Hens And Pullets May be Sold Saturday, April 20th.

Louisville, Ky., April 13, 1919. U. S. Food Administration Rule No. 14, covering poultry dealers, which prohibited "Licensees between Feb. 11th and April 30th, 1918, purchasing. sipping, selling or negotiating the sale of any live or freshly killed hens or pullets" has today been amended to end at midnight April 19th, 1918.

This means, of course, that after midnight of April 19 those engaged in the poultry business can begin negotiating the purchase and sale of hens and pullets, but not before, and can only ship after that time.

BRITISH RESPOND

REPORTS SHOW ALLIES ARMY IS HOLDING GRIMLY AGAINST CERMAN ASSAULTS.

EXACT MEANING OF APPEAL GERMAN LOSSES ARE HEAVY

Washington Officials Construe Order to Mean That Sufficient Reserves Are Available to Warrant Counter Offenseive on Huns.

With the British Army in France .-The British are still holding firmly in the critical Bailleul-Merville sector, after the most intense fighting, during which numerous heavy enemy attacks were repulsed and the invaders were driven from Robeca by counter strokes

The Germans continue to drive for ward in masses against the defending positions which block their way to Hazebrouck, with its railway lines, but at the latest reports the British lines had not wavered in the face of the terrific onslaught by superior numbers.

Washington.-Meager reports from the battle front in Flanders indicate that the British army was loyally responding to the appeal of its commander, and holding grimly against renewed German assaults. Meanwhile officers here discussed the probable motives of Field Marshal Haig in issuing the call to his forces to fight to the last man.

The meaning and purpose of the order were variously construed. Some officers hailed it as forecasting the counter offensive by the united allied armies. Others were disquieted.

The War Department was without information that would throw much light on the battle situation. Officers who have followed the progress of the fight from hour to hour in press bulletins, however, were very optimistic. They saw no reason to doubt that reserves in sufficient numbers to warrant a counter offensive were available behind the fighting front and they also noted with satisfaction General Haig's announcement that French reinforcements were coming up.

In the view of some officers, the German front as it now stands places the Germans in jeopardy at two points. The wide salient eriven toward Amions appears to them susceptible of a flank assault by the French from the southern and southwest, while in Flanders the narrow salient driven into the British lines leaves the Teutonic flanks exposed.

Enemy Has Been Compelled to With draw Over 70 Divisions Because of Great Losses Suffered in Charges Against Allies.

Paris.-German forces continue to launch heavy attacks against the French in the Hangard-en-Santerre sector. Several attacks ended in failure, but finally fresh German troops penetrated Hangard, although the western section of the village was re gained by the French, according to the war office announcement.

American and French troops, fight ing together, repelled a German attack in the Apremont forest.

The Americans captured numerous prisoners.

After several fruitless at tacks, carried out without cessation by resh German troops, the enemy pene trated Hangard. Counter attacks launched by us regained the western part of the village, where the fighting continues with stubbornness. "In the Noyon sector the artillery action was quite marked. The Germans bombarded Rheims, several fires breaking out, particularly around the cathedral.

"In the Apremont forest the enemy delivered against our positions in the Brule wood a powerful attack, gaining a foothold in our advanced elements. A spirited counter attack by the French and American troops, acting together, immediately drove them out. Twenty-two prisoners belonging to six different units were taken by the Already considerably more than 100 German divisions have been thrown into the fight and more than 70 divisions have since been withdrawn to fill up the gaps in the ranks. When it is remembered that the Germans hitherto have not taken a division out of the fighting line until it has suffered s minimum of 2,500 casualties, some idea may be obtained of the enormous extent of their losses.

KENTUCKY NEWS

Items of Interest From All Sections of the State

Maysville.—Thirty-five high school boys have enrolled to assist the farmers with their crops this year.

Harrodsburg .- John Hendricks, of Lexington, charged with deserting his family, was arrested here and Lexington officials took him back for trial.

Winchester.—The tax levy for school purposes in Clark county has been changed from 10 to 18 cents by a vote of the County School Board.

Harrodsburg.-Glave Goddard has bought from Mrs. Magoffin Hardin her half interest in the old Daughters' College property, which was owned jointly by his wife and Mrs. Hardin.

Winchester.-Miss Nancy Stevenson, county superintendent, addressed the Fiscal Court on the urgency of the need of the increase of the tax levy from 10 to 18 cents. She declared the increase was absolutely necessary to maintain the schools.

Cynthiana.-Four cattle were killed outright, one so badly injured that it had to be killed at once, and five others suffered broken legs and other injuries necessitating their destruction, when L. & N. passenger train No. 37, southbound, ran into a drove at the Pleasant street crossing in Cynthiana.

Clinton.-A tornado which swept Hickman county about three miles northeast of Clinton, killed Mrs. Robert Jackson and Mrs. Julie Courtney, fatally injured the two small children of Mrs. Jackson and did property damage estimated at $100,000. The force of the wind was felt for more than a mile over a wide area.

Georgetown.-Ben Brady, 40 years old, manager of Mrs. Lillian Headley's farm in Fayette county, was instantly killed when his new automobile turned over, pinning him and his three companions beneath the car. The accident occurred in front of the Claude Garth place on the Lemon's Hill pike, two and a half miles from here.

Frankfort.-On account of using the 1915 edition of the General Statutes instead of the Acts of the Legislature of 1916 in drafting the bill to abolish the State Insurance Rating Board, the members of the board claim that the bill passed by the Legislature abolishing the board and the office of attor ney for the board is null and void.

Frankfort.-County boards of education may make a levy of 30 cents for the ensuing fiscal year. State Superintendent V. O. Gilbert has received many inquiries about their right to do so, as the necessity of increasing the pay of teachers, especially those in high schools, is pressing. The McFarland act bears an emergency clause and is operative now.

Richmond.-A deplorable accident occurred at an auto garage when G. D. Vance the manager almost lost the sight of both eyes while recharging a storage battery. He was being as sisted by one of his employes, M. I. Baxter, who had a narrow escape from the explosion, some of the gases filling his right eye, but fortunately failed to injure the eye seriously.

Whitesburg.-Walter Ward, a Pike county miner, arrested at Hellier and charged with making treasonable remarks regarding the government and President Wilson several days ago, was taken to Catlettsburg, where he will be held pending trial in the United States Court for the Eastern district. A number of witnesses have been summoned from Pike county.

