He rushed into the burning building and led a pair of horses to safety. He went back again and again until, with the help of other firemen, 50 horses were rescued.

Some time during the rescue act he put his hand in his pocket to get a chew of tobacco. He placed a gener ous-sized wad in his mouth and chewed it vigorously.

After the horses were all rescue Madden thought he neticed a peculiar taste to the tobacco. He took the wad out of his mouth and it looked green. Then he unrolled it and found he had been chewing a $20 note and a $1 bill.

Democracy Not Merely a Governmental Form but a Method of Progress

By Prof. Frederick D. Bramhall

Democracy is not merely a form of machinery of suffrage, or representation, of elections, of relations of executive and legislature, and the like, though they may all have something to do with it. - It is not a thing to be enacted, not a goal to be attained and enjoyed. If it were that and if we had attained it, why, then, the sooner we found something more important to talk about the better. No! Democracy is a method of

It is faith-unproved like other fait ... , but with heartening gleams of promise a faith in a common humanity; a belief that men are essentially the same kind of stuff; that in this long pilgrimage of history all travel a common road and that only by the co-operation of all, by the recognition of all as common partners in the enterprise, with the common dignity of membership, the common experience of failure and schievement, can any sound and permanent advance, any progress worth the fighting for, be attained.

It denies, then, that there can be any such thing as a governing class. To attempt to set aside any such class is in the first place an intolerable waste of human spiritual resources; and in the second place it thwarts the hope of civilization. The progress of organized society is the progress of judge between men, and the fruitful ideas of social justice are not down from above, but forced un-four below, Democracy holds that only by raising a whole people to higher levels can any part of that nation ultimately prosper, and that only as participating and co-operating members can the whole people be raised. It stands for the appeal to reason.

And what, by eminad, is autocracy? It is the appeal to authority as such, to prescription, to the method of power. It denies the rightcousness and the send of general co-operation. It believes in the managemost of many wills by the competent few. Where democracy holds that men are in games and that they will respond to opportunity and turn toward the light properties halfs that alley must in general be managed for their wan good and that of the state, by a will that is not their will.

Democracy in ites the ranging human spirit to experiment with life. Autocracy parposes to order and to regiment it. Democracy respects with a reasect touched with humility; autocracy dis-

Aid Given Nation by Women in War Will Hasten Day of Full Suffrage

By THEODORA M. YOUMANS President Wisconin Woman's Sufrage Association

What influence will the war have on the woman suffrage movement? What will woman suffragists do to help their country during the war? We shall not, of course, discontinue woman-suffrage propaganda. We realize that it may be more difficult than heretofore, since the thought and interest of the country are centered on the war. We know that it will not be easy to raise money for woman suffrage, to create new organizations, to hold public meetings. It will be necessary, probably, to change somewhat the character of our efforts.

But the spirit of the times fights on our side. The thought of the people of these United States is turned toward democracy these days. Furthermore, men see that their own patriotism is duplicated in their women. They see that the services of women in time of stress, as in ordinary daily life, are just as essential as the services of men, and en just as generously, just as faithfully and efficiently.

I believe that every woman who shows herself patriotic, faithful, efficient, is doing her share to hasten the day of the enfranchisement of women, when this government shall actually become what it has up to this time only pretended to be, a government of, by and for the people.

Insurance for Men Who Go to War to Replace Old Pension System

By W. G. McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasury

For the first time in the history of the United States a concerted effort on governmental initiative is now being made to provide adequate and scientific financial protection for the officers and enlisted men of the army and navy for their dependents.

Instead of proceeding along the old course of fighting a war first, and caring afterwards for injured soldiers and sailors and the families of those killed, the government is now at the very outset of America's entry into the war laying plans for insuring and indemnifying its fighting men. The plan is intended to take the place of the pension system so far as concerns men and women engaged in the present war. It is based upon the fundamental idea that the government should, as a matter of justice, protect its soldiers and sailors, and their dependent families, and should do this with due regard for conditions as they exist today.

