NEW FRANCHISE OWNERS QUIT

At a special meeting of the city council last Thursday night A. C. Moore, attorney for the Marion Light Ice and Coal Co., appeared and tendered the electric light franchise back to the council. The Promoters of the company, O. S. Denny, Sam Gugenheim and T. H. Cochran stated through their attorney that they had decided to abandon the project and positively would not build a new plant here.

The council was asked for a release from the one thousand dollar bond given as a guarantee that the terms of the franchise would be complied with, but refused to grant this request. They did however release the company from one half of this amount. The vote taken on this proposition was unanimous.

Nothing definite has been proposed toward obtaining twenty four hour electrical service for Marion. It is with considerable interest the citizens of the city await what action the council will take in this matter.

MARION TO HAVE A REAL BALL TEAM

A number of the young business men who are interested in doing everything possible to keep Marion on the map met Monday night and formed a baseball association. The association plans to procure a fast team and give this vicinity the kind of baseball rarely seen out side the big cities. A salaried team will be on the diamond whenever a game is played and nothing but the cleanest of baseball will be tolerated.

The association is composed of Jack Johnson, W. W. Runyan, G. C. Gish, Doyle Vaughn, C. L. Cassidy, C. A. Taylor and W. P. Hogard. Jack Johnson will manage the team.

Already plans are on foot to play some of the fastest teams in the state. The grounds, which lay beautifully for the purpose, will be improved with a fence and a real honest to goodness grand stand so that patrons may enjoy the games in comfort.

Good baseball is an asset to any town, and Marion should appreciate what is in store for them this summer.

BIG THING FOR MARION

Interest in the coming C. I. A. Track Meet and Declamatory and Oratorical Contest is growing. Marion High School is doing everything the weather will permit to get ready for the great occasion. Two weeks ago Messrs. Gumbert and Christian with a number of the boys spent a large part of Saturday in staking out the track out at the New High School grounds. A larger number has been at work this week cleaning up preparatory to harrowing and smoothing. The place is ideal for holding the meet and a large crowd should be in attendance. All loyal boosters of Marion High School will be there.

L. E. GUESS, COUNTY CLERK ON THE JOB

We have just learned that Clerk L. E. Guess was, as usual on the job last week in behalf of the interests of the taxpayers of Crittenden. Mr. Guess attended the Republican District convention at Princeton on Tuesday, the late convention at Louisville on Wednesday and from there spent Thursday in Frankfort meeting and greeting the new State officials. Having been advised that Crittenden County had been raised $150,000. on real estate and $10,000. on town lots of the County, Mr. Guess secured a hearing with the State Board which resulted in lowering this amount to $50,000. on real estate and $10,000. on town lots, a reduction of $100,000.

There is nothing like having the right man at the right place at the right time and in addition to expressing our high personal appreciation for Mr. Guess we especially appreciate his manifest interest in our taxpayers.

FAMOUS BOWERY IS NO MORE NOT SO HARD TO UNDERSTAND

Prohibition and General Good Things Responsible for Disappearance of its Oldtime Characteristics.

New York's old-time Bowery is no more. No final rites have marked its passage, nor has the last requiem been sung, but of recent months the change has been progressing swiftly and noticeably.

Only old-timers can remember the "Tub of Blood" and other famous dives, but now even the modern hang-outs are disappearing one by one before the advent of national prohibition.

Most potent of the changes in America's former driftway of human wreckage is the virtual disappearance of the "Bowery bum." A newspaper feature writer recently journeyed on the street for a time, and he reported that the "bums" are now almost all at least casual workers, and that "cash," or a stable roll of the "long green," abounds.

Annie went, but in a few minutes she returned without the small prevaricator. "He won't come," she announced proudly. "He says he won't."

"Did you tell him who was here?" inquired his mother.

"All right," said the truthful parent. "Go back and tell him his grandmother is here and has some candy for him. That'll bring him!"—Youth's Companion.

HOUSTON OPPOSES
ISSUANCE OF BONDS

SECRETARY OF TREASURY IS OF OPINION FURTHER LARGE ISSUES SPELL DISASTER.

CONDITION IS NOT SERIOUS

However, Expenditure of $2,000,000,000 at This Time Would Be a Serious Matter For the People to Confront.

Washington.—A bond issue of $2,500,000,000 to pay adjusted compensation to former service men "might result in disaster," Secretary Houston told the House ways and means committee, which is considering the soldiers' "relief" legislation.

Increased taxes to extend aid to former service men was suggested by the secretary as "the least harmful way," but he said the proposed expenditure of $2,000,000,000 "would be a serious one for the people to confront at this time."

"The present financial situation is not critical," Mr. Houston said. "Economy by the people, avoidance of waste of expenditure, economical appropriations by Congress and prudence in handling these appropriations will naturally relieve the situation."

An attempt to sell bonds and place other paper on the market at existing rates of interest would be difficult, he said.

"I don't know if we could float bonds at a higher rate of interest," he told the committee. "If such bonds were floated it would tend to decrease values of present issues."

"Further credit expansion, which has been a factor in the upward trend of living costs, would be inevitable if another bond issue were approved," he said.

"We are doing what we can by prudence to bring about a normal condition of affairs, but I cannot predict when we will return to the prewar state," Mr. Houston continued. "The proposal to float additional bonds would set up grave situations which I am not sure we could handle."

The issuing of $2,000,000,000 in bonds at this time would be "a much more serious proposition than it was during the war," Gov. Harding, of the federal reserve board, told the committee.

Gov. Harding took issue with statements of representatives of soldiers' organizations that bonds issued to soldiers would be locked up.

25 PER CENT. FOR MINERS

Committee Appointed by President Wilson Makes Recommendation For Increased Wages.