Hawesville .- A near panic was caused here when it was for a time feared the opera house building would collapse. Mrs. Ida McClone Gibson, lecturing in behalf of the Red Cross, was speaking. So large was the crowd that the sleepers beneath the floor weakened, giving way two inches. Ocoupants of the lower floor became frightened and rushed into the street fearing a collapse of the floor above. Mrs. Gibson cut short her lecture and the audience filed safely out.

Georgetown.-Attorney B. M. Our Part in Feeding the Nation

(Special Information Service, United States Department of Agriculture.) THE NATION NEEDS ANOTHER BIG CORN CROP

Corn Planters Do More Work With Less Labor-This One Open Two Furrows and Plants Them at One Operation.

GROW A BIG CROP WITH LESS LABOR

Federal Specialists Make Suggestions on Economizing With Man Power.

INCREASE CORN PRODUCTION

Tractors and Larger Implements Will Help Farmers-Machine Harvesters Rather Than Hand Cutters Are Advisable.

Another big corn crop is needed Last year's planting of 120,000,000 acres yielded the largest crop ever har-vested—3,159,494,000 bushels. There seems to be every reason to believe, in the opinion of officials of the United States department of agriculture. that our own welfare and that of the allies, as well as neutral nations, make desirable an even greater production of corn in 1918 on an acreage approximately equal to that planted in 1917.

Increased production may be accomplished in a number of ways, and in a recent publication of the United States department of agriculture, "The Agri cultural Situation for 1918: Part VIII, Corn," specialists of the department make suggestions regarding better methods. The more extensive use of llabor-saving implements will make it easier this year to approximate the record-breaking acreage of last year, especially when employed in sections where corn is now grown profitably but on a more limited scale than is desirable, because present methods require a large amount of man labor The more general use of recently developed and improved tractors that are adapted to the uses of the small farm as well as the large farm would tend to increase the acreage and to effect a saving in labor. The use of larger plows, harrows and other instruments used in fitting the land would make it possible to accomplish more work per man. Similarly the substitution of two-row planters and two-row double cultivators in place of smalle and less efficient implements would make it possible to do the same amount of work with less expenditure

Replant Missing Hills.

In some corn-growing sections it is the practice to replant missing hills as soon as the corn is up to a stand. Frequently this is done by dropping kernels by hand and covering with a A labor-saving and quicker method would be the use of small hand planters. These could be used to advantage for the first planting also in sections where comparatively small areas are planted and where it is at present the custom to drop the corn by hand and cover with the hoe.

It is the practice in some localities to plant a much larger number of kernels than the number of stalks desired and to thin to the desired stand when the corn plants are about six to eight inches tall. This method may be satisfactory where plenty of labor is available, but where it is destrable to economize labor it would be advisable to plant tested seed at about the same rate as the stand desired and

A more general use of efficient harvesting machinery would permit more economical use of labor. A corn binder with an attachment for elevating the bundles of corn into a wagon should be used much more extensively than it is for harvesting ensilage corn There is also on the market a machine that converts the corn into ensilage in the field, elevating it into a wagon from which it is sucked or lifted into the silo. The use of either of these machines, especially the latter, would do away with the necessity of much laborious work.

Work Done by Hand.

A large percentage of the cutting and shocking of corn is done by hand labor. In some sections, because of unfavorable topography or other reasons, it is not practicable to use machine cutters. However, the greater part of the corn that is now cut by separate and if it must be used plant hand labor could be harvested by it thicker than the rest.

machinery, economizing labor and doing the work in a less laborious

Much of the corn that is now husked from the shocks could be handled more economically and with a saving in feet value of stover by substituting machine huskers and shedders for hand labor. The use of corn pickers would accomplish similar results in the case of corn husked from the standing stalks. Unloading and elevating machinery at the crib should be introduced and more generally used in many sections where it is now unknown or not commonly used. Where such facilities are not available cribs should be constructed in such a manner that they can be filled and emptied with the least possible labor For level ground double cribs with an elevated driveway and approaches that will enable the loads to be driven through the cribs and dumped or scooped out of the wagons without any high pitching are very satisfactory.

CALL FOR MORE CORN

Wheat excepted, corn is the most valuable and indispensable of the world's grain crops. It holds a commanding position in the agriculture of the United States. Its vast acreage and heavy yields are responsible to no small extent for the success of agriculture. The department of agriculture, in its program issued early in February, which re-emphasized and amplified the food production program for 1918 published by the departin August, 1917, recommended that an acreage of corn approximately equal to that of 1917, which was the largest on record, should be planted in 1918, with possibly slight reductions in certain sections to free areas for spring wheat. In 1917 the acreage devoted to corn was approximately 119,755,000 acres, compared with 105,672,000 acres. the average for 1911-15, and with 107,083,000 acres for 1912 and 106,197,000 acres for 1915.

$....... How Potato Spraying Paid.

Some potato growers, according to a recent statement from the department of agriculture, have expressed the opinion that it does not pay to spray potatoes for late blight. That thorough spraying will control the blight in seasons of bad infection has been proved many times in the past, says the statement, and most recently in Aroostook county, Me., in 1917. Among other places in the county this was shown conclusively at Aroostook farm, where extensive experiments were conducted by the United States department of agriculture in co-operation with the Maine Agricultural Experiment station. In one block where mall test plots sprayed with standard bordeaux mixture were interspersed with untreated plots, the average yield on 11 of the former was at the rate of 181.2 bushels per acre, while that on an equal number of untreated plots was at the rate of 143.5 bushels per acre, an increase of 37.7 bushels per acre, or more than 26 per cent in favor of bordeaux mixture

Test Your Seed Corn. It is not too late in most sections to test seed corn. Five or six days are ample for the test. Never before has it been of such importance to determine the germination of seed corn before planting. Because of unusual conditions last ... ason, much of the seed held over will not be fit to plant, at least at the regular rate of seeding The germination test will show how much of the seed will grow. Let the rag doll tester make this determination for you. Your county agent or your agricultural college or, if you have time to write to Washington, the department of agriculture, will describe the use of this simple device. It will be well, specialists of the department of agriculture say, to retain all ears showing a germination of 60 per cent or more. The poorer germinating ears will have to be used if the supply of seed germinating 80 per cent or better is not sufficient. Keep the poorer seed

Capital to Have Automatic Telephone Service

MASHINGTON.—Washington will have an automatic telephone system within the next 18 months. The work of installing this system, which will involve millions of dollars, will begin in the business section of the capital within a few weeks, probably within

LET THEM PUT the next ten days. It will be in full operation in the business section before the summer is over, according MARRY DICK to statements made by the telephone company. Nine out of every ten telephone girls now employed will lose their jobs, is the prediction of T. P. Sylvan, assistant to the president of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone company, when the new system is in full operation here. Mr. Sylvan was asked how long it would take to install the system here. He said it depended upon the labor conditions. "Unfortunately," continued Mr. Sylvan, "the company's present buildings are all filled to the doors with the now heavily worked apparatus, and unless the service being rendered is to be completely suspended, it is, of course, utterly impossible to install automatic equipment without first providing new buildings.

