UNDERDOWN HELD FOR MANSLAUGHTER

The examining trial of Henry Underdown was held last Saturday, Judge R. L. Moore presiding.

The prosecuting was in the hands of County attorney Jno. A. Moore and the defending counsel was T. C. Bennett.

The first witness was Mrs. Reece Underdown, widow of the slain man, who testified that she was with her husband from the time he was brought to the house until his death on the train near Morganfield while enroute to a hospital in Evansville. She gave in detail the happenings during this time but knew nothing of the quarrel and subsequent fatal blow except as related by the defendant, Henry Underdown.

She was followed to the stand by the father and brother of the dead man, whose testimony was substantially the same as that of the widow.

Dr. A. J. Driskill of Marion, who was the physician called, testified as to the time of the call and the physical condition of the man when he arrived, also his opinion as to what caused his death.

The substance of the testimony of all the witnesses whom Henry Underdown had taken into his confidence regarding the affair is that early in the morning Henry Underdown had gone over to his brother's farm to turn a hog into his lot, and upon asking permission to do so was told it would be all right that time but the next time he would have to pay for it. This seemingly peeved Henry a little and one word brought on another until, Henry says, his brother rushed at him with a knife in his hand and having no time to get away from the knife struck his brother over the head with the post hole digger he had at the time. According to Henry he then picked up the knife and started for his home calling loudly to attract the attention of the folks at the house so as to summon aid for his brother.

Henry then went back to the scene of the quarrel with his father and assisted Reece to the house and a physician called.

The defense called no witnesses and offered no testimony from the defendant, counsel being content with telling the court it was a plain case of self defense and client therefore entitled to exoneration.

The prosecutor in answer stated that to his knowledge that in the past few years human life had been held too lightly in this county and argued that the offense was at least manslaughter.

The defendant was bound over to the June term of the Circuit Court in the sum of one thousand dollars.

In last weeks issue of the Press the names of the parties connected with the affair were mixed up a little, stating that John Underdown was the perpetrator of the affair instead of Henry.

ORDERING BY MAIL DOESN'T ALWAYS PAY

Last July 1, Stallions of the Shady Grove section ordered a barrel of paint from a mail order concern with which to paint his barn last fall. Time went on and he heard nothing from his paint until cold weather when it was too late to use it. He refused to take it out of the freight office and the finish of the interesting story was written Monday in the Quarterly Court when the mail order house obtained judgment against Mr. Stallions for the amount of the shipment.

The moral is that if the defendant in this suit had bought his paint from one of our good advertisers who sells paint, like the Marion Hardware Co. or J. H. Orme or T. H. Cochran and Co. he would have gotten his paint when he wanted it and saved the expense of a lawsuit.

EPWORTH LEAGUE PARK RENOVATIONS

Miss Ruth Moore has charge of the care of the Epworth League Park for the year 1920 and is making an early start in beautifying that place. An energetic crowd of young girls began the work Monday to clean off the winter's supply of rubbish that had accumulated and plant flowers and grasses. The Epworth League has had charge of this lot for three years and their work in beautifying it has been appreciated as it has added largely to the looks of the public square.

SCHOOL BUILDING AND LOT FOR SALE

On Saturday May 8th 1 20 at 10 o'clock a. m. The Crittenden County Board of Education will offer for sale to the highest and best bidder the old school building and grounds at Siloam. Said property will be sold on a credit of six months and will be transferred to the purchaser with a note with approved security, bearing 6% interest, is accepted by the Crittenden County Board of Education.

Would you sell your house for what it is insured for?

That's one way to determine whether your fire insurance is adequate. Most homes are under-insured not because owners are carrying less protection than formerly, but because values have tremendously increased and additional insurance has not been written to cover the gain in value. Better have us reduce your risk by additional insurance in the Old Hartford.

GENERAL PERSHING

WRITES MISS BOOTH

Under date of March 3 Gen. J. J. Pershing wrote Miss Evangeline Booth:

"It has been brought to my attention that the Salvation Army will shortly conduct a campaign for the extension and endowment of the organization. That the country may be more fully informed of something of the splendid services performed by the representatives of the Salvation Army abroad during the war, please permit me to add a word of appreciation in addition to that already accorded by the men of the American Expeditionary forces.

"Early in 1917 you had a number of hits in the training area of the First Division, under a group of devoted men and women who laid the foundation for the affectionate regard in which the workers of your organization have been always held by the American soldiers. All during the war the work of the Salvation Army was carried on in the theatres of training and operation rendering valuable service in ministering to the welfare and comfort of the soldiers. Your organization and its individual men and women workers, by the excellence of their work and their self sacrifice, endeared the Salvation Army to all those divisions and other units to which they were attached and spread its good will to every part of the American Expeditionary Forces.

"My best wishes go with you for its future success and progress."

FUNNY, ISN'T IT?

The Elizabethtown News regards it as passing strange that a man who thinks he is a business man, will get up in the morning from an advertised mattress, shave with an advertised razor, take off an advertised pajamas and put on an advertised underwear, advertised home shirt and tie, advertised suit, set himself at the table and eat advertised breakfast food, drink advertised coffee or substitute, put on an advertised hat, light an advertised cigar, go to his place of business where he turns down the advertising solicitor or salesman for his home paper on the ground that advertising does not pay.

SAD DEATH

Charles Edward Haynes, little son of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Haynes died at five o'clock Tuesday morning of diphtheria. He was three years and three months old. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. J. B. Trotter and the remains were laid away in Marion's beautiful City of the Dead.

BIGGEST AND BEST RELIEF ORGANIZATION ON EARTH

The Salvation Army has been so modest that the average man or woman has no conception of the scope and efficiency of its work.

1—Incidentally it is a publisher. Every time it goes to press it publishes 72 periodicals with a circulation of one and one quarter million newspapers.

2—It is a world organization the only 60 years old, operating in 63 different countries, speaking 40 languages, but the same sweet, sympathetic spirit of unselfishness.

3—Its annual turnover is fifty million dollars spent for others. Its 11070 officers serve "stripped to the bone in sacrifice". This campaign will not add a penny to their remuneration.

4—Every year in the U. S. it is rescuing over 1200 children, waifs and strays from way down deep in holes of vice and poverty in our big cities training them for substantial citizenship.

5—Every year it reaches out the hand of help to nearly 2000 women and girls shunned and cast out and restores them to society.

6—Every day in our land its officers are visiting a thousand poor families, giving temporary relief to 18000 people furnishing 11000 needy night shelter.

7—Every year it has been keeping from the poor-house more than 17000 maimed and decrepit working men to whom it gives opportunity for earning a self respecting living—men whom the business world does not want because they can not do a full day's work.

8—Every year it finds a job for over 70000 men willing and able to work but out of employment.

9—Before the sun goes down each day, the missing friends bureau has found some one separated from loved ones and stopped the heart ache. A daily occurrence some where in the Salvation Army world.

10—Daily it cares for families of prisoners and helps prisoners get a new start upon release from prison.

GARDEN WORK IS MOST IMPORTANT

Mistake to Think That Cultivation Is Done for Sole Purpose of Killing Noxious Plants.

ROOTS NEED SUPPLY OF AIR

Soil Particles Are Broken Up and Plant Food Made Available for Rootlets—Dust Mulch Will Retain Moisture.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Most people have an idea that gardens are cultivated solely for the purpose of killing weeds. As a matter of fact, the killing of weeds is just one object of garden cultivation, say the specialists of the United States department of agriculture. The roots of plants require air just the same as do the tops, and if the ground is packed or hard or is sunken over the surface after a beating rain, the roots of the plants will turn yellow, and if not cared for will die. The same thing is true where the land is poorly drained and waterlogged. The water keeps out the air and the roots cannot feed the plants.

Cultivation has another object. In that it breaks up the soil particles and makes plant food available for the feeding rootlets of the plants. Many persons, however, make the mistake of cultivating too deeply, and by so doing cut off or injure the feeding rootlets and deprive the plant of its source of nourishment and support. Frequent shallow cultivation during dry weather results in the formation of a layer of fine dust which serves as a mulch or blanket to retain moisture.

Cultivating After Rains. The soil should always be cultivated just as soon as it is sufficiently dry to be safely worked after heavy rains. If it is not cultivated, a crust forms, the surface bakes and the crops are injured. The same will apply where irrigation is used, and it has been found best to give the soil a thorough soaking, then cultivate as soon as it is dry enough, and apply no more water until absolutely necessary.

The hoe and the steel rake are the most important tools for cultivating the small garden. On a larger scale a wheel hoe and a horse cultivator may be used to advantage. Even where horse-drawn tools are occasionally used, the greater part of the work, especially during dry weather, may be performed by means of a common steel rake. It is not necessary to go very deeply into the soil, but merely to stir the surface.

A Tool That Helps. A handy little tool for loosening the soil can be made from a piece of thin board two inches wide and fourteen inches long, with one end whittled down to form a handle and the opposite end provided with three No. 6 or No. 8 box nails or wire brads. This little home-made implement can be used very soon after a rain to loosen the surface, so that any small seeds can break through. The wheel-hoe outfits are provided with a number of different shovels and scrapers.

