BIG CROWD OUT LAST EVENING

The Largest Crowd Ever Seen in Marion After Dark Was Here To Hear Creatore's Band

Creatore and his band were greeted with the largest crowd ever seen in Marion. After sundown people from Princeton, Fredonia, Tolu and all surrounding towns began to pour in. A while Marion's Main drive looked like a real city. The chautauqua tent was full and not a single seat was available. A large crowd had to stand up outside the tent. It was said that 20 autos were here from Princeton alone. Everyone thoroughly enjoyed the band. The crowd was estimated inside and out at 1800 to 2000 people. 105 autos were parked on north Main street.

The Old Cemetery.

Every year some kind soul thinks of the old cemetery and those who have so long lain there in its silent precincts. Last year Mr. James T. Terry took the matter in charge. This year Judge C. E. Doss took the matter up and will look after it free of any compensation.

The following enterprising citizens have donated the amounts set opposite their names. If any ones name has been omitted please phone me. Later a list of expenditures will appear in these columns. S. M. Jenkins, Treasurer.

MRS. DOUGLASS DIES OF OLD AGE

Probably The Oldest Citizen in The County Succumbs After Several Weeks' Illness

Mrs. Elizabeth Douglas died Thursday morning June 21st, 1917 at 9:50 in the morning at the home of her daughter Mrs. Clara Carnahan, with whom she had made her home for several years. She had been gradually wearing out for a year past but did not suffer of any especial disease. She was in her 96th. year, having been born April 1st 1822. She and her husband and children came to Marion 50 years ago from Dycusburg where they resided a short time and where they located when first coming west, from Delhi, Delaware Co., Ohio, her birth place, soon after the close of the Civil war. They kept the 'Old White Tavern' on the block opposite the North East corner of the court square, which hotel burned in the early 70's.

Her husband, Nathaniel B. Douglas, died soon afterward leaving her a widow with several small children, whom she raised to manhood and womanhood, and educated to make useful citizens, all are dead excepting Mrs. Clara Carnahan, who resides here. Eleven grand children, 4 great grand children and one great great grand child survive her also.

Mrs. Douglass kept the hotel here many years and was known for and wide for her hospitality. She was of a genial and kind temperament and always a philosopher making the best of everything and taking life cheerfully. Mrs. Douglass in girl hood was Miss Elizabeth Christine Sloat of Delhi, Ohio. She had been a christian since childhood and was probably the oldest member of the Methodist Church here, in age as well as length of membership.

The funeral was preached by her pastor Rev. H. R. Short at the new Methodist church and the following old time friends bore the beloved and honored remains as pall bears.

G. C. Gray, W. D. Cannan, T. H. Cochran, F. W. Nunn, R. F. Haynes, J. F. Dodge.

The interment was in the new cemetery and many beautiful floral offerings were sent in by friends and one especially beautiful by the Ladies Aid and another by the Sunday School class, to which she belonged.

Mr. Rosell Pogue, one of our well known and popular young men, is now in the U. S. army service and located at Ft. Thomas as 1st. Private in the Hospital Corps. Mr. Pogue is the second son of Hon. M. F. Pogue of this city. He entered the service June 10, and will go from Ft. Thomas to Ft. Worth, Tex., for medical training, and from there to France with the second detachment of Gen. Pershing's army.—Princeton Leader.

Children's Day.

There will be Childrens Day exercises at Mt. Zion Church Sunday July 8th.

There will be a sermon especially for the young people and the children at 11 o'clock, dinner on the ground, and the childrens day exercises will be at 2:30 o'clock. You are cordially invited.

RECORD YOUR RESOURCES.

Show Your Patriotism By Coming to Your Voting Place July 7, And Registering

The Federal government through the Councils of National Defense has asked that every farmer and producer in this great country of ours give an accurate record of what he is producing.

The good business man makes a careful inventory of his assets and liabilities at least once a year. These inventories are necessary in order that he may know whether he is making or losing money. In this way only can he fortify his business against possible loss.

We are at war with one of the most powerful and the most brutal foe in the world. We must win this war, and in order to win we must throw all our resources into the struggle. Our resources consist of every thing that can be used against this enemy. It consists of men and money, it consists of all available material that can be used in war. It consists every available article food for man and animal.

We have got to feed our selves and our allies and to do this we must know how much food we will have when the present crop is harvested. We have been asked to ascertain what Crittenden Co will have to feed herself and to sell to others.

We feel that the people of this county are patriots enough to give one day to this work. We are asking you to come to your voting places Saturday July 7, and there record all your farm products. This will not take more than one half day for any one and we feel sure that you will be glad to do this for the good of your country.

We fear that our people do not realize the seriousness of the situation, twenty five thousand of our boys are at the front now, and they are fighting for us they are our representatives in this great struggle. Before many months pass we will have millions of soldiers in the trenches, but they are so far away that we do not grasp the situation as it confronts us.

Now suppose that a few bombs could be dropped from the clouds by the enemy air men into our community we would wake up and begin to ask what we can do, our patriotism would soon be at white heat and we would be ready to do any thing that our government called us to do.

It is our earnest desire that Crittenden county do her part and do it well. We have always been up and doing in the past so let us wake up to a realization of the situation, to the fact that we are in actual war and that we have got a part to play, that no one else can play for us, and like all good citizens do our duty and do it well.

A Gay House Party.

Miss Ruth Croft has as her house guests this week Misses Laura Cole of Atlanta, Ellen Lockett of Knoxville, Tenn., Messrs Robert Lucas and Robt. McClamrock of Frankfort, Ind., who are being entertained extensively and are enjoying the Chautauqua, and other festivities of the city.

THE CHAUTAUQUA HAS COME & GONE

A Week of High Class and Educational Entertainments Came to A Close Yesterday

The Redpath Chautauqua for 1917 is now in the past, but who can truthfully say we have not had a season of pleasure and relaxation well worth the cost. The program this year was far a head of any previously presented here and was good from the very beginning. That person who could not get the price of a season's ticket out of most any attraction offered has something wrong with his mechanism. The program embraced subjects to interest big, little, old and young, and Mr. Sybert, the director, was onto his job and came right up to the standard already set, by Dickie and others so popular here on previous engagements.

On Wednesday, June 20th, the Bohemian orchestra appeared in two engagements, and the six pieces were handled in marvelous fashion, furnishing a delightful prelude, to the big program, and was followed Monday evening by Dr. Martin, D. Hardin, in his great lecture, "America and the world of tomorrow." The speaker came not as a stranger to Marion, we feel that we knew him before. He is a son of P. Watt Hardin, a much loved public man in this state, and is a son-in-law of Adlai E. Stephenson, that figure in national history of whom democrats are so proud, and further we knew of him through Rufus and Roy Terry, two of our county boys now living in Chicago where they were members of Dr. Hardin's church, he has been a Presbyterian minister. It is said of his lecture, that the United States government released all war taxes from Redpath Chautauquas when it became known to the powers that be in Washington City, that Dr. Hardin's lecture was on the program. Every Chautauqua tent became at once a temple of liberty.