"On account of the weight of such apparatus and the necessity of pro tecting it from fire hazards, the buildings must be of substantial construction "To expedite the early completion of the automatic installation, the com pany must count on some immediate relief in the form of an order from the utility commission. Unless as a war measure the commission asks the people to eliminate unnecessary calling, the company will be compelled to continue expending large sums on installation of temporary equipment to care for such "As President Wilson said in his letter to the secretary of the treasury: 'It is essential that these utilities should be maintained at their maximum eff view. The new system will be operated by a dial. By turning numbers on this dial to correspond to the number you desire and pushing a signal the connec tion will be made automatically. It will save considerable time in making connections, said Mr. Sylvan.

Washingtonians Have No Doubt About Spring

THE chief thing that makes one sure spring is here is the appearance on our streets, although in a mild form, of a certain sport-namely: Tops. Once tops appear on the streets, flung from the hands of small boys, there is no escaping the fact that spring is somewhere in the vicinity. Her eyes may appear frostbitten, and she may seem clothed in such flimsy garments as our artists commonly clothe her with, but you may be sure she is somewhere in the vicinity, that fair divinity.

I talked with an elderly man in a high hat and gold-rimmed spectacles the other afternoon, as we stood and watched a group of small boys spinning tops. "They don't seem to do it with the old spirit, the old-er-pep," he said, pleased with his familiarity with the latter word. "Why, now, when was a boy, we spun-er-span-er-spinned tops like a house afire. These little fellows seem to be afraid of denting the sidewalk."

"When I spun-er-spinned tops, now," I replied, "I whipped 'em for a block. 'Whipping' tops was regarded a greater feat than knocking them out of We named our favorite tops in those days. My favorite was a three-cent top, green, with a peculiarly fat body, and was named after a certain schoolteacher, then a great favorite in the grade school I attended. Another top was named after a teacher whom all we kids detested. Playing 'ring,' we took great light in knocking this latter top out of the ring "Your reminiscences are interesting," replied the old gentleman, "but listen

Matter of Social Affairs Bothers Correspondent

THE question of going out evenings to social affairs has become acute between Helen and myself, writes a correspondent. It is one of the mysteries of creation why in women the social instinct should be developed so much more highly than in men. Helen advances no arguments, but merely says that men would sink to the brute level if women did not sacrifice themselves and make them go out now and then. To which I reply, asking whether "now and then" means four times a week. Whereupon it transpires, to my surprise, that it was really I who wanted to go to the Liberian minister's reception, and the musicale given by the wife of the chairman of the pelagra commission, and the benefit instituted by the mother of the chief of the bureau for the pensioning of super annuated boatswains.

'Well," she asks, "didn't you have a good time?"

"Fortunately," I answered, "the head of the cottage cheese division happened to be at the benefit, and while that Italian tenor was showing how inferior he could be to a second-rate phonograph record, I got some very valuable information about lacteal fermentations from the division head." 'Nonsense!" retorts Helen. "I watched you talking at least half the evening with that very giddy young blonde person, with the very fresh-looking com-"My dear, she is the head of the cottage cheese division. She's to be

"We are not. Come along. There's the taxi now."

Willie Saw Himself as Possible Rival of Hens

There is a white-haired grandmother who is guardian angel to said nens, and there is a little boy with wide, wondering eyes, who sometimes acts as guardian angel for "grandmaw," as he calls her.

One day recently grandmaw came in from the backyard, bustling with excitement. "The hen's combs are so red, I think they are going to lay some eggs," she said, while little Willie listened intently. Several days after that, William came in from the backyard. where he had been playing, his cheeks aglow from exercise.

He sat on the edge of a chair to get his breath and it was there his grandmother noticed him.

"Why, Willie!" she exclaimed. "What makes your cheeks so red?" Willie, from his perch on the chair, solemnly replied:

"Maybe I'm going to lay an egg."

The Housewife and the War

(Special Information Service, United States Department of Agriculture.) SPRING GREENS—GOOD TO EAT, GOOD FOR BODY

It Takes Half a Bushel of Spinach to Make a Pint of Food, but That Pint Has Valuable Iron and Mineral Salts Which Human Bodies Need.

GREENS GOOD TO MAKE RED BLOOD

Housewife Should Not Overlook Dandelion, Lamb's-Quarter or Wild Mustard.

IRON NEEDED FOR THE BODY Leaves of Various Vegetables Furnish Another Useful Substance Not Yet

> Named-Cream of Dandelion Soup Recipe.

It is springtime! Don't neglect to give your family some good old-fashloned greens. If you live in a large city, you may have to depend upon the greens which some country woman brings to market or upon spinach or kale, which can usually be bought even in winter. If you live in the country, perhaps your instinct has already told you that the tender green leaves of the dandellon, lamb's-quarter, wild mustard, or whatever variety of greens your locality affords are waiting for someone to gather them for food. People from primitive times to this have manifested a craving for green food as winter passes and springtime approaches. Probably this craving nrises from a real need of our bodies for the materials which such foods furnish.

Iron Is Essential.

What is the particular use of suci foods to our bodies? All green leaves contain in combination with the greet. coloring matter more or less iron. If we are to have rich, red blood we must furnish this iron to our bodies. Dandelion greens are one of the very good sources of iron, containing more than many other sorts of greer leaves. If we serve greens with hard-bolled egg for garnish, we have a dish very rich in iron, for the egg yolk contributes its share.

Besides the iron and other mineral salts, the leaf vegetables contain a very important substance which the body must have for normal growth and development. This substance, recently discovered and for which a name has not yet been given, is also found in butterfat and some other animal fats, but not in every food.