Workmen's compensation laws, pension laws in the United States and foreign countries, insurance practice, and other related questions have been investigated during the preparation of the plans, and as a result information will be presented to congress which it is hoped will lead to the enactment of legislation both just and humane.

The necessity for such legislation is admittedly more pressing in this war than in any other to which the United States was a party, because at the outset the government has adopted the selective draft system. . It is generally admitted that under such conditions the government has a solemn duty to perform to those selected.

In working out the new system, it is deemed essential that a system for re-education and rehabilitation be established, so that injured men may be fitted as far as possible for lives of usefulness either in their former or some other vocations.

War Time Behavior of Producers Will Determine Nation's Course

By United States Senator Francis G. Newlands of Nevada

Our war conditions now require supreme collective effort, and that, carried out to the full extent, means socialism. We have found that in war the law of supply and demand breaks down because extraordinary demands are precipitated upon moderate supply.

Prices soar, and that means disturbances and readjustments for every kind of labor and industry and for

We could not wait long enough, upon entering the war, for the usual effect of increased demand, namely, increased production, to restore the price levels. Therefore, in the stress of war it becomes necessary to take over plants or control prices, unless the desired results of reasonable prices can be obtained by understanding with the producers. When I say reasonable prices, I mean reasonable prices not only for the government but for the public. It is not to be imagined that a country can successfully prosecute a war, even though it obtains its supplies at reasonable prices, if its industrial forces at home are upset by strikes and lockouts. Increasing prices invariably mean a ferment of labor troubles, which in turn materially impair the military strength of a nation at the front. The laborer is bound to compare the amount which a dollar of his wages will buy today with what it would buy a month and a year ago. He has to do this; he is compelled to contend all the time for the maintenance of the power of his wages. If things go up in price his wages must go up, too.

We must avoid such a race between prices and wages by keeping prices down, not only for the sake of conserving all our present industrial strength for war purposes, but for the sake of the economic welfare of the United States after the war in its international trade relations. If we do not avoid such a race between prices and wages both will increase steadily till the end of the war, when our wage level will be above that of the other belligerent countries in which there has been better control. And the country with the highest wage level will then be at a disadvantage. Its cost of production of all commodities will be above that of the other countries, which will put it out of the running in any competition in its own markets and in the markets of the world. And the high wage level will also bring an influx of labor which the country will not be able

Every consideration, therefore, demands that a proper price level shall be maintained by government regulation, and this, of course, involves

Public Health Nurses Can Best Serve Country by Staying at Posts

By Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Sr., Head of the American Ambulance Hospital in Paris

One of the great needs of America will be for public health nursing. The organizations which are engaged in this work, instead of being weakened by loss of membership, should be strengthened to meet the increased demands which will be made upon them. Trained and experienced nurses who are now taking care of women, children and tubercular patients in who are now taking care of women, children and tubercular patients in their homes and in dispensaries, can do no greater work for the country and for humanity than by remaining on their jobs.

They must not consider themselves slackers or feel that they are lacking in patriotism if they stick to their daily round of duties. On the contrary, it would be absolutely wrong for them to give up their work and jump at the first chance which offers for war service abroad.

We all know that war breaks down home conditions. Sickness and poverty follow in its wake and there are a thousand and one ills, which have to be met and overcome. Who can do this better than the public health nurse who belongs to a well-organized group of workers which is able to combat just such conditions?

At the beginning of the war it was my first impulse to close the Vanderbilt dispensary in Paris to women and children and devote it to the care of wounded soldiers.

On second thought I realized that would be a mistake just because everybody was doing the same thing. I never regretted following my more mature judgment. In a short time our attendance increased from 115 to 250. I believe we saved any number of the future citizens of France by simply thinking twice and sticking to our original work.

Mr. Williams is the owner of a farm which is unusually hilly and re markably steep in some places, but by careful, scientific cul iva tion and by using the proper methods of conservation he has developed and improved his farm into a splendid condition. Some of the land in this farm, posseses a yellowish red appearancewhich is due to the limestone properties contained thereinand the color of which would seem to indicate that the soil is not capable of much production, but not withstanding the physical appearance of the land it made eight such journeys before he possesses a fertility and a richness which is unsurpassed by much other land of a far darker color. If all the other farmers of Crittenden were to adopt the plans and practice the methods which are employed by Mr. Williams, the farming land of our county would eventually be developed into a much better condition.

