Oregon is quite a wheat country, and is a great fruit country such as prunes, apples, peaches, berries. We live on the North Umpqua River which is a fine fishing stream and is kept up by springs and snow in the Cascade mountains. This is a good country for the laboring man. the old people of this country said last winter was the coldest winter they had seen for 20 years and it didn't get colder than 16 above zero.

We think this is a great country out here, but if it wasn't for the cold weather and storms old Kentucky would be good enough! 359 for me. NATIONAL WOMAN SUFFRAGE ASSOCIATION'S WOLLAIN CONGRESS

Four Sections With Four Division Chiefs--- The "Front Door Lobby." Otherwise Known as the Fighting Phalanx of the National---The "Social Section."

Congressional work which is being carried on by the National American Woman Suffrage Association has grown to such dimensions tracted meeting at Repton. that it has been found necessary to divide it into four sections with a division chief for each. Most picturesque of these sections is the section on legislation, sometimes called the "Front Door Lobby," in recognition of its scorn of all side door methods and its avowed preference for working in the wide open. Again, it is known as the "fighting phalanx" in recognition of its indomitable spirit and tireless activities. Mrs. Maud Wood Park, of Massachusetts, is its is the guest of Mrs. Jce Fester. SPARROW HAWK (Falco sparverius

Length, about ten inches. This is one of the best known and handsomest, as well as the smallest, of North American hawks.

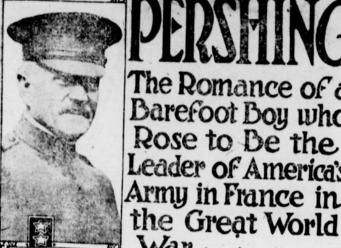

Range Breeds throughout the United States, Canada, and northern Mexico; winters in the United States and south to Guatemala.

Habits and economic status: The sparrow hawk, which is a true falcon lives in the more open country and builds its nest in hollow trees. abundant in many parts of the West, where telegraph poles afford it convenient perching and feeding places, Its food consists of insects, small mammals, birds, spiders, and reptiles Grasshoppers, crickets, and terrestrial beetles and caterpillars make up considerably more than half its subsistence, while field mice, house mice, and shrews cover fully 25 per cent of its annual supply. The balance of the food includes birds, reptses, and spiders. Contrary to the usual habits of the species, some individuals during the breeding season capture nestling birds for food for their young and create considerable havoc among the songsters of the neighborhood. In ag ricultural districts when new ground is broken by the plow, they sometimes become very tame, even alighting for an instant under the horses in their endeavor to seize a worm or insect. Out of 410 stomachs examined, 314 were found to contain insects; 129, small mammals; and 70, small birds This little falcon renders good service in destroying noxious insects and rodents and should be encouraged and protected.

ITTLE Johnny Pershing peered around the end of the work train "Dad," he called, his shrill child's time studying. But I reckon he'll grow voice sounding above the "thud, thud, thud!" of the picks wielded by the construction gang, "oh, dad, kin 1 stay from school today? John Pershing, construction fore man, wiped the perspiration from his brow and climbed down from the embankment where the new side track was being laid. He approached the boy, laid his hand on his shoulder and asked, "What does mother say?" "She told me to run over and ask ahead." With a whoop of delight and evidently anticipating his mother's consent, little Johnny ran for home as fast as his little bare brown feet would carry him. His mother stood in the doorway of the neat little white cottage. She smiled, knowing that father had followed the usual plan of "leav ing it to mother."

"Father says I kin stay if you don't care, mother. Please let me see the soldiers drill!"

"Well, I guess one afternoon from school won't make much difference. and you do love to watch the soldiers. don't you, Johnny?'

"I sure do, mether." "Well, get your face and hands washed and come in to lunch."

After lunch Johnny hied to the vil lage square of the little town of Laclede, Mo., and took up his point of vantage on the band stand, where he could see all operations. The drill over, Captain Johnson, at tracted by the keen interest with which the barefooted little urchin had followed every movement, said, "Well, sonny, what do you think of my sol-

A difference almost too small to be measured would have sent another man to "the Point," and John would in all likelihood have become a city lawyer instead of a gen-

CHAPTER III. An Officer In the Army.