Washington.—A wage increase of 25 per cent for bituminous coal miners is recommended in a majority report of the commission appointed by President Wilson to settle the coal strike.

No change in working hours or conditions was recommended. John P. White, representing the miners, held out for a higher wage increase, it was said, and will submit a minority report.

The wage increase proposed will absorb the 14 per cent granted when the miners returned to work last November, so that the actual increase is 11 per cent above present wages.

STOCK DECLARED TO BE NOT INCOME

CORPORATIONS MAY NOW CUT MELONS WITHOUT RESORT TO SECRECY OR SUBTERFUGE.

SUPREME COURT DECIDES

Dividends May Be Distributed as Stock Without Taxation, and Government Must Refund Taxes Already Paid.

Washington.—Corporation dividends distributed in the form of stock do not constitute "income" and are not subject to federal income taxes, the supreme court decided in a five to four decision.

Provisions of the 1916 federal income tax law levying taxes on stock dividends were declared unconstitutional. The decision also nullified similar provisions of the present law and will involve great losses in revenues to the government in future collections and also refunds of such taxes already collected. Large financial interests likewise would be affected and extensive "melon cutting" is expected.

In the majority decision, read by Justice Pitney, Chief Justice White and Justices McKenna, Vandeventer and Myrland concurred. Of the four dissenting members of the court in which he was joined by Justice Day, and Justice Brandeis delivered an opinion in which Justice Clarke concurred. In holding that stock distributions are not dividends on account of no separation of corporate assets being involved, Justice Pitney, in behalf of the majority, declared that stock shares "are nothing except paper certificates" in undistributed assets, are realized profits, and, therefore, are not taxable.

The attempt of congress in the income tax law to tax stock distributions the majority decided to be unconstitutional and not permitted by the sixteenth, or income tax, amendment to the federal constitution. Stock dividends, the majority held, may be taxed only after stockholders realize upon them by sale, in which case the government may levy income taxes on such profits.

All four dissenting justices contended that congress had power to tax stock dividends, holding that such dividends are "income" the same as in cash. The sixteenth amendment, the minority declared, is broad enough to justify tax.

INDICT OPERATORS—MINERS

Federal Grand Jury Charges Violation of the Lever Fuel Control Act and Conspiracy.

Indianapolis, Ind.—An indictment charging conspiracy in violation of the Lever fuel control act and the federal criminal code, naming 125 coal operators and miners as defendants, was returned in federal court here by a special grand jury which has been investigating the coal industry since Dec. 17, 1919. More than half of the defendants are operators, it is said.

Ten overt acts are charged against the coal men in the indictment, which contains 13 counts. It is understood that many of the violations charged have no connection with the strike of bituminous miners, but occurred prior to the signing of the armistice.

MR. DODSON WARNS
USERS OF CALOMEL

Says Drug Acts Like Dynamite on Liver and You Lose a Day's Work.

There's no reason why a person should take sickening, salivating calomel when a few cents buys a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tonic—a perfect substitute for calomel.

It is a pleasant, vegetable liquid which will start your liver just as surely as calomel, but it doesn't make you sick and can not siltivate.

Children and grown folks can take Dodson's Liver Tonic, because it is perfectly harmless.

Calomel is a dangerous drug. It is mercury and attacks your bones. Take a dose of nasty calomel today and you will feel weak, sick and nauseated tomorrow. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tonic instead and you will wake up feeling great. No more biliousness, constipation, sluggishness, headache, coated tongue or sour stomach. Your druggist says if you don't find Dodson's Liver Tonic acts better than horrible calomel your money is waiting for you.—Adv.

The Wrong Disease.

A Greenacres physician was approached by a patient who was in poor health. The patient explained his illness, and also the fact that he was not able to pay for the professional services at once, but would do so within a short time. He got the medical services and was improving nicely. In fact he had recovered sufficiently to go to work. The patient met the physician, who broached the subject of his fees. The patient said: "Well, doc, don't you know I was just talking to another doctor, and he told me you doctored me for the wrong thing, and I don't want to pay you for doctoring me for the wrong disease."—Indianapolis News.

It will be the first example in England of a large city entirely owned by a public authority.

IF BACK HURTS USE
SALTS FOR KIDNEYS

Eat less meat if kidneys feel like lead or bladder bothers.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulates them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—Adv.

GERMAN MILITARY SEIZES THE REINS

DR. WOLFGANG KAPP, FOUNDER OF FATHERLAND PARTY, IS NOW SUPREME DICTATOR.

REVOLUTION IS BLOODLESS

President and Minister of Old Government Call Upon the People to Rise in General Strike as Protest Against Action.

Berlin.—The government of Friedrich Ebert, the Socialist president of the German republic, was overthrown by a military coup d'etat.

Dr. Wolfgang Kapp, one of the founders of the fatherland party and general director of the agricultural societies, ousted Gustav Bauer, the chancellor, and in taking that office himself has temporarily assumed supreme direction of affairs.

There are now two contending governments in Germany, the new one under Chancellor Kapp at Berlin, the old one under President Ebert at Dresden. Officials of the new government declare that it is not reactionary or monarchistic. The president of the old government and his ministers have issued a proclamation calling upon the people to rise in a general strike as the only means of preventing the return of Wilhelm II.

Berlin is occupied by the troops of the counter-revolution—to what number is not known—and the movement is spreading rapidly throughout the provinces. Masses of troops and naval brigades, with artillery, have been brought into the capital and dominate the situation. Thus far there has been no outbreak and no bloodshed.

The Ebert government had knowledge beforehand of the pending counter-revolution, but the precaution taken proved to be entirely inadequate.

Paris.—Uprisings against the counter-revolutionary government of Germany have taken place in cities along the Rhine, says a Mayenne dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph. It is declared the situation is rapidly developing and that strikes are rapidly being declared everywhere.