"I am not a 'peace at any price' man," declared Dr. Martin D. Hardin, whose peace lecture concerning the titanic struggle in Europe was declared by William J. Bryan to be "the strongest speech delivered in America on the European situation."

A Southerner by birth, Dr. Hardin is a man of Northern experience, until recently holding the pastorate of one of the largest of Presbyterian churches in Chicago, resigning to enter the lecture field.

The Beulah Buck Quartet, which appeared in prelude and full program Thursday is a type of company rarely found at the present time—a successful ladies' vocal quartet with eight years of platform experience. The Beulah Buck Quartet is one of the standard ladies' quartet of America. It is composed of four talented artists, whose individual charm and personality is equal to their ability.

Beulah Buck, the manager, reader, and second soprano of the company, is a graduate of one of the best schools of dramatic art in the United States.

Watt Hardin, a much loved public man in this state, and is a son-in-law of Adlai E. Stephenson, that figure in national history of whom democrats are so proud, and further we knew of him through Rufus and Roy Terry, two of our county joys now living in Chicago where they were members of Dr. Hardin's church, he has been a Presbyterian minister. It is said of his lecture, that the United States government released all war taxes from Redpath Chautauquas when it became known to the powers that be in Washington City, that Dr. Hardin's lecture was on the program. Every Chautauqua tent became at once a temple of liberty.

Dr. Hardin last year lectured on the topic, "Civilization at the Cross roads," speaking to large audiences in 112 cities on one of the Western Redpath circuits.

"I am not a 'peace at any price' man," declared Dr. Martin D. Hardin, whose peace lecture concerning the titanic struggle in Europe was declared by William J. Bryan to be "the strongest speech delivered in America on the European situation."

A Southerner by birth, Dr. Hardin is a man of Northern experience, until recently holding the pastorate of one of the largest of Presbyterian churches in Chicago, resigning to enter the lecture field.

The Beulah Buck Quartet, which appeared in prelude and full program Thursday is a type of company rarely found at the present time—a successful ladies' vocal quartet with eight years of platform experience. The Beulah Buck Quartet is one of the standard ladies' quartet of America. It is composed of four talented artists, whose individual charm and personality is equal to their ability.

Beulah Buck, the manager, reader, and second soprano of the company, is a graduate of one of the best schools of dramatic art in the United States.

PATRIOTISM

Support President In National Crisis—Wave Stars and Stripes at Battle Front in France.

DEMOCRACY AT STAKE

By Rev. Dr. NEWELL DWIGHT HILLIS, Pastor of Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, N. Y.

REV. DR. NEWELL DWIGHT HILLIS.

The duty of supporting our president and congress in the national crisis was the subject of the second of a series of sermons preached by Dr. Hillis, pastor of Plymouth church in Brooklyn, Dr. Hillis declared that patriotism is man's earliest, latest and profoundest sentiment and that the self sacrifice of our fathers pledges us to our country's defense. He said that the day when American boys carry the battle flag into the trenches of France will be a golden day in the history of liberty.

Following is the second sermon of the series:

Text—And his sword was dipped in heaven—Isaiah.

For the fifth time our republic has entered upon a war, defensive and offensive, against a foreign country. As in our four previous wars, so now congress has taken action only after threatened invasion of our land by a foreign army or after hundreds of American citizens have been murdered, our ships sunk, our property destroyed and our institutions threatened. In stating the issues of the war our president attained a high form of eloquence in a speech that will have a large place in the history of our country. Supreme eloquence means the meeting of three great things—a great man, a great crisis and a great principle. If the president's speech was less dramatic than Patrick Henry's speech at Williamsburg, less quotable than Abraham Lincoln's speech at Gettysburg, less picturesque than Wendell Phillips' in Faneuil hall or Beecher's speech at Liverpool, it remains for us to affirm that his address was a noble and impassioned plea for the safeguarding of free institutions for the human race.

Spirit of Democracy at Stake.

From the very beginning of this mighty conflict wise men saw that our entrance into this war was inevitable. Lincoln once said that a house divided against itself cannot stand; that the republic could not endure, half slave and half free; that it must become all one thing or all the other. Now, Europe is a house divided against itself, and therefore cannot stand. It cannot remain half autocratic and half democratic. It must become all one thing or all the other. Either Germany must conquer the allies and impose autocracy upon these free governments or the allies must conquer Germany for the overthrow of autocracy and militarism and make the German people truly democratic. The battle line therefore is between autocracy on the one hand and self government on the other. "New occasions teach new duties; time makes ancient good uncouth." Today, therefore, every individual, every city and every nation must take its stand for or against autocracy. Individual worth is the genius of American institutions. Every citizen is to be made wise, strong, self-sufficient, and therefore to be a citizen king, governing himself. The spirit of democracy, therefore, is at stake. John Milton once said that we had better kill a noble man than slay a noble book. Milton meant that God can raise up another man and fill him with truth and genius, but the book is the precious lifeblood of a prophet or seer, to be handed forward and reproduced in thousands or millions of men. Better, therefore, that we slay all the men of this republic than that we slay our institutions that should reproduce themselves in millions of free men that can become the architects of states and the builders of the commonwealth.

The Stars and Stripes to Wave at the Battle Front in France.

The great emancipator once said that he was not anxious as to whether or not God was on our side, but that he was deeply concerned with the question whether we were on God's side. By the action of congress our people are now where we should have been two and a half years ago, on the side of God's little ones for their protection, fighting for the republic of France, for the free institutions of the other allies and for the defense of our own republic. Men of fortitude and patriotism have often felt humiliated by the fact that we were piling up treasure in billions while France and England were fighting for the big mother ideas of liberty in Belgium, for which our fathers fought in 1776 in America. How thrilling the thought that from this hour our own soldier boys will carry the Stars and Stripes beyond the trenches, risking their lives for the great convictions of their fathers! In this critical hour for liberty and humanity the place for our boys is not the field, not the factory, not the store and bank; their place is with the Canadian boys at Cambrai and St. Quentin, and the place for our flag is above their trenches. Never was a nation under heavier obligations. We owe our allies a financial debt. Years ago they loaned us the money with which our western railways were built and the great northwestern states opened up to settlers. Our farmers owe our allies a debt. England and France bought their wheat, meat and cotton and paid prices high enough to enable the farmer to pay off his mortgage and put money in the bank. Our manufacturers and merchants owe a debt to the allies. They have sent to this country billions of dollars and purchased at the highest prices our tools, our locomotives, our autos, our iron and steel. But these material riches are the least of our obligations. France gave us the Jacquard loom, Italy gave us the marmalade, Belgium gave us the printing press, England gave us the bessemer steel, Scotland gave us the steam engine. In the realm of intellect England gave us Milton's plea for the liberty of the press, Darwin's theory of evolution; Scotland gave us Adam Smith's "Wealth of Nations"; France gave us authors as diverse as Victor Hugo, the novelist, and Calvin, the theologian; Belgium and Holland gave an asylum to the pilgrim fathers; Italy gave us our fine arts, with Savonarola and Dante. Our natural friends are the allies, who stand for the free institutions so dear to us and to our fathers. On the other hand, German autocracy and militarism are opposed to and have assaulted every free institution that belongs to our native land. The war with German autocracy and militarism, therefore, was inevitable. It is the war between light and darkness, liberty and tyranny, eternal right and wrong.

