THE TRAVIS- IS RE-UNION

A Delightful Affair, Plenty of Good Cheer And an Excellent Spread of Dinner.

The Travis re-union was a grand success, although, about 500 of the best looking Traverses were absent.

People began gathering early, and by ten o'clock the large tent was filled besides the woods were full of people all around the place.

The exercises began at ten o'clock with singing, led by S. B. McNeely, followed with prayer, by John Irvin Travis, of Carisville. Rev. James F. Price, in his own artful and eloquent manner, outlined the program for the day, and announced the purpose of the meeting. There were several historic sketches of the family brought to this meeting by different members and read. Your humble servant was appointed to read publicly these reminiscences. A partial history of aunt Rachel's family, a Tribute of Respect to uncle Harvey, a history of the re-union held twenty years ago, a summarized enumeration of the oldest settlers in Crittenden county, naming the places where settled, were read. These readings were interspersed by singing congregational songs appropriate for such an occasion, also, by appropriate short talks and sermonettes explanatory, or complimentary to the particular occasion by our infallible chairman—Rev. Price.

There were present Traverses from Crittenden, Henderson, Union, Webster, Caldwell and Livingston counties—in all, with their relations, about two hundred. Gus D. Summerville and uncle Billie Joel Hill were both there with their usual amount of good humor and friendliness for every body. Candidates galore. If all the candidates who were there are elected to office in Crittenden county we will have to build two more new court houses, three or four jails and an another postoffice to accommodate them, but we know this will not be the case, and we rejoice to see them enjoy one more good day this side of Salt River. If Woodrow Wilson had been present and had seen and partaken of the dinner that was there he surely would have forgotten his entreaties to plant and feed the hungry and turned praises for a land of plenty. Dinner! I guess! Dr. Frazer was there with his usual dead earnestness, but this time it turned to living earnestness, and he made a Red Cross speech that brought more than twenty joiners to this very important branch of service in our struggle for National freedom. Uncle Billie Joel Hill read some very interesting notes about the Travis family, along with other things. In the afternoon the body resolved itself into a religious assembly, and an old-fashioned testimony meeting was had, in which many took part. At 2:30 p. m., Rev. Price was to have preached, this being the regular time for the protracted service which had been in progress at that place for ten days, but a rain came and scattered the congregation, and we adjourned.

A "big time?" I should say! A Grand Re-union, but we live in a hope that we will all be permitted to participate in a grander one over yonder. Following is a constellation of Travis name and characteristics.

SOME REMINISCENCES OF THE

TRAVIS NAME IN CRITTENDEN CO.
While the name of Travis is of English origin our knowledge of the family begins in Ireland with one Francis Travis. This same Francis had two sons, Frances and John. From these two, I am able to trace only two families.

John Travis had a son Frances, the father of Cullen Travis whose family is well known in the county today. Mary, of California; John and Grant, of Marion; and George, of this neighborhood, are the living children of Cullen Travis.

The second Francis Travis had a son, Daniel Travis. This Daniel had a son, James, by name. This same James Travis was the husband of the noted aunt Rachel, the progenitors of a large family. The sons were John, James Harvey, Daniel and Lindsay, known in this neighborhood as "Daddy." The girls were Theresa and Susan—(maybe others.) Each of these children lived long lives, uncle Lindsay having reached the advanced age of ninety-five. Also, each had large families, probably that of uncle Harvey, my grandfather, being the largest, eighteen children in all. Today he has living twelve children, fifty-six grandchildren, eighty-five great grandchildren and some two or three great-great grandchildren—totaling 155 living persons from uncle Harvey Travis, the second son of James and Rachel. It would be interesting to be able to trace both these families all the way down from the first Francis Travis, but it would make a history too long to read at this meeting of one day. I took up uncle Harvey's family because I am familiar with the history, and because, he being my grandfather, I am naturally more interested.

There are hundreds of Traverses in the county, some in the southwestern part of the county with whom I have not been able to trace any relationship. You will find the name in many different States. The Traverses of Illinois, Kentucky, Tennessee, Missouri, Arkansas and Alabama are all related in some way to this first Francis Travis. Colonel Tom Travis of the Airmo was of the Alabama family.

All known Traverses are a social, fun-loving, yet moral and religious people. Quick tempered, yet ready to forgive an injury. The name does not often occur among those of the millionaire, neither does it ever occur among those on the proper lists. The name does not often occur among those of National leaders, neither do you find it among the names on the list of imbeciles. You will find the name on hundreds of church books as ministers of the Gospel, elders and laymen. Never on the criminal dockets of the courts of the country. When you find a Travis you will find a lover of music if not a good musician. You will find an unselfish neighbor, a good conversationalist, a standard bearer for religion and morals. When Gabriel blows his trumpet you will still find some Traverses here, but ready to go.

Yours very truly,
E. JEFFREY TRAVIS.

Notice To Lot Holders In Old Cemetery.

The committee has decided to purchase for the old Cemetery a few sheep or goats to keep the weeds and bushes down after it is cleaned up this time. Any one who has dead buried there, who objects to the above, should take steps at once to fence their lot and give said lots their personal attention in the future.

VOTE FOR EDWARD D. STONE FOR COUNTY ATTORNEY

Having served the people for two terms in the law making department of Kentucky, I feel that it absolutely equips and qualifies me for the duties of the office of County Attorney. A man who has been elected and endorsed by the people of this district to make laws by which they are to be governed, evidently is equipped and qualified to explain such laws in the courts of this Commonwealth.

I regret very much to say that I cannot make a very close canvass of the county at this time. I cannot do this for two reasons: First, because I am very busy on the farm, making and taking care of farm products; Second, because I was assured by the people generally that I would have no opposition, but on the eleventh hour a second petition for the office of County Attorney was filed in the Republican Primary.

For the past few years this county has been plunging into debt several hundred dollars annually. This indebtedness will have to be paid by the taxpayers of Crittenden County. This county should not be heavily in debt. The County Attorney should properly discharge his duty concerning the County's appropriations and expenditures.

If nominated and elected I will do as I have always endeavored to do, give my entire time in performing the duties of this office and guarding the interests of the people as their Attorney. I will be found in my office on every official day in the year, rendering justice to every person.

As legal advisor of the fiscal court I will, if nominated and elected, be cautious in advising it concerning the expenditures of the hard earned money of the taxpayers.

I will diligently investigate and procure indictments against alleged violators of the law without favor.

I respectfully solicit the support of every republican voter, and promise, if elected, a cautious and efficient handling of the County Attorney's affairs.

Yours Truly,
EDWARD D. STONE.

THE FARMER'S FRIEND

"The people should rule," is the slogan of that popular republican, Edward D. Stone, who is a candidate for County Attorney of Crittenden County, in the Republican Primary, Saturday, August 4th, 1917.

Mr. Stone is widely known and stands high as the truest type of a gentleman in this county. He is a deserving young man and enters the race, not as a candidate of any faction, but as a true Republican, willing and ready to serve the people of the great county of Crittenden, and render to every person a square deal, if made their County Attorney.

He is recognized as one of the most logical and forceful speakers in this and adjoining counties. He has very ably led two campaigns for the legislature in this district, in which he was elected their representative. In those campaigns he placed this District in the Republican column. For four years in the law making body in this state he gave the very best service possible, serving the people beyond that of any other Representative ever sent from this district. He is now offering his services to the people of his home county.

He fulfilled every promise made by him to the people, as their Representative, and made a record of which the people of this county are proud, and if elected County Attorney he will fulfill the duties of the office.