TEXAS TOWN IS WIPED OUT

Seven of the Eight Business Blocks in Ruins and Many Fine Residences Destroyed.

Fort Worth, Tex.—Grandview, a farming town of 2,000 inhabitants, 36 miles southeast of this city, is a town of smoldering ruins. Seven blocks of brick business houses out of eight blocks, and 200 homes in the best residential part of the city, were destroyed by fire which swept the town.

Fanned by a 25-mile an hour gale, the fire carried all before it, and although fire apparatus from Waxahatchie, Itasca, Cleburne and Alvarado responded, they were of no avail, as the water in the standpipe gave out at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

A few minutes later three men entered another Broadway jewelry store a few blocks uptown and after throwing pepper in a clerk's eyes, grabbed some trays of jewelry and ran from the store.

Facts for Sick Women

Reliable Information

All American women know of the great success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in restoring to health women who suffered from ailments peculiar to their sex, yet there are some who are skeptical and do not realize that all that is claimed for it is absolutely true—if they did, our laboratory would not be half large enough to supply the demand, though today it is the largest in the country used for the manufacture of one particular medicine.

The Facts contained in the following two letters should prove of benefit to many women:

Buffalo, N. Y.—"I suffered with organic inflammation and displacement. When lifting I had such pain and bearing down that I was not able to stand up, and it hurt me to walk or go up or down stairs. I was going to a doctor without any results and he said the safest thing would be to have an operation. I met a lady who told me she had three operations and was not well until she took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I felt relief after taking two bottles of Vegetable Compound and I kept on with it until I was cured. I always use Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills and they are fine. Everything I eat turns sour on my stomach and the Liver Pills relieved that."—Mrs. A. Bouzard, 533 Fargo Avenue, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE CARE OF FARM MANURE.

When we take into consideration the fact that soils are made up of very small bits of rock, mixed with humus or vegetable matter, and that the soil contains ten essential plant food elements, namely carbon, hydrogen, oxygen, potassium, phosphorus, nitrogen, calcium, iron and magnesium, of which nitrogen and phosphorus are most likely to be deficient, and when we consider the amount of nitrogen and phosphorus in a ton of manure, and the losses that occur from weathering it can readily be seen that the care of manure is as important as its production.

Farm manure on the average contains about ten pounds of nitrogen, two pounds of phosphorus and eight pounds of potassium, besides about five hundred pounds of organic matter, to the ton. It is estimated that manure leaches out about one-half of its plant food value when exposed to weather for three months time. By comparing our Crittenden County soils with that of the Blue Grass region we can readily see the deficiency in our soils. The Blue Grass region of Kentucky contains about 3,700 pounds of nitrogen, 910 pounds of phosphorus, and 35,000 pounds of potassium, while our Crittenden County soils contain only about 1,700 pounds of nitrogen, 702 pounds of phosphorus and 35,000 pounds of potassium per acre.

These statistics show the vast difference of nitrogen and phosphorus in our soil with that of the Blue Grass and the greater amount of this nitrogen and phosphorus is not available, that is, it is not in such a form that the plants can use it.

What Crittenden County soil needs, perhaps more than anything else, is an abundance of humus. At it decays slowly in the soil it brings about chemical reactions that aid in making this unavailable plant food available. Aside from this fact by mixing it with the soil it increases the water-holding capacity and this is especially important in the regions that are subject to drouth. The humus also has a decided effect on the temperature of the soil by making it more porous, thus allowing air and sunshine to penetrate it more freely. It also provides for better drainage thus causing the soil to warm up better.

Humus tends to hold the soil particles apart, allowing the air to circulate freely. This is very important, as the roots of plants to make their best growth must have an extensive root system, and to promote this the soil must be in a permeable condition with plenty of soil water and air. Humus furnishes food and a home for the bacteria, which are essential in nitrogen fixation. Last but not least in the importance of humus is the effect that it has on the topography of the land. By absorbing the rainfall it prevents erosion and the formation of gullies, which are so numerous in Crittenden County.

From these facts the importance of manure to the farmers of Crittenden County can be clearly seen, both for its humus content and the plant food that it contains. It follows from these facts that all the manure should be saved and carefully husbanded. It should be cared for in such a way to prevent such losses that occur annually, as the following statistics show: One billion tons of manure are produced annually in the United States worth approximately $3.00 per ton, amounting in value to over $3,000,000,000. One-fourth of this is lost due to improper care which makes a total loss of $750,000,000 per year.

The losses of manure are due chiefly to heating and leaching. When manure is allowed to heat it loses its most important plant food element, nitrogen. When the heating occurs, ammonia gas is liberated and the chief constituent of ammonia gas is nitrogen.

Most of the farmers clean out their stalls once a year and pitch it out under the eaves, where the winds blow and the rains descend and wash it down the hillside to fertilize the weeds, and after all the plant food is washed away, they haul it out on their fields in the spring, and expect a fifty-bushel corn crop.

Most of the stables in Crittenden County have dirt floors and nearly all of the liquid manure is leached out unless a large amount of bedding is used. By using a large amount of bedding you not only absorb most of the liquid, but you also add a large amount of organic matter, which is of the utmost importance. Another good way to prevent the loss of the liquid manure is to build concrete floors in the stalls. The farmer could do this with out excessive cost, for he can get enough sand and gravel in almost any creek bed, and the only cost would be cement and the time spent in building. The best way to take care of manure on a large scale is to haul it out as it is produced, for in this way little is lost. If it is impossible to do this the next best thing is to build a manure pit, a place to store the manure when it is impossible to haul it out each day.

There is only one practical way in which to make a soil productive and that is by the addition of organic matter. Since it is not often practical to turn under green crops without first pasturing or hogging them, we should increase our acreage for this purpose and keep more live stock.

