roberts	162
W. T. McConnell	105
J. G. Rochester	68

Mrs. George P. Roberts who was elected a trustee of the Marion Graded and High School Saturday was Miss Evalyn Marshall Shelby before her marriage and is well and favorably known at Fredonia, Eddyville and Louisville as she lived in her childhood and girlhood at these places. Her father was Reginald L. Shelby of Lyon County which county was named for his great grandfather. The blood of the Lyons, Marshall's, Shelby's and other names who have made history is hers and as she is a great reader and hence a well informed woman we predict that the Marion Graded and High School board will not suffer by her sitting in its councils. Her husband is engaged extensively in mining duor spar. They reside on Hayward square on Walker St and have two bright and interesting little daughters.

The other trustee elected, C. J. Pierce has lived here most of his life. He was for many years in the hardware business here, and is now owner of the dairy here. He is a deacon in the Southern Presbyterian church, and lives in his handsome home on Walker street corner of Carlisle. He is regarded as one of our safest financiers and business men and may be trusted to look after any of the affairs of the district which may come under his jurisdiction.

Miss Ruth McChesney

Popular Atlanta Visitor.

The following social note from Sunday's Atlanta Georgian will be of interest here. Miss McChesney is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. McChesney of North Seventh street, and is an especially charming and talented girl. She has been instructor in physical culture for the Frankfort schools since leaving State University. The Georgian says: "Miss Ruth McChesney, of Frankfort, Ky., is the guest of Mrs. R. H. McCaw, 493 Cherokee avenue for opera week. Several parties were given for her at opera and on Friday evening Mrs. W. B. Price Smith gave an informal dinner for her."—Paducah Son.

We are proud of Miss Ruth McChesney. She is a Marion girl in reality. Her mother was Miss Theresa Gilbert born near here, and her father is a Shady Grove man.

MONEY RECOVERED FROM STRANGE PIT?

Freshly Dug Hole, Large As Grave Found Near Hopkinsville Men's Home.

Hopkinsville, Ky., May 9.—A pit, as large as a grave, dug last night at the rear of S. E. Yancey's home on the outskirts of this city has attracted wide attention since its discovery this morning. The pit is at the foot of a tall tree, and a fence, which had stood in the way of the digger, had been torn down.

Several slabs of stone, evidently taken from the hole, this morning lay on top of piles of freshly dug earth. Sulphur had been sprinkled over the ground for a radius of twenty feet, ostensibly to baffl' hounds that might be brought to the scene.

Police believe money, probably stolen and buried years ago by a man who later was sent to prison, was recovered from the pit.

FROZEN FISH NOT FRESH

English Court Has Made a Ruling That Freezing Is as Much Preserving as Salting.

Is frozen fish fresh fish?

This question came recently before the king's bench division of the English courts on a question of freight rates. The railroad claimed the right to classify the fish as fresh fish with in the meaning of that description in the railway rates. The respondents, on the other hand, contended that the fish should be classified as "preserves (fish, fruit, meat and provisions) in casks, boxes or cases."

The fish consisted of salmon caught in Alaska and British Columbia. The county court judge decided that the fish was not fresh. The description of fresh fish in class 4 pointed to fish which would have to be promptly sold if it was not to become worthless. The care necessary in dealing with such fish would be greater than that required with the fish in this case. He could not see why freezing should not be held to be just as much a preserving process as salting or drying. The word "preserving" covered, in his opinion, every method by which an article was kept from putrefaction, and one such method was that of freezing.

The county court judge was therefore right in his decision, and the appeal must be dismissed.

Hubby—Well, I wouldn't dare to do that either.

WILLIE SEEKS INFORMATION.

Sister's beau wrinkled his forehead.

"Why—why a popinjay is a certain bird."

"Are you a bird, Mr. Champley?"

"Certainly not."

"That's funny. Ma said you was a popinjay, and he said there was no doubt about you bein' a jay, and sister said there was small hopes of your poppin', and now you say you ain't a bird at all. That's funny."

AN ULTIMATUM

Thrift A Necessity.

Gladsome believed a boy who is taught to save his money will rarely be a bait man or a failure.

Thomas Jefferson paved the way to our moral and material success by teaching the pioneers to avoid poverty.

William M. Kirtley insisted that it is the little savings bank in the home which means more for the future of the children of a family than the advice in the world.

Woodrow Wilson believes thrift is the fundamental responsibility of human life.

Abraham Lincoln was a living example of thrift.

George Washington was forever telling his heirs of the importance of thrift.

Bismarck declared that thrift is a national necessity; that extravagance breeds vicious or worthless members of a community.

COLLEGE DOING GOOD WORK

Berea's Influence in Appalachian America Is Becoming Greater—Its Extension Work a Feature.

The campaign which Berea college is conducting for increased funds calls attention to the rapidity with which its work in "Appalachian America" is expanding. It draws students from the whole mountain region included between northeast Alabama and southwest Pennsylvania, an area as large as New York and New England, and one which contains 3,000,000 people of Scotch and English descent. President Frost finds this population confronted by two emergencies which the college must help it to face. One is the invasion of mines and lumber camps, with social and industrial problems for which the mountaineers are unprepared; the other lies in the fact that the population has reached what President Frost calls "the boiling point," through unprecedented increase. With the same large number of children that was common in colonial times, and the lessening of child mortality that has followed the introduction of some modern medical methods, the numbers in Appalachia have suddenly doubled. The result is a pressure upon the agricultural resources of the valleys and hillsides that demands new agricultural methods. The college now enrolls nearly 1,700 students, a part of whom are engaged in productive enterprises—43 in farming, 71 in woodworking and 18 in printing. The college has extension workers performing doctory service in 32 mountain counties in Kentucky, five in North Carolina, four in Tennessee, three in Virginia and six in West Virginia—New York Post.

ARCHBOLD WAS A HUMORIST

Showed This Quality When He Defined His Duties as a Director of Standard Oil.

Our only billionaire, John Davidson Rockefeller, wrote in his book that his partner, John Dustin Archbold, was a humorist. Citing an example of that keen wit, he said that when questioned upon the witness stand as to what was his chief occupation as a Standard Oil director, Mr. Archbold replied:

"Claiming for dividends." Archbold was one of the big six of the old Standard Oil company. Gerard writes in the Philadelphia Ledger. The two Rockefellers, Harkness, Rogers and Flagler were the other five.

The world knew scarcely anything of Harkness, although he owned much more Standard stock than any of his partners except John D. Rockefeller.

Flagler and Rogers each built a railroad, but Archbold stuck strictly to oil. They all started poor—most of them in little country towns.

Flagler's mania was the east coast of Florida. He once invited Mr. Plant, the equally meteoric upholder of another part of Florida, to visit Palm Beach.

"Where is Palm Beach?" wired Plant in reply.

"Go to Jacksonville," answered Flagler. "Follow the crowd and you will get there."

OF COURSE NOT.

"The girls in this chorus have hardly any clothes on."

"Still, I don't consider them objects of pity."

"No?"

"The fact that their stage attire is scanty doesn't necessarily mean that they have no warm furs and sealskin coats to wear when they go out on the street."

"Here a man applying for a job incloses his photograph."