In Some Gardens a Wheel Hoe Can Be Used to Good Advantage.

adapted for the different types of work to be performed. These implements have the advantage that one can go over the garden very rapidly and break up the surface of the soil in a comparatively short time. It is generally necessary, however, to follow with the hoe to remove any weeds that have been destroyed by the wheel cultivator.

Kill Weeds Young.

It should be borne in mind that the time to kill weeds is when they are just coming through the ground. If allowed to become established, it is much more difficult to get rid of them than if they are taken in time. If the top two inches of soil is kept continuously and thoroughly loosened, no serious difficulty in keeping out weeds is probable.

FALLEN LEAVES AID GARDEN

They Should Be Dug Into Soil to Rot and Assist in Growing Better Crops in Later Years.

Many people burn fallen leaves, which is a very wasteful practice, as these leaves, besides containing a considerable amount of plant food, are of the greatest value in loosening heavy soils. They should be dug into the garden to rot and help to grow better crops in later years.

Garden Must Be Planned.

No garden is a real success unless it has been carefully planned, a plot worked out on paper to best utilize the ground and to provide for a wise crop rotation.

Save Spring Pigs.

The farmer that begins early to save his spring pigs will be well paid for so doing. Clean up the hog house. Carry out all dirt, manure and trash. Disinfect all parts thoroughly.

BATTLE ON BARBERRY IS BEING CONTINUED

Approximately 2,000,000 Plants Destroyed in 1919.

Federal and State Authorities Combine to Protect Wheat Against Black Stem Rust—Other Crops Are Attacked.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Approximately 2,000,000 common barberry bushes were dug up and destroyed during 1919 in connection with the combined efforts of federal and state authorities to protect wheat against black stem rust which cannot survive unless it is able to spend one period in its life cycle on the leaves of the common barberry. For this work the past year the federal government appropriated $150,000. The territory in which the fight was carried on comprises Colorado, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Ohio, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, Wisconsin and Wyoming, which states supplemented the federal funds to a considerable degree. The combined expenditures were small in comparison with the size of the menace to wheat production by this disease. Cereal disease experts in the United States department of agriculture estimate that the wheat crop of 1919 in the United States was reduced 53,000,000 bushels by black stem rust alone in addition to damage by scab and other diseases. This damage by black stem rust has only been exceeded in one previous season, namely in 1916, when the total reduction of the wheat crop by this disease was 200,000,000 bushels. In addition to the 1919 loss of 53,000,000 bushels of wheat due to ravages of black stem rust, there was a loss of 17,400,000 bushels of oats and 4,700,000 bushels of barley due to the same cause.

WINDBREAK FOR AN ORCHARD

Windstorms Break Limbs of Trees When Loaded With Fruits—Evergreens Give Protection.

An orchard often needs the protection of an evergreen windbreak. Windstorms break the limbs when loaded with fruit or scatter unripe fruit on the ground. By lessening the force of the wind against the orchard it is sometimes possible to reduce the injury during storms.

SOILS OF MUCH IMPORTANCE

Where Heavy or of Gumbo Type Hardest of Varieties of Fruit Should Be Planted.

Soils have much to do with the fruit growing. If your soil is very heavy or of gumbo type, choose the hardest varieties. Also plant a few of the native fruits that may be growing in your vicinity.

DON'T FORGET CLOVER

Corn, wheat, and clover. That is the most important rotation in America.

Where clover is no longer grown, yields are beginning to decline.

Sort Truck in Cellars.

Fruits and vegetables from your garden, which have been stored in boxes, baskets, barrels, and bins should be sorted over to remove decayed specimens which may infect the rest.

Crops for Rough Land.

Smooth and attractive root crops can not be grown on rough land. It pays to prepare the soil thoroughly before planting.

Soil Must Be Drained.

Plants cannot thrive with their roots in water. Soils must be well drained if garden crops are to succeed.

RHODESIA TODAY

Carrying Tobacco into a Warehouse

CONSIDERING the fact that Rhodesia is merely a baby among the nations—it has only just passed the thirtieth anniversary of its charter—it can be described as a remarkably healthy infant, and the curious anomaly of rule by a chartered company seems to have justified itself as fully in this case as in the historic instance of the East India company. It is, indeed, a remarkable feat to have taken a vast tract of country—larger than France, Germany, Belgium and Holland together—the home of continual warfare between savage tribes, and in less than thirty years to have introduced there law, order and security for natives and settlers, and many of the refinements of a high civilization, says the Sketch of London.

Till the pioneer column entered the country in 1890, to take over the concessions which had been granted to the chartered company, there was not so much as a practicable road into the interior. Today there are 4,000 miles of good roads, while the railway stretches north and south and east, connecting Rhodesia with the outer world through both Capetown and the Portuguese port of Beira. From Bulawayo it runs northwards—a link in the great Cape to Cairo railway, which Rhodesia visualized—till it reaches Belgian territory, taking the Zambesi in its stride, and crossing it by a bridge which is one of the engineering wonders of the world. A network of telegraph and telephone wires links up the scattered communities and brings them into touch with the rest of the British empire.

Communications were rightly seen by Rhodes and his associates to be the key to the development of the country, and millions of pounds have been spent during these 30 years in improving them, in order to render accessible to British settlers the natural wealth and the wonderful climate of this favored colony. The climate is such as to make it particularly suitable for European habitation, the fact that the country is within the tropics being counteracted by the height above sea-level, the plain which constitutes the bulk of southern Rhodesia being at an average altitude of 4,000 feet. The winter months—June to August—are dry, most of the rain falling between January and March. Even in the hot season the nights are cool. The temperature in the shade rarely reaches 100 degrees and in winter there is just sufficient frost to be of service to the farmers.

Fine Country to Live In. The proof of the pudding is in the eating—the low death rate and the sturdiness, not merely of the settlers, but of their Rhodesia-born and bred children. There is no need to send the latter home—the separation which makes India, for example, so painful a place for parents—either for health or for education. There are between thirty and forty good schools in Rhodesia, wholly or partly maintained by the government, and several of these educate their pupils up to the standard of entrance to the University of Capetown, while three carry on education to the Oxford and Cambridge matriculation examinations.

There are plenty of opportunities for sport in Rhodesia, there being some twenty-five varieties of antelope alone. Large game, in the shape of lions, elephants, rhinoceros, etc., is also plentiful. Sport of other kinds is catered for by the provision of clubs for polo, golf, cricket and other games.

In addition to mining—for gold, coal, chrome iron and other ores—the chief industries of Rhodesia are agriculture in its various forms and cattle-raising.

PUT OFFICER IN QUANDARY

That Boche Prisoner Claimed to Be Fellow Townsman Filled Him With Mixed Emotions.

There is a good story of an incident that happened in France when a group of officers from a division made up largely of easterners was watching a column of German prisoners file past. The column halted for a moment, and from the ranks of prisoners came a voice which said—not only in good English, but also in the vernacular—

"Where's the guy from Pittsburgh?" Wondering—and not knowing to this day—how news of himself and his native town had penetrated the German lines, an officer replied stiffly: "From Pittsburgh? Why?"

"Remember Blank's place?" the prisoner inquired. "I've heard of it," the officer admitted.

"I was bartender there," said the prisoner.

It sounded like a voice from home—yet it came from a boche. And as

There are huge areas of country eminently suited for grazing, and many of the leading authorities are of the opinion that Rhodesia will in the near future be one of the greatest meat-producing countries of the empire and the world. The native cattle are small, but hardy and fleshy, and a satisfactory breed is now being graded up which preserves the good qualities of the native stock, while adding the greater size of the imported bulis. Great efforts are being made by the British South Africa company to develop the industry, and extensive arrangements are under consideration for both refrigerating and canning on a large scale.

The staple product of agriculture proper is "meaties" or maize, for which there is a large demand among the natives; but the soil is so prolific that a large variety of other crops can be grown, according to the region and altitude selected. Oranges and lemons and tobacco, of both the "Turkish" and the "Virginia" varieties are being grown more and more largely, the cultivation of tobacco, in particular, being assisted by the British South Africa company, which provides expert advice and assistance, as well as curing-sheds and packing-warehouses for grading and preparing the leaf.

Has Overcome Severe Setbacks.

Rhodesia has been unfortunate in experiencing many setbacks, which might have discouraged or even wrecked a less courageous community. The Matabele and Mashona rebellions were, for a time, a dangerous menace to the country, and were only quelled at a great expense of time and money; but wise and sympathetic treatment of the natives have, it is hoped, eliminated this menace for the future.

The unfortunate Jameson raid involved Rhodesia in its consequences, not the least of which was that, for a time at any rate, it was deprived of the wise counsel and guidance of its founder. The fiercest outbreak of 1903 swept away a large proportion of the stock which was the mainstay of both settlers and natives; but modern science has discovered means of preventing this and similar epidemic diseases among cattle, so that fears need no longer be entertained on this head by the farmer who takes the needed measures of protection.

Lastly, both the Boer war and the war with Germany have depleted the country of a large number of its best men, at a time when they were urgently needed for development. But now the men have returned, for the most part, and the material future of Rhodesia is a bright one. With abundant natural resources, fine climate, congenial society and most of the conveniences of civilized life, Rhodesia offers a fine future to those possessed of some capital—say, from £2,000 to £5,000; for the moment conditions are not favorable for the settlement of the small man without capital.