A War For Our Native Land.

Love for our native land bids us support our president and congress. Patriotism is man's earliest, latest and profoundest sentiment. As the lark loves to return to its own nest, as the bee loves the hive where it stores its honey, as the bird of paradise leaves the desert and returns to the oasis with its palms and fountains, so the traveler and the soldier long for the home land. Therefore it is that the noblest words in literature have concerned one's country. Witness the love of Jesus for Jerusalem, "the joy of the whole earth," and his sorrow when he wept at the thought of his country's overthrow and fall. Remember that all eloquence is born of a great theme. The greatness of Athens lent greatness to Pericles. The beauty of Florence, city of flowers and flower of cities, lent wisdom to Savonarola. Who can describe Martin Luther's passion for Germany, or Shakespeare's love for England, or Robert Emmet's love for Ireland, or Napoleon's love for France? But these lands are like tiny diamonds, while our country is a brilliant kohinoor, a veritable "mountain of light." Europe's soil has been injured by 2,000 years of tilling. Our country is a treasure trove stuffed with gold and gems. No other land is so rich in vineyards and orchards, in pastures and meadows, in herds and flocks. Our country is the world's granary, filled with bread for Europe's hunger. Our south is a vast cotton factory, holding warmth against the winter. Our rivers run over sands that sparkle with gold. Our hills are filled with silver and copper. Our plains are rich in iron and zinc. Our valleys are crowded with coal and oil and gas. Our great lakes hold one-half the fresh water of the globe. What forests in the northwest! What an oasis of flowers and fruit is California! What a casket of gems filled for a king is our Alaska! Our people number one-fifteenth of the human race, while our income is a quarter the total income of all the nations. Men in India and China always dwell near to starvation; but, lo, our people have abundance and to spare. God hath not dealt so with any other country. Our property has been used to build schools for the intellect, galleries for the imagination, churches for conscience, homes for happy families, halls of liberty, law, art and science.

The Self Sacrifice of Our Fathers Pledges Us to Our Country's Defense.

The self sacrifice of our fathers pledges us to support our president and congress. The history of heroism holds no brighter chapter than the story of the pilgrim fathers landing in December, standing waist deep in icy waters and carrying the women and children ashore to set them down midst snows. Then they lifted their axes upon the trees, opened up the dark forests and builded their cabins. These, clinging to the edge of the forest, were always open to attack by Indians with their tomahawks and firebrands. Within sixteen years they founded Harvard college, developed the town meeting, and within a hundred years they settled the edge of the Atlantic ocean, 1,500 miles long and a hundred miles deep. Then they planned the settlement of the great west. One of their number standing on the top of the Allegheny mountains, with hand lifted to his ears, told his Indian guide that he was listening to the tramp of coming millions. On and on the settlers pushed their way. Breathing the poison of the new soil, they burned with fever and chilled with ague. Living in their little log cabins, they toiled in summer, starved in winter, but studied always. Once the advancing columns of covered wagons had reached the Missouri they organized a new attack, started for the tops of the Rocky mountains, poured down into California as the ragged soldiers of Xenophon down to the shores of the Black sea, chanting, "The sea, the sea!" But wherever our forefathers went they carried with them ideals of the church, the schoolhouse, the college and the legislative hall. With such a heritage of heroism behind us we cannot be idlers, cowards or traitors. Our fathers have given vows for us through their self sacrifice, just as Wordsworth refused an overture of $1,000 salary to become a poet and live on $100 because his "father had given vows for him and made pledges." And when the cords of our better nature, stretching from every heart and hearthstone to the graves of our forefathers, are touched by the angels of our better nature we, too, will give forth the music of liberty and humanity. We must be free whose ancestors were the pilgrim fathers. The institutions that our allies in France today are defending are the very ideals for which our own forefathers struggled and died. The democracy that our president would have us safeguard incarnates the patriotism of Washington, the clear vision of Hamilton, the earnest love of equal rights of Jefferson, the intellectual majesty of Webster, the universal pity and love which were the glory of Lincoln. And the struggle of our young soldiers and sailors will be to preserve, strengthen and hand forward the principles of self government that were achieved by the self sacrifice of our forefathers.

What the Republic Does For Poor Boys

It is the glory of this republic that the entire resources of all the people are held as trust funds for the strengthening of each individual youth. The genius of our democracy is "all the people for each individual, and each man for all." In an autocratic country like Germany the patriotic few hold most of the land, the income and the offices, while the millions of poor are held down in their place as burden bearers. But here all the people tax themselves to build the free school, open to all young hearts. All the people unite their resources for army and navy to protect this poor boy and his home. The multitudes unite their gold that each ambitious youth may enter a free church and a free library and a free gallery. In the republic the test of any institution, tool or law is, Does it promote the happiness and well being of all the people? We welcome the loom because it makes raiment cheap for the poor. We welcome the auto and the locomotive because they redeem the people from drudgery. We welcome the new printing press because it sows the land with wisdom and knowledge. Formerly only the king and the baron could have paintings, missals, warm houses, golden chariots, but now the workman has an equal chance at the papers, the books, a chance for travel on palace cars and ocean steamers. What! This country owe you a living? Rather do you owe your country ten thousand sacrifices. What treasures have you received freely at the hands of your country? As a young man you read great books you never wrote. You sing hymns you did not compose. You ride on cars you did not build. You are protected by laws you did not enact, are guided by a flag whose stripes are stained with the blood of your fathers. All you have done was to get yourself born into this country and lay hands upon treasures beyond the riches of a king. Liberty has given to you good measure, pressed down, shaken together and running over, and as you have received so must you give as soldier or sailor, nurse or physician.

A Glorious Day.

The day when American boys carry the battleflag into the trenches of France will be a golden day in the history of liberty. The spectacle will electrify the world, hearten our allies and dismay our enemies. That our entrance into this war will hasten the coming of peace and end the last war that will curse our earth let us firmly believe. For peace will come soon, come to stay, and so come as to be worth the keeping in all future time. Let us recall Lincoln's words as we "diligently apply the means, never doubting that a just God, in his own good time, will give us the rightful results." For the peace for which we are struggling is a permanent peace that springs from justice, liberty and self government; a peace that is based upon the sanctity of treaty; the peace that safeguards the rights of little lands; the peace that follows the overthrow of autocracy and the emancipation of the oppressed; the peace that safeguards free institutions against all organized militarism. For that peace the widows of Belgium will thank us; for that peace the mothers of France who have offered their boys as a costly sacrifice will bless us; for that peace the common people of England, Russia and Canada will praise us. For this is the peace of which the angels of good will sang 2,000 years ago—a peace that is as firm as the mountains and as enduring as the stars because it is based upon the eternal principles of justice, liberty and humanity.