The above article was prepared by Jno. Ed Young and Carlos Grubbs. Our soil fertility class has had some very interesting work on soil questions. I am placing an order for ten cars of limestone for as many farmers of this county. I would like to double this order within the next two weeks. The lime will cost one dollar twenty-five cents f. o. b. Princeton. I have secured a special freight rate which will enable us to get a reduction of one-half, making the lime delivered here at Marion cost about one dollar sixty cents per ton. This is the best price since before the war and I hope the farmers will take advantage of it. The cars will average about forty-five tons and can be shipped any time after May 1. I am placing most of the orders for delivery during July and August.

GEO. M. GUMBERT.

REFLECTIONS FROM THE MIRROR

(This Column is Edited by the Staff of The Mirror.)

As this is the first article in this column, we take pleasure in introducing the staff, Harry B. Moore, editor; Tower E. Belt, business manager; Frances Moore and Margaret Harp, historians; Hubert D. Crider and Jerry Rankins, literary; Melba Williams Musical; James S. Henry, Jr., Athletics; and J. Willard, Daughtrey, cartoonist.

The object of this column is to keep the good readers of The Press informed as to the proceedings of one of the greatest things Marion High School has ever done. This column is to appear each week until further notice under the headline, "Reflections from The Mirror."

In order that you may be more thoroughly acquainted with The Mirror we will give below a description of it.

The Mirror is the name that has been chosen by the staff for the Combined History of Marion High School, Directory of the Alumni and an Annual of the Class of 1920.

One of the Alumni or some other person is going to write the history of the high school from its organization in 1896 to the present day. It will not deal so much in any one particular branch of the school history but will be a general account. A complete history of the orchestra, or which we are proud of, the history of the athletic teams, which have all won renown, the "story of the cheerleaders," which caused so much excitement all over this end of Kentucky, and the history of the Manthamonian and girls' literary societies, which have been and still are doing their part in training speakers and leaders for the future, will all be published in separate sections of the history.

Class of 1921.

"The First Class."

Mr. Jas. U. Smith entered Philip University after graduating from Marion High School and received the A. B. degree in 1921. In 1923 he married Miss Cora Beahly, of St. Johns, Ky. Mr. Smith is now in the retail dry goods business in Repton, Ky.

This is an illustration of the method we are using in publishing the directory. It speaks for itself and needs no further comment.

Our Class Annual will be similar to other such books.

The book will contain about 200 pages, will be printed on "White Enamel Stock" with blue tint border. The cover will be black with the lettering in gold and the book will be bound in blue and white silk cords.

The price is $2.50 for the cash in advance, or $2.75 for one copy to be shipped and sight draft mailed later.

Address all communications to The Mirror, Box 423, Marion, Ky.

The following alumni have mailed their $2.50 for a copy of The Mirror. We wish to thank them, and are very sorry that we are unable to thank all of them:

W. H. Rochester, J. S. Kevill, M. U. Condit, Mary D. Christian, E. Florine Jarrod, Virginia Blue, Gladys Hardy Moore, Dr. J. E. Chippis, Frances Blue Beque, Wilma Wright, V. Y. Moore, Mrs. T. H. Carter, H. L. Babb, Wm. Moore, P. D. Maxwell, Dorothy Dean Galen Dixon, R. Ruth Hill, Ruby Asher W. J. Foster, Nannie Miller, C. W. Haynes, Era Debo, A. F. Crider.

Each week hereafter we will publish news of the alumni of Marion High School, news of The Mirror in its publication, good jokes and things to make you think. Also we will answer any questions in regard to The Mirror or any school item that is connected with The Mirror. If you have anything to ask, send it to The Mirror, Box 423, Marion, Ky.

Equalizing Salaries.

Philadelphia.—A recommendation of its finance committee providing for equalization of the salaries of men and women teachers in the primary and grammar grades and raising the present salary minimum from $875 to $1,037 a year was adopted by the local board of education.

A Kentucky Woman

Rundown-Nervous-Weak

Newport, Ky.—"I most heartily recommend Dr. Pierce's remedies for they have surely been of great benefit to me. Several years ago I was run-down and nervous with congestion and a catarrhal condition. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and Lo-Tin Tablets cured me of all my weaknesses and restored me to perfect health and strength. From that time to this I have had no feminine trouble of any description so feel assured that I have a permanent cure."—MRS. AMANDA E. GEISLER, 913 Columbia St.

ANOTHER TESTIMONY

Louisville, Ky.—"Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the very best medicine a woman can take. I suffered for some time with organic weakness and at times I suffered so that I would be compelled to give up and go to bed; my back ached and pains would extend down into my limbs. I would become stiff and numb and was hysterical at times. I was so miserable and nothing seemed to help me until I began taking the 'Favorite Prescription' and this medicine so completely cured me that I have never had the least trouble since. I can recommend it to be the best medicine I have ever taken for the ailments of women."—MRS. E. CASHMAN, 826 Franklin St.

FOR YOUNG MOTHERS

Louisville, Ky.—"I can never thank Dr. Pierce enough for what his medicine has done for me. I had nursing sore mouth and was so weak I could hardly walk. My baby also suffered. I got medicine from our family physician but it did me no good. I grew more instead of better, so almost in despair I began taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and before I had taken half a bottle I felt like a different woman and when I had finished taking that bottle I was almost well. I believe I would have been in my grave had it not been for this medicine."—MRS. EMMA PEARL, R. R. A, Box 214.

Discover Swedish Crater.

Two young Swedish students of geology named Wadell and Valberg, after an adventurous nine days' expedition in Iceland, have discovered what is believed to be the largest crater in the world, measuring eight kilometers (five miles) long and five kilometers (three and a quarter miles) wide. The two students further claim to have discovered some warm springs.