Mr. Stone was educated in the Cumberland University, at Lebanon, Tenn., where he graduated with high honors in the class 1912, receiving the degree of LL.B. He was granted license to practice law in May, 1913.—A Supporter.—Adv.

Young Men And Women Wanted.

Four hundred and eighty-three young men, from sixteen to twenty-one years of age (not subject to conscription), and two hundred and thirty-five women are wanted to take the training necessary to qualify them for positions in banks, mercantile houses, railroad offices, etc.,—positions made vacant by the first and second drafts of bookkeepers and stenographers.

YOUR MONEY BACK.

Young men who qualify at Draughton's for Shorthand work with the Government and are drafted for Government service will get back every cent of the money that they pay for tuition if they are not given office work, instead of trench work, with the Government.

We have file letters urging us to train, as fast as possible, young men and women for these positions, which pay from NINE HUNDRED TO TWELVE HUNDRED dollars a year to begin on. By the Draughton methods—the methods that business men endorse—one can learn Bookkeeping and Shorthand by mail as well as at college, and can learn by mail at one-sixth the cost of learning at college. Write to Draughton's Practical Business College, Nashville, Tenn.

Birthday Party.

Mrs. Lucy Davidson was surprised by her children and grandchildren to the number of 41 last Saturday when they celebrated her 73rd birthday with a family reunion at the old home place. Mr. and Mrs. Gid Taylor live there with Mrs. Davidson but she had been on a visit to her son near Lola and arrived at home that day to find them all there awaiting her coming. Her six children living are, 3 sons Grant of Marion, Buckner of Lola, and Wallace of Crittenden Springs, and 3 daughters, Mrs. Henrietta Taylor who lives on the old home place, Mrs. Ida Stevens of Levas, and Mrs. Sarah Davidson of Henderson and they were all present with their consorts and children with only a few exceptions. Each family brought a basket well filled and as a result there was a bountiful spread of all the good things the land affords and many gifts for mother. Her heart was made glad and every one present enjoyed the day to the fullest extent and hope she will live to enjoy many more birthdays.

Get The Happiness Habit.

Men and women should make it a part of their daily work to put as much joy and as little bitterness as possible into the lives of those about them. It is a joy indeed to come into contact with sweet-spirited men and women—people who care for their fellows and companions. There is plenty of room for improvement in all of us. Get the habit. It is the little things that count; and if they are on the side of helpfulness, the world would be changed ere the influence causing it could be recognized.—Exchange.

A dark and threatening cloud came up suddenly Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock accompanied by a downpour of rain. There was a big crowd of shoppers here, many of the stores being crowded and when it became suddenly nearly dark it put business at a stand still.

The Marion Electric Light & Ice Co., phones were besieged in less time than it takes to tell it but the management realizing the situation, had already ordered the lights turned on, as quickly as possible, which was done at 3:50 o'clock when the sun was almost 3 hours high. The rain continued at intervals throughout the afternoon and night and also Sunday forenoon, thus making the corn crop in the hills of old Crittenden a certainty.

How to Know, Prevent and Cure Quickly

After a long illness, Mrs. Nancie Caroline Belt fell asleep at the home of her son, Jerry Belt, near Hebron Monday morning, July 9, 1917, at 9:30 at the age of 84 years. During her long and painful illness she was ever patient yet looked forward with eager expectancy to the time when the summons should come to call her to that home, eternal in the Heavens.

She was born March 17, 1833 and was married to Lafayette Belt in 1857. She professed faith in Christ in 1856 and united with the Baptist Church at Pleasant Grove. She later moved her membership to the Methodist Church at Hebron where she remained a member until her death.

Grandma Belt as she was familiarly known by those who knew her best was a noble woman of pure christian character who always found pleasure in doing service for others. She was a kind and loving mother and a friend always to those in need. The world is made better by having such good and noble lives spent as hers was spent. Death for her had no horrors. Death was for her but a call to step into the joys of that land of eternal sunshine and love where there is no pain or sickness or sorrow. While her children and loved ones are heart broken to give her up, yet they rejoice to know that she is with Him who made possible the resurrection and a life eternal beyond the grave.

Mrs. Belt is survived by three sons, Jerry, Tom and Bob all of the Hebron neighborhood and two daughters, Mrs. Jim Claghorn and Mrs. Arabella Walker of Cerulean.

The funeral services were held at the Love Graveyard Tuesday at 1 o'clock by Rev. Crow.

Slackers Sentenced To Prison

Seventy-eight slackers from Rockford, Ill., were sentenced to serve a year and a day each in the Chicago house of correction by Judge K. M. Landis, in the federal court. The sentence specified "hard labor." Two others were ordered jailed 30 days and another was sentenced for 60 days. Judge Landis ordered also that each man be required to register. This is the echo of the riot in Rockford on registration day. Tom Cameron lives there and we are indebted to him for Rockford papers containing a graphic description of the riot. The result is just what we expected.

"DEAD" 37 YEARS MAN COMES BACK

Civil War Veterans Make Merry Over Their Recovered Comrade O'Donnell.

JOY AMONG HIS KIN

Had Not Been Seen or Heard of by Friends Since 1880—Officially Dead on Books of G. A. R. Post.

New York.—Joseph J. O'Donnell, "dead" these 37 years, came to life one night recently. His friends had not seen or heard from him since 1880, and it was officially recorded on the books of the Lafayette post, G. A. R., that he had been dead for 37 years.

So there was joy in the home of his sister, Mrs. George Bolster, No. 325 18th place, Ridgewood, Queens, last night, when O'Donnell's companions in arms—veterans of the One Hundred and Sixty-fifth Infantry of New York—held a reception for the one that had been lost and was found.

In 1880 O'Donnell, then sixteen, enlisted, and served with his regiment until it was mustered out September 1, 1893. A year later he joined the Fifth cavalry, and served five years. Then he went west and worked as a cowboy.

Drops Out of Sight.

His letters reached his relatives here and were answered until 1880, when they began to come back. Mrs. Bolster recently asked the war department to inform her where her brother had been buried. The answer was that he was alive and in the soldiers' home at Leavenworth, Kan. She wrote to him and he arrived last week.

Another sister, Mrs. Mary Jane Healy, lives at No. 853 Fresh Pond road, Ridgewood, and a brother, James O'Donnell, at No. 165 East One Hundred and Fifty-fifth street, New York.

of the regimental association sent out word to all the "boys" to be on hand. And what a flow of reminiscences there was! Time had purged from the memory all recollection of the hardships, and left only the glorious deeds of those who fought for the Union.

Father Catches Eight Children as They Leap From Window of Burning Home.

Phillipsburg, N. J.—When John McNicholas, a night worker, returned to his home and found the lower floor burning, he ran through the flames and smoke to the bedrooms on the second floor and aroused his eight motherless children.

Lining the children up before a window, McNicholas first jumped out to the lawn and then each of the children jumped into his arms. He thus saved them all without injury.

The fire, which destroyed the McNicholas home, spread to two others, and did extensive damage. McNicholas owned his home, and its destruction will be a severe loss to him and his large family.

KICK SPOILS MARE'S SALE

Active Heels Play Havoc With Bidding Ring at Auction Sale in Pennsylvania.

Wroughtstown, Pa.—It was scandalous the way Jennie, the old family mare, resented being auctioned off at the sale of the late Isaac Percy's effects recently. Farmers, who intended bidding, formed a ring in the barnyard, but Jennie kicked them into the next yard in a jiffy and sent John Kirkpatrick of Newtown banging against a stone wall.