GENERAL KING PRAISES THE HILLIS SERMONS

Letter of General Horatio C. King, former commander of the Army of the Potomac, urging the papers of the country to reprint Dr. Hillis' sermons:—

As one of Mr. Beecher's oldest friends and one who can recall the days of the civil war I feel very deeply the crisis upon our country. This whole land should become a school of patriotism. Many public men have said that they wished that the people of the entire country could hear or read and study this course of sermons now being delivered to audiences that crowd Plymouth church to the roof. I notice that you are doing your bit by making it possible for all the "people of your community to read these addresses. Why cannot the preachers of the country restate them to their congregations? Why cannot our schoolteachers use these addresses as the basis of a brief talk to the boys and girls in the public schools? Thank God, our editors realize how critical is the hour! The newspapers of the country must in these momentous days turn the whole land into a big school room. As an old soldier I want to send out my plea that editor and preacher and schoolteacher and citizen emphasize one word—patriotism, patriotism, and still patriotism—with love for God, liberty and our native land. Very sincerely yours, HORATIO C. KING

Terrible Suffering From Headache, Sideache, Backache, and Weakness, Relieved by Cardui, Says This Texas Lady.

Gonzales, Tex.—Mrs. Minnie Philpot, of this place, writes: "Five years ago I was taken with a pain in my left side. It was right under my left rib. It would commence with an aching and extend up into my left shoulder and on down into my back. By that time the pain would be so severe I would have to take to bed and suffered usually about three days. ... I suffered this way for three years and got to be a mere skeleton and was so weak I could hardly stand alone. Was not able to go anywhere and had to let my house work go. ... I suffered awful with a pain in my back and I had the headache all the time. I just was unable to do a thing. My life was a misery, my stomach got in an awful condition, caused from taking so much medicine. I suffered so much pain. I had just about given up all hopes of my getting anything to help me.

One day a Birthday Almanac was thrown in my yard. After reading its testimonials I decided to try Cardui, and am so thankful that I did for I began to improve when on the second bottle. ... I am now a well woman and feeling fine and the cure has been permanent for it has been two years since my awful had health. I will always praise and recommend Cardui." Try Cardui today. E 75

The Red Cross must be the symbol in which America goes forth to conquer. All other forms of conquest we have renounced. Ours is the task not merely to supply millions of men and mountains of foodstuffs, ships and the weapons of warfare; we must rebuild cities and hearten war worn people, pour oil on their wounds and bind them up, kneel by the dying and receive from their lips the simple testament of the faith in which we are to rise, fight toward and finally rest on our arms victorious.—New York Sun.

Took Her Honeymoon Alone.

Mrs. Arthur Johnson, of Sandpoint, Idaho, went on her honeymoon all alone, while Arthur himself stayed at home and purchased cigars for "the boys."

That wasn't the way the bridal tour was planned, however, according to the Spokane Chronicle. The young people were married at Sandpoint and bought tickets for Spokane. Friends escorted them to the train and, just as it was about to pull out, took the groom from the coach and left the bride to set out "by her lonesome."

Four hours later, after Johnson had been marched through the streets and forced to set up the smokes for all concerned, he was permitted to take another train for Spokane.—Exchange.

The Futility of Trying To Purchase Friendship

By Porter Emerson Browne of the Vigilantes.

AMONG the mistakes natural to a government that has been committed to peace as long as the United States has maintained it none is more fatal toward world respect than the effort to purchase the friendship of other nations by a cash or equivalent consideration.

Governments, like individuals, are respected not because of what they have, but because of what they are. Governments that are strong, honest, intelligent and honorable are respected automatically, just as are citizens possessing the same qualities. But for a government to say to Colombia, "I'll give you $25,000,000 to stimulate a feeling of cordiality," or to Carranza, "I'll let you have $100,000 rounds of ammunition as a bond of good feeling," both of which actions we have taken, is precisely like going to a man you don't like and who doesn't like you and saying to him, "If you'll like me I'll give you $4." If friendship could be bought like that, why not give him $8 and have him like you twice as much?

PORTER EMERSON BROWNE.

Friendship and respect are not purchasable commodities. If they were, they'd be on sale, like eggs or button-hooks or small pea beans, and a man could drop into the nearest department store and say, "Send me up sixteen friends and a couple of yards of respect that won't ravel or crock."

We of the United States must learn that we can't buy the friendship and respect of other nations. We must earn them. And we can't earn them vicariously. We must earn them by the strength of our characters, the loftiness of our aims, the cleanness of our souls and the fitness of our national honor.

To do otherwise is to emulate the sapheaded son of wealth who thinks by buying wine for everybody he is accumulating friends. People may drink the wine, but they do so while saying to themselves, "The poor sucker! I wonder what asinine trick he'll try next."

Men and women are liked and respected because they are honest, honorable, fearless and clean. Nations are liked for the same qualities.

Whereby, if the United States wants the friendship and respect of other nations, let it appeal to those other nations on the basis, and the only basis, that makes friendship and respect possible.

America Unafraid

By Charles Hanson Towne of the Vigilantes.

AMERICA will wake to the stern task before her. She will break the bonds of sloth and dull indifference. And, with the soul of Lincoln in her eyes, Dare to be great and wise; Dare to be valiant with the valor still That echoes from the crest of Bunker Hill.

The valor that gave Grant and Lee their fame; After the battle flame; The valor that has kept our country whole

While the clean years unroll; The valor that has given us all body and heart and soul!

America will be As one in her old love of Liberty. She will remember naught of party and creed In her great hour of need;

But one in spirit, one in high accord, Her people will await the final word

That bids them strike for Justice. Her keen sword Will never be unsheathed, save in the name of Christ, our Lord!

There is a fear Running through our broad country, far and near; A rumor that fool traitors at our gate Whisper, and plan, and wait; A rumor that beneath us crawls the hostile worm of hate. * * *

It may be so! But I believe that now Each man can disavow Old enmities and, loyal to the end, Count it his privilege to be his country's friend;

Count it his right to suffer for the land That hailed him and stretched forth a welcoming hand

When he, heartbroken, from an alien shore, Came as a stranger to our open door.

America, beware! Lest, knowing the red burden you must bear,

You falter now! We pray for Peace, White Peace; Yet if soft days must cease,

We shall go forth, fearless and as one, Until our task for Liberty is done.

Pass Billion Mark.

Washington, June 26.—For the first time in American history ordinary receipts of the Treasury have passed the billion dollar mark in a fiscal year.

The great sum has been anticipated, however, in the plan for raising war revenues and it does not alter the administration plans for taxation as all the available money from all sources will be needed.

Up to today the total was $,015,381,817, as compared with $660,400,953 a year ago today, an increase of approximately $355,000,000, a million dollar a day.

The bulk of the huge increase is due to the increased income taxes and earlier payments. A total of $24,966,278 has been collected thus far this fiscal year, the next largest item is from other internal revenue, totaling approximately $425,000,000, an increase of about $60,000,000 over last year.

