LOUISH CIVES MAN VIA HEPATICA

Mule Had Run Away With Lawplications Arose That Baftor Gave Vin Hepatica

W. W. Kelley, aged 58, well-known farmer, of Route No. 3, Leona, Tenn., and former merchant, who was so badly hurt several years ago by a mule running away with him, and for a long while in such a serious condition as a result of his injuries, has recovered and is at his work again.

Mr. Kelley says: "If anybody ever was in a terrible condition, I was, until my doctor discovered the right medicine for me. I had to quit farming and go into the merchandising business, but my injuries were such that I broke down in my billion in my bil in my kidneys and suffered greatly from rheumatism. I got so run down that I could not sleep. Had to get up a dozen times a night on account of my kidneys. I tried all sorts of tonics and remedies without any help at all. Had to quit business.

that anybody who is in a rundown con-dition can not miss it if they take Vin Hepatica. It is certainly a wonderful medicine, just as my doctor said it

This is just the way thousands and thousands talk about Vin Hepatica, because it is Nature's own remedy for kidney, liver, stomach and bowel troub'es; rheumatism, impure blood, nery-ousness, sleeplessness, rundown, weak condition, etc. It is not a patent nostrum, nor a king cure-all, but a comremedies known to medical science.

King Of The Khyber Rifles. (Continued From last week.) CHAPTER XXII.

"Whither?" one whispered to King. "To Khinjan!" he answered; and that was enough. Each whispered to the other, and they all became fired with curiosity more potent than money

Now he had to be careful. If he were to invent too much they might denounce him as a traiter to the "Hims" in general. If he were to tel them too little they would lose in terest and might very well desert him at the first pinch. He must feel for "An eye for the risk of an eye!" say the unforgiving "Hills." "If one of us should go back into his camp now he would be tortured. Be sure of that." Breathing deeply in the darkness, they nodded, as if the dark had eyes, Ismail's chin drove a fraction deeper into his shoulder. "Now ye know-for all men knowthat the entrance into Khinjan caves is free to any man who can tell a lie bination of eight of the finest herbal without flinching. It is the way out again that is not free. How many men We strongly recommend this great do ye know that have entered and

They all nedded again. It was common knowledge that Khinjan was a very graveyard of the presumptuous. "She has set a trap for the mullah. She will let him and all his men enter and will never let them out again! "How knowest thou?" This from two men, one on either hand. "Was I never in Khinjan caves?" he retorted. "Whence came I? I am her man, sent to help trap the mullah! I would have trapped all of you, but for being weary of these 'Hills' and wishful to go back to India and be par-doned! That is who I am! That is how I know!"

Their breath came and went sibilantly, and the darkness was alive with the excitement they thought themselves too warrior-like to utter. "But what will she do then?" asked somebody. King searched his memory, and in a moment there came back to him a picture of the hurrying jezailchi he had held up in the Khyber pass, and recollection of the man's words.

"Know ye not," he said, "that long ago she gave leave to all who ate salt to be true to the salt? She gave the Khyber jezailchis leave to fight agains her. Be sure, whatever she does will stand between no man and his pardon!"

"But will she lead a jihad? We will not fight against her!"

"Nay," said King, drawing his breatl in. Ismail's chin felt like a knife against his collar bone, and Ismail's ron fingers clutched his arm. It was time to give his hostage to Dame Fortune. "She will go down into India and use her influence in the matter of the pardons!"

"I believe thou art a very great liar indeed!" said the man who lacked part of his nose. "The Pathan went, and he did not come back. What proof have we?"