"I suppose he wants us to take him at his face value."

"Oh, yes, there's one—the family clothesline."

MORGAN RAIDER TELLS A STORY

Capt. Lucas, Frankfort, Feels as Fit as in Old Days.

MORGAN'S 'OLD HORSE THIEF'

Morgan's Raiders, loved and honored by every man and woman in the South, and feared throughout the North in the days of '61, are still remembered by their daring raids into the very heart of the North. These fearless men led by John Morgan stopped at nothing, and time after time they slipped past the Union lines and back again bringing with them thousands of dollars worth of plunder. These men, often riding day and night for weeks at a time, sparing nothing to aid the cause of Dixie.

CAPT. MASON B. LUCAS

earned for themselves the famous name of "Morgan's Raiders." They gave the flower of their youth and strength to the cause, and to the South, and those of them that are still alive are now in the North.

Captain Lucas Popular. Among these is Captain Mason B. Lucas, who has known throughout Franklin County as "Uncle Mace." He is now finishing his second term as County Jailor, and there is no more widely known or popular citizen in all Frankfort or Franklin County.

During the war, he was Morgan's right-hand man, and his friends have to call him "Morgan's Old Horse Thief," as he was always given command of foraging parties when they had got past the Union lines and were in Northern territory.

"Uncle Mace" is now 75 years old and not long ago he felt that he was getting into the class of old men. But he feels fine again now and says he believes he can scramble his horse from the ground and make as hard a ride as he could in the days of '61.

In telling the story of how he got back his health, he said:

"Some time ago, my stomach went back on me, and I felt heavy and lousy after eating. I got so I couldn't sleep well at night and began to get a little nervous. My appetite wasn't what it used to be either. I didn't seem to ever get hungry. I got worried and decided to try Tanlac.

Sleeps Like a Baby.

"Well, sir, after taking two bottles of Tanlac, my appetite is upland. I sleep like a baby, and feel stronger than I have for years. In fact I feel so good that I don't believe anyone can outdistance me for the nomination in the coming Democratic primary."

"Tanalac has done me so much good that I felt like I wanted to help some one else, and so I bought a bottle of Tanlac for an old war comrade of mine. Tanlac helped me and I am glad to tell others about it."

Lad, Have You Put The Khaki On?

Lad, have you put the Khaki on?
Work—there's work to do.
Down on the rim of Mexico.

Round by the sea way too.
A brave work for the good of the world.

Work has to be done,
We didn't seek it, we didn't shirk it.

And now we're in it we won't Turk it.

But fight clean
And fight strong.

For the right of all to the sun.

Lad, have you put the Khaki on?
War is hell and wreck.

But ten hells is peace with the heel

Of War upon your neck.

And ten heavens would be a world

Of nations knit to one,
So will you seek it, and not shirk it?

Help, for the future's weal, to work it.

Lad, oh lad,
Freedom's lad.

Will you put the khaki on?

UNITY, STOP! AND THINK.

(BY CORA A. GRAVES.)

But as long as that sublime light has not yet obtained there is always danger of being turned away from God by the very works which is God's glory.

I would beg of you to consider how highly God, Himself, considers the heart of man. He does not seem to acknowledge that He is captivated by the wayward heart. He loves it even to jealousy and he glori's in overcoming it and establishing His reign within it. Hear Him some times with a tone of authority: "Thou shalt love Me with thy whole heart," and again some times with a tone of entreaty, saying: "My son give Me thy heart." See how He professes to manifest Himself without a veil to the pure heart, sets no limit to His liberality toward the upright heart, to pour out the treasure of His mercy upon the feelings and compassionate heart when He exhibits His indignation toward His people it is because unfaithful Israel has turned away his heart from Him when He shows mercy it is only the humble and contrite heart, He forgives. When He speaks to us it is to hearts His Divine communications are addressed in a word for all the scriptures may be adduced in proof of it. God keeps His eye forever fixed upon the heart of man; He observes all His inclinations; He sees nothing He esteems nothing in man except his heart, and do we constantly say that a man is great, virtuous, respected and worthy of our love from the qualities of his heart alone. Is it not upon the hearts of heroes and saints that our commendations are bestowed.

But let us seriously reflect upon the excellence of a heart more than human, more than angelic perfection which adorns it. Behold this charter dove. She is unequalled, she is surpassingly great in the world who is this admirable creature, who combines the perfections of all others in her single life they compare the brilliancy with which she shines to the mild and placid moon, sometimes to the more vivid brightness of the morning star, and sometimes to the dazzling splendor of the sun. But what proceeds this delightful odor which delights and attracts them, is it not from her heart as from a precious rose filled with the most exquisite essence, which by their combination form the most exquisite of all perfumes, namely the qualities of her purity of heart, her innocence was a stranger to the irregular propensities of nature. What avoidance to the world and all its occasions, what retirement, what solitude from her earliest years, what shall we say of that modesty, that is alarmed at the sight of one angel, what of that purity of soul which without a moment's hesitation chose virginity in preference; not only to all the greatness and all the pleasures of the earth, for that would be only a trifling sacrifice, but to the ineffable honor of the Divine maternity which infinitely transcends all utterance.

Mary, sweet Mary, the Divine Mother of our precious Lord. Can we not feel that the Father of our country our beloved Woodrow Wilson is but an instrument in the hands of almighty God that he is surely but slowly weaving the web of Unity in all our states to be truly the United States. Love of God, of this country and every man who does his duty, and God forbid that I should grow bold in the Cross of the Lord. No doubt his maxim and prayer that our wayward brother across the seas in the wisdom of our Heavenly Father reclaim him from that uneasiness, unrest and discomfort he must naturally experience in being drawn away from that union which is almost inevitable result.

In the words of our President a few months ago expressed: "Would that we could wear a little flag every day, and if you lose the physical emblem be sure to wear it in your heart, and may the heart of America interpret the heart of the world."

That the car situation is very serious and that labor at the mines has advanced 20 percent and also that coal would be higher than at present. The Vice Pres't told us to insist that people begin putting in coal for next winter, now. We said to him, "Can you furnish all the coal we would need, if the people here should get in the notion to put in their winter coal?" His answer was, "No, but the people would have more time in which to get a supply."

REDUCES COST OF LIVING

Grocer's Scheme Has Proved Satisfactory to Himself and the Customers Whom He Serves.

A grocer in Fond du Lac, Wis., has introduced an interesting system. He calls it the "cash and carry system."

If his customers pay cash for their goods he throws off 5 per cent. If they carry their purchases home he throws off another 5 per cent. If the family's grocery bill is $25 a month that means a saving of $2.50—which would make a tidy addition to the savings bank balance.

The plan, it is reported, takes well with this grocer's customers. Moreover, he is tickled with it himself. It saved him the expense of putting on more delivery wagons, which he would have had to do if he hadn't adopted the system. It has increased his trade. It has given him the benefit of cash in the till instead of credit on the books. It seems to be beneficial all around.

It isn't exactly new, of course. There are shops that do something like the same thing; that is, by selling for cash only and doing no delivering, they can and do sell goods cheaper, and many take advantage of the opportunity to be thrifty.