The political future is less certain, but the majority of the inhabitants, looking to the advantage of a settled rule, undisturbed by political changes at home, and backed by the ever-ready check book of the Chartered company, seem to prefer, for the present, at any rate, to remain in statu quo, rather than to essay the doubtful experiment of either independent responsible government or inclusion in the Union of South Africa.

Remedies for Cholera.

Old-fashioned Turkish physicians have a number of remedies for cholera. An agate in the pocket and a hyacinth leaf near the neck are much esteemed, but the bone of a dead child carried in the pocket is regarded as nearly as efficacious.

English Judges' Robes.

There is as much difference in the gowns worn by British legal lights as there is in their wigs. The robes of a high court judge are gorgeous and imposing. They are made of rich silk and trimmed with ermine. Then, too, high court judges carry, but never wear, large three-cornered hats. Judges who preside over lower courts wear much less gorgeous robes, and do not carry three-cornered hats. A barrister's gown is made of black alpaca or some similar material known as "stuff" in the legal profession. It is only when a barrister has become a K. C. that he may don a gown of silk. For this reason a king's counsel is often referred to as a "silk."

KILL COMPULSORY TRAINING MEASURE

SENATE VOTES VERY DECISIVELY TO SUBSTITUTE A VOLUNTARY SERVICE PROVISION.

FIGHT IS NOT OVER YET

Plan Is Launched to Strip Bill of All Training Provisions—Proposed Scheme Places Ages at 18 to 28.

Washington.—Compulsory military training was shelved today in the senate and, after a plan for voluntary training of youths was substituted, a fight was started to eliminate this and strip the bill of all training provisions.

The senate voted, 46 to 9, to substitute the voluntary for the compulsory method. There was no direct vote on the compulsory plan. Its defeat was conceded, and to provide for some method for training American youths many advocates of compulsory training supported the amendment of Senator Frelinghuysen, incorporating the voluntary method.

Chairman Wadsworth of the military committee gave notice that a vigorous fight would be made to eliminate the voluntary plan, under which all youths between 18 and 28 years of age could enlist for four months' training in any year selected by them. Upon concluding training, they would enter the organized reserve for five years, and during that period be required to participate twice in annual maneuvers lasting two weeks.

In substituting the voluntary for the compulsory training provisions, 22 republicans and 24 democrats supported the Frelinghuysen amendment. Seven republicans and two democrats opposed the substitution, the democrats being Myers and Pittman.

Advocates of compulsory training made a spirited final stand. Senator Chamberlain declared that President Wilson had advocated the policy, but Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, administration leader, and Senator McKellar challenged the statement.

The senate vote eliminates compulsory military training from consideration in future development of the army reorganization bill. The house bill has no training provisions, compulsory or voluntary, and the enforced method, therefore, will not come before the conferees.

HIGHEST QUALITY AWARDS

DAIRY FACTS

MUST MAKE BETTER BUTTER

Imports Emphasize Impressive Lesson for Dairymen—Foreign Competition Active.

To meet foreign competition, dairy farmers of the United States must be able to produce a better quality of product and produce and market it more economically and more efficiently, according to specialists in the bureau of markets, United States department of agriculture.

Arrivals of shipments of Danish butter are already affecting prices on the New York City market. Argentina is producing nearly three times the amount of butter and cheese consumed, and some of the surplus may be expected to come to this country or compete with our products in foreign countries. Before the war Siberia was rapidly extending its dairy industry and when conditions become settled in that country it may be expected to come back as a factor in the world's market. Recently there have been signs of interest in dairying in South Africa, and the industry as developed in New Zealand and Australia must be reckoned with.

If the dairy products manufacturers in the United States are of a better quality than those from other countries they need not fear competition. Canada's cheese industry illustrates this. A strict system of government supervision in the town of cheese makers, in the operating of the factories and in the grading, marketing and exporting of the product, exists there. This has tended toward improvement in the quality of Canadian cheese until it ranks with the finest on the English market.

The dairy industry in Argentina has grown rapidly since the beginning of the war. Before the war butter exports from that country totaled 9,232 tons a year; in 1918 they were five times that. Cheese exports were far exceeded by the imports in 1918. Now the conditions are reversed—over 6,000 tons of cheese being exported in 1918. Today most of these exports are going to European markets, but should conditions become favorable it will come to this country. The bureau of markets warns dairymen to be prepared to meet this competition.

CANS BETTER THAN BUCKETS

Most Convenient for Collecting Milk at Farms and Conveying It to the House.

Milk and cream from even a few cows can be much more conveniently handled in regular milk cans than in the shallow pans and wide-mouthed buckets commonly used. Cans are convenient for collecting the milk at the barn and transferring it to the house.

These cans may be bought in various sizes. For handling cream and skim milk where separators are used, or even where cream is set to sour for buttermaking, the "shotgun can" is very convenient. It can be easily covered and set in water and is convenient to handle.

DIFFICULT CHURNING CAUSES

Among Other Things Cream May Be Too Thin and Temperature May Not Be Right.

Difficult churning may be due to several factors: Too thin cream. It should test between 30 to 35 per cent fat. Wrong churning temperature of the cream. Sixty degrees is about right. In a few instances it may be due to the action of certain germs. In some instances it may be due to feeding foods which produce a large percentage of hard fats. Sour cream churns easier than sweet cream.

BLACK-DRAUGHT AS A PREVENTIVE

When You Begin Feeling Bad With Feverishness, Headache, Cold, or Constipation, Give Your Liver a Tonic—Take Black-Draught.

Candler, N. C.—"I don't believe there is a better medicine made than Black-Draught; I have used it and my mother's folks used it for colds, feverishness, headache and deranged liver." This statement recently was made by Mr. C. B. Trull, a well-known farmer on Route 3, this place.

"I have, before now, begun feeling dull, a headache would come on, and I would feel all full of cold, and take a few doses of Black-Draught and get all right," adds Mr. Trull.

"Last year my brother had measles, flu and pneumonia. They wired us; I went to Camp Jackson to look him up. Down there different ones were using preventatives. I stayed with him. The only thing I used was Black-Draught. It kept my system cleansed and I kept well and strong."

By keeping your liver and stomach in good order, you stand in little danger of catching serious ills that occasionally spread through town and country.

Get a package of Black-Draught and have it ready for the first symptom of a disordered liver.

VATICAN BESTOWS HONOR ON BENSON

AMERICAN ADMIRAL IS DECORATED WITH CROSS OF ST. GREGORY THE GREAT.

WAR RECORD IS PRAISED

Cardinal Gibbons Officially at the Ceremony, Which is Very Impressive—Bishop Russell of Charleston Orator of Occasion.

Baltimore, Md.—As papal representative, Cardinal Gibbons during a solemn mass at the Cathedral conferred upon Rear Admiral William Shepard Benson, U. S. N., former chief of naval operations, the knighthood and cross of the order of St. Gregory the Great, military class. Sec. Daniels was an interested guest.

Pope Benedict authorized the honor last January in recognition of the valor, loyalty and Christian example of the admiral, who became a Catholic during his studies, years ago, at the Naval Academy. The decorations consisted of a yellow-fringed stole, a silver star and a gold, octagonal cross.

A message to the admiral from the pope was read showing the purpose of the pontiff to honor, with the admiral, the entire American nation, and especially praising the example of piety, devotion and Christian virtue set by the naval hero.

As Bishop William T. Russell of Charleston, S. C., who was the orator of the occasion, explained, loyalty, devotion and self-sacrifice was as whole by a Christian virtue as it was patriotism.

In the midst of his sermon the bishop made reference indirectly to the admiral Sims affair. Turning directly toward the secretary of the navy, Bishop Russell said:

"The officers of the navy are not dictators, but servants. When our properly constituted congress sees fit to declare war and to prosecute it, then congress and its agents deserve respect, both from citizens and officers, and in the case of the officer it is not his to reason why, but merely to do and, if necessary, die. When an officer has given the best in him, has made sacrifice and has given unswerving devotion, then is he, indeed, worthy of honor."

At this point Bishop Russell reminded the congregation of the great task which Admiral Benson, as chief of naval operations, had surmounted. He had been aware at all hours of the day and night, the bishop said, without the aid of charts of the exact position of each American ship on the high seas. He pointed to the great accomplishment of having sent 2,000,000 men to France and supplies unlimited to the allied nations without the loss of a single ship. He told of the great skill that rendered the submarine innocuous, and then went on to pay tribute to the admiral.

PRICE OF SUGAR ADVANCED

Announced That It Is Now Selling at 15 1/2 Cents Wholesale, and May Go Higher.

New York.—The American Sugar Refining Co. advanced the wholesale price of sugar to 15 1/2 cents and announced that unless there was a drop in the price of raw sugar further advances would shortly be inevitable.

According to E. T. Gibson of the American Sugar Refining Company, raw sugar, including the duty, is now selling at 15 1/2 cents. The lower price of refined sugar is possible, Mr. Gibson said, because the company is now selling sugar which was bought raw at a much lower figure. Raw sugar, he said, had advanced six cents a pound in the last month.