Customs receipts show a total thus far of $217,578,408, an increase of approximately $14,200,000.

During the last twenty-four hours approximately $41,500,000 was received at the Treasury, the largest day of the year thus far.

The Evils of Constipation

Constipation is one of the main reasons why the average human life is below 40 years. Leaving waste material in the body, poisons the system and blood and makes us liable to sick headaches, biliousness, nervousness and muddy skin. When you note these symptoms, try Dr. King's New Life Pills. They give prompt relief, are mild, non-gripping in action, add tone to your system and clear the complexion. At your druggist, 25c. 1

Meals at Kavanaugh Camp.

It is psychologically true that happiness and good humor during meals aids one in keeping healthy. Doubtless you have always been taught that it is a breach of etiquette for one to sing at the table. However, realizing the value of happiness and good humor the campers forget etiquette in order to sing. At times the dining room re-echoes with the sounds of merry singing. One group of people vies with another in singing songs of loyalty to its conference, or songs of praise to the conference leaders. No favor, no honor won, goes unnoticed by this hungry, healthy band of young people. Don't forget to register in time. Write to Miss Helen McCanless, 1141 S. Floyd St., Louisville, Ky.

PLAN OF AERIAL COAST PATROL

Picked Line of Sea Planes For Defense Against Germany.

By Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary, U. S. N., of the Vigilantes.
Chairman of the National Aerial Patrol Commission.

THE plan to establish an aerial coast patrol, consisting of a chain of aviation stations, one at every fifty or 100 miles along our coasts, is developing fast. The inexorable logic of actual events is working powerfully for it. The public interest in the plan has been great, and the co-operation of the commission has been sought by communities and groups of individuals throughout the country who wish to establish stations in their localities.

REAR ADMIRAL R. E. PEARY.

At the time the plan for the aerial coast patrol was proposed, about two years ago, international conditions were much different, no unattended war submarine had crossed the Atlantic, and the possibility of a submarine making such a crossing was denied by most people, including some high naval authorities. In outlining the plans for the aerial coast patrol we decided, therefore, on a bare skeleton organization, allowing only one aeroplane in connection with each unit.

The revolutionary changes that have taken place make it necessary to expand the plan, increasing the number of aeroplanes to each unit to four.

The aerial coast patrol is to provide a continuous picket line of seaplanes or flying boats fifty miles or more off shore around our entire coasts from Eastport, Me., to Brownsville, Tex., and from San Diego, Cal., to Cape Hatteras, Wash., each machine traveling back and forth over its section, or "beat," a winged scout, forming a cordon, a continuous line of whirling shuttles, weaving a blanket of protection around the country.

By means of the wireless, information as to the character, number and apparent destination of approaching ships will be transmitted to the shore stations and from these to Washington, whence if the ships are hostile or dangerous will issue directing the movements of our fleet and the submarine squadrons for the preparation of the coast defenses and for the concentration of troops if necessary, while reserve planes hurrying out will keep the approaching craft under continuous inspection while themselves invisible.

Such a system is a departure. The like of it exists nowhere at present, and yet it involves no new principle, but is simply the utilization and multiplication of the known capabilities of a single seaplane.

Had there been such a system round the British Isles the Lusitania horror would not have occurred.

Let us note the advantage of this system in war now that war has been declared. This advance notice of the approach of the enemy is the first step. In modern warfare hours and even minutes may spell victory. The enemy is still unaware that his approach is known, for the sentinel seaplane was invisible to him. With the next step a cloud of seaplanes sweep out in such numbers as to overwhelm and destroy the enemy's aeroplanes, leaving him blinded. Then follow the squadrons of great battle triplanes, each machine carrying several tons of high explosives to drop upon the hostile fleet. You can imagine the result.

We should have at a minimum not less than 2,000 hydroaeroplanes available on each coast, and we should have an aviator class in numbers like our present chauffeur class.

This is a matter of pressing individual interest to Philadelphia, to Baltimore, to Washington, to Portland, to Seattle and other cities. In an aviation sense these cities are just as much coast cities as New York, or Boston, or Norfolk, or San Francisco.

In the present development of the science of aviation a tramp steamship with a squadron of aeroplanes and a few tons of high explosives, creeping in shore in thick weather, might ruin any one of these cities in a single night.

The coast patrol, however, is but one feature of the country's needed aerial development. To obtain that development, to give us an air service sufficient for our protection, to secure for us that vital command of the air, there is one inside thing which we should have now: A department of aeronautics, separate from and independent of both the army and the navy, its head a member of the presidential cabinet in full and undivided control of a comprehensive aero coast defense system, which our peculiar geographical position and extended coast line render imperative; of a system of aviation training schools, located in each of the principal geographical divisions of the country, and of the civil and commercial avenues of aeronautic usefulness.

With our resources and mechanical genius under the spur of concentrated and undivided attention, such a department may in the near future be more vital to our national safety and integrity than either the navy or the army.

Gregory Announces Government Policy On Non Registered.

Washington, June 20.—Attorney General Gregory today outlined the policy of the Department of Justice in handling registration cases. Those who omitted registering through ignorance or inattention are being permitted to register. Those who wilfully neglected to register are being permitted to enroll but are being placed under bonds. Those who continue to defy the law are being imprisoned or held to the grand jury under substantial bonds.

New York, June 20.—A penitentiary sentence of eleven months and twenty-nine days for not registering under the selective draft law was imposed in federal court here today on Herman P. Levine was given an opportunity to register after registration day passed and refused because he did not "think it right."

Is Afraid Of Greece.

Geneva, Tuesday, June 19, via Paris. The semi-official Balkan news agency says that King Ferdinand, of Bulgaria, has been impressed deeply by the abdication of King Constantine, and considers it certain former Premier Venizelos will take office at the head of the government and that Greece will enter the war against Bulgaria. King Ferdinand therefore intends to go shortly to the German government headquarters to demand assistance. Consternation has been caused in Sofia by Constantine's abdication.

COCOANUT PANTRY FOR BIRDS NEAR THE HOME

An excellent food receptacle for birds may be made by cutting a hole in a coconut and stuffing the shell full of chopped suet and nuts or some other food mixture.

COCOANUT LARDER FOR BIRDS.

Says an expert of the United States department of agriculture. The shell can be hung from a limb. Holes bored in pieces of thick lumber may be used instead of a cavity in a coconut. Feeding hoppers like those used for poultry may be employed for birds on food shelves or on the ground.

ENEMIES OF HOUSE BIRDS

[From United States department of agriculture.]

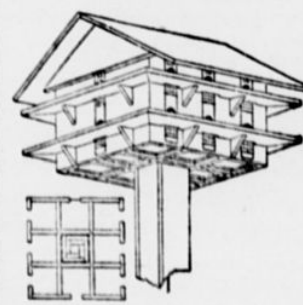

Birds have numerous enemies from which a careful landlord will try to guard them. Among these is the English sparrow, whose persistent attacks too often drive more desirable birds away from their nests and from the neighborhood. Those who wish to free their premises of these sparrows will find recommendations in farmers' bulletin 493, "The English Sparrow as a Pest." European sparrows are to be condemned for their pernicious interference with native house birds.