The cost of living is vastly higher than it used to be before the days of credit and telephone ordering, when mother used to put a basket on her arm and go shopping. And one of the reasons why the cost of living is higher is that credit and delivery both cost money which, of course, the consumers have to pay.—Duluth Herald.

JUST A REGULATION BED

Witness Would Not Agree That His Deceased Friend Was in a "State of Coma."

No judge has ever enjoyed more popularity than the late Right. Hon. Lord O'Brien, the lord chief justice of Ireland. He had a great reputation for good stories, and in the posthumous book of reminiscences edited by his daughter, the Hon. Georgina O'Brien, there are many amusing anecdotes, which, like the man himself, are interesting, witty and vivacious—reminiscences with the real Irish flavor.

Lord O'Brien was hearing a will suit, and it was a question of whether the man who made the will was mentally capable. The evidence showed that the deceased was visited on the day preceding his death by several of his neighbors, who described him as being more or less in a state of stupor and collapse. The judge put the question to one rather voluble witness at the end of his evidence:

"I gather that the deceased gentleman, when you saw him, was lying in a coma?"

"Oh, no, my lord," he replied, without hesitation; "it was just an ordinary bed he was lying in."—London Tit-Bits.

For The Glory Of The Kaiser.

The London Times published a few days ago the story that the German dead are stripped, bound in bundles of four, with iron wire, hauled to waiting railroad trains and shipped to a reducing plant, where the fats and oils are recovered for chemical uses, including the making of explosives. The bones are ground for fertilizer and pig feed. To many persons the tale was incredible; a mere column of honor to entertain the idle reader or vent British spleen against the Germans.

The Times now comes forward with a more detailed story of the intensive treatment of the German soldier, to the end that the Empire may profit by using him after he is killed as well as while he is alive. In substantiation German papers are quoted, and the story as it now appears seems as well authenticated as any chronicle of alleged facts could be. If it still is incredible it is only because the minds of many persons cannot adjust themselves to the reception of the story that a civilized people would treat the corpses of gallant soldiers as a mere commodity to be employed as a measure of rational economy.

American consuls formerly in Germany are quoted by the Times as saying that the Germans have been for some time making nitroglycerine, and obtaining the essentials of other explosives, from the corpses of soldiers killed in battle. The German censors now are permitting their press to report the rendering of the corpses, as an example of the high efficiency of Germany, the Times says. Belgian newspapers have printed the news that the trains laden with the bundles of corpses are dispatched to Gerolstein, each car labeled "D. A. V. G.," meaning "Deutschem Abfalls Verwertungsgesellschaft," which, translated, is "The German Offal Utilization Company, Limited." The factory is situated 1,000 yards from a railroad which connects St. Vith, near the Belgian frontier, with Gerolstein. The site of the plant is in a forest in the little frequented district of Eifel, southwest of Coblenz. A spur leads to the factory, which is surrounded by charged wire and operated by workers who are not permitted to leave the place.

The following account of the reception and treatment of bodies is given.

The factory deals especially with the dead from the western front. If the results are as good as the company hopes, another will be established on the eastern front.

The trains arrive full of bodies which are unloaded by workers who live at the works. The men wear oilskin overalls and masks with mica eyepieces and are equipped with long hooked poles.

They push the bundles of bodies to an endless chain which picks them up by means of hooks at intervals of two feet. The bodies are transported on an endless chain into a long, narrow row of compartments, where they pass through a bath which disinfects them. They go through a drying chamber and are automatically carried to a great cauldron into which they are dropped by an apparatus which detaches them from the chain.

They remain six to eight hours in the cauldron, where they are treated by steam, which breaks them up while they are slowly stirred by machinery. The fats are broken into stearine, a form of tallow and oils which require to be distilled before they can be used. Distilled is carried out by boiling the oil with carbonate of soda and some part of the by products resulting is used by the soap makers. The refined oil is sent out in small casks like those used for petroleum and is yellowish brown.

The fumes are exhausted from the buildings by electric fans and are sucked through a great pipe to the northeastern corner, where they are condensed and the refuse resulting is discharged into a sewer. There is no high chimney, as the boiler furnaces are supplied with air by electric fans. There is a laboratory, and in charge of the works is a chief chemist with two assistants and seventy-eight men. All the employees are soldiers attached to the Eight Army Corps. There is a sanatorium near the works, and under no pretext is any man permitted to leave. They are guarded as prisoners at this appalling work.

Photographed facsimiles of a news article in the Lokal Anzeiger of Berlin are presented by the Times to convince the incredulous reader. The Lokal Anzeiger refers to the corpse exploitation establishment using the German term kadaververwertungsanstalt, and says:

The fats here are turned into lubricating oils and everything else is ground down in the mill, the bones into powder which is used for mixing with pig's food and as manure. Nothing can be permitted to go to waste.

It is conceivable that barbarians who could commit such atrocities as the Germans have committed upon noncombatants in enemy countries might balk at the horrors of rendering their dead in a reduction plant, but it is equally conceivable that a strict interpretation of the teachings of Germany's school of imperialistic philosophers and military writers would make this economical disposal of the dead seem an act of high patriotism upon the part of the living, one which consecrates even the ashes of the German soldier to the cause of his country. Gen. von Bernhardi, it is imaginable, would consider the concluding stanza of The Bivouac of the Dead mere romantic flabbergast, and, acting the warrior unduly, and painting his country in a false position as his debtor, whereat the Potsdam conception of state making is that the country is everything and the human unit, military or civil, is nothing. The state is entitled to the ashes of the brave not as war's rubbish, so it, which Theodore O'Hare conceived it as being, but as a commodity useful in the prosecution of war might be argued fluently by any one among a score of German writers who delight in emphasizing the unimportance of everything but military conquest.

Shipping corpses of soldiers to the rendering plant may be revolting, but cannibalism has been practiced by shipwrecked sailors to whom it would have revolted in circumstances less unpromising. That Germany, in her isolation and desperation, might turn even to cannibalism might be conceivable to persons whose imaginations are less developed than that of Poe in the conception of horrors. Assuredly the use of the dead soldier or sailor and civilians for making explosives and fertilizers is not wholly incredible when we consider the military machine upon which the food of the Potsdam begotten rest, and the fact that the inspiration which motivated in this war was fed.

The German soldier who is used in the future for flying, and the rendering fat dead, is employed to the glory of the Kaiser, who agrees fully with the fatuous French King who said, I am the State. When part of Hans or Fritz is fed to pigs to make pork for soldiers direct cannibalism is avoided. When the rest of him is employed in high explosives and he is literally shot into the ranks of the enemy from the mouth of a cannon he is used for Germany. Otherwise he might be buried in a ditch to fertilize fields which are being reconquered by the Allies for France.

FORD'S FERRY

A fearful storm of wind, rain and hail visited this neighborhood Monday afternoon and lasted with almost unrelenting violence for a short while. It was probably the hardest wind that has ever been known in this immediate vicinity and it was certainly the worst that the present generation has ever experienced around Ford's Ferry.

The cloud developed and came from the west and did not appear to be unusually severe while approaching. It wasn't until it reached this neighborhood that the storm developed cyclonic symptoms, which were caused by a strong cross-current of wind from the south. When the two currents mixed together the wind became tremendously severe and the storm veered off toward the northeast.