EXCLUDE OFFICERS FROM THE BONUS

BILL NOW BEING FRAMED WILL APPLY TO ENLISTED MEN ONLY.

A DOLLAR FOR EACH DAY

Fund of Approximately a Billion Dollars Would Be Raised By Sales Tax—Short Term Men Are Excluded.

Washington.—A tentative soldier bonus bill calling for the payment of $1 for each day's service to approximately 3,000,000 of the 4,800,000 men who served during the war, the money to be raised by a general sales tax, has been approved by the cash bonus subcommittee of the House ways and means committee.

The total expenditure necessary is estimated at slightly less than $1,000,000,000, and present plans call for a sales tax of one-half of one per cent, although the subcommittee is awaiting estimates from the Treasury Department as to just how much could be raised in this manner.

Representative Fordney, of Michigan, chairman of the ways and means committee, said that he expected to report the measure, probably with some modifications, in the House next week. He said he had received word that if the House passed the bill within the next two weeks Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, Republican leader in the Senate, would put it through that body by June 1. However, many obstacles are yet in the way, and it is possible that final enactment may be delayed until after the political conventions in June.

With the purpose of limiting the bonus only to those men who made large financial sacrifices during the war the subcommittee has excluded from its benefits the following classes: Men who served less than 60 days and already have received a bonus of $60.

All officers. Regular army men who were in the service before the declaration of war. Yeomanettes and men assigned to industrial and shipyard work, where they received remuneration in addition to the regular army pay.

Men who received compensation from their employers or private business interests while in the service. Under the subcommittee plan the service man will have to apply for the bonus and make out an affidavit that he does not come within the above classes.

The average bonus to be paid is estimated at $400, as the War Department has found that the average service was 400 days. The Navy Department has informed the subcommittee that its share would amount to $175,000,000, and the cost of establishing an organization to pay was placed at $700,000.

The bonus would be paid in four installments and the tax collected in the same manner. Small businesses having total sales of less than $2,500 a year would be exempt from the sales tax, as would the farmers.

This levy would not be a stamp tax but all business would simply pay one-half of one per cent on their sales every three months. The new form of taxation is the only way in which the revenues for the bonus could be raised, the subcommittee has decided. Should the measure become law its operation will be watched carefully, as there is some strong sentiment in Congress for having it replace the excess profit and some consumption taxes when a general revision of the revenue laws is made next year.

FRENCH AND BRITISH AGREE

Premier Millerand Asserts in Chamber of Deputies That All Is Now Serene.

Paris.—"Noble Belgium stood by us while our erstwhile friends were lacking."

Wild cheers greeted Premier Millerand when he made this statement in the Chamber of Deputies in the course of a speech on the Ruhr controversy.

The premier's utterance was designed as an expression of gratitude to Belgium, rather than a reproach to Britain and Italy, for he emphasized throughout his speech that the differences with those nations have been smoothed out and accord once more reigns in the councils of the allies.

M. Millerand concluded by saying "all is well now, and I will soon leave for San Remo."

LADY LARKSPUR

BY MEREDITH NICOLSON

Copyright by Charles Scribner's Sons

MRS. FARNSWORTH.

Synopsis.—Richard Searles, successful American playwright, confides to his friend, Bob Singleton, the fact that, inspired by the genius of a young actress whom he had seen in London, he has written a play, "Lady Larkspur," solely with the thought that she should interpret the leading character. This girl, Violet Dewing, has disappeared. Singleton, an aviator, has just returned (invited) from France. His uncle, Raymond Bashford, a wealthy man, has contracted its marriage a short time before his death, while on a visit to Japan. He left Singleton a comparatively small amount of money and the privilege of residence in the "garage" of his summer home, Barton-on-the-Sound, Connecticut. Mrs. Bashford is believed to be traveling in the Orient. The household at Barton is made up of broken down employees of a New York hotel, where Bashford had been employed. Singleton, taking with him the manuscript of "Lady Larkspur," there he finds the household strangely composed of the male members of the household into a guard for protection. Torrence, Bashford's lawyer, informs Singleton that Mrs. Bashford is in America and may be expected at Barton at any time. Singleton reads Searles' play and thinks highly of it. "Aunt Alice" arrives unexpectedly and meets with an unusual reception. Bob is mystified to find her a young and attractive woman.

CHAPTER II—Continued.

This struck me as the pleasantest thing imaginable, though I was still dazed and my tongue seemed to have died in my mouth. This girl, this wholly charming and delightful young woman, was the monstrous being I had conjectured as the globe-trotting widow who had kidnapped and married my uncle! Not only had she married my uncle Bash and in due course buried him; she had been a widow when she married him. The thing was staggering, bewildering. She was clearly anxious to be friendly, but nothing that I had thought of saying to her fitted the situation.

"In the first place," I finally began, "I must apologize most humbly for the earnest efforts of the servants to murder you last night. Mr. Torrence had promised to let me know when you would reach here, but he must have forgotten it. I had motored to a friend's house to dine and didn't get back until the mischief was done. I'm very sorry."

"Not for the world would I have missed that," she exclaimed with a merry laugh. "It was perfectly delicious! And it was all my fault. I meant to remain a day at Hartford, you know, and send a message to Mr. Torrence from there, but I found that by pushing on I could reach here yesterday. And you know we English always expect strange things to happen in America. I don't understand yet why those people at the gates were so jolly anxious to kill us; but it doesn't matter; you would spoil the joke by explaining it."

However, I did my best—it was a weak attempt—to explain the nervousness of the veteran servants and their display of violence. Her arrival made it likely that we should soon know more about the "parties" whose visits and inquiries had so alarmed Antoine and his comrades. I told her with all the humor I could throw into the recital of the drilling of the bell-hops and of the uncomfortable relations between the Allied forces and the Teutonic minority on the estate.

"It was dear of Mr. Bashford to provide a home for these people; wasn't he really the kindest soul that ever lived?" she said softly.

She gazed wistfully seaward, and I saw the gleam of tears on her long lashes. My uncle had, then, meant something to her! No one, in speech or manner, could have suggested the adventures less; indeed Bash was a gentleman, a man of esthetic tastes, and the girl was adorable. More remarkable things had happened in the history of love and marriage than that two such persons, meeting in a far corner of the world, would honestly care for each other.

"You stopped at Hartford," I began, breaking a long silence. "You have friends there—?"

"Not one! I had made a pious pilgrimage to Mark Twain's last home at Redding, and hearing that he had lived at Hartford, I came through there to render my fullest homage. He has always been one of my heroes, you know."

"Our introduction is complete," I said reverently. "Let's consider ourselves old friends."

"I rather thought we understand each other," she said in her even, mellow tones. "You know, we had your photograph out East—a very good one, it seems—so I had an idea of what you looked like."

"He was very fond of you. He was very proud that you had gone into the war."

"I am glad to hear that; I thought he disappointed me for refusing to go into business. He offered me a substantial interest before he sold out."

"I know that; but I think he liked you rather better for refusing it. Business with him was merely a means to an end. And it was doubly sad that he should die just when he was free to enjoy the beautiful things he loved."

It was at the tip of my tongue to say that the loss of her companion-ship was even more grievous; but nothing in her manner invited such a comment. She talked for some time of Uncle Bash's life in the East, of his short illness and quite unexpected death.

"But I'm keeping you," she exclaimed suddenly, jumping down from the wall. "And I must finish my unpacking."

As we walked to the house I answered her questions about the neighborhood, and promised to telephone Torrence immediately of her arrival. "You will have luncheon with us—or maybe dinner would be better—or both? I shall think you resent my coming if you don't dine at the house every day. Mrs. Farnsworth—my friend and companion—is a very interesting woman. I am sure you will like her."

The information that she was protected in her youthful widowhood by a companion was imparted neatly.

"It was really much nicer, meeting this way," she said, giving me her hand. "We shall expect you at seven." I found them on the veranda. She came toward me, a slender figure in white. She seemed taller in white; as she took a few steps toward me, I was aware of a steeliness I had missed at the shore. A queenly young person, but as unaffectedly cordial and friendly as in the bright morning sunlight.

"Mrs. Farnsworth, Mr. Singleton." Mrs. Farnsworth was a pleasant-faced, white-haired woman with remarkably fine, dark eyes. If the positions had been changed—if Mrs. Farnsworth had been my uncle's choice of a wife, the situation would have been much more real. I instantly liked Mrs. Farnsworth. She uttered a few commonplace in an uncommon place tone without pausing in her knitting. Mrs. Bashford had been knitting too, and as she sat down she took up her yarn and needles.

I experienced a curious flutter of the heart the first time I tried it, but after that it came very easily. She was simply the jolliest, prettiest girl that had ever crossed my horizon, and to be talking to her across the table gave me thrills compared with sliding out of clouds in an airplane is only a rocking-chair pastime for old men.

We had coffee on the veranda (Alice thought it would be nicer there, and as Antoine gave me my cup he edged close to my chair to whisper:

"That party, sir. If he should come—"

"Tell the troops not to attack any visitors," I said, loud enough for the others to hear. "Mr. Torrence will be here shortly, and he would be annoying to have him ushered in on a shutter."