HAZARDOUS TRIP

Descends Well Through 18-Inch Hole in Search of His Tools.

TIGHT FIT IN PLACES

Noise of Stones and Earth Falling Into Caverns 500 Feet Below Surface Had Terrifying Effect on Contractor.

Bliss, Okla .- A dip into the depths of an uncased 510-foot oil through an 18-inch hole, is like a trip to the River Styx, according to N. C. Essary, a driller of this place, but he finally recovered a bit that had been lost, plugging the hole in such a way that further drilling operations were impossible until it had been removed. First, a chicken was sent down the hole, and when it was hauled up alive, Essary concluded there was no gas in the opening and inst ucted his help ers to lower him.

The initial feat, Essary declared, rather unnerved him at times, but subsequent descents were made much easier. His act attracted the attention of oil men and drillers all over the country, for no man had ever before attempted to descend in an uncased well. It had even been declared by oil men that such a thing as going down an uncased hole the width of the oil drill was an impossibility.

Tight Fit in Some Places. Essary said, in describing his de scent: "As I moved slowly down into the well, I kept wondering if it would get any tighter, for a 185-pound man fits an 18-inch hole pretty tight. But after I had descended almost 40 feet, I discovered that I was going to have plenty of room, except in places where the formation was hard. As I passed through the tight places into large roomy, yawning caverns it would make me cringe, for I would dangle around on the table and could not touch anything for support, and they looked like large, red mouths prepared to swallow me up.

"The air was cool and damp, and had the odor of fresh earth. As pebbles would fall they made noises as loud as thunder. When a stone would crash down the racket was deafening.

"The Air Was Cool and Damp,"

There was a continual clatter as the walls kept caving in. After repeated attempts I finally located the tools and dragged them to one side, fastening hooks and chains in order that they might be pulled up later.

Prayed From Depth of Well. "While I waited for the men above to act I breathed a little prayer, for a veritable shower of stones and dirt was falling about me. As I continued to climb on top of the falling rock that gathered around my feet and legs it seemed like ages passed, and the rocks continued to fall heavier. I waited as silently and patiently as I could for the cable to begin moving upward, and when at last it did, I gladly climbed or like a dago monkey and my heart actu ally leaped for joy. "When I reached, the surface this time, bruised and bleeding about the face and arms, I was a little groggy for a few minutes, but after preparing a better shield for myself from the falling debris I continued to make frequent trips until the lost tools had been recovered and my men were able to resume drilling."

Effective Work of Navy on the Great Lakes.

MANY PLOTS ARE FRUSTRATED

Wheelsmen, Captured on Great Lakes Freighter, Identified as German Navy Officers—Two Freighters Sunk in Peculiar Manner—Commander McMunn in Command of Fleet.

Hidden away in a certain little harbor of the Great Lakes is a gunboat. Its coat is battle gray; its guns peer menacingly from sponsor and barbette. It is not given to reveal the exact location of the ship.

Anyhow, its captain is the distinctive feature of the craft, for Commander W. N. McMonn. N. N. V., is the man who has "kept the ore traffic moving." And keeping the ore traffic moving with the nation at war has been no fanciful job. Most of the iron and much of the copper used in the manufacture of armament in this country is produced in the lake region and freighted in the open navigation season in lake vessels to steel mills. Traffic in metals this season has been more than double that of any previous year, and exact figures not yet having been compiled.

Many Plots Frustrated.

Much has been said about the protection afforded steel mills and munitions factories, but little has been printed concerning the equally efficient protection afforded the ore before it reaches these industrial plants. This is the task to which the navy department at the opening of navigation on the lakes last spring assigned Commander McMunn. It gave him more than three-score vessels ranging is size from an open-speed launch to 1,200-ton gunboats. Constant vigilance on the part of Commander McMunn and each of his officers and men has been the price paid to keep the barn horse. Commander McMunn will talk little of his experience. Announcemen to time have hinted of German plots. anti-American propaganda, I. W. W. agitation, all suppressed by this quietig effective arm of the navy.