Fruit trees were considerably damaged by the wind and quite a number of large limbs were blown off. One of the largest apple trees in C. M. Clift's orchard was taken up from the roots and blown into another field. A large cherry tree was also root-wa dead about one hundred yards north of the orchard. The wind wrought a considerable amount of damage in the timber of Crooked Creek bottom. A number of large trees near the creek were blown down and splintered into fragments. T. N. Wolford and son, Roe, were caught out in the storm near the creek and they immediately sought refuge in the shelter of a bluff where they were fortunate enough to escape without any injury.

The wind did not attain the maximum of its intensity until it reached the plateau between Ford's Ferry and Weston. Indications seem to show that it flowed harder in that part of the neighborhood than anywhere else. Huge trees were root-wa dead and blown over and a number of buildings were considerably damaged. A large tobacco barn belonging to Joe Will Hughes was shifted several feet from its foundation and so badly demolished that it will probably necessitate a general tearing down and rebuilding of the barn. In addition to damaging Mr. Hughes' barn, the wind also blew off the top of his crib and inflicted quite a bit of other damage in his immediate vicinity.

There is no doubt but what it was the worst storm that has ever been experienced by the younger generation of this neighborhood and we deplore the destruction which was caused by the wind, but nevertheless we are exceedingly grateful and thankful that no human lives were taken; in fact, we have not yet heard of anyone who was even seriously hurt during the storm.

HOW KENTUCKY WOMEN CAN HELP KENTUCKY SOLDIERS

The First Kentucky needs a thousand recruits to fill its ranks to war strength. Once recruited, these men must be cared for at the front.

It is your regiment as well as ours.
If its ranks are not filled, Kentucky will fail to do its duty in the country's hour of need. Kentucky has never failed before—it must not fail now.

Knowing that you feel in this matter as do the officers and men of the regiment, I am writing you in their name to ask that you help in the recruiting campaign the regiment is now making.

This campaign costs money. To raise it the regiment has enlisted the services of Francis X. Bushmann and Beverly Bayne, the famous movie stars. They will be in Louisville May 28th to lead the ball to be given that night at the First Kentucky Armory.
At that ball will be chosen the girl who is to represent the State of Kentucky in the contest of Southern beauties to be held in New Orleans,
June 2.

We all know that the most beautiful woman in the South lives somewhere in Kentucky. One purpose of the ball is to find her. The other is that the men of Kentucky shall be first on the ring line in France when the American expeditionary force is sent over.
Will you help to realize both purposes?

The terms of the contest are as follows:

How To Win.

The two girls in each county in the State selling the most tickets to the First Kentucky Ball, May 28th, and thereby receiving the greatest number of votes, will represent their respective county at the Military Ball and will be in "The Beauty Class" from which the Kentucky Beauty will be selected for the trip to New Orleans and for a professional motion picture tryst in New York.

From the girls in the "Beauty Class" a Committee of Judges will select the most beautiful to represent the State of Kentucky in the Big Picture Production to be made in New Orleans June 2.
Send in orders for tickets, with cash or check or money order, made payable to The Treasurer, First Kentucky Infantry, Armory, Louisville, Ky., and tickets will be forwarded immediately and credit will be given the sender for amount turned in.

Price of tickets—Spectator ticket,
$1.00. Admission to the Dancing Floor, one person, $2.00; for couple, $3.00.
$1.00 ticket entitles girls to 10 votes.
$2.00 ticket entitles girls to 20 votes.
$3.00 ticket entitles girls to 30 votes.

Address all inquiries to The Treasurer, First Kentucky Infantry, The Armory, Louisville, Kentucky.

The Greatest Nation In The World.

By Lonnie Clift.

I firmly believe that the United States is the greatest nation in the whole world. Our country may not be the greatest in the opinion of some people, but I certainly think we are the greatest in the sight of God and that is what constitutes real greatness not only in a nation, but the opinion of the Omnipotent Creator is the only accurate and perfect criterion of all real greatness in everything.

There are some nations which may surpass the United States in a few things, but when everything is taken into consideration there is no other country which can be compared with the land of the free and the home of the brave.

The population of the United States is estimated at 100,000,000 people, exclusive of our outlying territories.

This is a vast number of people for any one nation to possess but nevertheless there are a few other countries who surpass us in size of population. There is Russia and China, for instance, either one of which contains a larger number of people than America, but in wealth and natural resources we are probably greater than both of these nations combined. The mineral resources of the United States are superior to those of any other country. We produce a larger amount of coal, copper and iron ore than any other nation. There is no doubt but what these three mineral products are absolutely essential to the industrial welfare of any country and the people of our land should be exceedingly grateful and thankful that we are so bountifully supplied in these respects.

Our superior wealth and large mineral resources, however, are not the only things wherein we surpass any other nation. I firmly believe that the people of the United States are intellectually greater than the inhabitants of any other country. I do not pretend to say that all the people of our land are intelligent and well educated, but I do say that there is a higher percentage of great thinkers and wise men among our people than you can find in any other nation.

During the past 100 years there have been a vast number of wonderful inventions and new discoveries in the world and there is no doubt but what the great majority of these inventions were devised and originated by our own people. Thomas Edison is the greatest inventor of all time and he is an American. When we take into consideration the wonderful inventive genius of the American people it is an empty boast when we rate ourselves as being intellectually superior to the inhabitants of any other country?

Not only are the American people distinguished for their knowledge and intelligence, but they also represent a higher type of physical manhood than you can find in any other civilized nation on earth. The heavyweight champion boxer of the world is a native born American and the majority of the great fistic title holders who preceded him during the past forty years have also been citizens of the United States. Not only do we excel the rest of the world in pugilism, but there are many other athletic sports in which the American people rank second to none.

It is my honest opinion that the United States is blessed with a better government than any other nation on earth. Our laws are more just and reasonable, more humane and merciful than the laws of any other country.

England and France are both governed better than the common run of nations, but these two countries are not quite so good as the United States in that respect.

I do not dispute but what our country is not without a number of shortcomings and imperfections, for absolute all round perfection is impossible of attainment by any nation or any human being in this life. Notwithstanding this undeniable fact, however, I certainly do believe that the United States is more nearly perfect than any other country on the globe.

The American people are composed of the best blood of all the white races of people in the world. I am inclined to think that we are both morally and religiously somewhat superior to any other nation of people on earth. At the same time, however, I am willing to admit that there are quite a number of wicked people in the United States and a considerable amount of the undesirable element is to be found among our population, but nevertheless, it is my honest opinion that the American people are just a little better, on the average, than the inhabitants of any other country, and for that reason God has blessed us with more wealth and resources than any other nation that the world has ever seen.

Our own grand and glorious country has recently become a belligerent in the greatest war of all time. I had always hoped that the United States would have the good fortune to not become involved in the terrible conflict which was raging across the pond, notwithstanding the fact that some people predicted at the very commencement of hostilities that we would sooner or later become implicated in the awful fray. The United States endured a vast amount of provocation before she finally unsheathed the sword in the defense of her just rights and the vindication of her honor. During the past two years the Germans have ruthlessly destroyed and sank quite a number of our peaceable merchant ships, in addition to murdering hundreds of our citizens. Time and again our President has remonstrated with the Teutonic government and endeavored to dissuade them from their inhuman and barbarous methods, but all our protests have seemingly been without avail and we have at last been obliged to resort to drastic measures in order to achieve the just rights and privileges which we were unable to secure by peaceable arbitration.