"I know why this is the land of the free and the home of the brave," laughed Alice. "One has to be brave to live here."

"Those women are playing a trick."

PART OF RELIGIOUS RITES

Hula Dancers Were Trained by Ancient Hawaiians to Take Part in Ceremonies.

Hula dancing long had its established school for the training of dancers in Hawaii. Originally, however, it was not the suggestive dance it is today, having been a religious rite of the ancient Hawaiians. To them the hula occupied the place of our concert hall, lecture room, opera and theater, and was their chief means of social enjoyment. The Hawaiians perpetuated their past, and inspired pure sentiment and lofty purposes by this dancing. The dancers were highly paid artists, not because it was held in disrepute, but because the art of the hula was an accomplishment of special education and arduous training. In both song and dance, mostly for religious purposes.

As a religious matter the hula dance was to guard against profanation by the observance of various religious rites. The entire ceremonies were the result of premeditation and organized effort, the dancers being selected with great care from the flower of the land, including the most beautiful and physically perfect. The actors represented gods and goddesses of old earth come back again.

that. I am disposed to include all who believe in fairies good, or bad, and persons who honestly believe in signs, omens, and lucky stones, and all who have the receipt of fern-seed and walk invisible—there's Shakespeare for that."

"I think," said Mrs. Bashford soberly, "that I have always believed in witches; and if I keep on believing I shall see one some day. We shall find anything in this world that we believe in hard enough."

She was talking very gravely, as though witches were the commonest topic of conversation, but finding my eyes turned upon her in frank wonder, she laughed at my amazement.

"Let us be honest with you, Mr. Singleton," Mrs. Farnsworth explained, "and tell you that we are just testing you. It may be a breach of hospitality, and you are but a stranger, but we are curious to know whether you are of that small company of the favored of heaven who can play at being foolish without becoming idiotic. Alice is sometimes very near idiotic."

You admit that, Alice?" "I not only admit it, but I might even boast of it," my aunt replied.

At the mention of witches I had caught Antoine crossing himself as he turned to the sideboard. I confess that I myself had been startled by the drift of the talk. Mrs. Farnsworth and my aunt treated each other as though they were contemporaries, and it was Alice and Constance between them. As the talk ran exhaustively through the lore of witches and goblins I had hoped that one or the other would drop some clue as to the previous history of my amazing aunt. It was as plain as day that she and Mrs. Farnsworth indulged in whims for the joy of it, and her zest in the discussion of witches, carried on while Antoine served the table, lights tightly compressed, and with an exaggeration of his stately trend, was the most startling from the fact that my aunt's companion was a woman of years, a handsome woman with a high-bred air who did not look at all like a person who would discuss witches as though they had been made the topic of the day by the afternoon newspapers.

And when the shape of a witch's chair became the immediate point of discussion I knew it was in Antoine's mind that such conversation was unbecoming, an offer to the memory of Raymond Bashford. Mrs. Farnsworth's brown eyes sparkled, and the color deepened in my aunt's cheeks as we discussed upon witches and the chins thereof. I had a friend in college who used to indulge in the same sort of piffing, but that my uncle's widow and her elderly companion should delight in such absurdities bewildered me. I had been addressing my aunt as Mrs. Bashford—it seemed ridiculous to call her Aunt Alice—and in the heat of our argument as to whether witches are necessarily naughty and malign beings I had just uttered the "Mrs." when she bent toward me and said gravely and with no hint of archness: "Can't we make it Alice and Bob? I think that would be a lot friendlier."

I experienced a curious flutter of the heart the first time I tried it, but after that it came very easily. She was simply the jolliest, prettiest girl that had ever crossed my horizon, and to be talking to her across the table gave me thrills compared with sliding out of clouds in an airplane is only a rocking-chair pastime for old men.

Suffered for Years

Miserable From Kidney Trouble
Doan's Made Mr. Barnett
Strong and Well.

"I suffered untold agony with my kidneys for years," says John Barnett, 30 Virginia Place, Buffalo, N. Y. "Sometimes I felt that I would burn up with fever, but every now and then would have a severe chill. Often my clothes were wringing wet with perspiration. The kidney secretions were unnatural in color and odor and I burned terribly. At night my shoes were so tight on my feet that I could hardly get them off and my hands swelled so I couldn't hold a teacup. My back ached, how it ached!"

Mr. Barnett walked with two canes and was all bent over like an aged man. When the terrible pains shot through his kidneys, my knees would give way, and many times I had to be lifted to my feet by people on the street. I didn't care whether I lived or died I was so miserable. I finally used Doan's Kidney Pills and they cured me of all kidney trouble. Doan's made me strong and well."

Kentucky Democrats, You Are Entitled to Express Your Preference

IF you have a choice for the Democratic nomination for President, you are entitled to express it, Kentucky Democrats.

But you have but one chance to do so. You have been called to meet in mass conventions in your county seats at 2 o'clock, Saturday afternoon, May 1, for the purpose of registering your choice.

Neglect the opportunity thus offered, send your county delegates without instructions, and your one chance to exercise your sovereign right of saying who will be your standard-bearer in November has slipped away.

Exercise Your Prerogative

WILL you delegate your franchise to a few men in the crisis which confronts your party and your country or will you assert your prerogative as a citizen and a Democrat to choose your leader?

That you may be able to register your choice intelligently these facts about the candidate Ohio Democracy has put forward, as a man whom the Genius of America has trained for just this hour, are presented.

PERILOUS TIMES

The aftermath of war is always fraught with peril, one result of the late war as in any war is the benumbing of moral sensibility. Standards are lowered, wrong is not so wrong. Values in property are lowered, values in human life are lowered. Banks are entered in broad open day light and looted, men, women and even children are outraged and murdered. The air is pregnant with outlaws. Greed and avarice run rampant over all standards.

It is said that three thousand millions were made during the short time of the late war. Many thousands of men, producers, were taken to war many of whom have not returned as producers. Other employment sought. There is a shortage of the necessities of life. When the whole world was at war with such a vast amount of all commodities and such a vast amount produced you need not be surprised at the high prices. If you will stop to think of the many thousands of women and children homeless and breadless the moral social and political disorders call on us in the perilous times to light steady in the boat. The demand is not watchful waiting but watchful production. Unless the American people sober down and get more quiet and thoughtful we will land on the reefs. The greed for gold, the greed for pleasure and other devious inflated appetites will wreck us.

Beware! What a need to day for real brotherhood!

ULRIC J. BELL

In recognition of the work of the Salvation Army among the boys in the front line trenches of France and Belgium, the American Legion of Kentucky has given unqualified endorsements to the second Salvation Army Home Service appeal, May 10 to May 20th.

The boys of the American Legion have not forgotten the hardships shared with them by the girls who cooked doughnuts and pies while the scream of shells and shrapnel made the night an inferno. They have not forgotten the women who braved the machine gun fire of the Germans to carry hot coffee to the fighters during the zero nights. Many of those girls who shouldered the big heavy water yokes with ten gallon carriers of hot coffee during the war, are still in France, their graves marked by the Cross of Honor and among the poppy fields of Flanders.

Commander Ulric J. Bell, of the American Legion has sent the following letter to J. Paul Swain, State Director of the Salvation Army appeal.

THE COLYUM

Didn't get stuck in the mud Sunday.

Stayed at home and went to Sunday School.

First thing I heard upon arrival there was Noble Boston talking about a certain bridge-it-ought-was.

But we are going to have a regular bridge there before another winter.

Going to exonerate ex-Chief of Police Tom Wring.

He thinks that I was taking a crack at him when I spoke of the dinky little thing called a bridge on North Main Street a week or so ago.

Far be it from such.

He is no more responsible for being dinky than Abe Kahbille for the defeat of the Germans.

All he could do was to build what he was ordered to build.

Like the good chief he was.

Is that all right Tom?

And he didn't know that this was going to be written and printed.

But I am not going to take back a thing I said about the bridge.

Some have accused me of doing too much kicking about things for a stranger.

I have spent less than two years of my life in Crittenden county.

But my mother was born in this county.

So was my father.

And I have heard of Crittenden in many a fireside story ever since I can remember.

Back in 1803 the first Hogard settled in Crittenden county.

Only a few Sundays ago I ate dinner in the very room in which my father was born.

Who can claim more than 117 years back for their family in this county?

I have even heard many a time how loyal Joel Pickens was to the democratic party.

And I thank you. W. P. HOGARD.

COL. NAT CURD LAUDS TRUTONA

Former Jailer of Warren County Finds Friend in Peefect Tonic.

Bowling Green Ky. —Col. Nat H. Curd, former jailer of Warren County and now a successful farmer and livestock auctioneer, has joined the ranks of the many here who are praising Trutona for the good it has done them. Col. Curd who is widely known and extremely popular recently made the following interesting statement:

"I suffered from a general breakdown following an attack of the flu. I thought I was going down in health and would never be myself again. I was cross and mean. I was nervous and could not sleep. My appetite was poor and I lost weight and strength."