Children Given Lessons In Law.

A remarkable educational establishment is the school for judges in Paris. Here mock trials are held by pupils under the supervision of able attorneys. The whole procedure, from the issuing of a warrant for arrest to the summing up and the jury's verdict, is carried through in a businesslike manner.

Difference of Opinion.

"What did you think of the senator's speech?" asked the low browed citizen. "I thought it was rather tautological," replied the high browed person. "Well, if it taught you anything, that's more than it did for me."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Welsh Song Writer Honored.

"Land of My Father's" is perhaps the most widely sung of all Welsh airs. The composer was Evan Jones and a monument is erected to his memory at Pontypridd.

LARGEST SEARCHLIGHT IN THE WORLD

GOB WHO MADE GOOD GOES TO ANNAPOLIS

Every year one hundred men from the enlisted ranks of the United States navy are selected for training at the naval academy at Annapolis, preparing them for posts as commissioned officers. This photograph shows Commander J. P. Lannon, executive officer of the U. S. S. New Mexico, handing one of the lucky sailors from his ship an appointment to the academy.

SCRAPS

One of the very first to sign petitions for woman suffrage in England was Charles Darwin, the eminent naturalist.

The war area in northern France and Belgium is estimated to contain 8,000,000 tons of copper of which one-third may be reclaimed. Sections where hard battles raged are said to have 250 tons of iron to every two and one-half acres.

The new republic of Czechoslovakia has an area of between 50,000 and 60,000 square miles and a population of 12,500,000.

The "new woman" organizations in Egypt are rapidly growing in strength, and despite the ancient traditions of the Mohammedans, are being favorably received. Harren laws are being broken and many of the younger women have discarded their face veils and are taking part in political processions.

I Owe My Life to PE-RU-NA

Mr. McKinley's letter brings cheer to all who may be sufferers as he was. Read it:

"I can honestly say that I owe my life to Peruna. After years of the best doctors in the country gave me up and told me I could not live another month, Peruna saved me. Traveling from town to town, throughout the country, and facing a go into all kinds of badly heated stores and buildings, sometimes standing up for hours at a time while giving my trade as a peddler, it is only natural that I had colds frequently to when this would occur I had little faith in it until last December when I contracted a severe case, which through neglect of my part, settled on my lungs. I soon coughed, spit blood, and was unable to breathe without exerting 1 hour of Peruna. It cured me and I cannot praise it too highly."

MEMORANDUM BY PEACE COUNCIL

STATEMENT ISSUED BY SUPREME COUNCIL DEALS WITH MANY PROBLEMS.

REDUCTION OF ARMAMENTS

Peace and Normal Economic Relations Should Be Re-established at Earliest Possible Moment in Eastern Europe.

London.—The supreme council has issued a memorandum on world economic conditions. Its conclusions are as follows:

First—it is of paramount importance that peace conditions should be fully and completely restored at the earliest possible moment throughout the world.

To achieve this object it is desirable (first) that peace and normal economic relations should be re-established at the earliest moment possible throughout Eastern Europe; (second) that armies everywhere should be reduced to a peace footing, that armaments should be limited to the lowest possible figure compatible with national security and that the league of nations should be invited to consider as soon as possible proposals to this end; (third) that states which have been created or enlarged as a result of the war should immediately re-establish full and friendly cooperation and arrange for unrestricted interchange of commodities in order that the essential unity of European economic life may not be impaired by the erection of artificial economic barriers.

Second—Not only the government of each country, but all those engaged in the task of production in every land should give immediate attention to the execution of all measures which will contribute to the full resumption of peaceful industry, to the encouragement of a better output on the part of the workers in every country, to the improvement of machinery and means of transportation and the removal of such disturbing factors as profiteering.

Third—Each government should immediately consider means for urging upon its nationals in every rank of life the vital necessity of suppressing extravagance and reducing expenditure, so as to bridge the gap which must for some years exist between the demand for and the supply of essential commodities.

Fourth—it is essential that early steps be taken to secure the deflation of credit and currency (first) by the reduction of recurrent government expenditure within the limits of the revenue; (second) by the imposition of such additional taxation as is necessary to secure this result; (third) by the funding of short term obligations by means of loans subscribed out of the people's savings; (fourth) by the immediate limitation and gradual curtailment of note circulation.

Other sections of the statement refer to provisions for raw material cooperation, devastated regions, proposals as to Germany, etc.

URGE FARMS FOR SOLDIERS

Government Corporation to Make Purchases for Ex-Servicemen Is Proposed.

Washington.—Formation of a government corporation to purchase farms for former service men was urged before the house ways and means committee by Representative Morgan of Oklahoma, explaining his bill to create such a corporation, capitalized at $100,000,000.

All the stock would be held by those benefitting under the bill and only $500 would be necessary to start, he said, adding that a million men would benefit under such a plan within a few years.

This is the first of several similar bills which will be explained to the committee by their authors.

DOCTOR ADVISED CHANGE OF CLIMATE

Run Down and Lungs Hurt—Stayed Home and Gained 22 Pounds.

"In November, 1911, I had a severe cold and in grippe, which left me with a bad cough. My lungs and shoulder blades hurt so I couldn't sleep and I finally had to give up my job and was ordered to change climate. In April, 1912, I began taking Mils Emulsion. CHAPTER XVII.—Continued

Father Lucien had just laid down his singletick when a boy brought him a letter in an unknown handwriting. A letter was an important event in the cure's day. He put on his spectacles, sat down, opened the envelope, and began to read.

It was from the priest at St. Joseph, and stated that Nanette Bonnat had given him the full story of the adventures upon the island, together with an account of the activities of Pierre and Simeon Duval.

Had as Father Lucien had known conditions at Ste. Marie, to be, he had never guessed at the revelations which Nanette had made to his confessor.