Greens have a place of real worth in the diet and should be used in every household not only in springtime but late into the summer and, when procurable, in the winter also. tender beet tops, celery tops, radish onion tops, and turnip tops should not be discarded, but served as greens. A little space in the garden devoted to spinach, New Zealand spinach, or French chard will supply the family with summer greens and also should afford some material for canning for use during the winter months.

Lettuce leaves, which are sometimes cooked for greens, and spinach, both being mild flavored and containing much water, require no water for in addition to that which clings lenves from washing. Other flavored greens are usually cooked in a small amount of water. Greens should be cooked until tender, but not overcooked. A tiny bit of baking soda added to the water they are cooked in will help the greens to retain their color.

In the country where meat is cured at home, it used to be the custom to keep the jowl of the hog for the especial purpose of cooking it with greens in the spring. If the jowl is not at hand, a small piece of salt pork or the rind from smoked bacon gives richness and flavor when cooked with greens.

Children should be encouraged to eat greens, as they especially need the fron and the growth-promoting substance which greens furnish. times they object to the slightly bitter taste which some greens have, but if made into milk soups, the flavor is diluted so that it is not noticeable.

Rice a La South Carolina.

No food, regardless of its merits, will appeal to the consumer unless it can made into an attractive dish. In this country rice usually comes to the table as an uninviting, glutinous mass, except in certain sections of the Southern states, where it is served with each grain distinct and separate, making a very tempting and appetizing dish. A platter heaped with loose, flaky kernels of rice is not only pleasing to the eye, but satisfying to the apetite. It is very probable that the attractive appearance of this dish on the South Carolina table has had much to do with the popularity and usefulness of rice in that state.

In seeking information on the art of cooking rice, no mistake is made in referring to South Carolina, where the true value of this cereal has been appreciated for over two centuries. Carolina housewife would advise the using of one pint of rice, after thorough washing, which she considers important, "to a quart and a pint of water," and a teaspoonful of common salt. "This is to be bolled over a quick fire for ten minutes, stirring occasionthe water; cover the vessel and put over a very slow fire, and allow it tosteam for 15 minutes at least, stirring occasionally. The rice will be soft or grainy, according to the quantity of water left on it when put to steam, and the length of time allowed in the steaming. The larger the quantity water and the shorter the steaming.

the softer will be the rice." Of course, other methods are used in boiling rice or at least modifications of the recipe given, but it must be remembered that the results should not be a glutinous mass and that success depends upon the proper amount of water used and the length of time in

Protect Food in Lunches

The precautions which must be taken to keep lunches clean and safe differ with circumstances. In dusty seasons they should be wrapped particularly well. In hot weather the use of soft, moist foods in which moids and bacteria are most likely to grow rapidly should be avoided. Although chopped meat moistened with a dressing of some kind makes a good sand-wich filling, such foods are less desirable in hot weather than slices of ment. peanut butter, or other foods less liable to spott.

>>>>>>>>>>> USE A LITTLE VINEGAR IN CLEANING GREENS

All greens must be picked over carefully and carefully washed. This is sometimes long process, for a large quantity is required to make a dish of the cooked greens. It takes about a half bushel of spinach to make a little more than a pint when cooked. A half cupful of vinegar in the water in which the greens are allowed to stand before washing is of advantage as it kills the small insects that are sometimes hard to distinguish from the leaves themselves. ********************

His Worst Foe Is BEHIND Him!

As that American boy goes across "no man's land," he knows what is before him. He knew before he sailed. He's trained for it—ready for it—eager for it. He can fight the Hun,—that's what he's there for.

But he can't fight the slacker at home, who nurses his money; who sits supinely by and sees his country's soldiers slaughtered for lack of military supplies; who prefers greenbacks to glory, dollars to victory.

That soldier's worst foe is behind him---right here in America.

Are you going to betray that boy? He's bone of your bone, blood of your blood; he's fighting for you—for the peace of your fireside, the chastity of your women, the lives of your children, the honor of your flag! Are you going to betray him? That's just what you do, when you withhold the money without which he cannot be furnished the fighting material he needs. You betray him

This warrant officer, under heavy machine gun and riffe fire, coolly collected a party of men, and, leading them against the strong point, rushed through the wire and personally bayonetted three of the enemy and brained the fourth, capturing the position and silencing the machine gun.

M.'s outstanding gallantry, personal cour-age and determined leading of his com-pany is deserving of the highest possible reward.—From the British Official Ga-zette.

Fought Huns Single Handed. And so Sergeant Major (Now Lieutenant) "Bob" Hanna, of Vancouver, B. C., received the Victory cross. The reprint from the Official Gazette reads almost like a hundred other thumbnail sketches of the bravery of the boys in the trenches, but the last few lines give it more or less distinction. To Hanna it merely was a day's work. To the men of the twenty-ninth Vancouver battalion the Victory cross, which is securely pinned to Hanna's waistcoat, is emblematic of one of the thrilling personal narratives of the entire war, if not, in fact, of all time. Stories of gallantry and self-sacrifice will be told while the world endures, but it will remain for a new race to roll up a single record to overshadow that of Hanna, who dropped in a trench all alone and single handed fought the cream of the Prussian guards-the men who never were defeated till then and who went down one after another before this mediumsized young lumberman from the forests of British Columbia. One moment Hanna's life wasn't worth a penny. A ing that he was alone in a nest of the few minutes later he had saved a battalion, and a little while later he was transformed on the field from a ser-

Over the Top Twenty-two Times It all happened at the battle of Vimy Ridge. This particular incident took place at Hill 70. Hanna had been in many of the worst battles of the war. A strong point, heavily protected by wire and held by machine gun, had beaten off three assaults of the company, with heavy casualties. This warrant officer, under heavy machine gun and rifle fire. Canadians who however heaved their Canadians, who, however, hewed their way through.

He Blows Up Machine Gun.

Six hundred and fifty men went over the top" with Hanna. Perhaps two-thirds of this number went on toward the trench, but this remnant was decimated by a machine gun which the Huns had set up on the parapet. The crew of this gun played it on the Canadians like a hose and all the officers were killed or injured. Hanna plugged on in the face of the dreadful fire. He had a Mills bomb and this he hurled at the machine gun and smashed it, killing or injuring the men who were feeding in the bullets.