The United States is unprepared to send over a great army against Germany at the present time, but we can render the Allies invaluable assistance by furnishing them with money and supplies. The Entente nations are greatly in need of these things just now and the United States is well prepared to render the help which is most needed at the present time.

As I have already stated, the Americans are not ready to send over a large army in the immediate future, but this will not seriously inconvenience the Allies for they are not in any great need of men at the present time. The Entente nations have now got 15,000,000 trained soldiers in the field and opposed to them are less than half that number of both Germans and Austrians combined. If we keep the Allies well supplied with food and ammunition during the next few months there is no doubt, in my opinion, but what they will achieve a complete and lasting victory over the foe.

It is extremely unlikely that any great number of Americans will be killed during the present conflict. The war department is planning to train our men for several months before sending them across the big pond, and while the American recruits are being drilled I firmly believe that the German armies will be crushingly and decisively defeated in a series of the most spectacular and terrible battles that the world has ever seen.

The American people are not a war-like people and they are loath to unsheath the sword unless they are driven by necessity to do so, but if the able bodied men of our country were well trained and drilled they would make the finest soldiers in the world. The American people possess both the mental and physical qualifications which are essential to the making of a good soldier. The members of our regular army at the present time are better marksmen than any of the European troops now participating in the great conflict.

When we take into consideration all the wonderful facts which have been narrated, is there any need for us to be greatly alarmed over the outcome of the present stupendous struggle? The United States is engaged in a just and righteous warfare against Prussian militarism, the basest and most infamous organization of modern times, probably the worst of all time. When the final gun is fired and the smoke of the last battle clears away there is no doubt, in my opinion, but what victory will rest with the Allied cause; consequently, there is no need of any great worry or anxiety among the people of the greatest nation in the world.

A Nation's Prayer For Strength To Seize

Make bare Thy mighty arm, O God, and lead this people on. Day by day, month after month, we have prayed that the cup of war might pass from us, for we have not been able to say, Thy will, not ours, be done.

We have gazed with awe upon the horrors of the battlefields of Europe. There we have seen suffering and death such as the angels of heaven never looked down upon before; while here we have enjoyed peace and prosperity which have flooded our land, and we have prayed that we might not have to give up our comfort and our ease and face the awful realities of war. We have said to our soul, Thou hast much goods laid up, eat, drink and be merry and think not of duty, but of pleasure.

We have not prayed, O God, that Thou wouldst show us our duty and give us strength to follow where Thy mightiest lead, but we have prayed that our will might be Thy will. We have prayed that Thou wouldst save us from suffering, not that Thou wouldst give us strength to meet and bear suffering if called by Thee to do our part in saving civilization from destruction.

Forgive us, O Lord God Almighty, that we have so long prayed not to know the path of duty, but to be kept in the path of ease and safety.

We cannot fathom the mysteries of this world, we cannot understand how Evil can for so long a time master Good; we cannot see how out of all the horrors and the sufferings of these latter years Thou canst bring forth blessings to mankind and get glory and honor unto Thyself. But we know, O Divine Father, that all things shall work together for good to them that love and serve Thee. Teach us then to love Thee, as we have never loved Thee before teach us to serve Thee as we have never served Thee in the past.

We believe that Thou art calling us to take up our cross and follow Thee, and that Thou hast called us to some great service to mankind and to Thyself.

Arm us, O God, with the power of right.

Let us not go forth trusting in our own strength, which is but weakness. Let no spirit of revenge, no hatred fill our hearts, but give us the strength which comes from seeking to know and to do Thy will, and from being led by Thee.

Grant, O Father, that we may be ready to drink of the cup from which Thy Blessed Son, our Redeemer, drank when in boundless love for others. He prayed that not His will, but Thine, be done. Draining the cup of human agony, He became the Savior of mankind, redeeming the world from the power of Evil through His suffering, death and resurrection. He taught us that service and sacrifice are better than great riches, that he who seeks selfishly his own good only, may lose his own soul.

What shall it profit us as a nation to gain the wealth of the world and to lose the soul of our honor and of our duty to Thee?

If such be Thy will, may it be ours as a nation to be led by Thee to help save mankind from the dominion of Evil.

Give unto us, O God of infinite love, Thy grace, which is love outliving love, to enable us to say where Thou leadest we will follow.

Make us a nation, O Thou Almighty Ruler of Nations, worthy to become the redeeming power to save mankind from sinking beneath the barbarism which fights against civilization, against human liberty and against Thee, that all the nations of the earth shall come to know Thee and to seek Thy guidance through all the ages to come unto Thy honor and glory.

A FAMILY MEDICINE

In Her Mother's Home, Says This Georgia Lady, Regarding Black-Draught. Relief From Head-ache, Malaria, Chills, Etc.

Blagden, Ga.—Mrs. Chas. Gaston of this place, writes: "I am a user of Thedford's Black-Draught, in fact it was one of our family medicines. Also in my mother's home, when I was a child. When any of its children complained of headache, neuralgia, constipation, indigestion, or a dose of Black-Draught, which would rectify the trouble. Often in the Spring, we would have malaria and chills, or troubles of this kind, and would take Black-Draught pretty regular until the liver acted well, and we would soon be up and around again. We would not be without it, for it certainly has saved a lot of doctor bills. Just a dose of Black-Draught when not as well saves a lot of days in bed."

Thedford's Black-Draught has been in use for many years in the treatment of stomach, liver and bowel troubles, and the popularity which it now enjoys is proof of its merit.

If your liver is not doing its duty you will suffer from such disagreeable symptoms as headache, indigestion, constipation, indigestion, etc., and unless something is done, serious trouble may result.

Thedford's Black-Draught has been found a valuable remedy for these troubles. It is purely vegetable, and acts in a prompt and natural way, regulating the liver to its proper functions and cleansing the bowels of impurities. Try it. Sold at Thedford's the original and genuine. E 79

Blackford is actually connected with the rest of the world by telephone.

D. F. Clark, a full fledged veterinarian, of the Pigeon Roost country in Crittenden county, was called here recently to render medical services to a sick mare owned by Harlan Crowell.

High Taylor Reynolds, managing salesman at H. V. Stone's mercantile establishment, is retailing goods to all classes of people irrespective of race, sex or religious belief.

The public graded school at Blackford which was taught by Prof. E. N. Pusey assisted by Misses Nora Omer, Tilda Brantley and Ruby Herring closed on Thursday, April 19th. The Baccalaureate sermon was delivered by Rev. J. F. Baker, of Sturgis, on Sunday night, April 15th, and the class address by Prof. Chas. Cunningham, of Bowling Green, on Wednesday night April 18th.

Well yes, among other things that transpire at Blackford, we have preaching at the following times and places: On the first Sunday of each month, at the Baptist church, by Eld. J. W. Vaughn; on the third Sunday of each month, at the Methodist church, by Rev. R. S. Richardson; and on the fourth Sunday of each month, at the Presbyterian church, by Rev. C. T. Boucher, of Piney Fork.