"That mare's worth $50, on condition alone," called Auctioneer Cornell, safely outside the wall, "but I'm obliged to knock her down to the only one of you scared bidders for his paltry $7.50."

BREAKS PRISON; STEALS TO WED

Weird Tale of the Exploits of a Former Inmate of Sing Sing.

MAKES GOOD HUSBAND

Enlists in Navy, Deserts When Work Falls on Him—Is Recaptured and Serves One Day of Sentence When He Again Escapes.

New York.—A weird tale of escape from Sing Sing, successful burglary, marriage to a good woman who did not know his past, and final downfall, was revealed here after the capture of Elmer Schultz, who took French leave of the big penitentiary up the river on September 11 last.

Incidentally, the story proves a veteran convict can be a model husband. Detective Fishel seized Schultz in a pawnshop here and said:

"Come on down to headquarters. The boss wants to visit with you."

"Now, ain't that too bad?" observed Schultz. "Ain't you got me out just a month? 'Taint be a knockout for me neither."

He went quietly to headquarters. There he said he "might as well tell all about it."

"The getaway job was easy," he said. "I hid in the condenser room, stuffed the siren whistle with rags, slipped over the wall when I saw the way was clear, and dropped into the river. I swam three-quarters of a mile to a safe landing place and then hit the rails south."

Cuts Spare Change.

"I'd walked twenty-two miles to Hastings, when I bumped into a copper. 'Hey, where you going, all wet like that?' he says to me. 'Oh, my boat tipped over, and I'm going home,' I says, and he goes on about his business."

"Knowing I'd need some spare change, I went into a house and took $200 and some diamonds and other jewelry. I blew in the money in New York and then sold the junk. It didn't take long to go broke again."

"Being broke, I enlisted in the navy under the name of J. Ford, but I didn't stay long. The work didn't suit me, and I beat it at the end of two weeks. They got after me hot foot for deserting, and when they caught me, which was right off the bat, they gave me sixty-three days in the brig."

Schultz said he served just one day of that sentence. Getting out was "like taking candy from a child." Once free, he said, he went back to Hastings, where he "turned off" a house for $350 and several rings. After that he went from place to place, making a good living by his wits.

Steals for Wedding Expenses.

A week ago, being about to marry, and needing cash, he returned to Hastings, where he made a haul of cut glass. He sold this and got enough to pay his wedding expenses.

"Where do you and the madam live when you're at home?" asked Detective Fisher.

"At No. 72 Townsend avenue, Laurel Hill, Long Island," replied Schultz. "If you bulls go over there be easy with the wife."

Capt. Herbert Graham went to the address and found Mrs. Schultz, an attractive woman of twenty-one. When she was told that her husband was an escaped convict she became hysterical.

After she had calmed down, Mrs. Schultz said she had met Schultz in Manhattan, where she worked in a bakery; and after a rapid-fire courtship he married her April 2. He seemed to have saving habits and they started a bank account. He was kindness itself, she said.

Captain Graham found in the room two watches, three rings, two watch chains, three jeweled lavallieres and two bracelets. On Schultz Detective Fishel found a bank book showing a balance of $125, a ring with three large pearls, a signet ring with the initial "C," a diamond pin and five cartridges.

For some time there has been a story going the rounds that a lion which is supposed to have escaped from a circus was in the bottom near Big Lake.

Col. Bobb, Milpough, who owns land near the lake, while looking after farming interests there Monday, claims to have seen the lion. It was within thirty yards of him. The animal, Mr. Milpough says, stopped about a minute and looked at him and then started on up the road. John Dempsey, a farmer living near Round Pond, also claims to have seen the lion a few days ago. For some time pigs and other small animals have been missed by farmers in that neighborhood, and it is supposed that the lion has been killing them. MEN NEEDED FOR SERVICE

Uncle Sam Pays All Expenses and Monthly Wage Is All Vaguet— "There Is Always Room at the Top," True of Navy.

By EDWARD B. CLARK.

Washington.—Sailors of the American navy, many of them young men who only a year ago were on the farm, at the bench, at the counter, or in school, today are in Uncle Sam's destroyers sailing the waters of the northern seas, where they are engaged in the heroic duty of upholding the world principle of freedom for all peoples.

The American people always have shown a kindly disposition toward the man-of-war and the man-of-war's man. There has been an appeal about the sea which has drawn and held the interest of landsmen who never smelt salt water. Americans always have taken a pride in their navy.

Today Uncle Sam needs men for his navy and he wishes to get them from the ranks of those who are charged with the volunteer spirit of service. Our great fleet is mobilized "somewhere on the coast" for possible deadly service with the great fleet of the enemy. Today, for the navy has allowed the fact to become known, many of our smaller craft, the building destroyers of the navy, are hunting the submarine sharks in the waters off Japan's I. close to the coast of Ireland and farther north, where even in summer the elements at times are almost as fierce as "man, the enemy."

Pay Is Doubled. Recently the congress of the United States increased the pay of the sailor men so materially that the recruits' pay is double what it was.

In the navy the young men of the country, both in times of peace and in times of war, secure liberal education. Their opportunities for travel and for sight-seeing are greater than those of men employed in almost any other calling in life. Moreover, the boys just entering manhood who enlist in the navy are given opportunities for instruction which, if they have the ambition and the mental qualifications, will enable them to enter the naval academy at Annapolis on the same terms as midshipmen who are nominated by members of congress, and at that institution to secure an education which fits them for the commissioned rank which the government of the United States will confer upon them.

There are traditions in the American navy which keep high the spirit of endeavor in every man who walks the deck under the colors, from the admiral to the apprentice seaman. The boy learns all about John Paul Jones, and his deeds on the sea for his country; all about Deatur, Bainbridge, Hull, Porter, Farragut and Dewey. As the secretary of the navy has said, in what is really an appeal to the youth of the country to enlist under the navy's colors, the standard is high.

Service of High Ideals.

"The navy has been throughout its entire existence a service of high ideals; and its unbroken record of great and worthy achievement, of duty well done, has been due to the high standard set for officers and men in the beginning and which has been maintained ever since. This standard was never higher than it is today; and any young American who thinks of going into the navy may feel sure that, on enlisting, he will enter a service in which he may, and should, always feel a justifiable pride and of which the uniform is a badge of honor."

Young men between the ages of seventeen and twenty-five, who are not skilled in any naval trade, are enlisted as apprentice seamen. Immediately upon being sworn in at the recruiting stations they are sent at government expense to a naval training station. The apprentice seaman, because he is a green man and simply undergoing training has been paid in the past $17.00 a month. From this time on, however, under the recent act of congress his pay throughout the war and until six months after its ending is to be $32.00 a month.

Now it must be remembered that the sailor, whether he be a recruit or a seasoned man-of-war's man, is under no expense at all for his livelihood after he once joins the navy. He is given clothing, food, shelter and medical attendance. Out of his pay all that he spends is such money as he desires to pay out for such luxuries and entertainments as he seems inclined to indulge in.

Increase Soon Comes.

It must not be supposed that an apprentice seaman continues long to draw simply the amount of his first pay. His first raise comes in the seaman branch, and if he is in the fireroom he gets an additional sum.

The navy needs men who are trained or partly trained in the various trades. Men who are proficient along certain lines and who come within certain limits of ages are enlisted for specific purposes in the navy. They are given pay in accordance with standards set for the different lines of endeavor which they must follow. Full information concerning enlistments of this kind can be had at any recruiting office. The navy today is a world in itself. It needs men proficient in nearly all lines of human working endeavor.