"Ye have me!" said King. "If I show you no proof, how can I escape

They all grunted agreement as to that. King used his elbow to hit Ismail in the ribs. He did not dare speak to him; but now was the time for Ismail to carry information to her, supposing that to be his job. And after a minute Ismail rolled into a shadow and was gone. King gave him twenty minutes' start, letting his men rest their legs and exercise their tongues Now that he was out of the mullah's elutches-and he suspected Yasmini would knew of it within an hour or two, and before dawn in any eventhe began to feel like a player in a game of chess who foresees his opponent mate in so many moves. . If Yasmini were to let the muliah and his men into the caves and to join forces with him in there, he would at least have time to hurry back to India with his eighty men and give warning. He might have time to call up the Khy ber jezailchis and blockade the caves before the hive could swarm, and he chuckled to think of the hope of that. On the other hand, if there was to be a battle royal between Yasmini and the mullah, he would be there to watch it and to comfort India with the news. "Now we will go on again, in order to be close to Khinjan at break of day." he said, and they all got up and obeyed him as if his word had been law to them for years. Of all of them he was the only man in doubt-he who seemed most confident of all. They swung along into the darkness under low-hung stars, trailing behind King's horse, with only food a flozen of them a hundred s. an advance gue

Ismail slipped away and lost himself among the men, and none of them seemed to notice that he had been away and had come again. It was a little more than an hour after dawn and the chilled rocks were beginning to grow warmer when the head of a proession came out of Khinjan gate and started toward them over the valley. In all more than five hundred men emerged and about a hundred women and children. Then: "Muhammad Anim comes!" shouted a voice from a crag top. They snuggled into better hiding, and there was no thought now of leaving before the mullah should go by. He dismounted, for he had to, and tossed his reins to the nearest man with the air of an emperor. And he led the way down the cliffside without hesitation, striding like a mountaineer. His men followed him noisily.

It was thirty minutes after the last of the mullah's men had vanished through the gate, and his own men in dozens and twentles were scattered along the cliff-top arguing against delay with growing rancor, when a lone

King whistled softly to himself, and the general looked at him through half-closed eyes.

"Go in and talk to him, King. Let me know the result."

He had picked King to go up the Khyber on that errand not for nothing. He knew King and he knew the symptoms. Without answering him King obeyed. He went out of the room into a dark corridor and rapped on began to grow more lively and to have the door of the next room to the right. There was a muffled answer

Courtenay was placed under orders not to talk, so those who say they know exactly what happened in the room between the time when the door was shut on King and the time when he knocked to have it opened and called for the general, are not telling the truth.

What is known is that finally the general hurried through the door and ejaculated, "Well, I'm d-d!" foré he could close it again. The sentry (Punjabi Mussulman) has sworn to that over a dozen campfires since the day.

HELP RED CROSS IS URGENT PLEA OF NORTHCLIFFE

Speaks in Warmest Admiration of Work of Society.

MANY MILLIONS ARE NEEDED

Do Your Little Bit Toward Victory of English Editor Tells of Bravery and Devotion of Red Cross Workers.

"By subscribing to the Red Cross Americans are not only ensuring to their wounded soldiers quick and skillful treatment; they are helping to make their homes and their lives safe, whatever part of the country they live

No man is better fitted or more justly entitled to speak about Red Cross work and to plead its claim upon public generosity than Lord Northcliffe is now in this country at head of the British war mission. In the sentence quoted above he summed up, in an interview granted to a newspaper representative, his view of the appeal for funds which the American Red Cross society is making to the people of the United States.

"For the good work which all the allied Red Cross societies have done on the battlefields on every front," Lord Northcliffe said, "I have the warmest admiration. I have seen their ambulances and their hospitals in the French and Italian war zones. I have been under fire with them. The cour age and devotion shown by their stretcher-bearers, drivers, doctors, nurses and orderlies cannot be too highly praised. In France I came across American ambulances working with a steady disregard of danger and saving great numbers of lives. When the American armies take the field, they will need a huge Red Cross or ganization. It is up to the American people to see that they get it.

Much Money Needed.

"Red Cross work costs a great deal of money. Hospitals are costly to equip. Motor ambulances must be provided in large numbers, and must constantly be renewed. The bills for surgical instruments, drugs, and dress ings mount up to a high figure ever; week. Many millions of deliars have been poured into the coffers of the British Red Cross society, and it i still 'asking for more.' One of n newspapers, the London Times raised money for it at the rate of $40 000 a day over a long period. Almge er renders of the Times have s contributed more than $35,000,000 the Red Cross fund. Yet there ha never been more than enough to pro vide for the day-by-day needs of the society's splendld activity.