There are stories of wheelsmen Great Lakes freighters who have be taken into custody by naval office and who have been identified as o cers of the German navy. There it two large lake freighters, stuk to most peculiar manner so as almost close to navigation one of the most is portant lake ports. There is a repo that certain interests in Duluth se he ever set foot in that city he wou be shot and killed, and there is th ified statement that C McMunn replied by going to Duluth and walking unarmed and unattended up and down the thoroughfares of that city. But no attempt was made to do

Good Fellow and Good Sailor. Of him one of his fellow officers re-cently said: "Just shaking hands now with Commander McMunn gives you the idea that he is a jolly good fellow." He is, but other naval officers tell you that he is also a folly good sailor, a jolly good fighter, and a jolly good business man, and they will tell you also about his foresight, hindsight, energy, and good old-fashioned all-wool-and-a-yard-wide backbone.

Just a word of history about Commander McMunn who, in addition to his other duties, is assistant commandant of the Ninth, Tenth and Eleventh naval districts with headquarters at the Naval Training station at Great Lakes which has the task of turning thousands of fresh water plowboys into salt-water sailors. An engineer known nation wide, an expert in steel, he enlisted in the Illinois Naval militia as an ordinary seaman in 1894. Serving through the several grades he emerged after the Spanish-American war as an ensign, and since has served in each grade until he reached the Ited master's license and also a chief engineer's license of unlimited tonnage and perhaps is more familiar with the Great Lakes than any other skipper erating on them.

The millers say that it takes approximately five bushels of wheat to make a barrel of flour. The food bill fixes the minimum price of wheat to the farmer at $2 a bushel. There goes your $10, and to this must be added cost of milling, transportation, profit to the jobber, the wholesaler, the retailer. But $2 is the minimum price. If the farmer, wise as to the working of the law of supply and demand, cares to, he can refuse to sell at $2 and ask $3, or whatever else he thinks the market will bear. Under the pressure of public opinion the British government has been compelled to secure a reduction in the price of bread, and it is freely said that loaves are bigger and prices smaller than here. A $2 minimum, with the sky the overhead limit, promises little relief on bread. The wheat grower at least should be happy. Just a few years ago he halled $1 wheat with great joy and began to pay off mortgages, and buy automobiles. His cost of production is certainly higher now, but it is also certain that it has not yet come in sight of that $2 minimum, to say nothing of the sun-kissed maximum toward which in the nature of things his gaze soars. #### History Is Taught Wrong End Foremost in Schools of United States

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

The problem of education is taking more and more possession of the public mind. People are studying as perhaps they have never done hitherto the effects produced upon their children by the instruction that they get, in the schools of all kinds. Is it the right kind of education?

Almost a hundred years ago De Tocqueville, in one of the wisest books ever written, his "Democracy in America," made two significant remarks which are applicable to an extremely important side of this problem. One of these remarks is to the effect that America is the only country in which the starting point of a great people has been clearly observable, and the other, literally, is this: "It is by the attention it pays to public education that the original character of 'American civilization is at once placed in the clearest light!"

Putting these two things together—the absolutely new start made by the people of this republic and the tendency which they showed from the beginning to make popular intelligence the basis of their commonwealth-what was the natural course for them to pursue with regard to public education, as far as that education related to instruction in history and the principles of society and government?

Surely it was to put American ideals and American history, from the American viewpoint, foremost. It was a duty they owed themselves and their descendants to cultivate with extreme care the spirit in which their new institutions had been started.

Manifestly the very best means of such cultivation was offered by the schools. And for a long time the duty was performed and American children came forth from American schools indomitably rooted in the faith of American ideals. They believed the fathers of their country were right, that the American Revolution needed no vindication, and this new mation owed no excuses to European menarchies for having rejected their

But do the schools teach such doctrine with equal strength today? One fault of our educational method is that history is taught wrong end foremost. We begin with English kings, European autocrats, the feudal system and the struggles of "divine right" dynasties.