It had done its deadly work. Hanna was standing alone. All about him were lying his comrades, either dead or badly wounded. Part of the battallon had spread and, he assumed, would come around back of the trench and enter it from the other end. He jumped into the trench and in a second saw a row of stalwart Prussians coming single file-this was necessary because of the narrowness of the excavation-toward him. They rushed him. As the first one was about five yards away he pulled the trigger on the only cartridge he had in his rifle. The cartridge was well aimed and No. 1 of the Fifty-fifth Prussian guards was out of the war forever.

The second one charged over his fallen comrade, but met the bayonet held in the viselike grip of the young lumberman from Vancouver. A third Prussian—also of the Ffty-fifth dropped down in the trench as if he had collapsed, but as this was no time for taking chances Hanna, now realizenemy, used his bayonet with effective results. A fourth Prussian appeared almost from nowhere. He had the stock of his rifle in both hands on a level with his shoulder and was preparing to drive the other end home in the form of the Canadian. But Hanna was too quick for him. There was a momentary grinding of teeth, a clash and the fourth Prussian measured his length on the earthen floor.

Blows Up Two Dugouts. Hanna then tells of what hap-

A LUCKY TROOPER

This Canadian soldier who was see orated for bravery was saved by a re colver which he had taken from a German prisoner. TECHNICAL AIEN ENEMY NATIONAL GUARD OFFICER

Denver, Colo.-Although he is said to have an even dozen brothers serving as officers in the Austro-Hungarian army, George A. Stadler drills four nights a week as ranking sergeant of Company F. Third regiment, Colorado National Guard. Technically, Sergeant Stadler is an allen enemy. He had not completed his citizenship at the beginning of the war with Germany. Before coming to America Stadler served four years as an officer of the Austrian army. His first two years as a military student were under the direction of German officers.

tells it. He was the only man of his company to be left by the withering fire of the machine gun he had stilled with a lucky throw of a bomb. There soldiers of another battallon appeared saving goes.

He Saves Two Battalions.

The whole maneuver was quickly understood. A battallon which had been despatched to join the Twentyninth had gone by the trench. Some of the Twenty-ninth also had gone by. Hanna alone had stopped at the objective. Those who had not gone too far had not been able to get far enough. The Prussians had figured on the Canadians passing the trench. Their program undoubtedly had been to rise from their dugouts and with the machine gun, which they did not expect to lose, wipe out the men of the two battalions. It all might easily enough have been done but for the pluck and the quickness of Hanna. It was some time later when the oung man from British Columbia was called to brigade quarters. The commander had learned all about his daring exploit. The young sergeant major, who twice before this had been recommended for honorable mention, was promoted to the rank of lieutenant and now he is back in France walting for another opportunity to add to the glory of Canada, and, as he proudly says, to do what an Irishman

BROKEN HEARTS PRICED $2.98

Jury at Dawson, Ill., Fixes That Price in Breach of Promise Suit

Dawson, Ill.-A "broken heart" is worth only $2.98 here.

Such was the verdict of a jury trying the breach of promise suit brought by Miss Myrian Cooper against Thomas Peddle. Miss Cooper asked $35,000 heart balm. It took the jury five minutes to decide the case after the defendant proved he "wasn't always" mentally responsible.

The Red Cross benefited by the trial to the extent of $70.50. The court permitted them to charge an admission fee from the public.

LOSS DUE TO CARELESSNESS

Conflagrations Might Be Greatly Reduced by Preventive Measures That Are Adopted in Time.

The report of the fire inspection department of Massachusetts will probably be of interest. The total number of fires in dwellings reported was 3,-905. The careless use of matches heads the fist of causes by children playing with matches came a close second with 392. There were 324 fires started from unknown causes, and 323 from ignition from lamps or stoves. Overheated stoves and cooking aparatus caused 231 fires, and careless smoking started 315.

Defective chimneys were the cause of 297 blazes, and sparks from the same source started 214. Spontaneous combustion was given as the reason for 155 alarms, and the placing of hot ashes in wooden receptacles caused 123. Among the other causes mentioned by the department in its report were: defective heating apparatus 49, electrical causes 63, explosion of lamp, lantern or stove 92, gas jet igniting other material 80, and incendiary 71. Scores of other causes of fire are enumerated, among which 83 are credited to rats and matches. A little care on the part of the owner or tenant would do a great deal toward eliminating a number of these causes of configrations and prevent a large proportion of the fire losses that are suffered annually. Look over the various reasons given for the fires and adapt them to your own home. This is a case where an ounce of prevention is worth many pounds of the proverbial cure.

When Marengo avenue in Pasadena, Cal., was extended recently, the grading incidental to the paving left a lot of fine old pepper trees with some of their roots "high and dry." In fact, the exposure of the roots was so great that the city forester feared health seriously impaired.

Accordingly, to insure the safety of the trees, concrete boxes were built cound the trunks and were then filled with rich earth. Plants with beautiful foliage were afterward set in the boxes.-Popular Science Monthly.

Proper Planting of Shade Trees.

The beauty of a shade tree depends upon its normal and symmetrical growth. In order to insure this, before planting cut off the ends of all broken or mutilated roots; remove all side branches save upon evergreens. so that a straight whiplike stalk alone remains. Dig holes at least two feet in diameter and one foot deep in good soil, and make them four feet across in poor soil. The sides of holes should be perpendicular and the bottom flat. Break up soil in the bottom of the hole to the depth of the length of a spade blade. Place two or three inches of fine top soil, free from sods or other decomposing organic matter, in the bottom of the hole. On top of this; place the roots of the tree, spread them as evenly as possible over the bottom of the hole, and cover with two or three inches of fine top soll as before. Tramp firmly with the feet and fill the hole with good earth, leaving the surface loose and a little higher than the surface of the surrounding soil. When the work of planting is completed, the tree should stand about two inches deeper than it stood in the nursery.

Well Called "Salt City."

Syracuse, N. Y., is called the Salt city, because of its large deposits. Much salt is obtained from vats, called "solar vats," since the salt solution is spread out in them for the sun's rays which thoroughly evaporate the water. Part of the Syracuse deposits are under Onondaga lake in the form of a great basin of salt water, separated from the fresh water above an impervious layer of clay. By boring through this the saline water is pumped up in great quantities. Another method of evaporation employed is by boiling. If boiled down rapidly a fine table salt is made; if more slowly, coarse salt, as large crystals have time to form.