His indignation spilled over, and he paced his study in agitation for several minutes. At last, struck with an inspiration, he took up his singletick, put on his cap, fur coat, and snowshoes, and started off toward Ste. Marie.

It was about an hour later when the few loafers in Simeon's saloon looked up to see the cure standing in the doorway. Since the lumbermen had gone into camp for the winter the glories of the dance hall had faded and disappeared, but Simeon still did a thriving liquor business. He saw the cure and came waddling forward, his pale blue eyes blinking with mock humility.

"Come in, father," he said suavely. "We don't often see you here. What will you have? A drop of gin? A little brandy, now? Or maybe you're looking for some of the girls to dance with?"

The men grinned and nudged each other. It is not often that one sees a cure baited.

"You're a sport, father," said Simeon. "What sort of stick do you call that, with a knob each end?"

"I shall come to that later," answered the cure. "Simeon, Simeon, how often have I spoken to you about the evil that you are doing here! It is a statutory offense to sell liquor without a license, but it is an offense against God to run this sort of place, Simeon, for the good of your soul, will you not close down this place and lead a different life?"

The mild words and humble attitude of the old priest were so comical that nobody could conceal his amusement any longer. A roar of laughter shook the shack. Simeon yawned.

"I'll think about my soul when I'm sick," he answered.

"You may be very sick at any moment, Simeon, without expecting it."

"I'll take the chances of that," answered Simeon.

"Simeon, I am growing tired of speaking to you. Do you know that your house is a plague-spot in this village? Simeon, for the last time, won't you close up for good and all?"

"Ah, father, you mean all right," said Simeon. "But that's your job. I bet you're just as much a sport as anybody here, if only you let yourself go. Come on now, and get into a game with us."

"Simeon," said Father Lucien, "you were asking me about this stick. I'll show you what it's for. Look!"

Smack! went the hazel knob on Simeon's head.

Simeon was so flabbergasted that he fell back against the plank table. As for the cure, he seemed transfixed. Holding the singletick in the middle, he twisted it until it looked like a knobby stick of light, while he pronounced it a derisive.

In reality he was going through the important foot exercise marked combination 5; but nobody knew that.

"Come on, Simeon," said Father Lucien, flicking him across the nose, which instantly became enswathed.

With a howl of wrath Simeon came forward, and the singletick descended on his head with a thud that was heard, neighbors said afterward, across the street. Another thud from the other end; and Simeon was blinking up at the cure from the floor.

"Get up, Simeon; I'm going to cure your soul," said the cure. "Are you going to close down?"

Simeon struggled to his knees. With an unthoughtful agility he dodged the singletick (movement 19 had always bothered the cure) and rushed forward with arms extended, like a bear. But Father Lucien had movement 17 put, and movement 17 is especially designed for this. Placing the right toe against the left heel, he made a half turn. Smack! Simeon was reclining against the counter, his hands over his head, and blood streaming through his fingers.

"Simeon, Simeon," said the cure (smack, smack!) "are you going to close down?"

Simeon lifted up his voice in a long, melancholy howl. He struggled feebly to his feet, and instantly went down again under a terrific blow across the right ear (movement 22A).

"Is your soul better, Simeon?" asked Father Lucien.

Simeon blinked up into the ring of faces about him. It was an extraordinary thing, but though everybody seemed very much interested in his predicament, nobody showed any signs of interfering to help him. Public opinion was very fickle in Ste. Marie.

"Now you may get up, Simeon," said the cure, and Simeon hastened to obey. His eyes traveled quickly in the direction of an empty brandy bottle upon the counter. If he could get it into his hand.

Smack! went the singletick, and Simeon was down again with a roar like a poleaxed bull.

"What did you do that for?" he whimpered.

"I'm helping you the best way I know, Simeon," answered the cure mildly. "Are you going to close down?"

"I'll have you arrested," Simeon yelled. "I'll write to the bishop about you."

Crash went the singletick. "Are you going to have me arrested?" inquired Father Lucien.

"No," muttered Simeon, covering his head with his hands.

Crash! Simeon's hands flew apart as if they were attached to springs.

"Are you going to write to the bishop?" asked the cure.

"No. For God's sake let me go, you d— bully!"

Simeon snatched at the knob on the end of the singletick nearest him, but movement 4 provides for that, and the crack of a broken finger was distinctly audible to the intensely interested spectators.

"When are you going to close down, Simeon?" demanded Father Lucien, standing over the prostrate liquor-seller.

"At once!" yelled Simeon, bursting into tears. "For God's sake don't hit me again!"

Simeon looked so abject that the cure had not the heart to continue his punishment. He looked about him. A singletick describes a circle having a radius of several feet. Exercise 2 cleared the counter in a jiffy, leaving a wreck of rocking chairs and broken glass.

When the cure turned upon the enthusiastic, shouting throng, the grins died off their faces.

"Get out of here, my children!" he shouted. And, twirling his singletick with indescribable velocity, he brought it down on one head after another, much as one might strike a row of fence posts. The terrible implement seemed to fly in all directions at the same time. Father Lucien cracked the last man across the shoulders and sent him flying into the street.

"For God's sake don't leave me alone in here with him!" moaned Simeon from the floor.

Father Lucien came back and stood over him, twirling his singletick meditatively. At last he laid it down upon the counter.

"It's all right, Simeon, my son," he said gently. "I think I've cured you now. I'm going to hear your confession. A man never knows when he's going to be sick, Simeon. Let me hear you say your Act of Contrition, if you haven't forgotten it."

"Wait a minute," pleaded Simeon. "Are you going to see my brother Louis afterward?"

"I've seen him," answered the cure. "And Jean Poultot, and Albert Drouin, and George Molson, and—"

"I'm going to," replied the cure grimly. So Simeon, with a new expression of gratification, came back into the church.

