BIG CROWD OUT LAST EVENING

The largest crowd ever seen in Marion after Dark was here last Thursday at the Community House of this town.

Creatures and their heads were pressed together as far as the eye could see. A large crowd had assembled outside the building and was held back by a barricade of police. No one could have possibly estimated the number of people on this occasion, but it was said that more than 3,000 persons were present. A large number of those present were captured by the building, and at one point in the evening, about 500 people were captured on the roof of the building.

Democracy at Stake

By Rev. Dr. SULLIVAN, Bishop Irish, Protestant Bishop of Ireland.

The duty of citizens to give expression to their sentiments is a sacred and important one. The true meaning of patriotism is not to be found in ordinary political activities, but in the realization of the principles that underlie our form of government. We are all bound to do our part to uphold the Constitution and the laws of the land, and to support the President in his efforts to maintain the honor and integrity of our country.

BREWER'S BLACKBIRD

"HORSES! HORSES! HORSES!" cries the owner of this advertisement, as he seeks to attract potential buyers. The listing details the availability of horses and mules for the summer season, indicating a range from two to ten years old with heights varying from 15 to 16 hands high. The advertisement emphasizes the lack of mares wanted, focusing on stallions and geldings.

The ad also outlines a series of stops for the horses and mules, indicating a journey from Marion to Princeton, and further on to Morganfield. The inclusion of specific dates, Thursday, July 5th for Marion and Thursday, July 6th for Princeton, suggests a planned itinerary, possibly for a touring event or a sales trip.

The location of Hopkinsville, Kentucky, as the base for these horses and mules, hints at a region known for its biodiversity and natural beauty, likely providing an excellent backdrop for the animals' journey. The ad's emphasis on horse- and mule-related events or sales may reflect local traditions or a thriving equestrian culture in the area.