Rate of Pay in Navy.

The law increasing the pay of the men in the navy has just been enacted and the pay tables under the new dispensation have not yet been made out, but it is a simple thing to determine the rate of pay of each seaman of whatever class by adding to the pay given in the accompanying table the amount of increase in each case. The increased pay allotment has just gone into effect. Below is given the navy wage table, with the pay as it stood prior to the recent act of congress. In order to know what each man's pay now is, it is only necessary to know that every man now drawing less than $21 a month will receive an increase of $15 a month; that every man drawing at present from $22 to $24 a month, inclusive, will receive $12 a month additional; that every man drawing more than $24 and less than $45, will receive $8 a month additional; and that every man drawing at present $45 or more a month will receive $0 a month additional pay.

It should be borne in mind that the apprentice seaman, the ordinary boy recruit, who ordinarily gets $17.00 a month, will be receiving at the time that this is read $15 additional, making his pay $32.00.

Here is the pay table as it stands today regardless of the increases which congress has ordained:

It may be proved with much certainty that God intends no man to live in this world without working; but it seems no less evident that He intends every man to be happy in his work. It was written: "In the sweat of thy brow," but it was never written: "In the breaking of thy heart."—Ruskin.

of Youthful Bridge Promenaders to Leap Ninety Feet to Ground.

New York.—Sadie Winkler and Sylvia Klein, wise beyond their years in the sophistication of the East side and as inured to thrills as only the movies can blunt the sensibilities of girls of fifteen and fourteen, respectively, sauntered arm in arm across the Williamsburg bridge yesterday. It was five o'clock of a sunny afternoon in spring, a time when the bridge forms a promenade for the fashionables of the East end of the East side and the West end of Williamsburg.

That was one reason why Sadie and Sylvia were strolling on the bridge. They found the throng eminently satisfactory and had a pleasant consciousness that their own bright ribbons and nodding plumes were not lost in it.

Attracted by Baby.

As they approached the Brooklyn anchorage, where the six-foot guard-rail gives way to a granite structure only three feet high, the two girls paused as even movie patrons will at the sight of a toddling, chuckling, friendly baby. The child was not much more than a year old and was dressed in immaculate white from dark curls to uncertain feet. Lurching precariously, it clutched with confidence at Sadie's hand.

"He's a boy," said a woman in a sleek brown suit, of which even Sadie approved, as she noticed Sadie halt at the command of the small fingers. "Will you hold him for me a minute? My bag dropped over the railing."

Instantly the odd feeling that had obsessed Sadie's ordinarily clear vision at touch of those fingers vanished. She looked over the head of the baby and into the eyes of the woman, and her cool stare had a glint of suspicion in it.

"What do you take us for?" she demanded. "Easy marks, that we should be left with a baby on our hands?" She was wise in movie lore.

"Aw, take the kid," pleaded Sylvia. "She's all right. Sure, we'll take him."

Sadie and Sylvia Stood Transfixed.

ma'am," and Sylvia snatched up the baby, who gurgled with delight at his new situation.

Jumps to Death.

The woman promptly climbed over the low granite railing. She picked up a handbag and then extended her arms for the child.

"I'll hold him till you get back," said Sylvia.

"Give him to me now!" demanded the woman, and Sylvia did so.

The woman kissed the smiling little face, hugged the white bundle and with a swift movement of her arms flung it upward and outward.

Sadie and Sylvia stood transfixed. Before they could move or utter a sound the woman had leaped after her child.

Without knowing how they got through the throng that pressed upon them with questions, Sadie and Sylvia found themselves stammering inadequate words to a policeman at the Manhattan end of the bridge.

Ninety feet below the bridge the woman and baby lay dead in South Sixth street. She was Mrs. Sophie Levitt, whose husband, Charles, has a tobacco shop at 407 Cornelia street, Ridgewood.

For several weeks she had been under medical treatment for a nervous trouble. When she left the house yesterday, after dressing her only child, Charles, in his best, she told her husband they were going to the doctor's.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedy. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

We will give one Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Halls Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

VALUE OF HIGH AIMS.

"We achieve nothing in life," says a recent writer, "that is higher than the goal to which we aspire." There are some persons probably who will not agree to this view, but that is only because they do not understand how necessary it is to aspire to the best in life. The man who keeps his mind upon the ordinary phases of existence, who thinks more of its material aspects than of its moral, will never attain the highest type of citizenship, says Charleston News and Courier. True, he may amass a fortune which in the opinion of some men is the highest pinnacle of life to be scaled, but the man who does not appreciate the fact that there are better things to be achieved than fame and position will never become a benefactor, in its truest sense, of mankind. We need money to build institutions for the benefit of the poor, money to provide for educational purposes, money to advance the physical welfare of the world, money, indeed, to supply innumerable needs of humanity but, at the same time, unless these needs are understood intelligently it is impossible to meet them effectively even with unlimited means at hand. Surely the message of humanity is one that should find a ready response in our hearts and one, also, that should prompt in our hearts the desire to aim high in all our dealings with our fellow men.

Business men, writing to the superintendent of the public schools as to the qualifications they expect in graduates of the high school, for the most part testify that they expect such graduates to be able to spell correctly, to write legibly and to have a knowledge of the common branches. The head of one concern expressed a preference for "boys and girls who have faith in themselves," who, "like to work just as they like to play and for about the same reason—the game of it" who "are able to think quickly and honestly." That is well said, but it differs from the other expressions only in expecting something more, says Columbus Dispatch. Any graduate who could be so described would be sure to know how to spell correctly, to write legibly and to know the common branches. But he would have something more than knowledge; he would have spirit. He would be more than a locomotive; he would be a locomotive with steam up, ready and eager to move. It is boys and girls of that description that every employer would like to have; and the schools, of course, can turn them out. Their success will be proportioned to their success in making the study and training, not a thing apart from, but a portion of life.

Healthy Child Furnishes the Material for the Healthy Adult

By S. JOSEPHINE BAKER
Director Bureau of Child Hygiene of New York City

The fundamental policy of the New York city bureau of child hygiene, since its inception, (1) that it should include supervision of activities relating to the health of all children of the city, from birth to adolescence, in so far as a municipality can control such conditions; that these activities be so co-ordinated and correlated as to provide thorough and adequate supervision of child life and child health; that the fundamental basis of all efforts of the bureau must be educational and preventive, that its prime object must be not only to keep children well, but to assure to them such vigorous health that they may become healthy adults; consequently corrective measures must be not only as temporary expedients; (4) that the work, in relation to children, is of primary importance to the utmost extent.

In all health work for children there are emphasized: First, the recognition that we are dealing with children who are not yet adults; Second, the recognition that such children are dealt with in a class for Representative from Critter-health activities had a specialized object den and Livingstone Counties, s were devoted to the control of tubercu-

Children Employed on Farms Food Crisis Must Be Pro

By WILLIAM L. CHENERY

War already is demanding the labor of children tendency to employ children is accelerated by the ex labor. It is being made unanswerable because of the of the need for a greater food production.

The practical question, then, is to devise some saving the strength of children. The future well-being employed must be considered. The health of the race Plans must be made not only for the summer of 1917 years ahead.

Already the federal department of labor has begun of a million boys as active farm workers. Numerous of agencies and private associations are attempting to do smaller scale. Some are proceeding without that detail promises success. It is valuable, therefore, to regard it by the national child-labor committee.