These things take up so much time that there is little left in which to study what our forefathers did. Teach the young American first the thistory and the principles of his own country, then he will know where the stands in the world and what he stands for. After that give him the story of the Old World, which he will then be in a position to value at its

War Record of Railroads Strong Argument for Private Ownership

By HOWARD ELLIOTT, Member of Railroads War Board

The movement of putting all the railroads in the country under the so-called war board is of interest in another way than simply in its aspect of giving a higher efficiency for the use of the people of the United on the sick list the past week.

Some say that the putting together of the railroads the way we have this year is an argument in favor of government ownership.

I do not agree with that. I think it means that the splendid initiative of the American business man, that has built up this great transportation system that today is doing 20 to 25 per cent more than it ever did before, even under the complicated conditions that confront us-it means that the initiative of the American business man, if not too much fettered by small and nagging restrictions, can do more for the expansion of American business and the expansion of the country than we could possibly obtain under government ownership. I say this because that is one of the great problems that very likely will develop out of this war, and those who depend on a successful trans portation system are the men who will have to help decide that great question by such views as congress gets from its constituents all over the

Economic Boycott Necessary After War Unless Germany Is Democratized

By E. A. FILENE of Boston

By refusing to buy from Germany, the allied nations could so hamper her economic recuperation that her ability to arm would be restricted. And the less Germany is able to arm, the less the allied nations will need to arm. In addition, the allied nations could gain from such a common economic understanding and action the funds they will need for rapid restoration and defensive armament against a threatening Germany.

Therefore, unless Germany is democratized, the allied nations will have everything to gain, both in safety and in economic power, by a busi- traffic of all kinds from Saturday ness boycott of Germany.

All sincere lovers of peace, therefore, as a part of their planning to prevent a next war, will be obliged to favor an economic war against a Germany whose autocratic leaders could not be trusted to keep the peace if revolution were pressing at home or their ambitions counseled conquest. In such a situation Americans would come to realize that every dollar given in trade to Germany would be helping Germany pile up armament that sooner or later might be turned against the United States.

It will do no good to argue that such a boycott is bad economic theory so long as the stubborn fact remains that, as an emergency measure, it will limit Germany's ability to arm, thereby reducing the necessity for the rest of the world to arm so much, and will furnish the allied nations with funds for rapid restoration and defensive arming.

This statement is not made to approve or urge an economic war as a good business policy, but instead to emphasize how fundamental the democratization of Germany is to the durable peace of the world and, indeed, to the future economic welfare of Germany herself. It is written in the fervent hope that the liberalization of Germany may be hastened and thereby a situation created in which the nations of the world, Germany included, may join in the establishment of a peace based, as the president puts it, on justice and fairness and the common rights of man-

Every Crisis of the Nation in Past By HENRY WEISMANN, President of German-American Alliance of State of New York

German-Americans Loyal As in

The heart of our citizens of German stock is entirely sound. It requires only a proper presentation of matters and a firm stand to induce all of them to fall in line. They are Americans first-with but unimportant exceptions.

The assurances of friendship expressed by the president for the German people, his high hopes for democracy, embodied the aspirations of millions of people of German stock, and these millions believe that the present struggle will bring government by the people and for the people to nearly the entire world.

The war with Germany is a great touchstone of our ability to think and act as a great nation. The part of German-Americans in this war must, and I know will, be as fruitful of willing sacrifices, heroic deeds and patriotic devotion as that of any citizen who points to the Pilgrims as his ancestors—yes, even more so, because we know how great is the advantage of America's citizenship and how great the boon that has come to those who fied German conditions of life, both economic and political, to embrace the free institutions of the New World.

German-American hearts, brain and brawn are merged with the great forces of the American people in this all-absorbing enterprise. And while thus active in this work of patriotic devotion, our vision rises and looks to a future for our American-born children, whose children and children's children shall live and prosper upon the great work of today when this American credo of ours will find a permanent lodgment with every one of the millions who, while proud of the achievements of the German race. are prouder still of the fact of being one of the new nation that shall bring the world the liberty and democracy which we enjoy.