"Since taking Trutona two weeks I have gained fifteen pounds. I feel better in every way than I have for years. I am a well man. I have a ravenous appetite, the constipation has been relieved and I sleep soundly through the night and feel refreshed and buoyant on arising. My former strength has returned. Trutona is the only medicine that relieved me. I believe it should be in every home."

Col. Curd is known to hundreds of residents throughout Kentucky as a man of unquestioned honesty and integrity and his statement praising Trutona will no doubt result in many people becoming convinced of the perfect tonic's unusual merits as a combatant of stomach, bowel and liver troubles, nervousness, sleeplessness, loss of appetite and the like.

Trutona is now being introduced and explained in Marion at J. H. Orme's Drug Store—advertisement.

Tested Eighteen Months to Prove Perfection

TWO years ago a puncture-proof cord tire was unheard of. Many experts believed the final development in pneumatic tire-making had been reached with the production of a Fabric puncture-proof—the only one, the LEE. Motorists naturally looked to LEE for a puncture-proof cord.

LEE has succeeded in building such a tire. It has all the economy and resiliency of the best cord tires. It practically eliminates blowouts, tread separation, broken sidewalls and other common tire troubles. And it is positively puncture-proof!

For 18 months this tire was cruelly tested before being offered to the public. It rode as lightly and as smoothly as a cord without the puncture-proof feature. It was as economical on fuel and oil. It was easier on tubes. And—it outlasted cord tires that were not puncture-proof!

Let us demonstrate the economy of the new LEE CORD PUNCTURE-PROOF.

Thousands of Women

Owe Their Health To

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound — overshadowing indeed is the success of this great medicine. Compared with it, all other medicines for women's ills seem to be experiments.

Why is it so successful? Simply because of its sterling worth. For over forty years it has had no equal. Women for two generations have depended upon it with confidence.

Thousands of Their Letters are on our files, which prove these statements to be facts, not mere boasting.

Here Are Two Sample Letters:

Mother and Daughter Helped.

Middleburg, Pa. — "I am glad to state that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did me much good when I was 35 years old. I was run down with female trouble and was not able to do anything, could not walk for a year and could not work. I had treatment from a physician but did not gain. I read in the papers and books about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it. The first few bottles gave me relief and I kept on using it until I got better and was able to do my work. The Vegetable Compound also regulated my daughter when she was 15 years old. I can recommend Vegetable Compound as the best medicine I have ever used." — Mrs. W. YERGER, R. 3, Box 21, Middleburg, Pa.

Fall River, Mass. — "Three years ago I gave birth to a little girl and after she was born I did not pick up well. I doctored for two months and my condition remained the same. One day one of your little books was left at my door and my husband suggested that I try a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I started it immediately and I felt better and could eat better after the first bottle, and I continued taking it for some time. Last year I gave birth to a baby boy and had a much easier time as I took the Vegetable Compound for four months before baby came. On getting up I had no pains like I had before, and no distress, and in two weeks I felt about as well as ever." — Mrs. THOMAS WILKINSON, 363 Columbia Street, Fall River, Mass.

THE most recently installed exhibit at the American Museum of Natural History is the skeleton of the Deinodon or Terrible Tooth, a prehistoric animal which, if he were alive today, would be about the most formidable enemy that a man could meet. And Deinodon was swift and active, built for speed as well as power. One could neither dodge him nor outrun him, and the average man would be just about the size of prey that he would consider suitable for a meal.

The skeleton stands 11 feet, 5 inches high—about twice the height of a man. The length from nose to tip of tail is 20 feet, and for all his slim and elegant proportions he probably weighed in life several times as much as any lion or tiger.

Dr. W. D. Matthew, curator of the museum's department of vertebrate paleontology, says that, fortunately for us, perhaps, the Deinodon was not one of the beasts our prehistoric ancestors had to contend with. They had cave-lions and hyenas and wolves and great cave-bears, not to mention mammoths and mastodons and woolly rhinoceroses; these were quite enough. If they had had a lot of carnivorous dinosaurs like the Deinodon, they might have been wiped out altogether. But the dinosaurs had all become extinct long before the time of the prehistoric cave men. The Deinodon lived during the Cretaceous period of the age of reptiles—some sixty odd millions of years ago, if we may rely on the calculations based on the alteration of radioactive minerals.

At that time, our very remote ancestors were little opossum-like furry creatures, living in trees and quite too small and inconspicuous to be troubled by the huge reptiles who in those days held the earth in fee. But in revenge of this disdain, it has been suggested, our little opossum ancestors may have helped to bring about the extinction of the great dinosaurian aristocracy—by sucking their eggs.

This skeleton was found three years ago by Charles H. Sternberg, in the great canyon of the Red Deer river in Alberta. The canyon, 800 feet deep and margined by steep walls and badland gullies, is the richest repository for dinosaur skeletons that has yet been discovered. It cuts through the heart of the finest wheat district of the Canadian West, and the rolling prairie with its waving fields of grain above, contrasts picturesquely with the swiftly flowing river far below at the bottom of its deep trench, cutting through the midst of this great cemetery of creatures of the long ago.

But in Deinodon's time, the country was very different, both in geography and climate. A broad interior sea, which had once stretched from the Gulf of Mexico to the Arctic ocean, was gradually shallowing and filling up with marshes, low-lying swampy forests and savannas in which the Deinodon and other giant reptiles lived. The climate, if one may judge from the palms, bananas, plantains and other tropical trees that flourished there, was much warmer, but the annual growth-rings on fossil tree trunks (of which a fine specimen is on exhibit in the same hall with the dinosaur skeletons) show that there was at least a dry and a rainy season; and there were many trees—willows and tulip trees, sycamores and oaks, that were very much like those of the present day.

The animal world was far more strange. Not only was there no sign of man or even anything distantly suggesting his future evolution, but not even the ancestors of all the higher quadrupeds with which we are familiar had yet come into being. Save for those tiny quadrupeds or mammals, so far as we know in these marshes and forests that bordered the great interior sea. Nor were birds, if there were any at all, common enough to have left their bones in the great reptilian cemetery. Crocodiles there were plenty, and great turtles; various sorts of fish and some peculiar kinds of aquatic reptiles; and an occasional plesiosaur or great sea-reptile made its way up the rivers from the ocean. But the chief inhabitants were dinosaurs, the lords of the swamp and forest, great long-legged reptiles of strange and varied form.

The majority of them were herbivorous—browsing or grazing creatures corresponding to the hoofed animals of the modern world. Of these there were chief kinds: the Horned Dinosaurs, big rhinoceros-like quadrupeds; the Armored Dinosaurs covered with great bony plates from head to tail, and the Duck-billed Dinosaurs, which walked or ran upon the hind legs and had no horns or armor, but were excellent swimmers. Then there were various kinds of carnivorous dinosaurs which preyed upon their vegetarian relatives. All these were bipeds, using their forefeet only to dig and tear their prey, and their long tail to balance the body in running. Some of these were huge and powerful, others quite small and sleek.

It is only in recent years, and through the explorations of such rich fossil fields as those of the Red Deer river that we have come to know much about this world of the Dinosaurs, and to realize what it was like. There is very little in the text books about these recent discoveries. Many of them have not yet been published. But the visitor at the Dinosaur hall of the American museum of natural history can see there a surprising number and variety of these bizarre and formidable beasts, and will see many more as the explorations and exhibition work of the museum continue.

The museum has also just placed on exhibition a skeleton of the great toothless flying reptile pteranodon, an extinct creature of the class known as pterodactyls which flourished in the age of reptiles, many millions of years ago. The remains were found by Haniel T. Martin, curator of the geological museum of Kansas university. It is believed to be the only mounted specimen of pteranodon in any American museum. The British museum also has a mounted skeleton of a specimen found by Mr. Martin several years ago.

Dr. W. D. Matthew, curator of the museum's department of vertebrate paleontology, gives some interesting information concerning the pterodactyl. He says: "From the standpoint of dimensions it ranks as the largest flying creature that has ever lived. The skeleton just mounted measures sixteen feet from wing tip to wing tip, and would have a stretch of nearly twenty-one feet if the wings were pulled out straight."

"It is nearly all wings and head, with a little bit of a body, slender hind legs and a mere stump of a tail. The head consists chiefly of a long, pointed beak and an equally long, bony crest projecting backward."

"The wings were long and narrow and composed of thin, leathery membrane like the wings of bats. But they were stretched in the long extended fourth finger only, the other fingers being little rudimentary claws, by which the animal probably hung when at rest. The wings were evidently adapted to soaring flight like that of the albatross. In fact the creature was so extremely specialized along this line that it must have been singularly awkward and ungainly on the ground. Yet it must have come to land at times for egg-laying purposes. How it obtained its food is something of a problem. It was evidently a wide-ranging ocean flyer, for the skeletons are found in chalk and other marine formations deposited in the open sea often far from land."

The specimen just placed on exhibition, together with other fine specimens, was obtained from the Cretaceous chalk beds of the Smoky Hill river of western Kansas. In the life of the pterodactyl this was part of a great inland sea that stretched from the Gulf of Mexico far across the Canadian border. The nearest shore line was more than 140 miles to the southeast. Westwardly the sea stretched across the region where the Rocky mountains were later upheaved to a yet more distant shore. Over this vast interior sea, deep and clear and abounding in marine life, the pterodactyl must have ranged.