When, fifteen minutes later, Father Lucien emerged from the shanty, Ste. Marie was an extraordinary sight. Every drink-shop had locked up, their owners had fled, and the streets were packed with crowds which, at the sight of the priest, set up a yell of delight. The women pressed about him, sobbing their gratitude. It was with difficulty that he could keep his way through the feminine bodyguard that accompanied him along his way, and after he had persuaded them to go home the distant cheering still rang in his ears.

"I shall come back every week," was Father Lucien's last promise to Ste. Marie. "I shall break the head of every man who has brandy in his house."

"God bless you, father," came back from a hundred throats.

And, being at last satisfied that Ste. Marie was closed as tightly as it was ever likely to be, Father Lucien took the homeward road to St. Boniface again.

He went through the limits instead of along the shore, and was nearing the village when he encountered Lafa.

"Hello, Father Luc! Where do you come from?" asked the latter.

"I've just been paying a pastoral visit to Ste. Marie," said the cure demurely.

Lafa stared at him. "What d'you call that?" he demanded.

"That is a singletick," said Father Lucien. "It is a good exercise for old men like you and me, Lafa."

"Sort of light double club," said Lafa. "What's that hair on the end of father? Say, that looks like blood, don't it?"

"That is Simeon Duval's," the cure answered. "You see, Mr. Lafa—"

Lafa stopped short. "Father Luc, d'you mean to tell me you've knocked out Simeon?"

"I'm afraid so, Mr. Lafa. I couldn't get into his soul in any other way. But I'm getting there. Next time I shall have learned some more exercises, and then—"

"You closed up Ste. Marie?"

"Well, for the present, yes," admitted the cure. "But next time—"

"Shake, father," said Lafa, stretching out his hand. "By George, you do get results after all when you start in. But why didn't you do that before?"

"It was your friend, Monsieur Askew, who put the thought into my head," said Father Lucien. "By the way, Mr. Lafa, I have a letter from a friend in St. Joseph."

"St. Joseph? Why, that's where Nanette Bonnat—"

"Precisely. And she has told everything about the visit to the island, concerning which, as you are aware, Mademoiselle Rosny—"

Lafa shook his head. "I ain't any use, father," he said. "I been to see and told her. She knows that yarn ain't true. But she's like all them Rosnys. She hates herself so much because she knows it ain't true that she hates him more. And he's going to leave St. Boniface."

"Tut, tut!" said the cure. "Mr. Lafa," he added seriously, "we must stop this. It is not for me to interfere, but at least the truth should be known. I am going to see the girl Marie Dupont."

"I'm going that way," said Lafa. "I'll go with you. I'm Hilary Askew's friend. And I'm uneasy about him. I've just been to the camp, and they tell me he's gone back to St. Boniface."

It was growing dark. The two set out with quickened pace, but it was quite dark before they saw the cottages of St. Boniface before them. As the wharf came into view Lafa uttered an exclamation.

"The schooner's gone!" he cried. "Whose, Mr. Lafa?"

The captain's. That other one's laid up for the season. I hope to God Hilary ain't done anything foolish and slipped the cable."

They almost ran to the captain's house. The interior was dark, save for the dull flicker from the stove. The cure flung the door open. They heard a sobbing within. Carefully Father Lucien struck a match and lit the lamp, disclosing Marie Dupont kneeling, her face in her hands, beside the embers. She looked up with an expression of utter despair.

"Where is his father?"

"He has sailed, with Leblanc and Pierre, and Monsieur Askew is aboard, and Mademoiselle Rosny—"

"What!" shouted the cure, pulling her to her feet. "Thou art dreaming, child!"

"They planned to kill Monsieur Askew. I went to Mademoiselle, and we drove to the wharf. She sprang aboard, and the ship sailed, half an hour ago. They will kill them."

Father Lucien went white and began to tremble. "Marie Dupont, swear to me—" he began.

"Ah, mon Dieu, it is true. I swear it!"

"Why didn't thou come to me?"

"I was afraid."

The cure translated to Lafa. "If she speaks the truth—" he began.

"It is true, I guess," said the cure. "Quick, father, let's get the other schooner and go after them. It's our only chance. I'll go. Darn it, if they hurt a hair of Hilary's head, or—"

Mademoiselle's, I'll send the gang to hell!" cried Lafa, half sobbing.

"But it is impossible!" cried the cure. "Who will sail her?"

"Come with me, father," answered Lafa, a flicker of whimsicality appearing on his face, as in such moments, "I guess I'm in charge now, see? Let's go to the store."

There were the usual loafers inside. Yes, it was true the schooner had sailed, and it had surprised everybody, because Captain Dupont had announced that he would not sail for some days. And he had left his crew behind. But then every one knew that he was going out of his mind.

Lafa cut the gossip short. "Ask them who can sail the schooner," he said to the crew.

Only one man could sail the schooner, or through the ice. All the rest were in the woods. Jean-Marie Baptiste understood the coast and the currents.

"Where is he?"

The storekeeper shrugged his shoulders. "He was here half an hour ago to buy more traps, but he has gone into the woods again."

At that instant Baptiste entered the store, saw Lafa, and scowled.

"This trap is broken—" he began, holding it up for the storekeeper to view it.

The cure pounced on him. "Baptiste, come with me. Thou dost not go into the woods tonight. Thou must take us aboard the schooner."

Baptiste's jaw fell. "Mon pere, it is impossible," he stammered.

"Dupont has gone!"

"Done!" cried Baptiste, running to the door.