There can be no division. Only one loyalty is possible in the heart and mind of our citizenship, no matter of what stock-the loyalty which we have sworn and which I know the American citizens of German stock will hold sacred as in former days when the German-American leaders of the past, in every crisis of our country, gave their lives for its

Fixed Price for Wheat Protects Farmer From Danger of Overproduction

By DR. H.J. WATERS, President of Kasses State Agricultural College

Today there is only one side on which any loyal American may be found, and that is the side of the Stars and Stripes. Since we are at war it is necessary for us all to make sacrifices, and the smallest sacrifice anyone can make is the sacrifice of money.

Price fixing is a new business to a democracy like ours and it necessarily causes some confusion and some@diseatisfaction at first, particularly since it has had to come in a year when the available wheat supply was the lowest in many years and when the demand was perhaps the highest in history. The farmer cannot help feeling that his product under unrestricted sale would bring a much higher price than the government dares to fix. It is to be remembered, however, that the fixed price of $2.20 in Chicago is for the entire 1917 crop and continues in effect until July next, when the guaranty of not less than $2, fixed by congress, becomes operative. Moreover, while the world is short of available wheat, there actually exists a surplus of this crop.

Australia has a reserve of 180,000,000 bushels, which is being offered at $1 a bushel, and there is the prospect of an additional surplus of 100,000,000 bushels at the coming harvest in that country. In India there is in sight a surplus of nearly 100,000,000 bushels and in Argentina of approximately 70,000,000 bushels. If active fighting should cease and peace negotiations begin, these supplies, added to what is obtainable in Canada and the United States, would be thrown immediately on the market, depressing the price here, as well as elsewhere, to probably $1 a bushel. This does not take into account the vast resources of wheat in Russia, which cannot be reached in time to affect the sale of the 1917 crop.

The government price recently fixed protects the American farmer against any decline in the wheat market. While the present guaranty is based on a small crop and will furnish no subsidy to the farmer but will rather call for a sacrifice on his part, we are likely to have under normal crop conditions a billion and a quarter bushels next year. Under the government guaranty this will be sold for at least $2 a bushel.

War Marriages, Contracted in Haste, Often Bring Regrets

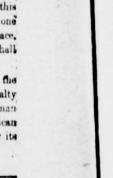

By MRS. EDNA B. FUNSTON, Widow of Gen. Frederick B. Funston

Moving is the hardest duty of an army man's wife. She has to ready to shift her household from one place to another in perhaps a few days' time. This means that furniture must be sold, some stored away, some shipped to the new home, other kinds selected, trunks packed, the children outfitted, different kinds of clothing bought, and what not When I was living in San Antonio, Tex., I had the double problem of keeping one home ready in California and another open on the border, And the income of an army man is not so big that this is a simple matter. But I wouldn't have changed a single day of my life for anything.

I do not think that as a general rule war marriages are good things, although circumstances often arise which alter the case. My husband was the kind of a man who was easy to know, so that I felt after my two weeks engagement to him that I had known him always. On the other hand, I knew a woman who was engaged to a man for ten years before she married him. She knew him too well, was actually tired of him when they married, so of course they did not have a happy life. So you see it isn't the length of time you know your husband-it's in the individuals. I think most young girls who marry during the war in haste often regret their hastiness. They do not think of the responsibilities of marriage. It is hard for a young girl to be left alone when her husband goes to war. It is harder still for her to go on with her life should she be widowed, because no matter how young she is there is a big difference between girlhood and widewhood. In the majority of instances the war bride does not realize what she is doing.

a Large Proportion of Legislation

If I were asked to name the characteristic which more than any other distinguishes our present-day political institutions, I am not sure that I should not answer, "The passion for making laws." There are 48 small or moderate-sized legislative bodies in the United States engaged a good deal of the time, and one very large national legislature working overtime at this amiable occupation, their habitual output being not far from fifteen thousand statutes each year. The prevailing obsession seems to be that statutes, like the crops, enrich the country in proportion to their volume. Unfortunately for this notion, however, the average legislator results is made up of strange and unexpected plants whose appearance is as astonishing to the legislator as it is disconcerting to his constituents.