"No one can fully appreciate the enormous value of this activity to the soldiers in the field who has not ac tually seen it. What happens to wounded man when he is too badiy hurt to walk is something like this He is put on a stretcher and carried a short way to the rear. In the third line of trenches (each position consisting of three lines, one behind the oth er) there is a deep 'dug-out.' I will give you a short account of what saw in one of these underground hospitals, or rather dressing stations, on heavy sulkry afternoon not far from the town of Peronne in France, around which there was for such a long time hard and costly fighting. There was no sign of anything in the nature of n hospital, a tent, or of anything above ground. I was getting somewint weary of being told to lie down flat every few seconds to avoid bursting shells, when I saw a couple of stretcher-bearers coming through the haze as from nowhere and then disappear underground. 'It is underneath there,' I was told by my guide, whose daily duty it was to inspect these medical

"As quickly as possible we got down into a trench, following the stretcherbearers. There, in darkness lit by few candles, we gradually made out a very grim scene. Talking was dif-ficult, for one of our batteries had just "Owing to the heavy enony shell the vine I soon found to be an under

All who could move a hand had a cigarette, now admitted to be the first need of all but the very dangerously

"Passing on, and using our electric torch as little as possible, so as not to disturb the sleepers, we came to the main dressing room. Remember it was all underground, all dark, and that the oncoming wail of approaching shells, with immediate subsequent explosions, was continuous. Troops by Giving Financial Support doctors, all young men, were washing and bandaging. I counted twenty-four patients in that small chamber. crept onward and came to another room where there were nine cases, and again to a smaller one where lay the more dangerously wounded.

Touching Sight.

"These dressing rooms were protected by some four or five feet of earth above them. There was a small officers' mess and a medical storeroom, which were merely shielded by corrugated iron from shrapnel splinters, a kitchen, an office, and that was about ill. An operation for tracheotomy was taking place in one of the rooms.

"In all my many experiences abroad I have never seen a more touching sight than this little underground gathering of some twenty men, devoted doctors and assistants, waiting amidst the incessant shelling until the overcrowded maze could be evacuated. Let those who take their ease on a Sunday afternoon, or any other afternoon, realize that this same scene never ceases. Let those who consider that they are amply doing their 'bit' by Reeping things going at home, be grateful that their 'bit' is not as that of these young men. We cannot all of us share the danger, but we can every one of us admit the inequalities of our respective war work, and let them lose no opportunity of lightening the hard 'bit' of those at the front as far as lies in their power.

"Say this for me to the American people: Think, all of you who have sons, husbands, brothers, either in the ranks already or liable to be called for service, think of the soldier hit by a bullet or torn by shrapnel, shattered by bomb, mangled by high explosive, or potsoned by the fumes of horribie gas. To be picked up promptly and to receive careful treatment means life. To be left lying a long time on the battlefield means, if not death, permanent mutilation and disablement. Which is it to be? That depends upon Help to Bring Victory.

"But that is not all I would say to the American people. I would say also this: Bear in mind continually, remind yourselves night and morning that when you subscribe to the Red Cross, you are doing your little bit toward the victory of your troops, and when you help to bring victory within sight, you are helping to make your home safe, whatever part of the coun try you live in; belping to assert and to justify the claim of the American people to live as they choose to live, as someone else wishes them to "The war may seem a long way of from your home. You may find- it difficult to imagine any interference by outsiders with the way of life to which you are accustomed. But think of Belgium, think of Serbia, think of Think of the north of France and Poland and the western provinces of Russin. There the pec ple have to live as Prussia orders hem to live. They cannot carry on their businesses. They are not lowed to go out and come in as they please. They are liable at any monent to be carried off into Germany and put to exhausting hard labor. Think of the people of Alsace and Lorraine before the war. They were not able to live as they wished to live. Think of the Danes in Schleswig-Holstein who have been obliged to struggle against Prussianization with painful effort for fifty years. Think of the inhabitants of German Poland, refused the right to have their children taught in their own language, deprived of their land, forced to submit to being Germanized in very harsh' and abominable ways.

