"Wanted, Live Press Agent; Apply Mother Nature"

WASHINGTON—Nature needs a press agent. If you were among the scores of people who were charmed by the recent display of birds at the National Museum, you might say that even a little advertising publicity for old Mother Nature would result in a tremendous increase in the use of wilderness preserves.

Nature is so strong that she needs no press agent, but we are told that she would appreciate a little more publicity. If so, let her have it. We would like to see the brilliant, colorful birds that are now arrayed in the museum, while they can be, and we think nature would appreciate a little more advertising.

Pennsylvania.—Just imagine a live press agent in Pennsylvania. He could tell the world about the wonderful scenery in his state. He could tell the world about the beauty of the Pennsylvania mountains, the beauty of the Pennsylvania lakes, the beauty of the Pennsylvania forests, and the beauty of the Pennsylvania rivers. He could tell the world about the beauty of the Pennsylvania countryside, the beauty of the Pennsylvania towns, and the beauty of the Pennsylvania cities.

Nature is so strong that she needs no press agent, but we are told that she would appreciate a little more publicity. If so, let her have it.

With the French Army's departure for the front, the Flemish women of Belgium are finding their way to the back doors of the German barracks where they can be found in large numbers. The women of Belgium have always been known for their beauty and their love of adventure. They are often seen picking up the pieces of broken china and small arms scattered about the fields.

During the war, the Flemish women of Belgium have taken to looting the French Army's supplies. They have been seen searching through the abandoned French soldiers' gear, looking for anything of value. They have even been known to steal precious stones and jewelry from the soldiers' uniforms.

Another significant aspect of the war that has affected the life of the Flemish women is the lack of men to marry. As a result, many women have begun to seek out foreign men to marry. They are often seen in cafes and bars, looking for foreign men to dance with.

The war has also caused a significant change in the attitude of the Flemish women towards men. They are often seen Hyde Park, riding bicycles and playing tennis. They are no longer the demure women they once were, and are now seen as independent and strong.