This situation, I am bound to say, is not wholly unrelated to a more or less prevalent superstition entertained by the electorate that previous training in legislative affairs is a superfluous adjunct of the legislative mind, which should enter upon its task with the sweet inexperience of interest from date will be accepted and a bride coming to the altar. As rotation in crops-if I may return to the agriculture figure-improves the soil, so rotation in office is supposed to improve the government. The comparison, however, is illusory since the legislator resembles the farmer who cultivates the crops rather than the crops themselves, and previous experience, even of the most thorough character, on the part of the farmer has never hitherto been supposed to destroy his availability for continued service.

I think it was the late Mr. Carlyle, who is reported to have made the rather cynical observation that the only acts of parliament which were entitled to commendation were those by which previous acts of parliament were repealed. I am not prepared to go quite that far, though I am prepared to say that in my judgment an extraordinarily large proportion of the statutes which have been passed from time to time in our various legislative bodies might be repealed without the slightest detri- you married me because I have ment to the general welfare.

We cannot and will not consider peace at the instance of Prussia or of any witting or unwitting agents of Prussia.

It would be a miracle if they were not. But the critic, especially if he be a leader of men whose duty it is to play an important part in molding public opinion-the critic and the fault finder whose only activities are criticizing and fault-finding with those who are administering the law and carrying on the numerous vast operations incident to war-is not a truly good soldier or a good leader or a loyal American.

allied cause, and which will materially delay the successful termination of the war, should be a striking lesson to those Americans who are inclined COW and yearlings, farming to criticize and find fault with those whose duties and functions are to carry the war to a successful and victorious end.

Great and large powers necessarily must be conferred upon the executive of the nation at this time. The delegation of such powers in ordinary times would not be dreamed of. But promptness and efficiency are imperative now and to obtain the highest efficiency, to strike with the power and might of the nation, we must delegate for the time unusual authority to the executive head.

America's course in this war is of tremendous importance to the peace and safety and freedom of the world. Never in our history were unselfish co-operation and patriotic unity and devotion to duty so much needed. All true Americans will work together for the country's good, which means now all humanity's good. Those who do not are not true

SLAUGHTER OF BIRDS

The government contemplates an immediate assault upon the insect posts that devour the crops of the country. estimating that with vigorous action at least 5 per cent of the losses inflicted upon American crops by them could be prevented, probably much more. It has been estimated that the monetary value of the crops destroyed by insects in this country amounts annually to at least $520,000,000-an estimate not based upon guess, but on keen observation extending over a tax that this country pays for allowing some 2,500,000 men and boys to go forth annually and vent their rage for senseless slaughter upon the birds engaged in the beneficial work of lies of the farmer, says Florida Times-Union. Five per cent of this annual loss is $20,000,000. The amount that of the country which might aid mate Kentucky event. rially in reducing the cost of living.

Discontent with self is a necessary quality, in spite of the fact that it is of that factor of variation of which we hear so much in the recent evolutionary philosophy. For a man does not naturally and easily tend to improve himself as the years go on and habit fastens upon him. We may call it the centrifugal, the center-flying quality, that which saves us from stagnation. It would be worse for us to be content -more stick-in-the-mud people-for we are now so far along in the slow process of climbing that to stand still would really be (if the bull may be excused) to go backward. In some form or other, ancestral certainty, and and a prophetic quality.

From London comes the assertion that official German estimates of submarine sinkings are about 50 per cent making their way to port with their cargoes. England proposes to put the food them? profiteers in prison. Over here we refer to them as grafters, gamblers and all-around scamps, but that seems the limit of our displeasure; for an American gets a heap of satisfaction out of calling names.

American airplanes may fly across the ocean to the battle front. As a matter of fact, it is impossible to foretell what wonderful things will have been accomplished by the time this war, with its stimulation of invention and resourcefulness, is ended.