This was formulated after a conference with the Playground association and Boy Scouts of America, the missioner of education, the New V.

The lad was taken to the Mercy hospital, where his arm was dressed. Mr. Passano was summoned to the central police station on a charge of harboring a vicious dog, but was dismissed by the magistrate. Mr. Passano told the court that the dog had been trained to stay in the car and watch the machine. The boy was sent to the juvenile court.

HANGING BOY WINS FIGHT WITH BUZZARD

Tormented to Frenzy and About Exhausted When Bird Gives Up Battle.

Santa Rosa, Cal.—A battle between a young buzzard and a fifteen-year-old boy clinging to the root of a shrub, and the boy, who is now recovering from an experience that rivaled Poe's fictional heroes.

Was Tormented to a Frenzy.

Twenty feet below he caught a root and hung on. With his handkerchief he tied his left wrist to the root and then wrote a note to a boy friend, bidding him farewell and saying that no one was responsible for his predicament.

Just as he finished writing a huge buzzard flew down upon him and started to peck at his head and body. The hungry bird inflicted deep wounds in the boy's flesh. Young Mierbach fought the buzzard with his free hand for over an hour. He had been tormented to a frenzy and was about exhausted when the bird gave up the fight.

At midnight a searching party found the boy and rescued him. He had nearly lost consciousness from his experience and loss of blood.

INDIAN CAPTIVE IS FOUND

William Barnhart Sees Cousin Whose Mother Was Seized Seventy Years Ago.

Pendleton, Ore.—William Barnhart, a Umatilla Indian, returned home the other morning from Fort Hall reservation in Idaho, where he found the daughter of his aunt, whose mother was captured 70 years ago by the Bannock Indians and held in slavery.

The woman was captured in the early forties on a camp of his father's between La Grande and Weiser. His father, whose name was also William Barnhart, escaped in the raid, but his father's mother and several relatives were killed and his father's sister was taken.

Young William Barnhart had often heard his father tell of the raid, and expressed a great desire to trace his aunt. Handicapped because of lack of familiarity with the Bannock tongue, he finally found an interpreter. After a three-day search, he ran across an old Indian, who informed him that his aunt had died 11 years ago, and that her daughter, Nannie Bell, was married and living on the reservation. Other Indians remembered the events of the capture of Nannie's mother.

ALWAYS CARRY A LOAF. MORAL OF THIS TALE

Canton.—When two holdups robbed Charles Sells here they overlooked a loaf of bread he was carrying and so missed getting a $5 bill.

Sells saw the two men in his path, he thought looked like highwaymen, so the currency in the wrapper covering the bread, didn't have time to hide, so they took that.

HE HAS SNAKE'S HEAD

Fishermen in California Puzzled Over Strange Catch During Fishing Trip.

Los Angeles.—When is a turtle not a turtle?

Or, what is an animal that has the look of a turtle, the head of a snake, the mouth and beak of an eagle and the claws of a ferocious member of the wolf family?

This is the puzzle that Japanese fishermen are trying to solve at the fishing village north of Santa Monica from a strange catch brought in from deep-sea fishing trip.

DURON KOON FOR REPRESENTATIVE

Writes Card Below Appealing to The Voters of Crittenden and Livingston Counties

Since making my announcement for representative of Crittenden and Livingston Counties the United States has been forced by the Imperial German government to become actively engaged in the greatest war the world has ever known thereby making it the duty of each and every American citizen to do something to aid the government in this great crisis. This with my health has rendered it impossible for me to meet with each voter, as I had hoped to do, and discuss with you the great questions to come before the next general assembly.

I therefore take this method of expressing my views and the principals for which I shall stand if nominated and elected as your representative.

I favor and will vote for the submission to a vote of the people, of a constitutional amendment prohibiting the manufacturing and sale of intoxicating liquors in Ky.

I shall consider it my duty to be present at all times throughout the session, vote for and give my support to all questions coming before the house. I think on behalf of the people and the making of a greater Kentucky and to vote against and oppose all questions I deem detrimental to the people, as there are crimes of omission the same as commission.

While determining how to vote on the above named principals I shall consider it my duty to be governed by the will of the people on all questions upon which I have the means of knowing what their will is, and upon all others I shall do what my own judgment and own conscience teaches me will best advance their interests and the making of a greater Kentucky.

If I am nominated and elected representative I shall be free from all entanglements and not as apprentice or slave of any faction, organization or machine, free to fight for the rights of the people.

Upon these principles I ask your consideration and solicit your vote and influence.

Respectfully Submitted,
Duron Koon.

Daughter Saved Mother Life.

While cooking at a gasoline stove at her home Friday Mrs. Henry Loesch, of Mooresville, had a narrow escape from being burned badly, if not from death.

While she was engaged in preparing the meal on the stove it exploded, and her clothes caught on fire. Immediately her daughter, Miss Mildred Loesch, threw a shawl about her mother and smothered out the flames. If it had not been for the presence of mind the young woman displayed Mrs. Loesch might have been to death. As it was, her hair and eyebrows were only singed, the rest of her body escaping injury. Little damage was done the kitchen, as the fire was soon extinguished with several buckets of water.—Louisville Post.

Mt. Zion Aug. 5 to 19.

Protection is Asked.

Evansville, Ind., July 18.—Following an attack late Saturday night on the mining camps of the West Kentucky Coal Co., near Clay, Ky., the officials of the company today made an appeal to Gov. A. O. Stanley, asking for protection.

Several shots were fired into the houses of miners by unknown parties and the men and their families, while they escaped unhurt, were greatly frightened, and the mines officials fear other attacks.

The sheriff of Webster county has also been asked for further protection.

Rev. J. R. King In Paducah For Revival.

The Rev. J. R. King, of Blackport, Ky., will arrive today to conduct a revival service at the Cumberland Presbyterian church at Twelfth and Trimble streets. The first service will be held at 8 o'clock tonight. Dr. King will be in the city about two weeks, and services will be held each evening at Cumberland church, of which the Rev. A. D. Rudolph is pastor.—Paducah Sun.

Chicago Churches to Open Recruiting Stations.

Chicago, Ill., July 17.—Twenty-five Chicago churches will be opened as recruiting stations for the regular army next week. They will fly the American flag and the recruiting will do to aid in raising the 70,000 volunteers called for by President Wilson.

Eight More Deaths Occur From Summer Epidemic.

Benton, Mo., July 18.—Eight more deaths have resulted in Scott county from enterocolitis, the summer disease which has killed more than 100 persons in Southeast Missouri. Seven of the deaths occurred in Sikeston and one in Crowder.

Few Too Old or Too Young to Enlist in Army of Production

By REV. FRANCIS E. CLARK
President World's Christian Endeavor Union

Will all the two million members of the Christian Endeavor societies in the United States enlist with me in a Christian Endeavor army of production? This is a real Christian endeavor.

For this army none under ninety are too old; none over nine are too young. Only those between certain limited ages will be called to the colors—the Red, White and Blue—but to the green of the fields all ages are called.

The highest moral and patriotic motives may inspire our enlistment in this army. No Christian soldier ever marched to battle in any dire crisis in his country's history with a nobler purpose than may, this year, the army of agriculturists. This year we will plant and reap not simply for dollars and cents but for our neighbors and our country as well as for ourselves. Patriotism and potatoes will be joined by more ties than these of alliteration.