Cats and large snakes are enemies of birds, the former perhaps killing more birds than any other mammal. Trees and poles supporting houses should be sheathed with tin or galvanized iron to prevent these enemies from climbing to the nests. Squirrels give more or less trouble by gnawing houses, eating eggs and killing nestlings. Red squirrels in particular have a very bad reputation in this respect, and many experimenters keep their grounds free from them. Some regard flying squirrels as but little better than red ones. Even gray and fox squirrels are occasionally troublesome. Never kill a squirrel unless there is reason to believe that it has acquired the habit of eating eggs or young birds. The result will probably be that not more than one red squirrel in fifty nor more than one gray squirrel in 100 will have to be killed.

NICE FLAT FOR MARTINS

[From United States department of agriculture.]

Martin houses are built on the apartment plan to satisfy the social instinct so marked in martins, but so conspicuously lacking in most other birds. They usually contain not less than ten or twelve rooms and for this reason are relatively complicated, especially if they are miniatures of elaborate buildings, as is often the case. Like the single room houses, they should be easy to inspect and clean from top to bottom and, if possible, should be made proof against the English sparrow. An attempt to combine these essentials in a plain house is illustrated. The body of this house slides upon its pole, to the top of which the roof is solidly attached. The pole is hollow and opened for cleaning by turning a button and removing the bottom. This house is easy to build and if suitably proportioned is adapted to a great variety of birds. It may be constructed in two sizes—one for bluebirds and the other for screech owls or sparrow hawks.

We are authorized to announce
as a candidate for County School Superintendent of Crittenden county, subject to the action of the Republican primary, August 4th, 1917.

Nothing but an earnest love for one's country, and a desire to assist suffering humanity, at a time when the United States is calling loudly for workers in the field—nothing but patriotism in the hearts of the true manhood and true womanhood of America, could enable the "Red Cross" to do the things which must be done and done immediately.—Southern Magazine.

Hebron Sunday School Is Well Organized.

The Hebron Sunday school is well organized and progressing nicely at the present time. There are quite a number of pupils in the different classes and they are manifesting a considerable amount of interest. Both teachers and superintendent are rendering capable and efficient service. We believe that the people of the Hebron vicinity are possessed of a greater intelligence and a higher culture than the inhabitants of any other community that your correspondent has ever been acquainted with. This opinion is not given through prejudice or any desire to unduly exaggerate the qualities of these people but it is a plain, straightforward and honest belief which is based upon a considerable amount of experience and observation in other neighborhoods outside of Hebron vicinity.

"Impossible" is a word which can be applied in more ways than one. It is utterly impossible for a man to go through this life and please everybody all at the same time. No matter how good you may be; no matter what service you may render for the cause of humanity; you will always be hated by some one and always be criticized by some of the people. Jesus Christ was the most perfect individual that the world has ever known but He was hated very bitterly and criticised unmercifully by quite a number of people.

Thos. A. Enoch and wife drove over to the residence of R. B. Gregory, her father, one day last week to assist Mrs. Enoch's brother, Wm. D. Gregory, in robbing a bee-tree. His snakeship had sucked every drop of honey from the comb, and was as fat and slick as a mole. Mrs. Enoch finally killed the snake and then persuaded Tom and Will to come up and assist her in hiving the bees which after much persuasion they did. The snake was s x feet long.

Loyd's Brain Leaks.

Uncle Billy Loyd says, My wife can compel me to go to church, but she can't compel me to listen to the sermon.

Ed Baker says, Half of the women think how fine it would be to have a husband, and the other half think how fine it would be to be single again.

Uncle Dave Woods says, It is hard to believe it, but you can get a pretty good idea of what a girl will look like when she is 40 by getting a good look at her mother.

Uncle Dock Green says, I know a man who doesn't think that his wife talks too much, but he has only been married four days.

Charley Byrd says, Another wall-eyed liar is the man who tells you that he isn't afraid of lightning.

Newt Dollar says, A woman sure has her troubles. If she doesn't paint, her beauty fades; and if she does paint, her beauty rubs off.

Uncle Dock Green says, You don't have to land a pop-eyed, curly haired hero to get a good husband, girls. Grab an ordinary fellow who is good to his mother his sister and you won't make a mistake.

Uncle Gus Bentley says, It will not profit you anything to put whip and spurs to your brain if you neglect to bridle your tongue

GETTING A START

By
Nathaniel C. Fowler, Jr.

(Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)
THE LISTENER.

Every man who does not know anything, and most men who do know something, love to talk about what they think they know, or do know.

The close-mouthed merchant, the "yea, yea, nay, nay" sort of a fellow, who uses his mind more than his mouth, will, if encouraged, talk for hours upon any subject in which he is intensely interested. His head is a storehouse of information, and, although it may have more entrances than exits, he will open himself to anyone who knows how to knock at the door of his mind.

I have a friend who, although not liberally educated, possesses more general information to the square inch than 99 per cent of educators have to the square foot, and that is one hundred and forty-four to one. He obtained this knowledge largely because he was a good listener and possessed the ability to make others talk. If he were riding on a train he would select from among the passengers the man who he thought was intelligent and carried with him a heavy stock of information. In a diplomatic way he would discover the stranger's business or profession and the subject in which he was the most interested. He would turn the conversation in that direction, asking an intelligent question here and there, and showing deep interest in the subject. He seldom failed to obtain the desired result. He met all classes of people, from the classical student to the keeper of a meat market, and from each he drew a supply of information, much of which, naturally, was valueless. He had sense enough, however, to realize that he could not expect to receive valuable information alone; that he must be content with chaff as well as with wheat; but from each he drew something worth while. The worth while he remembered; the worthless he forgot.

Conversation is, I believe, the best medium for the obtaining of information. Everybody has something of his own of which he is proud, and which he is willing to distribute.

Bear in mind, however, that the listener is only half a man. He must give, if he would receive. He, therefore, is not only a good listener, but a good distributor. He exchanges what he knows for what others know, plays a game of mutual winning, giving what he can afford to spare, and taking from others what they are willing to distribute.

Social as well as business life is based upon exchange.

Education does not consist of receiving and of not distributing.

If you give freely to others, they will as freely give to you.

Conversation, rightly turned, leads to profit, and is that kind of work which is both recreation and business. While you should give the preference to the acquiring of information which is directly in your line, do not confine your mental receipts to that alone. Familiarity with general affairs, even though many of them may not be of direct benefit to you, broadens the mind and makes you better able to use that part of the information received which is a part and parcel of your livelihood-making.

Don't be afraid of knowing too much.

BREWER'S BLACKBIRD

(Euphagus cyanocephalus)

Length, ten inches. Its glossy purplish head distinguishes it from other blackbirds that do not show in flight a trough-shaped tail.