Talking about the war and swapping lies, has been the principal occupation of the "loafers" and "dead-beats," both old and young, for the past three months.

The war question is a very grave proposition at any angle from which it may be viewed. The threat of war makes us somewhat bewildered, and whether we have war or peace, this is no time for faint hearts. The battle is won not only by those who fight, but by those patriotic men and women who remain at home. The crops must be planted, the factories operated, the stores kept open and no matter what may come, every man should do his duty. This is no time for political or religious arguments, for all patriotic American citizens are involved alike.

We are aware of the fact that the reputation of Blackford, owing to the slackness of municipal government, etc., is not altogether as fine as silk, yet at the same time, we do not approve of such ridiculous reports as have been told and also published in the Providence Enterprise and the Crittenden Record-Press, concerning the plot to dynamite the I. C. railroad bridge, doubtless a number who have heard said report may think that it is true, while the facts in the case are as follows: The wire which was found near the bridge pier was a mass of tangled junk that had been thrown into the river by a section hand, Joel E. Dye, while he was cleaning out a E. house near the bridge.

"When you hear a glowing report Pause and wait. Before starting it about Think and investigate."

WAR GARDENS IN FRANCE

Hundreds of Small Plots Are Now Being Cultivated by the Stay-at-Homes.

Europe in general never stood in greater need of a bountiful harvest than now, when its greatest nations are reaping the harvest of death on the battlefield. Germany realized the pinch last year and gave orders that every rood of land available for gardens be cultivated, with vegetables taking the place of the old-time flower garden.

This year France is following suit. Taking a hint from the soldiers in the trenches who cultivate gardens not far from the battle front, M. Meline, ex-Premier and present French Minister of Agriculture, has issued a circular encouraging the people to increase the supply of the nation by cultivating their gardens and small fields to the greatest possible extent. As a result, what are called military gardens are developing everywhere in France this summer. Refugees, children, old men and women, all, in fact, capable of labor, are called upon to aid this gardening.

Although no such pressure exists for America, this country would do well to take its gardening more seriously. It is a matter of fact that many people in the outlying districts of greater New York to whom a garden is possible have fallen into the city habit and profess that it is cheaper to buy than to raise vegetables. But even in the city it ought to be possible for the children, at least, to learn by actual experience occasionally how vegetables are grown and to know something of the joy of the worker who sees the fruits of his own labor. That is knowledge every boy and girl even in a great city is entitled to acquire at first hand, either in his own garden or in his special plot in a municipal garden.—New York World.

BROKE THE SNAKE RECORD

King, Rattler, and a Gopher Live Together in Peace in California.

A rattler, a king snake and a gopher dwell in peace and amity in a small box. They were put in the box on the ranch of Capt. J. U. Henry in the Malibu mountains and brought to Los Angeles by Mayor Sebastian.

The jolting en route did not appear to disturb the snakeships, and they did not even seem to be unfriendly when they were deposited at the police station and later transferred to the park department for the city zoo. The mayor caught the snakes himself on the ranch.

"It can't be did," was the solemn opinion of the oldest resident in the Malibu when Mayor Sebastian declared he was going to bring the snakes to Los Angeles and have them put in the zoo in Griffith park. "Gophers and rattlers and kings never dwell peaceable like, and what's more, they never will."

Unconvinced, the mayor tried the experiment. He reported there was nothing but harmony in the snake box all during the journey.

Didn't Fulfill Requirements.

Once a high school principal was having a dispute with one of his teachers, a vivacious young lady. She claimed that the word "man" meant mankind as a whole, while "men" always signified the masculine gender. The principal maintained that there were exceptions and triumphantly quoted: "Though I speak with the tongues of men and of angels."

But the young lady answered demurely: "That won't do, for, you see, both genders are mentioned there."—Ladies' Home Journal.

On With the Dance.

A man has about as much chance to enjoy himself in Valdez, Alaska, if he doesn't dance, as a wax dog chasing an asbestos cat through the infernal regions. And that's not stretching it a bit. At that; as from one to six dances a week are staged with unceasing regularity and unfailing intervals. But our people enjoy them.—Valdez (Alaska) Miner.

Automatic Phonograph.

A phonograph which changes automatically from one record to the next, is described in Popular Mechanics Magazine. Wax cylinders may be placed on the machine 12 at a time; a revolving wheel carries the records under the diamond-pointed producer. A push button controls the number of records the machine will play before stopping.

Professional Viewpoint.

The gentleman and the detective whom he had once employed in a private capacity met in an elevator. "Glad to see you," said the gentleman. "How are you getting on?" "Badly, very badly," said the detective. "No thieving, no blackmailing, no divorces. The world is going to rack and ruin, I say."

Locate Fog Signals.

Prof. A. G. Webster, of Clark university, claims to have made an instrument by which one can locate the direction of a fog signal. Up to this time, mariners have not been able to tell, within 45 degrees, the direction from which fog signals come.

In Doubt.

"Tell me what you eat and I'll tell you what you are." "Here are some of my wife's cooking-school menus.—I ought to be a housewife, but I fear I'm not."

GETTING A START

By
Nathaniel C. Fowler, Jr.

(Copyright, 1916, by the M. C. News-Paper Syndicate.)

TO PARENTS.

Let me diverge for once from my policy of addressing young people directly that I may say a few words to fathers and mothers.

The selection of a vocation is usually made either by the boy himself, by his parents, or by both.

Theoretically, at least, the parent is supposed to be the best adviser for his son, because he has seen more of him and should be able to diagnose his ability with some degree of accuracy.

While the parent undoubtedly intends to advise the son for his good, it is obvious that neither the father nor the mother is infallible, and that, being human, they are likely to err and influence their boy to his detriment.

We are all more or less swayed by prejudice. If a father, for example, has made a failure of his work, he is likely to advise his son against it, even though the latter may be adapted to it. Conversely, if a father has achieved success in his vocation, he quite naturally assumes that what he has done well his boy can do equally well.

The parent often forgets to study his boy, and he is quite likely to assume that his son is fit for this and unfit for that.

I do not consider that the advice of any one person, whether he is a parent or not, is sufficient to determine the vocation for a young man.

Composite opinion is far better than individual opinion.

The parent should begin to study his son when the boy has passed his fourteenth or fifteenth year, perhaps before; he should watch him carefully, talk with him in a friendly way, and bring to his attention the advantages and disadvantages of the several callings, especially those for which he thinks his son is fitted.

The father should go further, and consult with his friends, those who come in contact with his boy, that, from composite counsel, he may be able to advise him more definitely and more carefully.

To push or to force the boy into a vocation, without careful thought and considerable study, is as wicked as it is to rob him of his birthright.

Thousands upon thousands of boys have been started wrong because of self-opinionated fathers, who, without consideration, forced their sons into vocations against their inclinations and ability.

Many a devoted mother and over-ambitious father, wholly from self-pride and without any real regard for their offspring, have attempted to coerce him into some profession, when the boy had absolutely no liking for it or ability to practice it. They would have their son a lawyer when the boy would make a good business man. They would force him to become a teacher when he lacked the power to impart information. They would make a business man of a student who loved his books more than money.