Would Control the World. "Germany's aim is to control the world. This aim has been avowed over a: ers and speakers. It was made popular, it was taught in schoots. No consideration of honor or justice or humanity was to be allowed to interfere with it. Maximilian Harden of the German weekly 'The Future,' is a man with the crowd. advocate, Allein-herrschaft, 'sole lord-ship.' The dream was that the Germans under Prusslan guidance should treat the whole world as they treated French Alsace-Lorraine; as they treated Danish Schleswig-Holstein, as they treated Polish Posen.

The German Doctrine.

"Germany, under Prussian guidance, has challenged the right of men and women to live as they choose to live. their right to freedom to develop in their own way, their right to pursue happiness according to their own ideas. 'Be German or we will crush you,' the Prussians said to the people of the conquered territories which I have mentioned. That is what they would say to the people of the United States if they could. They did their best to Germanize the United States during peace. If they were to be victorious in Europe, they would soon be attempting to accomplish this by making war.

"American soldiers are being sent to Europe to prevent the invasion of the United States. They will fight the Germans in France in order to avoid having to fight them at Boston or Chl-cago or in California. By subscribing to the Red Cross fund you can help to safeguard your home and your right to live as you wish to live. These cannot be safe while the Prussian threat of world domination throws a dark shadow across the sun of liberty. Give all you can afford, in your own interest, as well as to mitigate the suffering of your brave soldiers. The help of everyone is needed if the peril is to be turned forever aside."

STATE GUARD IS ELIMINATED IN NEW ARMY PLAN

Identity of State Organizations Is Lost While This War Lasts.

SUGGESTED BYGEN. PERSHINE

Reorganization Wipes Out Identity of Some Famous State Regiments-National Defense Act May Restore It After Conflict.

Washington.-War department offi cials, general staff officers and army officers generally frankly admit that National Guard, as it was before the United States entered the war, i being gradually eliminated, certainly as far as this war is concerned.

The fact is that since Gen. John J. Pershing was sent to France a decision has been reached to reorganize the regular army and National Guard from top to bottom. This decision was made on General Pershing's urgent ecommendation.

General Pershing's recommendations were the result of conferences in Paris between the American and allied commanders, and the new organization follows closely the lines of the present French organization, built up after three years of active fighting.

The recommendations of General Pershing were an entire surprise to war department officials and the general staff. The latter balked at first, but ultimately followed the plan recommended by the American field commanders on the theory that Pershing was on the ground and in a position to know what the British and French have found most effective in battering their way through the German lines.

That is the whole story. It is hard on National Guard organizations, especially the crack regiments, whos members have always taken great pride in them and striven to improve and perfect them.

For Keeping Identity.

At the outset the general staff plan provided for mustering into the federal service state units as such, each of them to be given a new regular army number, but to retain its iden-

When General Pershing urgently rec ommended that regiments be increased from 1,500 to more than 3,000, even crack National Guard infantry regiments, which had been recruited to full war strength were far below the required number. As finally perfected, the new organization provides for a regimental maximum strength of 103 officers and 3,652 enlisted men.

This explains why it has been neces sary to merge one National Guard reg iment with another. It has been stated repeatedly that the National Guard would next go to France. By combining two Guard units the general staff figured the war departmen would have a maximum of men in the enlarged regiment who had had some military training and experience.

On the other hand, if the recon mendations of governors, senators and representatives and National Guard officers were followed and the rank of Guard units filled up with drafted men from the same states, the ma fority of every regiment, with a fev exceptions, would be composed o wholly untrained men. This would mean a much longer training period As reorganized, army experts are cor fident the National Guard troops will be ready for service after a minimum training period in this country. Superior Fighting Machine.

However disappointing the new or ganization may be to either National Guard or regular army troops, officials feel that there can be no doubt that every officer and man in both branches, as well as those now in th National army camps, want to see the most efficient fighting machine pos-Army experts devoted most earnest study and thought to the reorganization. They think they have perfected an organization which has no superior as a fighting machine.