WHETHER a man remains in the army long enough to win his reperal's stars or whether he leaves the service before he even finishes the course at the Military academy, he never forgets the day that sees him enrolled at "the Point." It is one of the "days of days" in his life. If the all so new and strange and there are so many rules to be observed and customs to be learned and things to be seen that it is like beginning a new life. Many a country lad enters the academy raw, green and untrained, "but sometimes it is a little hard to and if he has the pluck and stamina, mental and physical, to finish the course he emerges a finished product-"an officer and a gentleman"-fit to command

So it was with John Pershing. But he did more than finish the course; he went through it with honor. He was graduated as senior cadet captain, which means that in military affairs ne ranked above all his classmates. Others topped him in some of the studies which make up the curriculum at the United States Military academy, but it was his voice that rang out the commands for his classmates on

He had been home to visit the 'folks" during his furlough after he had been at the academy two years. So I'm going to teach school and try to His friends turned out to greet him, of course, and the rest of the town flocked to see him arrive. It isn't evbelieve there'll ever be another big ery day that a man from West Point war, and I don't want to be a soldier arrives at a little place in Missouri, all my life unless I can see active and every one wanted to see as soon as possible what two years of Uncle Sam's training had done for Johnny lively bit of fighting before he had been Pershing. He was in' to show him that a teacher isn't always first to get away when the bugles rang out the notes of the "Charge!"

Of course John's first day home was given to his folks. No one else could take the first happy hours of the young man on furlough. But the second day found him wandering in the fields and woods with his boyhood chum, Charley Spurgeon.

There was so much to tell about the life at the academy! "Tell me," said Charley, "what do you think about life in the army?"

"I don't think I'll stick to it," said John, "although I'll try to finish the course at the academy. I think I'll have to go back to my original idea of udying law. This country is at peace now, and it's going to stay at peace There won't be a gun fired in the next hundred years. The army is no place for me in peace time. The Apaches and other wild western tribes were often on the rampage, and the soldier ordered to the western plains and mountains and mesas had his work cut out for him. Pershing in the cavalry, the branch of the service most often used against the redskins, got his share of the hard work. It did not always mean fighting, however. "All right." was the Indian's retort. "If I'm too dirty to wrestle with I'll run him a foot race. All he'll have to do is keep shead of me."

"Race him, Jack." said Lieutepant Grayson. "It's up to you to uphold the honor of the white race."

"Can't be done. You know my ankle is still weak from that sprain. "They won't believe it. You can beat the big buck anyway." So the race was run and was nearly lost by Pershing. About ten feet from the finish line his ankle gave way and he rolled over in a heap. But his presence of mind remained upright, and with a mighty effort he gathered himself up into a toll, turned a ser and landed across the line a viliner.

> CHAPTER IV. Fighting and Cludying.

So the years go for Pershing in the west. There is some fighting There is some fighting, much marching and drilling, with official commendation for duty well performed. But promotion lags. The call of Blackstone and Kent still tries to lure him from the profession of arms, but it is not until 1803, when he has just completed a year's term as military instructor at the University of Nebraska, that he wins his degree of bachelor of laws. He has put in all his spare time in the study of the law. He will make a good lawyer, for his keen mind is used to reasoning out closely the problems that confront him. But he has spent eleven years in the army, including the four years as the Military academy, and it is hard to break away from long associations. He will remain in the service, for awhile at least, he thinks. His men think well of him, especially the colored troopers of the Tenth cavalry. in command of whom he has acquired the sobriquet of "Black Jack." He has also served as an instructor at the military academy.

In the meantime his belief that the United States will never become involved in another war is in a fair way to be disproved. For a century or more the black cloud of revolt has hung over Cuba and the Philippines. and the severity of the Spanish government in the "Pearl of the Antilles" has evoked protests from the United States. Then come the destruction of the Maine, the fevered debates in congress, the declaration of war, and every regular army officer is burning to get into the scrap in Cuba. Of course "Black Jack" Pershing was one.

It is on the day of El Caney, one of the hottest fights of the short war, that the colonel of the Tenth cavalry turns to his orderly. "Who commands those troopers there on the right?" he

"That's Pershing, sir."

"By Jove, I thought so! He's the man! See him go up that hill! I've been through the civil war and I've seen men under fire many a time, but on mr word, he's the bravest and coolest man under fire I ever saw in my life! Washington shall hear of this.