Averages.

"Things average up in the long run," said the philosopher.

to their double task of slaying and saving makes fine and joyous telling. To the credit of the killers of the Uboats and guardians of the convoy let it be said that a half of the splendid tale has not yet been told.

The men of the lean hunter craft are the pick of the navy and their ships come close to being the best in the world. They know it, their countrymen know it, and Fritz of the submarine is learning it to his own sorrow.

Much honor is also paid to the men of the grand fleet-the bluejackets who are waiting at some unnamed sea rendezvous for a chance to loose the destruction of their great guns upon the ships of Wilhelm, sea lord of the Kiel canal.

These are our buckler, and our shield. They man the first line of the nation's defense. They are fighters, skilled in their appointed tasks, and eager for that battle that they believe cannot be so far off now.

No one tells of their brethren of the transport service. Only the brief official announcement gives their history, and this comes but rarely. Occasionally the powers at Washington lift the curtain of secrecy that hangs between our coast line and the Atlantic to announce that troops have been landed to an unmentioned number at an unnamed port in France. Only once so far has it named the ships that carried those troops.

To the average American mind the transports leave our shores and reach those of France, and that is all there is to it.

There is much more. Most of this probably will never be told. The endless chain of ships, most of them built in Germany, that carry men and supplies to the immediate rear of the war, and then return for more, have no his-

Yet the history is there, latent and waiting for birth. The fate of America's part in the war, perhaps the fate of the war itself, rests on the blue-jumpered shoulders of the transport Their business is not to fight, unless cornered. Their task is not to defend so much as to evade. They are responsible for the lives of thousands of temporarily helpless soldiers. They and their ship play a desperate game of tag. in which every U-boat the kaiser owns is "it" and they and their vessel the lone and unhappy tagee.

Day by day they come and day by day they go, and of their doings only the high lords of the navy know. Peril of storm and torpedo are theirs. Unrelaxed vigilance and eternal weariness are their duty. And they are doing their work. They are getting the men across. Up to the time this was written, no transport flying the Stars and Stripes and carrying her preclous load of men and munitions to France has lost in her deadly game of tag. The Tuscania, it should be remembered, was a British ship.

That is what the men of the transport service, most of whom enlisted to fight and were chosen to run, are doing. How they are doing it to only a partly told tale, caught here and there from letters sent home from French ports by sailors; from descriptions of the trip over "Over There" recounted by soldiers, recovered from the terrible qualms of seasickness and filled with a new-found gratitude and admiration for their brothers in the navy blue who brought them safely across.

Let us call her the Ramapo, because that isn't her name. Let us say still further that she was formerly, before she hauled down the red, white and black and hoisted the Stars and Stripes, the Fuerst Adolph, which she wasn't, and one of the crack liners in the German merchant marine, which she was,

In the dusk of a winter afternoon she slipped down the river and out to sea, unobtrusive in her war paint. Several thousand troops were in the "troop spaces" below decks. The troops were all kept below while the transport slowly slipped down the stream and the shores grew blurred behind her. Then her engines quickened. Her bow made its first curtsey to the ominous Atlantic swell, and she was on her way across. From now on, for day on day, a torpedo rightly placed might cause a greater ss than the attack of an army corps ashore. Down in the troop spaces soldiers were singing to keep up their courage. In the quarters of a negro regiment at least a hundred crap games were already in progress. Up in the nests lads only a few times at sea were already on the watch for submarines and seeing periscopes in every wave top. That night, the storm hit them.

All through the night, the section on watch had no time for peaceful thought. They progressed puss-in-the-corner fashion across beaving decks in the inky darkness, making fast davits that were wrenching free with the rolling, securing a hundred different objects that

The phosphorescence of the wave tops was the only light they saw. Save for two or three exceptions there was absolutely no illumination on

Far up on the two masts, switching back and forth across the sky in great arcs, were the fore and main tops-the "crow's nests." In each of these four men were stationed—the eyes of the vessel. In a pent house at the foot of each mast dwelt the commanders of the fore and aft guns, in constant communication with the lookouts above.

Dawn broke over a thousand ranges of gray, rolling mountains. Behind the Ramapo, two other transports ducked and crashed through the waves. Before her the bulk of an armored cruiser showed now and again through the foam. Waves were breaking over her all the time. She plowed straight through. Sometimes to the men on the Ramapo it seemed as though only her funnels and masts were above the sea.

The first night, when the Ramapo behaved more like a drunken acrobat than a stately ship, was merely the forerunner of worse things to come. All winter, storms have ranged up and down the sea lanes of the Atlantic. Calm days on the trip across are always a rarity in December, January and February. This year they have been

There were windstorms when the vessel rolled in an arc of 82 degrees. There were days of ice when the spray froze wherever it struck and men came off watch, cased in mail. There were days of snow that lashed the lookouts' faces like whips. There were days of tremendous seas that reached up 60 feet from the water line to rip lifeboats from their davits.

There was little time free of hard work and no ieisure for the seamen. To sleep one had to clutch the sides of his bunk, and usually when he relaxed as slumber overtook him, he fell out with a dismal crash. Day and night, they fought the seas, making fast, repairing, defending their vessel against the unending assault of the waves.

A petty officer was going through the mess hall, progressing cautiously, never letting go of one stable object until he had grasped another, when his grip slipped. He was thrown the whole length of the hall, and was carried a limp piece of bloody wreckage to the sick bay.

They had to operate to save his life, the sureon said. That in a storm that was making the Ramapo behave like an outlaw horse. But the navy cares for its own and they operated, and the man is still alive. The wind was from the north and was making the ship roll terribly. They turned her bow into the gale and faced into it for two hours, because the motion that way was

The cruiser and her convoy passed on down over the horizon. The storm got worse. two hours the Ramapo steamed slowly into its teeth, alone on the ocean, she and her thousands of men waiting, while in the operating room the surgeon balanced himself to the more regular plunge of the vessel and saved the man's life.

The ordeal of the never-ending series of storms was sufficient to try men's souls, occupied by other worry. But over the Ramapo hung another threat-the menace that envelops any vessel that faces out across the Atlantic.

"Watchful waiting"—the men of the Ramapo grew to know the true inward agony of the word. Always to watch. To stand for a fourhour watch in the crow's nest until your eyes ached from scanning the battling waves for the sight of the white periscope trail. To tread the deck, your ears ever strained for the dull boom below that might tell of a torpedo driven home. To sleep, with one-half of you wide awake, ready to jump to your appointed post while the vessel dropped swiftly away beneath your feet.