In the reorganization New York' Guardsmen have suffered disintegra tion. For instance, the men of th First New York Cavalry and Squadron A find themselves today mere "doug! boys," as in the past they termed th Infantry. They are bidding final fare well to their horses, and the partin s a sad one, for many of the forme cavalrymen have had the same mounts for several years.

The officers and men of the old First Cavalry are being split up among three units. The One Hundred and Sixth Machine Gun battalion will claim 550 of the enlisted personnel and the One hundred and Second Trench Mor tar battery, the first of its kind to be organized ir this country, takes One Hundred and Eighty One. The One Hundred and Second Ammunition Train will also claim a number of officers and men of the old regiment Squadron A, too, has lost its mount and the organization is now the On-Hundred and Fifth Machine Gen bat tatton.

In the Spartanburg camp of th Twelfth and Seventy-first regiments there are not enough men left to mak a decent sized company. The historic their men that more fortunate regi nents in the first line might get their var quotas.

In some instances units from two states have been combined or are about to be thrown together. These are extreme cases, and they tend to stir up even keener resentment than the combining of units within a single Missouri Protests.

The Fourth Missouri and Third Kansas furnish a striking illustration. Both of these regiments were below the strength required by the new organization. Both contained a large number of veterans.

When it was decided to combine them, Missourians immediately rose and protested the case in person to Secretary Baker, pointing out the injustice to both states and the damagng effect on the morale of the officers ind men.

He said this was true, also, of the Second Missouri, which was slated to be carved up and transformed into mae gun battalions.

Governor Gardner used all of the arguments he could muster, but wound up by declaring emphatically that if the government could not do othervise Mr. Baker could count on Missupporting him and doing its yet been finally disposed of, but it is entirely probable that Governor Gardner will lose. Mr. Baker personally regrets the necessity for breaking up state units. Ohio, his own state, has some crack regiments, and the Buckeye state is eing treated exactly as every other state. The first consideration is military one. The government wants the best possible military machine and only efficiency was considered in per-fecting the organization plans.

After the War. If there are any definite after-the-war plans for the National Guard they have not been revealed. Military experts who discussed the matter declared that after the war the National Guard naturally will revert to its status under the national defense to federalizing the Guard and making it more responsive to national authority. But what will be left of the National Guard if the war lasts a long time, it is asked? When the Guard was shaken together after its service on the border it numbered approxi-mately 150,000. Since that time many thousand Guardsmen have been dis charged on account of dependent relatives. Its strength at the time the United States entered the war may be put at 125,000 officers and men.

Men who have enlisted since that time did so "for the period of the war and will be automatically discharged when it ends. Meanwhile, it is fair to assume that many of the veterar Guardsmen will appear on casualty lists. At best, therefore, the National Guard proper at the close of the war will be nothing like as large as at present-378,000 men. Of course, many of the men who go through the war safely will re-enlist for peace time

It will be recalled that the formal announcement of the war department. in defining the new organization, spe cifically stated that it was for "over seas service." ### Plans for Aerial Jitneys Safe as Flivver Now Occupying Attention of Orville Wright.

IN HONUR OF WILSON

NAME AERIAL HIGHWAY

Plans for airplane jitneys, as safe as a flivver, and aerial highways crisscrossing the American continent with seven-mile stops, are occupying the time, genius and energy of Orville Wright, Dayton Inventor, who, with his brother, made the airplane practical. Wright is not much interested in battle cruisers of the air, although he admits they are important to win the war. Wright views the airplane as a messenger of peace and not a tool of Mars. Hence his activity in behalf of aero jitneys.

A dozen years ago the first fel flight of a heavier-than-air machine was made by the Wright brothers in Dayton, O. Orville Wright now believes the next ten years will mark even greater use of the air machines.

"As soon as the war is over I expect to see the whole country mapped out with aerial highways." Wright, "Along these routes, say every seven miles, there will be alighting places and hangars. Thus, with a person flying from a half-mile to a mile above the ground, it will be possible to glide to the next landing place, should engine trouble develop between

Sells the Champion Cream Saver

HE worth of a separator depends very largely upon its bowl.
A separator bowl must be scientifically designed, properly constructed and perfectly belanced or it will not only lose some cream to begin with, but will soon get out of balance and lose a great deal more cream, besides wearing out the bearings and gears in a short time. That is why the average life of a cheap separator is only two or three years.