The cure followed him. "Baptiste, thou must sail the schooner and find him. He is mad. He has left his crew behind him and taken Leblanc and Pierre. And Mademoiselle Rosny is in their hands—"

"What!" shouted Baptiste. "I go. At once I go—"

"And Monsieur Askew, whom they have sworn to murder—"

"I do not go," said Jean Baptiste, and stopped dead.

The cure caught him by the arm. "Listen to me, Jean. His life and that of Mademoiselle Rosny are perhaps at stake."

"I do not go!" cried Baptiste again, and snatched up his trap. He strode to the door and turned fiercely upon Father Lucien, who followed him. "Lafa die!" he shouted. "You know, mon pere, you know what he has done to me and mine!"

Lafa, who understood hardly a word of this colloquy, caught a precise sense of what Baptiste was saying, partly of the gestures, but more by his faculty brought out through dialogues on many evenings with his friend Tremblay. He tugged at the cure's arm.

"Tell him that story ain't true, father," he said. "That's what's worrying him."

But Father Lucien resumed, as if he had not heard:

"Even so, Jean, Mademoiselle Rosny's life, perhaps, is in danger. And even if that were not so, thou must return good for evil. Else his blood is upon thee."

"Let it be there! I would have killed him, only they pulled me away."

"It is thy duty, my son," said the cure quietly. "It is a hard test, Jean, but when God calls a man to duty, he must obey."

Baptiste began to break down. "Ah, mon pere, you ask me the hardest thing in my life," he groaned. "In the forests I have seen his face before me. I have dreamed that I had him by the throat, and started up with joy. I have struggled, and I have contrived to fight down my desire to slay him. And now you tell me I must save him, No, no, mon pere. Save the girl—yes."

But let some one else sail the schooner."

"Say, Father Luc, why don't you explain to him that that yarn's a lie?" persisted Lafa.

But again the cure ignored him. "We shall sail as soon as possible, Jean," he said. "Go back to the store and instruct the storekeeper to telephone to the crew—Drouin is one, and the others I do not know. And they return to me."

Jean-Baptiste good-bye, and he hung his head, muttering. Then, slowly, he raised it and smiled into the cure's face.

"Enough, then, I go," he said gravely.

"Well, I'm darned!" exclaimed Lafa. "Say, father, why didn't you tell him it wasn't true, that story?"

The cure smiled whimsically and laid his hand on Lafa's shoulder.

"Ah, Mr. Lafa," he answered, "when exercise will cure a paralyzed limb, we do not use the crutch."

Lafa stared at him. And slowly he began to understand. Father Lucien's ways were often inscrutable, but somehow he got there in the end.

"By jing, you're a brick, father!" he cried, striking the priest between the shoulders. "And, say! I take it all back—everything! Go on and bless the cabbage. Go on praying out fires. Go on, go on! You've got the knack somehow—only I'm—I'm jingled if I see how you do it till it's all over!"

Baptiste, who had been telephoning inside the store, came out. "Drouin and Lachance will be at the wharf in fifteen minutes, Monsieur Tessier," he said.

The cure nodded and took Baptiste by the arm. The three began to stroll toward the wharf. When they arrived at the wharf-head, however, instead of proceeding toward the schooner the cure led the way, still holding Baptiste, toward Dupont's cottage. Baptiste stopped near the door.

"Where are you taking me, Father Lucien?" he asked. "I do not go there."

And, as the cure seemed bent on proceeding inside, he wrested himself away.

"No, mon pere," he said firmly. "I have obeyed thee once tonight, but now thou askest what is beyond thy right or power. I do not enter there."

"My son," answered the priest, "since thou hast chosen rightly to-night, I tell thee now that that story was not true. It was Pierre and Leblanc who took Marie Dupont to the island, and Monsieur Askew and Monsieur Connell here found her and saved her from them, and brought her home. In my pocket I have a letter. Tomorrow thou shalt read it and understand."

"Mon pere!" stammered Baptiste, and began to tremble.

"Learn it from her lips."

"Mon pere, I do not go inside that house. If it is true, I am not worthy. Besides, she hates me, and—"

Still holding his arm the cure opened the door. "Marie Dupont!" he called.

The girl stumbled toward the door, saw Baptiste at the cure's side, and uttered a frightened cry.

Father Lucien took Jean Baptiste by the arm and led him into the house.

CHAPTER XVIII.

The Rescue.

Out of the darkness a little light began to glow. It shone and sparkled, and suddenly raced skyward, disclosing the outlines of the schooner stranded upon the edge of the ice field.

Baptiste drove his vessel straight toward it, running upon the gale. The little group upon the deck watched in terror as the flames spread, until it could be seen that they enveloped the entire fore part of Dupont's schooner.

Dupont, in his madness, exclaiming Broussau, had set fire to the lumber which he carried in the hold. And Broussau, at the wheel, was striving desperately to run the burning vessel back into open water and cast her upon the ice-free shore of the south passage, beyond the point. In his fear he had forgotten Mademoiselle and Hilary.

As Mademoiselle crouched on the ice, still frantically endeavoring to recall

Hilary to consciousness, the dancing mists rolled back, looming up out of the darkness, and approaching rapidly, was the second schooner. At the same time voices hailed them. They had been seen.

Broussau, upon the poop, yelled in answer. And he began to run to and fro in his excitement, possessed only by the fear of death by fire.

The flames spread

SOMETHING FOR NOTHING?
Something for nothing? It can't be done, nor do we promise it. The man who responds to such a promise usually gets it the other way nothing for something. That is expensive also embarrassing.

We are in business to serve and must not only make expenses but an honest, fair profit in order to make a living for our employees as well as for the families. We prefer to promise less and give you more. This invites the patronage of level headed Americans who buy with their eyes open and who understand the economy of quality.

Folks have faith in the concern that asks an honest price including an honest profit for honest goods. We are prepared to prove to our out of town patrons the wisdom of this store's principle and practice.