Range: Breeds in the West, east to Texas, Kansas, and Minnesota, and north to southern Canada; winters over most of the United States breeding range, south to Guatemala.

Habits and economic status: Very numerous in the West and in fall gathers in immense flocks, especially about barnyards and corrals. During the cherry season in California Brewer's blackbird is much in the orchards. In one case they were seen to eat freely of cherries, but when a neighboring fruit raiser began to plow his orchard almost every blackbird in the vicinity was upon the newly opened ground and close at the plowman's heels in its eagerness to get the insects exposed by the plow. Caterpillars and pupae form the largest item of animal food (about 12 per cent). Many of these are cutworms, and cotton bollworms or corn earworms were found in ten stomachs and codling-moth pupae in 11. Beetles constitute over 11 per cent of the food. The vegetable food is practically contained in three items—grain, fruit, and weed seeds. Grain, mostly oats, amounts to 34 per cent; fruit, largely cherries, 4 per cent; and weed seeds, not quite 9 per cent. The grain is probably mostly wild, volunteer, or waste, so that the bird does most damage by eating fruit.

heroine of them all is "mother." Boys and girls you can hardly realize mother is a heroine can you? Yet one day mother wore pretty dresses though entirely different from the dresses we wear today, but mother was as pretty and attractive then, as we are now.

But that was long years ago before mother became a heroine. Those were sweet heart days when mother like you do now dreamed of the perpetual love-making of the one man to whom she had given her heart and life. But husbands neglect their wives for other company, they forget to admire them; forget the promises they have made them, the vows made before God and man, even the kiss is forgotten.

Poor mother we do not know the suffering and heart-ache she has to endure. The roses leave her cheeks. There are lines of care upon her brow while silver threads twine among her once dark locks. But she becomes accustomed to it, her girlish dreams have vanished but her children can fill the aching void in her heart.

So it goes on year after year the toil and drudgery through your baby-hood, child-hood, school days and until college time is reached. Then comes on extra talk, her girls and boys must have the same chance as others and many times our dear mothers have made sacrifices for our comfort. Many times has she done without a new dress, hat or other things that she should have, just to buy something for her boys and girls. Mother wants us to have a good time and enjoy life but father calls it nonsense, he has long forgotten his romance but mother, dearest mother, has not.

And then when diphtheria comes or your breath tainted with fever, who held the cup of cold water to the parched lips, who bent over us night and day and fought away the greatest of enemies, (death,) who but mother, my mother and yours.

Next to God the sweetest name is "mother." When you grow up, boys and girls, if you should attain wealth and honor, give the praise to mother for it was she who you have gained it without her loving and tender care?

Don't neglect your mother for new found friends but remember that she always cares for you, your friends may be like shadows, keep close to you in the sunshine and desert you on a cloudy day. Father may turn his back upon you and drive you from his door, but mother will always love you no matter how great your sin or how you wound her gentle heart she will forgive you.

If you notice a care-worn look upon her face, kiss it away. Get up in the morning, girls, and get breakfast and when mother comes in and begins to express her surprise go right up to her and kiss her, you do not know how it will brighten her dear face and cheer her heart. Besides it is a duty you owe your mother, you owe her kisses too for far away back in your childhood mother kissed you when no one else would, you were not so attractive then as you are now and through those childhood days of care and sorrow she was always ready to cure with a mother's kiss those little dirty chubby hands when ever they were injured.

She may not be as pretty and kissable as you are but if you would do your share of the work the contrast would not be so marked. Show your mother that you appreciate her don't neglect her for gay times at parties, balls, theaters and such things. She will leave you one of these days, these burdens she has to bear will break her down if they are not lifted from her shoulders. Those lips that you have neglected to kiss, will be forever closed and those eyes that have smiled upon you so many times will

My Mother And Yours.
What is home without a mother? It is a desolate home, there is something gone, one chair is vacant that never can be filled. Mother is our best friend and when she is gone we have no one to sympathize with us in our sorrows or pleasures. Other folks may love you but only mother understands.

Then we read of the bravery of the ladies of today, who are giving up home, comfort and loved ones to nurse the wounded and dying heroes of today's battle-field our minds go back to the heroes and heroines in generations past and gone. Those who did their part in that other great war. We do not realize that in our very reach is the greatest

PATRIOTIC PLOWING

The St. Paul Garden Bureau Encourages Community Gardening
FIFTY-FIVE Saint Paul families will become soldiers of the soil when as many gardens are planted on the 14-acre tract of land given by a local real estate firm for the use of home gardens. The tract has been divided into lots of 30 by 60 feet, and each family will plant a supply of vegetables.
The land has never before been under cultivation. Children cleared the land of rubbish and the city hauled it away.
The land has been made ready for seeding by a Studebaker tractor made by the F. G. Studebaker Manufacturing Company, Saint Paul, Minnesota.
The tractor attachment is brought into service by removing the back wheels of a Ford automobile and replacing the Ford wheels with the tractor device. While the picture shows three men operating it, the work is generally done by one man and a power plow.
Flags will be put up on the plot and also placards distributed by the Saint Paul Gardening Bureau, reading, "Honor the flag by protecting this garden as a part of the nation's food supply."
This tract will be one of the largest community gardens in Saint Paul. It is estimated that 500 acres of city property never before cultivated are being used for gardens in Saint Paul this year.

Chautauqua has Come and Gone

At one time she was teacher of dramatic art and drawing room department in the Hinshaw Conservatory. Mrs. Buck is a talented reader and impersonator.

The Beulah Buck Quartet at the evening concert presented a sketch in Colonial costume entitled "Now and Then" and met with great success in the presentation of this sketch which was composed by Beulah Buck and was interspersed with old time songs, ballads and the "minuet." The old-time costumes hoopskirts, pantalets and polk bonnets were exceedingly amusing.

After the concert the Fogleman lecture "An Analysis of Success and Failure," followed at the rate of 350 words per minute.

"Gatling Gun" Fogleman is the name often given to this lecturer because of the speed with which he hurls his verbal shots and can be distinctly heard in all parts of the big tent. Coupled with this remarkable verbal speed is a personal magnetism which is almost hypnotic. He holds his audience from the start.

He is not a theorist. He has actually made a success in business himself. When he was salesman selling locomotives, he made sales running from $5,600 to $625,000. He has taught more men how to sell than other men in the United States. He has addressed the employers and employee of all the big business houses of the country. Ten years ago he was down and out physically and financially, and he made himself succeed. "This lecture was worth the price of the season ticket to me," said one of our prominent business men.

Friday afternoon's lecture "Moonshine," by Mr. McDonald, of Newark, Ohio, was indeed a treat. Unique and original, the speaker held his audience to hear the last word and many rushed up to grasp his hand and to thank him for the message he brought to his hearers. Mr. McDonald was a practicing attorney many years and had the opportunity of studying men and human nature and particularly has he delved deep into the subject of dual living. Sham was ruthlessly exposed in Mr. McDonald's lecture and fraud held up before the public in its true aspect. His "Moonshine" had a salutary effect on every one who heard it.