Healthy Child Furnishes the Material for the Healthy Adult

By S. JOSEPHINE BAKER
Director Bureau of Child Hygiene of New York City

The fundamental policy of the New York city bureau of child hygiene has been, since its inception, (1) that it should include supervision of all activities relating to the health of all children of the city, from birth to adolescence, in so far as a municipality can control such conditions; (2) that these activities be so co-ordinated and correlated as to provide continuous and adequate supervision of child life and child health; (3) that the fundamental basis of all efforts of the bureau must be educational and preventive, that its prime object must be not only to keep children well, but to assure to them such vigorous health that they may become healthy adults; consequently corrective measures must be used only as temporary expedients; (4) that the social aspect of public-health work, in relation to children, is of primary importance and must be developed to the utmost extent.

In all health work for children there are two points which must be emphasized: First, the recognition that we are dealing with an age group. Until such children were dealt with in a class by themselves, practically all health activities had a specialized object; that is, certain organizations were devoted to the control of tuberculosis, others to the reduction of infant mortality, and still others to the supervision of food supplies or the control of sanitation in general; but the formation of the bureau of child hygiene in New York city was the first recognition that the early period of life is of supreme importance from the point of view of health.

The starting point of such health work is the child, and not the environment; and all work in the bureau of child hygiene has been based upon adapting environment or surroundings to fit the child's needs rather than trying to reconstruct the child to fit an environment created particularly for adults.

The second, and perhaps the more important, object of treating the child's life as a whole rather than in specialized parts, has been the growing recognition that public-health work, in order to be effective, must be preventive, and not corrective, in its activities. It is a practical impossibility to carry on real preventive health work with adults whose habits are already fixed and whose status of health has usually been determined. The only persons who respond to true preventive work are children, and even here we find that the value of true preventive work in health lines is successful in proportion to the early date of its inception. The healthy baby usually becomes a healthy child (at least, it is far better fitted to resist the diseases that pertain to childhood), and the healthy child furnishes the material for the healthy adult.

Children Employed on Farms to Avert Food Crisis Must Be Protected

By WILLIAM L. CHENERY

War already is demanding the labor of children on the farms. This tendency to employ children is accelerated by the existing shortage of all labor. It is being made unanswerable because of the admitted intensity of the need for a greater food production.

The practical question, then, is to devise some safe method of utilizing the strength of children. The future well-being of the children employed must be considered. The health of the race must be conserved. Plans must be made not only for the summer of 1917 but for the long years ahead.

Already the federal department of labor has begun the mobilization of a million boys as active farm workers. Numerous other governmental agencies and private associations are attempting to do similar work on a smaller scale. Some are proceeding without that detailed wisdom which promises success. It is valuable, therefore, to regard the plan proposed by the national child-labor committee.

This was formulated after a conference with the directors of the Playground association and Boy Scouts of America, the New York commissioner of education, the New York board of education, and the agricultural committee of the Merchants' association. Obviously, then, it has been thought out with some care.

First of all, the children should be classified according to age and development. Only those over fourteen or fifteen should be sent out into the country. Younger children would be useless to the farmers, and the work would be bad for them.

Those under fourteen may be used at home. They should be trained and supervised. Teachers, Boy Scout leaders, playground directors and others interested in the well-being of children should be organized into a summer agricultural faculty. A fund should be raised to manage the work and vacant lot owners should be induced to lend their land.

These younger children should be graded into classes, and they should be given school credit for work done between June 1 and October 1. But there should be "no general exemption that will turn children out of school without providing both occupation and supervision." The agricultural faculty should consist of persons "who appreciate the limits of a child's strength and will not permit him to be overworked."

GOD KNOWS BEST.

Oh, sleep pretty baby, sleep,
For tonight your pretty little head,
Is pillowed on a mother's white breast
Oh, sleep darling baby, sleep and rest,
Morning soon will dawn and you
Will wake to see, for they all love you

Oh, sleep precious baby for nought,
You know of the battles and the strife
That is now raging in this life;
Oh, sleep angel baby sleep, for soon
The morning sun will rise, and then
May come the sad goodbyes.

Oh, sleep precious baby, sleep and rest;
Once I had a mother just like you
Oh, her kisses on my brow I can feel them now;

Oh, sleep darling baby, sleep and rest,
May He spare you this anguish and pain;

Oh, sleep angel baby, sleep and rest—

The Tale of The Orient.

Timur-lent, the Tartar invader, was very ugly, and, catching a glimpse of himself in a mirror, he burst into tears. The court jester began weeping also, and kept it up long enough after his master had stopped. Timur looked at him in astonishment. "I wept with reason," he said, "at beholding my own ugliness—I, the lord of so many lands. But I do not understand why you should thus despair."

"If you, my lord," replied the jester, "wept for two hours after seeing yourself in the mirror for an instant, is it not natural that I, who see you all day long, should weep longer than you?"—Onward.

New Burbank Wheat

To End World Famine.

San Jose, Cal., July 18.—Luther Burbank, the world's greatest scientific agriculturist, announced to-day the perfection of a "super-wheat" which he believes will go far toward solving the universal problem of grain shortage.

Its yield is five times as much per acre as the average production throughout the United States today.

Where 15 bushels are now garnered, 40 to 70 is the measure of the new Burbank variety.

It is as if this genius of the plant kingdom had suddenly extended manyfold America's wheat acreage.

The promise of this achievement for a hunger-threatened world can scarcely be overestimated.

It is the product of ten years' extensive and very expensive experimenting to combine into one wonderful new grain the best food qualities, hardiness and fecundity of many strains of wheat selected from all parts of the earth.

It has been carefully tested in comparison with 68 of the world's best wheats and excels every one of them in productiveness.

Burbank until now has kept its secret for fear the results of his labors would be appropriated by exploiters.

I have perfected and have ready for market the most productive wheat ever evolved by man, he said.

The average yield will run about 50 to 70 bushels to the acre. It is hardy, barbedless smooth and milky, and will grow anywhere in the temperate zone.

Were it universally planted, the same acreage today under cultivation should yield many times as much wheat.

MARINES ALWAYS FIRST IN FIGHT

They Go Everywhere by Land or Sea in Defense of the American Flag.

MOTTO: "ALWAYS FAITHFUL"

The Recruit Entering Service Today Is Paid $30 a Month and the Opportunities for Advancement Are Numerous.

By EDWARD B. CLARK.

Washington.—"First in the Fight" is the war-time slogan of the United States marines, while "Semper Paratus," "Always Faithful," is their motto in peace and war.

So it would seem that if good works, coupled with faith, secure a man's salvation, there must be some reason as well as rhyme in the last four lines of the Marine corps hymn:

If the Army and the Navy
Ever look on Heaven's scenes,
They will find the streets are guarded by
The United States Marines.

Recently Uncle Sam has ordered an increase in the number of his marines to a war strength of 20,000 men, which immediately means 4,000 more men than there are in a division of troops of the United States Army. There is room in the marines, therefore, for any stalwart young American between the ages of eighteen and thirty-five who wishes to be a soldier and a sailor in one, to be first in the fight, and to be able to prove that he is always faithful to the ideals of humanity and the ideals of his country. In the present war the American benefit is that the two are one.

When congress recently increased the pay of the army it also increased the pay of the navy and of the Marine corps. The recruit today who enters the Marine corps will receive $30 a month pay, an increase of $15 over the pay in the more or less plinking times of peace. More than this if he goes to sea, which unquestionably will be his lot, he will receive 20 per cent additional, and it is generally accounted that in this war time the 20 per cent increase will be continued while the marine is on land in a foreign country holding up his end for the United States.

What is the marine? This is one of the questions in a little catechism issued by the officials of the corps. The answer is that the marine is a soldier of the sea.