The bowl of the NEW De Laval is self-centering

The new De Laval bowl is so constructed and so balanced upon its detached spindle that it will run true and do perfect work even after the machine has been in use for a long time.

The De Laval bowl has always been noted for its close skimraing under all conditions, but the new De Laval patented milk-distributing de-vice, together with the larger discs, makes the new De Laval bowl an even closer skimmer than the old one gives considerably greater capacity into the bargain. The new De Laval bowl has been called by people who ought to know, "the greatest improvement in cream separator construction in the last thirty years.

Come in and see one of the new ma-chines. We'll be glad to explain it to you in all its details, and we know you will be interested in examining the new bowl, the bell speed-indicator, and the many other improvements.

guide is necessary to reach the first line, especially when some of the trenches resemble irrigation ditches. The trenches the Americans are occupying begin from a screened position. On the way there shovels and tools were piled high below a hill on which there was a great bell for giving the alarm in case of a gas attack. There under cover were the company cooks busy warming up food that had been brought up in wagons.

There is a sort of a gentlemen's egreement in this sector that towns over the line are not'to be shelled. If one side violates the agreement the other side promptly fires shell for shell into a hostile town.

General Sibert, who has just completed a tour of the trenches, was asked how the morale of the Americans in the trenches was. He replied: "Morale?" How could the morale on a pile of mud which had been re- Americans be snything out good?"

Republicans in Switzerland Assail the Government.

Seek to Instil New War Spirit in Starving People by Fear of Total Distruction-Pamphlets Sent Across Border Calling the War Policy of the Kaiser Humbug of the People.

As an illustration of the activity of the German republicans in Switzerland $21 Barrel On Whiskey who are working to overthrow Hohenzollernism copies of a pamphlet which is being circulated across the frontier were made public by the committee on public information at Washington.

This political tract denounces bitterly the tunkerism of Germany, the war lords who control the government, whose sham peace proposals are described as an effort to humbug the German people.

The pamphlet of the German republicans evidently was written some time ago, but copies just have been received in the United States. Officially no reference has been made by the United States government to this activity, and the movement, if it may be described as such, is not regarded as having been developed to such a point that it might be considered a factor in the German situation. It is known, however, that the German republicans are continuing their agitation at least without the empire and circulating their literature of protest against the present gov-

"The German people," the pamphlet continues, "which at bottom does not understand why it has to defend the oundary line of Germany so far away as down there in the distant Balkans. knows only too well that a success in that remote theater of war can in truth bring a prolonging of its misery, but can in no sense bring a decisive vic tory. The weariness of war marches on into infinity; in order to instil patience into the people something new has been invented, and that is the furce of peace, which now, in accordance with all the rules of dramatic art, is to be presented to starving women and children.

The Farce as They See It. "The program of the farce may now be sketched with a light touch.

"Act 1. The central powers make peace proposals based upon and unac ceptable by reason of territorial en argement, annexation, both open and disguised, a colossal strengthening of Germany as a military power. "Act 2. The allies, who will fight to secure a true and lasting peace based on mutual understanding and putting an end to military states, reject these pence proposals-exactly as the Ger nen government foresees.

Act 3. And curtain. The German cople is informed through the belligerent (field-gray) press that the wicked nemy will have absolutely nothing to do with peace, that they insist upon the cormlete annihilation of the Ger and at home.

HOW WAR SAPS GERMAN VITALITY

Socialist Organ Sounds Grave Alarm Regarding Some Life Conditions.

BLOCKADE HURTS HEALTH

Marriages and Births Grow Fewer, While Deaths increase in Number-Food Shortage Influences Infant Mortality.

Amsterdam.-How the war is sapping the vital strength of the German nation, not only on the field of battle, but at home, is told in an iMuminating article in the Chemnitzer Volkskinne, prominent German socialist organ, a copy of which has just reached here. The paper, citing facts and figures. ounds a grave alarm and warns the government that "certain concessions to the poor, premiums on babies or insurance schemes" will not suffice if the nation is to survive.