A careful investigation of the problem in the light of modern aeronautical knowledge would yield very interesting results. And in turn it seems altogether probable that such a research would throw some light on the more practical problems of aeronautics. For the pterodactyl, in so far as we can judge, approached much nearer to the airplane in structure and principle of flight than any of the birds. As the most specialized and perfected adaptation for soaring that has been known, it may throw much light on the principles of soaring flight, which are by no means yet fully understood or agreed on.

Draw Anything

You need never hope to get on, if you are the least anxious that the drawing you are actually at work upon should look nice when it is done. All you have to care about is to make it right, and to learn as much in doing it as possible. So then, though when you are sitting in your friend's parlor, or in your own, and have nothing to do, you may draw anything that is there, for practice; even the

SIMPLE EXPLANATION.

Why is it that fishes make no disturbance when swimming through the water, although there is a rushing noise when a stone is flung in? This is explained by the fact that, in the latter case, it is the filling of the cavity that is made, rather than the mere impact, which causes the noise, whereas the body of the fish is so shaped that when it moves through the water it leaves no such cavity behind it, and therefore there is no disturbance.

Mesopotamian Gums

Among the gums of Mesopotamia the most valuable are the tragacanth, which are produced by tapping small shrubs. These shrubs appear to grow all over the mountains of southern Persia, and from there through the entire mountainous region which runs northwest along the frontiers of Mesopotamia, comprising areas as northern as Arabistan, Luristan-Pust-i-Kut country and Kurdistan. The most im-

MARTHA JANE A DIPLOMAT

Even Stern Mamma Couldn't Deny She Had Obedied the Strict Letter of the Law.

Martha Jane's sweet tooth had been indulged so much that her mother had issued the decree, "No more candy," and the remainder of the box had been relegated to the top shelf. A few days ago it was brought down and judiciously apportioned to Martha Jane, for whom a taste spelled more and even a second taste did not satisfy. When her mother saw her about to take a third helping she remarked emphatically:

"Now, don't let me see you take another piece."

Presently Mrs. S.—— was called from the room, and when she returned she found her four-year-old daughter in the farthest corner of the couch, hastily making way with a nice, piping chocolate cream.

"Martha Jane," said her mother, in her sternest tones, "didn't I tell you not to let me see you take another piece of candy?"

"I know you did, mother," said the little diplomat, "but I took this one while you were gone."

Don't Nauseate or Salivate Yourself with Nasty Calomel
Take "Dodson's Liver Tone" Instead

Never take dangerous Calomel again! "Dodson's Liver Tone" will start your liver and quickly rid you of all miseries of constipation and biliousness; all the headache, dizziness, bad breath, sallowness and stomach distress goes. Calomel sickens, salivates, gets into the bones, cramps you. "Dodson's Liver Tone" is a perfect substitute for Calomel and is so pleasant and harmless you can safely give it to children. It doesn't sicken you or shake you all up. A large bottle costs but a few cents at your druggist's. Dodson's Liver Tone is guaranteed to act better than Calomel or you get your money back. No argument!—Adv.

He will say to you "Take home a box of Munt's Salve and if it is not successful in the treatment of itching skin diseases, I will promptly refund to you your 75 cents." Munt's Salve is especially compounded for the treatment of Itch, Eczema, Ringworm, Tetter, and other itching skin diseases.

The General Manager of the Lida Valley Railway Co., Goldfield, Nevada, A. D. Goodenough, writes: "At one time I had a very bad case of Eczema, which troubled me for seven or eight years, and although I tried all kinds of medicine and several doctors, I got no relief until I used Munt's Salve. It finally cured me."

Thousands of such letters have been received, testifying as to the curative merits of this wonderful remedy. Don't fail to ask your druggist about Munt's Salve, formerly called Munt's Cure. Show him this ad, and ask him if the statements herein made are correct. Sold by all reputable druggists everywhere at 75 cents per box, or sent direct on receipt of stamps or money order.

LITTLE CHANGE IN PHYSIQUE

Report That Average Stature of American Men Was Affected by War Declared Untrue.

The wholesale clothing manufacturer asserts that there has not been any change in the size of their garments since the war. They are manufacturing more garments, but the proportion of larger sizes is no greater now than it was three years ago. In short, their size patterns have not changed. Yet changes would be necessary if the stature of American men had been affected in any appreciable way by the year and a half or two years of military training.

Manufacturers of ready-to-wear shirts and undergarments agree with the clothing manufacturers that there has been no change in their size patterns despite the reports of numerous individuals who take "a size larger" today than they did before the war. As one manufacturer put it, the proportion of soldiers who need larger sizes in shirts or suits today than they did two years ago is so small that it has no effect on wholesalers. Salesmen naturally remember certain individual cases of increased chest development, but, taking the country by and large, there has been no appreciable change in the physique of the male portion of the population, at least as far as their clothing is concerned.

The KITCHEN CABINET

"Love and work and smile. If you'd make life worth living Try these big things worth while: They're three (I'll sum 'em up again), Just love and work and smile."

GOOD THINGS WORTH TRYING.

An inexpensive cake that is not at all common is:

Apple Cream Cake.—Take a half-cupful of shortening, one cupful of sugar, one and one-half cupfuls of flour, three eggs, four tablespoonfuls of milk, one teaspoonful of cream of tartar and half of a teaspoonful of soda. Mix as usual and bake in layers, using the following for filling:

Apple Cream.—Grate one good-sized apple; add the white of an egg, unbeaten, and one cupful of powdered sugar. Beat all together for 20 minutes, or until quite stiff; add almond or vanilla to flavor.

Bread Crumb Pudding.—Take two and one-half cupfuls of bread crumbs which have been put through a meat grinder, one cupful of sour milk, one-half cupful of shortening, two eggs (one will do), one teaspoonful of soda, one cupful of sugar; add cinnamon to flavor. Steam two hours.

Prune Pudding.—Take one cupful of choice prunes which have been soaked over night, stone and chop fine; add the whites of three eggs and a cupful of sugar. Bake in a slow oven. Serve with cream.

Suet Pudding.—Take one cupful of finely chopped suet, one cupful each of molasses and sour milk, three and one-half cupfuls of flour, two beaten eggs, one cupful of raisins, one teaspoonful of soda and spices to taste. Steam two hours and serve with an egg sauce.

Date Pie.—Take half a pound of dates, cover with boiling water; remove pits and rub the dates until smooth; add one egg, three-quarters of a cupful of water, a bit of salt, one teaspoonful of lemon juice and a pint of milk, and bake in a crust like a custard pie. The dates may be stewed in the water until the pits show, then the same water used in the mixture.

Stuffed Eggs.—Remove the yolks from two hard-cooked eggs, mash the yolks and mix with two tablespoonfuls of butter and a teaspoonful of anchovy paste. Add salt, pepper and cayenne, mix well, and refill the whites. Serve in head lettuce with mayonnaise dressing.

Of all fruitless errands sending a tear to look after a day that is gone is the most fruitless.—Dickens.

THE VEGETABLE GARDEN.

Even with very little space one may have a garden and, by having a new crop growing as the crop already matured is being used, there is always something green coming on.

Radishes and carrots may be sowed in the same row; the radishes when pulled will help to loosen the earth around the carrots, and as the radishes grow much faster they are out of the way before the carrots need the room.

Vegetables that grow quickly and those that are slower of growth are best to sow together when space is very valuable. Where there is room a small herb bed will be an especial delight. Sage, summer savory, chervil, thyme, marjoram and other herbs will take but a small space and give back large yields of savory herbs which will be used all the year.

Peas can be planted a week apart for four or five crops. If one is fond of that delicious vegetable, Most all gardeners strive for the early varieties of vegetables, but they are not always as well flavored or as satisfactory as those that come a little later.

An asparagus bed, when once started, will bear for years with little care. Asparagus is one of the earliest of vegetables and almost universally well liked. A few cubs may be put up for winter after the appetite has been partly satisfied, or when the bed produces abundantly. A can or two may be put up at a time, taking little time and labor.

A few horseradish roots are another vegetable which will be greatly cherished. Grated, the root is a good spring tonic and in the fall the pickle jar lacks flavor if it is not added. This is another vegetable which once started endures for itself.

A few rhubarb plants should be placed in every garden; they will multiply and if enriched each year will grow for years.

One or two hills of cucumbers well taken care of will produce all the fresh cucumbers the family will eat, and a vine or two more all the pickles for winter use.

After the space for the vegetable garden has been arranged there should be in every well regulated garden a small strawberry bed, a few currant and gooseberry bushes, as well as black and red raspberry and blackberry bushes. Two or three well-cared-for bushes of each will produce enough fruit to supply the table for a small family, and fresh fruit from one's own garden is beyond comparison with the market variety.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

By Mary Graham Bonner

THE REQUESTS.

Sometimes when the great store was dark and when the people had gone home the things in the store had story-telling hours and games and frolics and all sorts of nice times.

Sometimes they talked and sometimes they played and sometimes they would sing to themselves and to each other.

There were times, too, when they would tell what had gone on during the long day when people had been shopping and when children had come and gone and come back again.