A Two-Fisted Fighter.

The marine is a soldier and a sailor, and yet he is neither. He is a sort of a two-fisted fighting rover. He goes everywhere by land or by sea to the last outpost of civilization and beyond if it is necessary for the service of protection of the American flag and of the upholding of the rights of American people.

The Marine corps is curious in a way in its formation. It has more men in its ranks than an army division, and yet in a way its organization is that of a regiment, although it has a major general commandant and several brigadier generals. Then, like the army, it has its colonels, its lieutenant colonels, its majors, and its captains.

The Marine corps, big as it is, with its 30,000 men in war time, keeps a peculiar organization, because its fighters necessarily are divided into comparatively small detachments. Under the command of Colonel Dogan of the Marine corps 2,000 soldiers of the sea soon will be in the trenches in France. These men, it has been announced, were added to the preliminary force which it is intended to send into France because the government recognized the right of marines to live up to the meaning of their war-time slogan, "First in the Fight."

Men Needed for Marines.

The United States government wants men for its Marine corps. It hopes that it will not be necessary to draw from the ranks of the selective service army the men needed to complete the complement of the soldier-sailor organization. It wants volunteers. The attractions of service in the marines are many. There are chances, and good ones, for the enlisted men to be recommended for a student course at Annapolis, there to be educated and trained and upon graduation to receive a commission either in the Marine corps or in the navy. The law also provides for the promotion of noncommissioned officers to warrant rank in the grades of marine gunners and quartermaster's clerk. Such officers receive from $1,125 to $2,500 a year, and are entitled to the same privileges of retirement as warrant officers in the navy.

There is a chance for marines to make money in addition to their pay. Mess stewards, mess sergeants, mess men, clerks, and men assigned to aviation duty receive amounts varying from $7.50 to $15 per month in addition to their base pay. There are provisions for increased pay for men who qualify as expert riflemen, as marksmen and as sharpshooters.

The Marine corps is the oldest army service of the United States, having been organized before the army and the navy. Every man who enters it is given his food, his clothing, his lodging, and his medical attendance.

The country needs volunteer marines for a service that is First at the Front and Always Faithful.

W. H. Bigham and wife were guests of Scott Paris and wife Sunday.

J. T. Bigham and wife were guests of Will Ward Sunday.

Mrs. Mary Berry, who has been visiting in Kentucky for two or three months, will leave for her home in Caruthersville, Mo., some time in August.

George Condit and wife, of Dean's, were guests of T. M. Hill last third Sunday.

FORD'S FERRY

The farm products are all growing nicely in this neighborhood at the present time and the prospects for a good crop are unusually bright. We do not think that many of the American people are likely to starve, notwithstanding all the predictions which have been made to that effect.

Most enthusiastically do we endorse the great aeroplane construction program which is being promulgated by the American War Department and which calls for the expenditure of $600,000,000 in the building of aircraft for military purposes. The airship has proven to be a tremendously important factor in the present great conflict and if the Allies can maintain the complete upper hand in the sky they will conquer the enemy much quicker than they would without the aid of this great advantage.

Your correspondent took a real nice bicycle ride a few weeks ago and after it was all over he also experienced a real nice fainting spell—the only time during his whole life that he has ever collapsed from over-exertion, thus proving that bicycle riding is harder work than any farm work.

There are many people who claim that the steamboat has long since passed its greatest era of usefulness. We do not deny this assertion which so many people are making but we do deny any statement which says that the steamboat is of no further use whatever. For many years to come the river commerce will be profitable and beneficial for quite a number of people. The railroad may still be the principal means of transportation but it is certainly not the only means. There is no likelihood whatever of the steamboat being entirely done away with any time during the immediate future.

Candidates are thicker than fleas in August and each one of them is trying to impress the people with a tremendously fine fellow he is, and what a catastrophe it would be for the county if he is not nominated and elected. We are afraid there will be quite a number of disappointed ones when the final test is made at the polls. It is utterly impossible for every office seeker to be elected but some benefit at least will accrue from their candidacy. They will at least practice courtesy and politeness during the period in which they are running for office even though they should relapse back into the old rut after it is all over.

We are highly gratified to know that Gen. John J. Pershing will be the Commander-in-Chief of the American army which will be put upon the fighting line in Europe. According to all appearances, Pershing is possessed of unusual qualities as a military leader and we believe that he will conduct the operations in a most skillful, energetic manner. Under his able and efficient leadership the American troops will not suffer more than half the losses which they would sustain if they were directed by a headstrong man like Roosevelt. We are confident that Pershing will distinguish himself very highly in the coming operations and we feel sure that the glory of his achievements will cause the American people to feel proud at the mention of his name for many years to come.

Mrs. Eursa Truitt is suffering from a severe attack of typhoid fever. We sincerely hope that she will recover as soon as possible.

Quite a number of people from this vicinity attended Children's day at Mt. Zion on Sunday, July 8th, and it certainly proved to be some entertainment indeed. Mt. Zion has long been noted for the immense crowds which have gathered at that place and we think that the last big crowd was just as large as any that have ever been seen at Mt. Zion.

There were people from almost every part of the county including a considerable number from Marion. People came in automobiles, in buggies and almost every other variety of vehicle imaginable. For fear of falsely misrepresenting the situation we will not say that everybody experienced a fine time for somebody is always half sick or feeling bad on an occasion like that. We firmly believe, however, that the great majority of those who were present enjoyed themselves nicely and were well pleased with the entertainment, which consisted of a beautifully arranged program on the part of both the children and grown-ups who participated in the exercises. A number of excellent recitations were rendered by the children, in the morning, and a number of splendid songs were given by the Marion quartette band in the afternoon. In addition to many other things, the people were also treated to a fine dinner, so sumptuous and magnificent as to be fit for the gods. It was a day which will be long remembered by those who were present.

Leonard Mattingly has been visiting his daughter, Mrs. W. L. Samuels, the past week.

Mrs. George Brantley spent Sunday with Mrs. W. K. Powell.

Miss Ina Vaughn is visiting friends in Tolu this week.

Mrs. E. S. Traylor has been spending a few days with her daughter Mrs. Dora Deavers, of Providence.

A. S. Cannan Goes

To Rosiclare, Ill.

Marion will be the loser and Rosiclare the gainer, by the deal which A. S. Cannan has recently made which places him in charge as manager of the big Company Hotel, painted and papered and have put new furniture and equipment throughout. Mr. Cannan and his estimable family will leave soon to assume charge.

We are not authorized to name the successor of Mr. Cannan in his business here, but may next week.

As manager at a good salary, the Rosiclare Mining Co., has made several efforts to get Mr. Cannan, and has now succeeded and to prove their willingness to back and stand by any good man they have had the hotel overhauled.

AMERICAN RED CROSS HOSPITAL UNITS FIRST TO ANSWER NATION'S CALL FOR HELP ON EUROPE'S BATTLEFIELDS

Organized in Peace Times, These Groups of Surgeons, Nurses and Privates Are Showing the Allies That Uncle Sam Is Prepared to Aid Them Fully in One Department at Least—This Community Must Do Its Part—We Must Give Our Time, Services, Money.

If the American Red Cross had never done anything else than organize, equip and supply the base hospitals which are now backing our armies, it would have justified its existence. Of course it has done, and still is doing, countless great things for America and for the world; but its accomplishment in the line of base hospitals is just now of prime importance.