The article follows: Since 1915 the number of deaths in Germany has exceeded that of birth-The decrease in the birth rate since 1913 is considerable. In 1914 this decrease was 18,500; in 1915 it reached (in comparison with 1913) the 423,000 mark, or 23 per cent; in 1916 it was 725,500, or 40 per cent. This decrease in the birth rate has onsequences even more far reaching than the loss of life on the numerous battlefields. The effect is partially counter-balanced by the fact that the mortality of infants has considerably decreased. The year 1914 marked a rise in the death rate of infants, amounting to 20,000; but in 1915 there was a decrease of 61,000, and in 1916 one of 110,000, or 40 per cent.

Marriages Are Decreasing. These last figures throw a clear but sad light upon the social consequences of the war. The fall in the birth rate is self-explanatory. Many who in normal times would have been happy to have children are restricted by the circumstances of wartime from enlarg-ing their families. Besides the war has considerably reduced the number of marriages, and it is a well-known fact that young people contribute to re-population more than others. During the first month of the war marriages were very numerous; there is a tendency to believe that since that time marriages have not ceased to be more numerous than'in peace times. In August of 1914, there were in the cities of Prussia three times as many marriages as in the month of July of the same year; but there this increase stopped. As the war dragged on, with its long campaigns, marriages became fewer and fewer.

In the whole empire the initial abundance of marriages was followed by a sharp diminution, which continues to this day. We have not yet at hand the figures for the whole of the empire, but we know that in Saxony there were 26,300 marriages in 1915, as against 40,300 in 1913.

In Hamburg the corresponding de crease amounted to 2,300; in Berlin to 5,000, and in Bremen to 1,000.

Birth Rate Cut Seriously. Since it may be assumed that the average young couple has one child at the end of the first year it is seen that this diminution of marriages leaves a serious cut in the birth rate.

The food sho tage naturally influences infant mortality. Looking simply at the figures, one is tempted to rejoice over the decrease in this mortality, but when one considers it to connection with the situation on the whole it presents a gloomy picture.

The decrease in the birth rate is based upon peace-time figures. It includes children who should have been born, but who, had they come to life during the war, would have been most exposed to premature death. But there s a much smaller number of illegitimate children, and it is especially the poor people who are abstaining from enlarging their families.

infant mortality, therefore, should have fallen off in a much greater proportion than the birth rate. Now, this is not the case; the fall in the birth rate exceeds even by 1 per cent the death rate of children of tender onto me. "First look I had as that haircut wa in a store window. Say, that guy'd Amiversary And Birthsort o' chopped away the fringes round my ears an' the back o' my neck, but he'd left about half the hair there, lookin' sort o' grayish, an' then he hadn' touched it none till he got up top, so there was a gray ring an' then a black mangy cayuse. When I took my Stet stuff till I looked like the picture o' ome boy violinist.

"That was a swell layout. When got back to my outfit the gang asked me was I the feller that sings songs at that Folly Bergalr vaudeville place in Paris an' the sergeant tells me not to let none of them rough soldiers insult me, but to stick 'em with my hatpin. Then they offered to pay me five cents apiece to let 'em dip the cor ners of their handkerchiefs in my hair when they was goln' out to see their girls. It was all like that. I ain't had no French haircuts since. Say, don't you think you could get some barbers over here that know enough to shave

ASSURANCE.

I know I am saved: I have met the conditions Of God's blessed and holy word; I have repented of sin, gave up all for Him; And I am resting and trusting in the Lord.

It has often been said that we are so uncertain Concerning a future state; We grope here below, and can never know,

Until eternity decides our fate. But I bless God today for a "know so" salvation

Which He has vouchsafe to me.d I know I believed, and I know I received Redemption, rich, full and free.

I know I am a child of the God of Heaven; His Spirit, and His word agree. With the work wrought within, the cleansing from sin.

The witness He has given to me. No power but of God could have given the knowledge That gladdens my heart today:

I am a child of the King, and His praises I will sing Hallelujah! I have found the Bible way.