The thing got them. For the first day or so they talked and joked about it. Then into the talking came a note of defiance, as though each man were telling his fellows that he wasn't afraid. Then they stopped talking about it en-

Then one morning the section that awoke to the twitter of the boatswain's pipe caught a new emphasis in the old navy cry:

"Third section on deck, relieve wheel, lookout, speed cone and ammunition."

Especially the lookout. They had reached the far-flung limit of the war zone.

The Ramapo and her consorts and the armored cruiser were all zig-zagging now. Navy men know how long after a vessel has been sighted it takes to aim and discharge a torpedo. Say that it takes five minutes. Every four minutes the vessels changed their courses, dodging back and forth from an unseen foe that might not be there at all, interminably.

tops to the fore or aft gun control. All at once down the speaking tube to the forward fire control came an excited voice: "Fore top, fore top, fore top."

"Aye, aye, fore top." "Steamer at 185 degrees; range, 2,000 yards."

"Aye, aye, fore top." There was a steamer, and she was coming down fast, smoke boiling out of her single stack, her bow driving white bursts of foam along ahead of her. The cruiser charged toward her. The gun crews on the Ramapo were fighting to bring their pieces to bear. "It's a German raider," the whisper ran about the ship.

"She hove to only a few hundred yards away," relates a member of the crew. "All of our guns were on her. You could see their gray muzzles rise and dip as the ship rolled and the gun pointers held them true on their mark. All at once I realized I loved those guns and the men who were handling them. It was funny I'd never thought of them at all before. Now they seemed to be the biggest thing in the world to me.'

There was a sudden gasp of relief all over the ship. The tramp had broken out the British flag. On her bridge someone was semaphoring frantically. The Ramapo men picked up the hysteri-

"Submarine encountered one hour direct east. Believe it is pursuing. Advise caution.'

Then the smoke came bursting from her funnel again and she went blundering on her way over the sea, like a frightened duck.

"Then all at once a whisper ran through the ship. It was repeated as those on the walls of Lucknow must have told of the advancing British col-The destroyers were coming. Somewhere out of that gray, cruel sea the American war boats were sweeping down on the convoy. Our destroyers, our men, they were coming to see their brethren safe through the war zone.

"I shall never forget the way they came. It was a gray afternoon, when the maintop reported the flicker of a blinker signaling far out over the waves. We didn't see them when they came. They seemed to materialize suddenly out of nothing.

"All at once, we saw the first one. She was only a few hundred yards off our bows, and we had to watch her closely to see her at all. That sounds foolish; but it is literal fact. She was camouflaged-streaked and dotted and splashed in a dozen colors, and she melted away into the background of the sea as though she weren't made of

"Then we realized that they were all around Eight of them. All dappled and harlequinpatterned, all practically invisible at half a mile.

"Their flagship hung for a moment on a wave, then there was a spurt of white at her stern and she came flying down on us. There was no foam by the bow. There was no smoke from the short, rakish funnels, only the quiver of heat from her oll fires. She slipped through the water like a fish, and as she passed us, slim, high bred, with her razor bow and her lean curving flanks, driving through the water like an express train, with no visible effort and as smoothly as a canoe, she broke out the American flag on her stern. broke out ours, and that was our greeting-that and the yells of the soldiers who were acting like madmen. As she flashed by we caught a glimpse of her guns, all cleared for action and the depth bombs ready at her stern. One of her men, his feet braced to her roll, looked up at us, grinned and then yawned. We knew that was only show-He couldn't shame the troops by beblase. They acted like a bunch of kids."

The worst of the war zone was ahead of them, but they didn't worry any longer. They knew the destroyers were on the watch. They ranged here and there. They shot away for a mile or so and came back to swim circles about them. They were all new boats-the best ever built. British will tell you so, too. They are modeling their new boats on ours.

The submarine couldn't trouble the transports' men now. If one started to worry, all he had to do was to look over the side, and the picture of the destroyers, running the hills of the sea like bounds, was full comfort to him.

A few days later the Ramapo and her consorts were shepherded by the destroyers into the harbor of "A Port in France."

"The troops stood at the rail and cheered and laughed and shouted, but we didn't. We were too tired, just plain worn out. Anyone who has been on a transport's crew knows all there is to know about the agony of anticipation. We just sat and looked at the green hills and the green roofs and the green waters of the bay, and presently those who weren't on watch went to their bunks and had a good sleep.

"They had brought their men across safe, which has come to be a habit of the transport service. Somehow, I was glad that they put me on a transport, instead of a dreadnaught. It seems as though we were doing more to help win the war, somehow, even if no one ever hears about us."

ANOTHER NEW REPUBLIC

he recently created republic of Finland, where bloody, civil warfare has raged, lies in the same latitude as Greenland and Alaska. It is not small in size, for Finland is about as large as the whole of France. The Finlanders themselves speak of their land as Suomen-maa, or Soumi. It is a region of lakes and granite rocks, much of it desolate and water-logged, where winter reigns supreme for from seven to nine months in the year. At least one-ninth of the surface is covered with lakes and the greater part of the rest is forest. Less than one acre in thirty is arable, but a somewhat larger amount is suited for grazing.

We think of Greenland as a frozen and desolate land, fit only for the abode of the hardy Eskimos writes Nevin O. Winter in the Christian Herald. And 'yet in Finland, in a severe northern climate, has grown up a hardy and virile race. Perhaps it was because only the sturdiest could survive under such conditions, for isolabred self-reliance and indus try was necessary to existence. At rate the fact remains that the Finns have developed a civi-lization that is unique and of interest. It is not surprising, to one familiar with the Finns and their history, to know that a republic has been proclaimed. No people are more truly democratic. Under the autocratic rule of the czars, Finland maintained her democratic institutions, and it was the only part of Russia where the traveler was free to move about without having a demand made almost daily for his passport. The Russian calendar, which is thirteen days behind our own, was ignored, and in every way the public and social customs differed from those of the Russians.