The Oratorio artists gave a prelude Friday afternoon and full concert in the evening which was greatly enjoyed by those who are partial to grand opera.

Saturday the Spanish trio, Sala Bros., The Princess Watahwaso and Fraulein Marie Mayer, were three strong attractions. The soft sweet strains of this trio on violin, cello and piano, were pronounced by critics to have been the finest music on those instruments ever heard here.

The real Indian Princess in her recital of the history of her people, their home life, their songs, legends and dances was one of the bright spots in the program. Princess Watahwaso is an attractive young woman, educated and refined, handsome and magnetic in manner, and her appearance assisted in making the fourth day probably the most interesting up to that time. Miss Marie Mayer in her talk of the "Passion Play," feelingly portrayed to her audience how the town of Oberammergau draws people from all parts of the world to see this scene in the Savior's life staged as it is there and no where else on earth. She has only been in America three years but loves it and its freedom now in the true spirit of patriotism.

Monday was "Mikado" day and this world famous light opera was presented here in all its glory and to the delight of every one who saw it. The tent and wings were crowded to capacity and although the hours were long many were heard to say "they could have stayed another hour." The presentation was in gorgeous costumes and bright colors typical of the flower kingdom. Few people here realize the immensity of this attraction. A special car load of scenery was received and used here. The Light company was called on for a 15 K. W. transformer for this night and requisitioned the largest one in use in the city, by taking down a 300 lighter and installing a smaller one for use in its place while it supplied the juice for the "Mikado." The Gilbert and Sullivan Opera Company, which appeared in the afternoon at 8 o'clock was the same to present the "Mikado" at 8 o'clock in the evening.

Tuesday afternoon George L. McNutt, of New York City, the man who invented the fireless cooker, spoke on "How to Meet The High Cost of Living," and gave some good advice and logical reason as to how we can save on our grocery bills, if we'll just do it. This is a very important lecture just at this time when the government is calling on every one to conserve in every way possible our food supply, and should be taken seriously by us all. Tuesday night's first attraction was the "Mother Goose Festival," under the direction of Miss Hallie Collins, assisted by about 150 of our little folks and the Junior girls. It was a delightful little play and all of our little folks did themselves proud, and when the Juniors came on the stage they presented a dream of loveliness rarely ever seen and never to be forgotten. Miss Collins who has charge the children's hour each morning during the Chautauqua, is a charming young woman and her influence over the children was something wonderful and her ability as a leader and trainer never surpassed here. We hope she'll come again next year, and have charge of our children, all of whom learned to love her during her short stay.

Lieutenant Robert Bowman's famous lecture on "Verdon," illustrated depicted unquestionably, the horrors of the war as it is now being carried on, on many fields in France and other parts of Europe. Lieutenant Bowman exhibited many momentos and war relics and had on display, side by side, the stars and stripes of America, the tri color of France and the Union Jacket of Great Britain.

Creator band day was the climax of the Redpath engagement here, Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, the assistant director led the band and at 8 o'clock in the evening Creator, himself, was the spirit which inspired his men. He is one of the greatest band leaders and musical directors the world has ever known and his Marion audience was not disappointed in any phase of his program, but every diversified taste was gratified. The band was composed of thirty men, and each an expert on his particular instrument. Miss Ethel Harrington the soloist with Creator's band was encored and no doubt pleased those who like that kind of singing.

Marion was not glad to see the last day of the Chautauqua this year. The Redpath people have surpassed themselves and it is the consensus of opinion that we made a splendid investment for the benefit of our people especially the young folks when we contracted for this Chautauqua. The lectures, dramas, operas, festivals, concerts, legends, motion pictures, given us this year are beyond criticism and were worth thousands of dollars to the minds of the youth especially of this section. On more than one occasion 100 automobiles were parked in front of the Chautauqua tent thus demonstrating the general interest all over this section.

Travis Reunion, At

Copperas Spring.

Just twenty years ago this September there was a Travis reunion at Old Copperas Spring in the east central part of this county at which was assembled something like three hundred of the Travis name including their kith and kin. The Travis tribe is unlike many people who are of a same name; for instance the Browns, the Joneses, the Smiths can't always trace a relationship among themselves, when two of the Travis name meet it is always a brother, an uncle or close cousin. You may want to call them a little bit clanish which we may be.

At the meeting of twenty years ago there was a special invitation to the members of the name who sprang from the aunt Rachel part of the branch, but we want a special invitation to be given to any and all bearing the name of Travis including all the relations whether bearing the name Travis or not, and to any in or out of the county, or the State as to that matter. Copperas Spring is the most ideal place for this meeting as this is the birth place of the name this side of the Allegheny mountains, besides I am told there will be a protracted meeting begun July 1st, under a large tent somewhere near the grounds of this old place at this particular time. The time is Wednesday, July 11th., 1917.

If you are a Travis, come; if you are related to the Travis family in any way, real or imaginary, come; if you are not a Travis and want to have a good time, come; if you are not related nor want to have a good time, come any way and see the crowd and watch them have a good time. In other words, every body is invited to come and spend a whole day in a good old time social way, but don't forget that to have a good time the inner man must be fed, so don't fail to bring your dinner and a bite for your neighbor. There are still some Traverses I have never seen. I want to see you all.

Yours very truly,
E. Jeffrey Travis.

A Fable For Pacifists

By Samuel Hopkins Adams of the Vigilantes.

IN time of General War among the Insect Tribes the Bees remained at Peace. That they might conduct their Pursuits unhampered, the Honey Bees chose as their leaders certain Sting Bees of Courage and Prowess to guard their Interests and their Honor. To these Guardians came Slayers from among the Tribe of Ruthless Spiders, saying:

"Henceforth the Air is forbidden to your Wings, for there are Spread our Webs for our Enemies." "But the Air is our proper Province," protested the Chosen Leaders of the Bees. "Shut out from it how shall we continue to exist in Prosperity and Honor?"

"That is nothing to us," replied the Ruthless Spiders. "Whoso disobey our Orders we will destroy. Be warned."

"This thing we will not Endure," said the Bee Leaders, and they set about spreading their Wings and sharpening their Stings for Combat. But as they prepared to fight there arose from among the Mass of Honey Bees a clamor of Pacifist Buzzers, crying out in many voices (some of which echoed the Spider accent):

"It is not the will of the tribe that we go to war. Make no movement until opportunity is given for all to vote upon the question."

So the Chosen Leaders were bound to inaction, awaiting the vote of the Honey Bees, whose Interest and lives and honor they guarded.

When in the course of tribal events the vote had been registered the Pacifist Buzzers were overthrown by the resentment of an angered tribe, and the word went out to the Chosen Leaders:

"Our honor has been assailed, our will is for war, go forth and fight." But the Chosen Leaders did not fight. They could not.

The Ruthless Spiders had killed them. And when the Bee tribe, late and leaderless, took the air they were entangled in the webs of the Ruthless Spiders and utterly destroyed.

Moral—When honor is assailed the Initiative is Mightier than the Refrendum.