And Washington did hear of it, to such good effect that Lieutenant Pershing, tow major of volunteers, went to the Hilippines when that bunch of unruly clands needed cleaning up. In the reantime he had shown his fine adminstrative abilities as organize: and fist chief of the bureau on insular | J. governmet, and many a time Pershing could been nights in Washington stretchin his walks for miles and miles tourd the outskirts of the city while he restled with the problems that contated him. But he "made good," ase had done in everything he underty since his boyhood days.

"I have eard of these new white men who eve come to our lands to take the pre of the Spaniards," said Datto Impang of the Mores to his most in mre friend. "They are bet ter fighirsthan the Spaniards, it is said. B bey cannot prevail against us. Area our krisses and barongs

The days were very tun now tor Pershing and Brewster and their mer and all the other Americans who were trying to instill lawabiding ways into the herce Moros. It was a hard task. Some said that it was impossible. They had to fight not only against the savage Moros, but against a treacher-ous climate, ill suited to the white man, even though he is able to take all possible care of himself. But when the white man has to do his fighting, now in swamp and jungle, now on the sides of steep mountains, now in the hot tropical sunshine and now in the cool of the evening and the deep tropical midnight against a brave, willy, fanatical enemy it is not to be wondered at that the fight dragged on for years. Even men like Pershing, backed by soldiers brave as any the world ever produced, could not be expected to complete the job in a short time.

The smoking room of the Army and Navy club in Washington was well filled when the news came that "Pershing had done it again." "What do you think of 'Black Jack' Pershing?' asked one member of another. "Jefferson's been up at the secretary's today, and the old man told him that Pershing's not only cleaned up the Moros, but has got the blooming heathen to elect him one of their chiefs. What d'ye call those chiefs? Say, Brown, you've been up against the Moros. What do they call those chiefs of theirs? Oh, yes: dattos. Much obliged. We've got a datto among us now, boys. Pershing's a datto. Datto Pershing sounds well doesn't it?" And at that minute in the far away Philippines Captain Pershing-he had his two bars on his shoulders nowwas walking through a Moro village with brown skinned Moro maidens strewing flowers in his pathway. Was he thinking of the flowers and the homage that was being paid to him? Not a bit of it. He was rehearsing in his mind the passage from the Koran which he was going to spring on Datto Bangbang to heighten still further that dusky chieftain's respect for him!

Wily Pershing! He has had the wit to see that these people can be pacified as well by getting inside their minds as by shooting civilization into them. He has done his share of shooting. with extraordinary courage that is to bear extraordinary fruit in Washington. Twice he went after the Morosin 1901-3 and in 1911-13.

CHAPTER V. Making a Record Jump-Romance and Tragedy.

THE news of Pershing's promotion to brigadier general thrilled Washington and sent a wave of astonishment through the nation. From cap tain to brigadier general! Over the heads of 862 senior officers jumps the man who was once undecided whether he should become a lawyer or a soldier. Unprecedented jump and one not to be repeated, in all likelihood, in the history of the American army. But the former soldier in the White House has followed with admiration and perhaps just a bit of envy the wor derful work of the soldier in the Philippines.

"I've just got to promote that man. Taft says the law won't let me make him a major or a colonel. What shall I do with him? By Godfrey, I've got it, I've got it! Hello, hello, give me Secretary Taft at once. Mr. Taft, does the law permit the president of the United States to make a general officer of any officer in the United States army? It is your opinion that it does. Good! Have your man make out a commission for Brigadier General John over to me, and I'll sign it at once. Goodby."

"Miss Warren," said Major Lampson at a reception at the home of Senator Warren of Wyoming, "will you permit me to present my friend Captain Persh-

"I am delighted to meet Captain Pershing," said Miss Frances Warren. "I have heard of his work in Cuba and the Philippines and have desired to congratulate him."

This was the beginning of the romance in the life of General Pershing, a romance that was destined to end in deepest tragedy. Miss Warren was young, beautiful and a belle in Washington society. Her father, senator from Wyoming, was one of the leaders in the national upper house. She had heard the work of Captain Pershing lauded by the senators when President Roosevelt made the captain's record part of an annual message to congress, So, like Desdemona, she "loved him for the dangers he had passed."

had not called off the expedition? Surely not any army man who knows Pershing. When he started after Villa we just knew that Villa's future was settled. But the great war in Europe was threatening to involve the United States, Carranza was bitterly hostile, and Villa displayed the qualities of a will-o'-the-wisp. No one was more disappointed than Pershing when the orders to return were issued and he, the soldier in Mexico, had to hear them

"You are right, Mr. Secretary." said President Wilson. "And from what I have heard of Pershing and seea of him he is the man to send."