The Finns have always objected to being classed as Russians. Of Monearliest of the Oriental races to cross the Urals and descend upon the fertile plains of Russia. They were gradually driven to the inhospitable North by successive waves of immigration. They are first cousins to the Magyars of Hungary and distant cousins of the Turk, Like the Celts of Ireland, the Finns were never able to establish an independent state capable of resisting the external pressure of Teuton, Slav and Turk. In the twelfth century they were brought under the sway of the roving Vikings, who organized a crusade to convert the heathen Finns.

Annexed by Russia. Since then the country has been buffeted about between Sweden and Russia. Peter the Great conquered a part of it, but the entire country was not annexed until one hundred and ten years ago. Then it was really a union. and not an unconditional surrender. The Canr took the title of Grand Duke of Finland, and as such he continued to rule until the abdication of Nicholas II. The fundamental laws of the country were officially recognized and confirmed by each succeeding autocrat, although in recent years there had been much encroachment on the rights of the independent Finns in the attempt at Russification. For this reason there has been great unrest for more than two decades.

Until 1898 Finland had not been required to furnish soldiers for the imperial Russian army. In that year the czar informed the Diet (Congress) that the military service must be made to conform to that of the rest of the empire. Finnish susceptibilities were aroused, as this seemed but the opening wedge for the destruction of all their liberties. The people entered upon a campaign of passive resistance. Every man, woman and child dressed in mourning on the Sunday succeeding the manifesto. Bells were tolled in the churches, and places of amuse-ment were closed. Many thousands emigrated to the United States. Long Summer Days.

During the long winters daylight lasts only three or four hours. On the shortest days it is even less. Then tt is indeed, as most people think, a land of snow and ice. For three months it is so hot that the wealthy residents seek summer resorts for comfort. During that time it is practically one tong day. Not a star is to be seen, and the appearence of time of autumn frosts has arrived.

During my visit, the evening twilight had scarcely disappeared before the morning twilight chased the gloom of night away. One could read out of doors until after eleven o'clock. These long days, with scarcely any night, force vegetation to grow at a hothouse pace. Land and water have no time to cool. Summer comes in this strange land with a sudden burst of flowers, sunlight and hirds.

Finland is a land of pine and firclad hills, for only a comparatively small portion seems to be cleared. The most of the country is fairly level, so that it has not the grandeur of the Scandinavian kingdom. In the cleared portions stand neat little wooden cottages, which are usually kept freshly painted, red being the favorite color. Surface drain ditches are made in the cultivated fields every few rods, and all seems most carefully tilled. Helsingfors, the capital of Finland, is one of the interesting towns of Europe. Water seems to surround it on every side. It dates back to 1550, when it was founded by the Swedish king Gustavus Vasa, and the liberties of a town were immediately conferred upon the little hamlet as a special favor. From the water side it is protected by the great fortress of Sveaborg, which is called the "Gibraltar of the Baltic," and of which one occasionally reads in the news dispatches. The highest point in Heisingfors is crowned by a great and imposing Lutheran church, and the majority of the Finns are adherents of this faith.

Scenes In Helsingfors

Through the center of Helsingfors runs a great boulevard, known as the Esplanade-Gatan, and this is the center of life in summer. The schools close for these months and everybody enjoys one long holiday so far as possible. One day seems almost to melt into another. The young women one sees in Helsingfors are of the blueish type seems to prevail here. Young girls, almost to the end of their 'teens, wear their hair in two flaxen braids that hang down the back. They have the same social freedom as their sisters on this side of the Atlantic.

The market of Helsingfors is an excellent place to study the Finns and their characteristics. From all over the surrounding country the peasants drive into the towns with their produce, and sell it direct to the townfolk. A small farmer may have killed a sheep or plg, and may be observed driving a keen bargain for the best cuts. Another has a few tiny kegs of butter covered with a layer of grass to keep it cool. Under old cotton umbrellas sit the market women with highly colored waists and black or white handkerchiefs tied over their heads. In a small basin are the boats of the fishermen just in from their catch. The housewives or maids pass from one stall or boat to another, inspecting their wares. A little after noon the fishermen and market merchants, who have come by sea, set sail, the cotton umbrellas come down, the wagons roll away, and the entire market disappears as by magic.

Communal Cooking Is Urged.

How long shall we have to wait before communal cooking becomes com-mon in every class of society? the London Chronicle asks. The need of some system of catering on these lines constitutes the felt want of the moment. In residential neighborhoods in every town, in every village throughout the length and breadth of the land there is an opening for supply kitchens worked on really practical business lines, where well cooked food of the plain and wholesome variety could be bought at reasonable prices-all ready to serve or merely requiring to be heated up.

Not only would such a system materially help to solve the servant difficulty, but it would insure an enormous saving in coal, in labor, in time and money—to say nothing of lessening the waste of food that is so flagrant a scandal in hundreds of homes today, while at the same time it would set free numbers of woman war workers.

A War Verse.

God help our noble men. And make them loyal and true, To their country of the Red White and Blue: Which they so willingly have offered their hand, To fight on ocean or land. They are aching to get in France. To fight those Germans out of their sense.

It is hard for the mother to stand For her dear boy to go to the foreign land, Where she is not there his clothes to mend, Where the holes in his clothes are waiting for the rain

But he laughs and says: "Mother, I don't care." "For you see I am in this war to do my share:" It is also hard for them to leave their sweethearts so lov-

Some had planned to wed each other in the beautiful month of May,

But now their plans are all in vain, For soon he will have to board the train. To leave her, to fight for his dear land. To see strange faces and be in strange lands.

It is sad for us to give up our friends, For when they leave us we may never see them again Yet we are hoping and praying that America will win And then our boys will return home again.

Each mother is now praying for her pet. That he will not fall into the Kaiser's net. We believe that Germany is in the wrong, And the Americans' belief is strong.

We read the Bible and pray a lot: And we do not believe in the Kaiser's plots. Germany thinks we are in the wrong But about a year from now she will sing a different song.

We are working and planning and learning to knit. Socks for the soldiers their feet to fit, For many a mile those feet do trod, Obeying orders from the point of the rod.

Working and fighting for the time to come, When they can return to their loved ones at home, We are trying to be saving with our food, Because our boys must be fed good.

Where they fight in the trenches of sleet and snow, Waiting for the orders to at their foe, We must save our country at any cost, Though many precious lives may be lost,

I hope soon we will be sure to hear. Shouts of our soldiers coming so near, That they have worked and done their fee, And are coming home to rest and be free, And have the honor of a soldier brave and true. And be worthy to wear their flag of Red, White and Blue.