As briefly as it may be defined, a base hospital is an institution which cares for the sick and wounded soldier from the time he is sent back from the firing line, until he is able to be removed to a hospital in his own country.

It is almost unbelievable, but nevertheless a fact, that until the American Red Cross took hold of the task a year ago, no nation in the history of the world had ever organized a base hospital until after war had been declared and the fighting begun, and the wounded men lay writhing on the ground.

Always, of course, there have been a few army surgeons with each regiment, who patched up the slightly wounded and got them back into the firing line as quickly as possible. Also, of course, there have always been in all countries some sort of hospital system for the care of the sick and wounded when they got home.

But always the intermediate institution, for the care and transportation of the sick and wounded between the front and the home hospitals, was missing. This has invariably led to a terrible congestion of wounded on the battlefields, where thousands suffered needlessly, lost arms and legs that might have been saved, or died when a little care would have preserved them.

Col. Jefferson Randolph Keen, U. S. A. Medical corps, director general of military relief of the Red Cross, has likened the former organization to a bridge of which the end spans were complete, but the middle span—the base hospitals—was entirely lacking.

When a man is wounded in battle, the method of caring for him is this—modified, of course, by varying conditions:

He lies on the field in No Man's Land between the lines, or in the trench until he is able to drag himself away, or the stretcher bearers can reach him, and carry him to one of the little first-aid stations. These are always very near to the fighting lines—sometimes in a part of the trench where the men are fighting.

There an army surgeon stanches the flow of blood, puts a dressing on the wound to keep out infection, binds on requires an operation, he is in the hands of the best surgeons of the land, with the finest surgical tools to do their work. And the hospital has an ample supply of wound dressings, pads, splints, hospital gowns, surgical shirts—all the thousand and one things a first-class hospital must have.

That is the service which the American Red Cross has provided for the American soldier before our country was at war—before a single American ship or unit of the American army was headed for Europe. Thirty-six of these hospitals—enough to care for the wounded of an army of a million men—have been made ready to the last strip of bandage and the last enrolled stretcher bearer. Several of them are now in France, helping to care for the wounded of the allies, and ready to care for the American soldiers who are sure to fall into their hands before many weeks.

Each of these base hospitals calls for the services of 23 surgeons, 2 dentists, 75 Red Cross nurses and 150 privates, including orderlies, ambulance drivers, stretcher bearers and clerks.

The permanent minimum equipment of each hospital consists of three carloads of beds, mattresses, scientific apparatus, operating room paraphernalia, and all utensils. Units going to Europe these days, however, are taking double or triple equipment.

The consumable supplies of each hospital consist of $3 crates of bandages, wound pads, splints, fracture pillows, dressings and hospital supplies of every kind to the number of 42,482, all made up to army standard, packed, boxed and labeled so that surgeons and nurses can put their hands on them in a moment.

Now—from this it might seem that the Red Cross has done everything needful, and that there is nothing more to do for the base hospitals but to wait until the wounded begin to stream in, and give them the benefit of all this foresight.

Not so. It has been established that the supplies of bandages and splints and wound pads and gauze in a base hospital last through just about four days of heavy fighting. Then, unless there were a great store of supplies to draw from, the hospital would find itself with 500 wounded on hand, and no dressings for their wounds.

Here, again, is work for the Red Cross. All over the land, wherever supplies were made for these 36 base hospitals, are women trained in making hospital supplies. It is for these women not only to stand ready to furnish other supplies, but to train still splints in case of broken bones, and makes it possible for the patient to be moved to the little field hospital a short distance from the fighting line.

After wounded soldiers received first aid in the trench dressing stations they are carried back by Red Cross workers under fire to waiting Red Cross ambulances in which they are conveyed to a field hospital. Thence they are removed to the base hospital.

This field hospital is usually a tent—sometimes a hut or a barn or even a space in the open air sheltered by a hill or a clump of trees. It is really little more than an enlarged first-aid station, with a capacity for not more than 125 wounded, who lie on the ground on tarpaulins. There are no beds, and seldom any cots.

From the field hospital the wounded are taken, as rapidly as possible, to the evacuation hospitals, still farther from the danger zone. Each evacuation hospital cares for the wounded from three field hospitals. This, too, is an emergency station, and has no permanency. It is a collection station for wounded, where the worst cases may be given a little more attention than has been possible before.

As rapidly as the motor ambulances, the hospital trains, the hospital ships, or other agencies, are able to work, the wounded are taken from these collecting stations to the base hospital, located at the army base some distance to the rear.

Here, for the first time, the wounded man finds himself in a real hospital, in the hands of surgeons and nurses who have the time to give him the best possible care.

He is put into a real bed in a real hospital, supplied with X-ray, bacteriological and pathological laboratories, a diet kitchen presided over by skilled cooks, and with surgeons and nurses drawn from America's most highly trained to wait on him. If he other women to take up the work; for when the Americans begin to fight there will be no stopping the stream of wounded until the war is won. And the Red Cross cannot afford to let a single fighting man die for lack of a bandage or a splint. Is our community doing its part?

In France right now the supply of gauze and linen is so low that they are reported to be using old newspapers to stanch bleeding wounds. That must never happen to an American soldier. And unless the American people get behind the Red Cross with all their strength and in all their numbers, and train themselves to turn out supplies for their hospitals, it may happen.

It would be the irony of fate if a soldier from our own town—perhaps your own family, or mine—were to get gangrene in his wound, perhaps lose an arm or a leg or even his life, because we folks here had failed to furnish the dressings for his wound.

ENGLISH SPARROW

Passer domesticus

Length, about six and one-fourth inches. Its incessant chattering, quarrelsome disposition, and abundance and familiarity about human habitations distinguish it from our native sparrows.

Range: Resident throughout the United States and southern Canada.

Habits and economic status: Almost universally condemned since its introduction into the United States, the English sparrow has not only held its own, but has ever increased in numbers and extended its range in spite of all opposition. Its habit of driving out or even killing more beneficial species and the defiling of buildings by its droppings and by its own unsightly structures, are serious objections to this sparrow. Moreover, in rural districts, it is destructive to grain, peas, beans, and other vegetables. On the other hand, the bird feeds to some extent on a large number of insect pests, and this fact points to the need of a new investigation of the present economic status of the species, especially as it promises to be of service in holding in check the newly introduced alfalfa weevil, which threatens the alfalfa industry in Utah and neighboring states. In cities most of the food of the English sparrow is waste material secured from the streets.

Prominent Marion Couple

Married in Louisville.

Douglas Carnahan accompanied by his mother Mrs. Clara Carnahan, his intended Miss Anna Cox, his nephew, George Orme, and Miss Louise Clement left Marion Sunday morning on the Illinois Central train for Louisville where Mr. Carnahan and Miss Cox were united in the holy bonds of wedlock by Rev. J. A. Chandler, at high noon in the auditorium of Rev. Chandler's Church, Monday.

The party which accompanied the couple from here were the only guest at the wedding which was a quiet affair. The happy couple left for Cincinnati, Ohio, on a bridal trip and when they return will be at home to their friends at the residence of the grooms mother on Belleville st.

The marriage of this fine couple is the culmination of a long and happy courtship and joins two prominent and wealthy families. The bride is a beautiful brunette and the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Felix G. Cox, who are among the county's wealthiest land owners.

The groom, tall, handsome and just arrived of age, is a son of the late W. G. Carnahan the capitalist and is related to many prominent people here and is now merchandising in his own building on Main Street. The start on life's voyage with indeed bright prospects for a long and happy wedded life and with the best wishes of many friends.