Remember, parents, that your boy, on the threshold of life, is soon to be his own master, and that you have no more right to force him under your will than you have to steal his overcoat or shoes.

The boy of today is the man of tomorrow, and what you do with him today may make or break him tomorrow.

The Stage Englishman.

Bancroft, the English actor, brought upon the stage a new type of laundish Englishman. Southern, in his "Lord Dundreary," had represented an English aristocrat as an absolutely brainless idiot. When the aristocrat appeared upon the boards he was generally made into a caricature of fatuous imbecility.

But Bancroft put before the eyes of his audience, a presentable as well as a real specimen of a man of breeding, a little haughty and disdainful, full of absurd airs, but by no means a fool, and always good-hearted.

Of course, the most notorious example of his skill was Hawtree in "Caste," whose appearance under the humble roof of the Eccles family is so irresistibly comic.

He is so entirely a fish out of water, and yet so affably and pleasantly at home—a gentleman, in short, who is full of native kindness.

His Method.

"How is it that you can tell without timing him whether or not a motorist is exceeding the speed limit fixed by your local ordinance?" "If I can't count the spokes in his god-darned wheels I'm pretty sure he's breakin' the law," replied Constable Sam T. Slackutter, the well-known sleuth of Skeedee. "And if he looks like a Kansas City fellow that's got the money to pay his fine I know blame well he is!"—Kansas City Star.

Hopeless Case.

"Drustilla," called Mr. Twobble, "you told me 45 minutes ago you would be down in a minute." "Well," answered Mrs. Twobble from the privacy of her boudoir, "what about it?" "I want to know when you are coming down." "Oh in a minute."

Our Duty Toward Others.

Some who perhaps will study Gods word today are so far along in years that an education in the schools is no longer possible, of course even such persons will remember that we still have good books, papers, preaching, Sunday Schools and other opportunities where any one can receive a measure of education and keep the mind alert and active. We are here speaking however of the duty which older people owe to these who are younger. Some of us have children of our own, what about their training? Are we making sure that we have the proper education with which to enter upon life? Do we make much in the home of true education and of the spirit of intelligence? Are we willing to sacrifice so that those who come after us in latter years may have not only better advantages than we had, but better opportunities for a useful life is the desire of your correspondent who is interested in the Rising Generation.

As This Editor Sees It

Now that we have taken the plunge, there is but one thing for a loyal citizen of this country to do—stand firmly by his country whether it be native or adopted. The man who does otherwise is not true either to himself or to the land that shelters, feeds and clothes him.

There were many who honestly thought we should not go to war with Germany. But the great majority of American people thought otherwise. So did the president, and the congress.

Each was clearly entitled to his individual opinion until such time as the matter was definitely settled one way or the other.

But with war actually in existence, with our armies hurrying into the field, with our navy making preparations to sweep the seas, with our young men rushing to the colors, there can be but one path for us to tread, a solemn loyalty to our country.—Exchange.

Strict Watch Kept Over
3,000 Pro-Germans Here.

Washington, May 9.—Approximately 3,000 German residents of the United States are under close surveillance, the department of justice officials announced today, because of their activities in behalf of the German government before America's entry into the war or because of their pro-German sympathies. It would be possible, it is stated, to arrest every man suspected within twenty four hours.

Thus far, it is said, the strict watch maintained over persons known to be of pro-German sympathy has revealed a tendency to observed the law more generally than the department had anticipated. The reputed belief of the German officials that a great army of German reservists here was ready to spring to arm in case of conflict between the United States and their native land, has been found to rest upon no foundation what ever.

MARRIAGES

Joseph W. Clark, of Frances, and Miss Willene Ordway, of Crayne, were married at the C. P. church at Crayne Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, in the presence of the largest congregation ever assembled on a similar occasion in that town. The weather was auspicious and therefore invited friends of the popular contracting parties out to witness this most important occasion in their lives.

The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Clark, of Marion, a last years bride and groom. The flower girls were little Misses Irene Jones and Ida Belle Matthews.

Rev. J. B. Trotter, of the First Baptist church at Marion officiating in his usual impressive ceremony, uniting these two happy hearts for better or for worse until death. The bride is an attractive and beautiful daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Ordway and the groom a substantial farmer of Frances is not the first lucky man to go to this home for his life partner. He is a brother of our townsman, J. D. Clark and is highly respected where he is known.

After the wedding the bridal party and about 50 guests were entertained at the home of the bride's parents at a wedding banquet at which all the dainties and substantial, of a well provided Crittenden county home, were served in abundance, making the joyous occasion one long to be remembered. The best wishes of the editor and a host of friends will follow this young couple in their journey through life.

The Anniston, Ala., Star of Sunday April 29th says, "Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Dean announce the engagement of their daughter, Addie Lee, to Mr. Henry Tyler Watts, of Louisville, Ky., the wedding to take place in June." The bride who is known here and has many relatives here and in the country, is a petite brunette as dainty and beautiful as they grow, and of a sweet disposition and gentle manner. The wonder is that she has escaped so long. Mr. Watts of Louisville, no matter who he is, is to be congratulated on winning the heart and hand of one of our girls. The mother of the bride was Miss Mary Crawford, second daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Crawford, old citizens here and she is related to the Padons of Livingston county through her grandmother and both families contained many beautiful women.

To the Friends of the Kentucky Children's Home Society

In the present grave crisis of our country, we must face the unusual conditions caused by the war, and use every means to reduce the high cost of living, which is becoming a burden not only to the wage-earner, but also to the salaried man.

We do not know how long this war will last, but we do know that it will drain our country of her splendid young men. So many of them, from the farms as well as from the city, will respond to the call of their country that there will be a scarcity of labor, especially on the farm, during the next few years, and we must be prepared to meet these conditions.

For their own protection, farmers should avail themselves of every opportunity to secure help on their farms, which, they admit, is already hard to get. For mercenary reasons if for no other, farmers will want sufficient hands to take care of their crops, but we know our farmers are just as patriotic as the men who go to the front.

We feel that we can help the farmers to solve their problem of securing help during the coming years, and they can help us by taking our boys and girls into their homes.

We have 219 wards here in the Receiving Home, whose ages range from a few months to 18 years approximately:

10 girls, 2 years and under
11 girls, 3 years to 6 years
36 girls, 7 years to 13 years
11 girls, 14 to 18 years
21 boys, 2 years and under
48 boys, 3 years to 6 years
58 boys, 7 years to 9 years
17 boys, 10 years to 12 years

Many of our children are as bright and attractive as any one could wish; we have others who have some slight defect, but who are capable of being trained to do their share of work in the home or on the farm.

A large number of our children are too young now to render much service, but in a few years hence they will be of great value to those people who are generous enough and far-sighted enough to avail themselves of getting a child, who in a short time will become attached to its new home and will be of great value to its foster parents.

A farm without a boy is not complete, and farmers' wives too, need helpers. We always prefer to place our wards in small towns and country homes.

Every application will be attended to as quickly as possible. Address all letters to:

FELLOWSHIP.