A New Light on

Convict Road Wor

The advantage of having a trained organization for using convicts on road construction is well shown by a recent instance where a road was greatly needed for military purposes. This particular road is a link in the system designated for improvement by the state highway department, but money for the work had not been appropriated. It is very necessary for the service of one of the camps now under construction and funds for its improvement were available from the appropriation for that camp. The work is greatly aided, however, during the prevailing scarcety of labor in that neighborhood by the fact that a large number of the convicts can e assigned to the job under foremen accustomed to manage such labor. The help to the nation in an emergency which this training in convict road building afford ought to be taken heart to heart by the authorities of those states which have not not be seriously checked. WHITE-CROWNED SPARROW

Length, seven inches. The only similar sparrow, the white-throat, has a yellow spot in front of eye.

Range: Breeds in Canada, mountains of New Mexico, Colorado, Wyoming, and Montana, and thence to the Pacific coast; winters in the southern half of the United States and in porthern Mexico. Habits and economic status: This teautiful sparrow is much more numerous in the western than in the eastern states, where, indeed, it is rather rare. In the East it is shy and retiring, but it is much bolder and more conspicuous in the far West and there often frequents gardens and a seed eater by preference, and insects comprise very little more than are the largest item, with some Call and see same. beetles, a few ants and wasps, and some bugs, among which are black however, consists of weed seeds which amount to 74 per cent of the In California this bird is accused of eating the buds and blossoms of fruit trees, but buds or blossoms were found in only 30 out of 516 stomachs, and probably it is only under exceptional circumstances that it does any damage in this way. Evidently neither the farmer nor the fruit grow er has much to fear from the whitecrowned sparrow. The little fruit it eats is mostly wild, and the grain eaten is waste or volunteer.

Military Training May Free Schools of Some of Absurdities of Past

If the world war rid us of militarism and of the drill sergeant idea in the schoolroom, it may be worth all it costs. Modern war calls for people throughout this neighborhood science, and science is precisely what our present system of education doesn't give as yet. Military training in the schools may prove the great | Crow. The things that the soldier must do, the things that the engineer must do, the things that the munition worker, the hospital nurse, and the army cook must do, are the very things that children of both sexes are most keenly and intensely interested in-the very things on which they get no practical information in the present curriculum. We have so-called science courses in the schools, but they begin at exactly the opposite end from the child's interest. They are making him hate science almost as much as he now hates good literature. The war point of view would reverse all this and solve the great pedagogic problem of interest.

Teaching of English Language Is First in Education of Aliens

By ELSA ALSBERG minigrant Aid, New York Council of Jewish Wome

A realization of the responsibility of governmental agencies for the education of the adult immigrant is a matter of comparatively recent consciousness on the part of the public. With this consciousness there arose the consideration of methods—of ways and means of reaching the adult to Dycusburg to attend the revival alien, to interest him, to ascertain his educational needs, and to devise meeting. ways of supplying them.

The various processes of immigrant education are mainly processes of assimilation. They include a knowledge of our customs and institutions, both social and economic. But these are processes fundamentally dependent on a working knowledge of the English language and upon some command of the three R's.

Without this knowledge of our language the foreigner cannot have that social contact with the native born that takes him out of the isolation of his "foreign quarter" and introduces him to American customs and ways of living. Without English he cannot have access to that great Americanizing influence—the newspaper.

On the economic side, also, the non-English-speaking alien is at a great disadvantage. He is unable to carn of opportunities offered. In competition with the English-speaking employee, he must be able to understand orders given in English by his "boss," to read signs of warning in factory and streets, printed police and safety regulations, and quarantine placards in the tenement house in which he lives. His industrial advancement depends in a large measure on his ability to speak and understand English and on his having at least a rudimentary edu- this writing. cation.

The immigrant of either sex wants and needs a working knowledge of the English language and some appreciation of our American customs and institutions. It is time that we not only recognize this fact, but take active measures to supply these needs in acceptable and reasonable form.