What can it matter in a little while
That for a day
We meet and gave a word, a touch, a smile,
Upon the way?
What will it matter whether hearts were brave
And lives were true,
That you gave me the sympathy I crave,
As I gave you?
These trifles! Can it be they make our mar
A human life?
Are souls as lightly swayed as rushes are
By love, or strife?
Yea, yea! A look the fainting heart may break
Or make it whole;
And just one word, if said for love's sweet sake,
May save a soul."

Suffrage Before The United States Senate.

Flanked with flags of 22 nations that have given the franchise to women by parliamentary procedure, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, president of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, marshalled argument, facts and figures in her plea for the federal suffrage amendment at the hearing before the Senate Suffrage Committee April 20th, the 22 flags that waved for woman suffrage before the august senators were those of Great Britain, including England, Ireland, Scotland, Wales, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, India, Honduras, South Africa, Scandinavia, including Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Finland, Iceland, France, Russia, the Netherlands, Mexico, Porto Rico, Hawaii and Burmah.

In each and all of these countries full or partial suffrage has been granted women by act of the central government.

Speaking of women's efficiency as a wartime asset, Mrs. Catt pointed to the cropping of efficiency by political disfranchisement, and the cheapening of woman in her own eyes and the eyes of the government by that disfranchisement. "Our Nation is engaged in the defense of democracy, for the right of those who submit to authority to have a vote in their government. The hearts of women would beat more happily could they feel that our own government had been true to the standard it now proposed to unfurl upon an international field. The grievance which every thinking, self-respecting American woman feels is the discrimination which invites to our land the men of all the nations of the earth, naturalizes them after five years residence, automatically enfranchises them under all state constitutions, and then commands American women to seek the ballot at their hands. These men have not been asked whether they want the vote of whether they will use it when they get it. No adequate demonstration of their fitness to vote is required; they are subjected to the strain of no long campaign, they find the privilege, a free grant awaiting them their arrival here. With the notions of woman's sphere in mind, which are formed in countries where the status of men is low and that of women lower, they are given the task of deciding whether American college presidents, teachers in public schools and the christian mistresses of our homes are worthy to be trusted with the vote.

"The most appealing argument in favor of the Federal Amendment is that every opponent of woman suffrage of high or low degree is frantically opposed to that method. We are opposed to the denial of the vote of half our people by piratical submarine election methods. It is the duty of Congress to rescue this question from further treatment of this kind. We are outstripped in the march of progress which was inaugurated by our country. If we are to recover place, there must be a 'Wake up America, and that at once.'

Patriotism depends on love of country and sense of responsibility to one's country. The responsibility in a democratic government like the United States rests with the voters. As long as one half the people are denied the vote, the sense of responsibility in one half the people will not be fully developed. Sons inherit from mothers as well as fathers. Does the country need patriotic and responsible men? Then it must develop patriotic women with a high sense of responsibility.

Woman Suffrage Means Patriotism: Women want vote because the ballot is an added means of serving their country, and is a great developer of responsibility. True Preparedness means the development of all the country's resources. Until the women of this nation are equally responsible with men one half of its resources will be neglected, and the country will not reach its full development of strength.

The adoption of the Federal Amendment is demanded by the National American Woman Suffrage Association definitely as a war measure. What have England and Canada come to, after three years of war experience, suffragists insist America should be ready to grant as means of preparation. It is known in advance they urge that women will bear as heavy a burden as will men in the solemn undertaking now before us—let them be equipped at once with the same rights as men in determining the methods of that undertaking.

Thousands and hundreds of thousands will be rushed into industry, they point out, without experience and without means of protection against their own exploitation—give them this protection without further delay.

"The cherished tradition of state rights so honestly believed in by many" writes Mrs. Catt to the two million members of her organization, "but so cleverly supported by every enemy of the cause, should be thrown aside in the emergency of this opportunity to nation-wide action foreign developments have made an utterly new condition here."

The call in part reads as follows: "In the confusion and excitement of this momentous period, and in the conflict of opinion as to the action which should or should not be taken there will be those who urge cessation of suffrage activity. On the contrary, we ought to make the most stupendous appeal to Congress yet made for the immediate submission of the Federal Amendment."

"In view of the fact that Canada has enfranchised the women of three-fourths of its provinces within a year; that the British Government, led by Premier Lloyd George and ex-Premier Asquith, has given public assurance in the House of Commons that they will give the vote to British women; that two of the three parties in Russia have promised the vote to women under the new government and that 'votes for women' are being discussed along with proposed widening of the franchise for men in Germany, it behoves this country of ours to awake.

"The only way our enfranchisement can be accomplished quickly is by the Federal Amendment route. The cherished tradition of state rights so honestly believed by many, but so cleverly supported by every enemy of the cause, should be thrown aside in the emergency of this opportunity for nation-wide action. These foreign developments have made an utterly new condition here. Do not underestimate its effect. Let us make a new slogan and pass it all along the line. The day of our deliverance is at hand."

JOTTINGS BY THE WAY.

(By REV. JAMES F. PRICE.)

"The strenuous life," it seems sometimes that I am old enough to "let up," and not to live so strenuous life. I will give a record of day, of May 1st, which is a sample of many others. I went to Sturgis on the early train, spent the day in Presbyterian work. I assisted in examining Chester M. Davis for ordination, preached the ordination sermon and took part in the ordination services. I came home on the late train made one pastoral visit, hoed my early potatoes, beans, beets and corn and wrote letters for two of our church papers that night.

I had rather expected to quit the field work and live a more quiet life, but the Executive Committee of Synod at its meeting in Louisville May 3rd, unanimously elected me to continue in my work. This gives me a large parish all of Kentucky and part of Tennessee. I cannot do my best work—only help the most needy places here and there.

I was impressed with the effort being made in central Kentucky, for a crop, every field, and patch, not in wheat, oats or grass, is being cultivated. Five herds of cattle and bunches of pigs and lambs show that these people are trying to make something to eat.

Too much of western Ky., grow up in weed fields. I never raised a crop of weeds. It is too exhaustive on the land. I kept my land not used for cultivated crops in clover, grass or peas. The preparations for war is in evidence everywhere, companies of soldiers are seen almost anywhere you go. Trains of army wagons and supplies are to be seen. The Red Cross was the most enthusiastic feature of the war in Louisville. They were trying to enlist 10,000 in the Red Cross of Louisville. The Fourth Avenue church enlisted its entire membership, 577.

Back in The Ohio

River Association.

Luka, Ky., May 6, 1917.

To my friends of Crittenden county. Greeting:—Well as I have been away from you for some months, I guess I had better give an account of myself, so here goes:

I entered Bethel college last September, and continued in same until the latter part of January, when—on account of my failing health—I was obliged to discontinue my course and retire to the quiet of my country home for a general rest, my nervous system having entirely broken down under the pressure of over much studying.

I was in college one-half school year and made good credits for one whole year. So you see why my nerves failed me.

I am back in the old Ohio River Baptist Association for the coming summer and early autumn. So if any true Baptists want or need some real Baptist preaching done in your revivals during this time, please commune with me as early as possible, for I would be glad to help in as many revivals as possible before returning to college in the late autumn.

Yours in Christ,

W. W. Croach,
Luka, Ky.