Many a long talk did they all have and they had so much to tell always of what happened in the daytime. They had so many children they wanted to describe to each other, children, some had missed seeing. So this is what happened one evening, and perhaps we may hear of some more things that happened too, later on. But to go on with what happened on this evening, just after the people had left the store.

It was after six o'clock. The great children's store which sold everything anyone could think of—from canary birds to party frocks—was silent and still. All the counters were covered with dark-blue linen covers. Everything, in short, was put away for the night.

Suddenly there came a laughing. All the dresses and gloves and pocket-books and sashes peeped out from their blue coverings and began to laugh too. Just then, flying down the aisles of the store, between the counters, came a fairy.

"It's such a joke, such a joke," she said. "They all think we've gone to rest. Of course I am not a dress, nor am I a sash, but I play with all of you and so I say 'we' in a most friendly manner. To be sure you all do have a rest, later on, for you need it after the day you've had. But for a time we play."

"Oh," said a blue apron, "I had the most awful time today. I just couldn't stretch out. No one seemed to like me much so first I was thrown one way and then another. I thought my poor callous legs and arms would never be smoothed out properly. It was most uncomfortable."

"You have nothing to grumble about," said a party dress from nearby. "You weren't tried on and criticized and tried on again. Oh, my feelings were hurt! Just because some one may want a party dress there is no reason why they should expect the whole world and what every one else ever had on a party dress to go on me, or be on me—whatever you say. I'm not much of a talker."

"My dear party dress," said a gingham dress, peeping from its counter. "You can't talk well for talk comes from the mouth or the throat or both. I've heard that at times it comes from the brain too—where creatures think. But dresses can't make conversation well. No, it's impossible. You haven't a mouth, and you can't work by your self for you haven't any hands."

"Well," said the fairy, as she hopped upon a counter, "what are we going to play tonight?"

"I don't know," said the gingham dress. "I don't feel much like playing. 'So do we,' said a set of dishes. 'So do I,' said a doll's house. 'I'm angry that things should be unfair,' said the gingham dress."

"Yes," said the blue apron, "I know just what the gingham dress means. We aren't given any chances at all. We have to be so plain and we have to be worn for dull things such as dusting or playing in the gardens or something like that. Why can't we go to parties and hear music and see dancing and be danced around ourselves?"

"Do you all request to be something else?" asked the Fairy. "Well, I will call the wishing fairy at once and all your wishes will be granted. Yes, they will, heigh-ho!"

Just Do It

While some girls are spending their time trying to decide how to grapple with a problem, a girl of different caliber will go to work and finish the task. It is a pity to waste time by not doing things in the right way, but it is decidedly worse to spend more time in choosing between methods, than would be required to complete the work. After all, the best way to do a thing is just to do it, and do it in a way that will satisfy yourself.—Girl's Companion.

COAL DUST LODGED IN MINER'S LUNGS

Tells how his cough was conquered and health restored.

"In November, 1914, I was working in a coal mine and the doctors said the coal dust had settled in my lungs. I couldn't lie down on my right side, coughed so I couldn't sleep and had constant pain in my right lung and under my shoulder blades. I coughed so hard the blood would spurt out of my nose. Finally the doctors had me change climate and live outdoors, but didn't improve."

"Then I came home and started on Mils Emulsion. Thank God I did, as it did me a lot of good right from the start, loosening up the coal dust in my right lung. In a few weeks my lungs were free. I could sleep like a baby, had an excellent appetite and my cough left me entirely. I gained back 30 pounds in weight and went back to work in the mines completely restored to health."

G. H. Bunn, 4th Ave. & No. 12th St., Terre Haute, Ind.

Thousands of victims of dust-filled air develop the same trouble that Mr. Bunn had. Mils Emulsion costs nothing to try, so why not at least try it? Mils Emulsion is a pleasant, nutritive food and a corrective medicine. It restores healthy, natural bowel action, doing away with all need of pills and physica. It promotes appetite and quickly puts the digestive organs in shape to assimilate food. It helps build flesh and strength, and is a powerful aid in resisting and repairing the effects of wasting diseases.

This is the only solid emulsion made, and so palatable that it is eaten with a spoon like ice cream.

No matter how severe your case you are urged to try Mils Emulsion under the guarantee—Take six bottles home with you, use it according to directions, and if not satisfied with the results your money will be promptly refunded. Price 60¢ and $1.20 per bottle. The Mils Emulsion Co., Terre Haute, Ind. Sold by druggists everywhere.—Adv.

EAT LESS AND TAKE SALTS FOR KIDNEYS

Take a Glass of Salts if Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers.

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.—Adv.

For more than Forty Years Cotton Growers have known that POTASH PAYS

More than 11,651,200 Tons of Potash Salts had been imported and used in the United States in the 20 years previous to January, 1915, when shipments ceased. Of this 6,460,700 Tons consisted of which the cotton grower knew was both a plant food and a preventive of blight and rust,—with it came also 1,312,400 Tons of which has the same effects on Cotton, but which was used mainly in mixed fertilizers.

20 per cent MANURE SALT

Shipments of both Kainit and Manure Salt have been resumed but the shortage of coal and cars and high freight rates make it more desirable to ship Manure Salt, which contains 20 per cent of actual Potash, instead of Kainit, which contains less than 13 per cent actual Potash.

MANURE SALT can be used as a side dressing on Cotton in just the same way as Kainit and will give the same results. Where you used 100 pounds of Kainit, you need to use but 62 pounds of Manure Salt, or 100 pounds of Manure Salt go as far as 161 pounds of Kainit.

MANURE SALT has been coming forward in considerable amounts and cotton growers, who cannot secure Kainit, should make an effort to get Manure Salt for side dressing to aid in making a big Cotton Crop.

Muriate of Potash

50 per cent actual Potash, has been coming forward also,—100 pounds of Muriate are equivalent to 400 pounds of Kainit or 250 pounds of Manure Salt.

These are the three Standard GERMAN Potash Salts that were always used in making cotton fertilizers and have been used for all these years with great profit and without any damage to the crop.

The supply is not at present as large as in former years, but there is enough to greatly increase the Cotton Crop if you insist on your dealer making the necessary effort to get it for you.

DOUGHNUTS and CRULLERS

From the NEW ROYAL COOK BOOK

DOUGHNUTS made the doughboy happy during the war and no wonder. There is nothing more wholesome and delightful than doughnuts or crullers rightly made. Their rich, golden color and appetizing aroma will create an appetite quicker than anything else in the world.

Here are the famous doughnut and cruller recipes from the New Royal Cook Book.

Doughnuts
3 tablespoons shortening
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup flour
4 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder

Cream shortening; add sugar and well-beaten eggs; stir in milk and nutmeg, salt, flour and baking powder which have been sifted together and enough additional flour to make dough stiff enough to roll. Roll out on floured board to about 1/4 inch thick; cut out. Fry in deep fat hot enough to brown a piece of bread in 30 seconds. Drain on unglazed paper and sprinkle with powdered sugar.

Afternoon Tea Doughnuts
1 egg
4 tablespoons sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg

Crullers
4 tablespoons shortening
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon salt
4 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
1 cup milk

Cream shortening; add sugar gradually and beaten eggs; sift together flour, cinnamon, salt and baking powder; add one-half and mix well; add milk and remainder of dry ingredients to make soft dough. Roll out on floured board to about 1/4 inch thick and cut into strips about 4 inches long and 1/4 inch wide; roll in hands and twist each strip and bring ends together. Fry in deep hot fat. Drain and roll in powdered sugar.

Perfection's Price In Tire Building

A tire-maker's first problem is to decide how much he can give for the money. This, and every other question in tire building, depends upon policies.

A super-tire, such as The Brunswick, can be made only by a concern which knows well and appreciates that there is nothing exclusive in the tire industry except high standards.

Since 1845 the House of Brunswick has held first place in every line it entered. Brunswick Tires, as more and more motorists come to know them, will certainly be awarded that coveted place held only by the superfine.

Motorists who buy one Brunswick usually adopt it for complete equipment. Yet this is not strange, since the first one so completely proves its superiority.

If the name of Brunswick certifies to you, as to most men, an extraordinary tire, at no higher price, would it not be good business to test one or two Brunswick Tires?

Now is Your Opportunity

To Get Your Share in These Valuable Leases!

Who are the organizers of the Pinnacle Leasing and Developing Co.?

The leading and most influential men of your city.

These men own and control 2364½ acres of valuable leases in the heart of the most promising oil territory. Do you know any of these fields? Have you heard of the fortunes being made in Allen, Barren and Warren counties, Kentucky, on small investments?

Listen, Where Our Acreage Lies

51 acres Barren county, lying in Cole Bend, north of the Freeman well.

5 acres Barren county, lying north of Jewell wells adjoining production on three sides.

70 acres Barren county, lying north of McDaniel, Lawrence and Jewell wells.

194 acres Warren county lying north of the Famous Davenport wells.

200 acres lying near Holland P. O., several wells now drilling.

114 acres Logan county, lying north of Russellville and east of Diamond Springs.

703½ acres, Muhlenburg county, west of Diamond Springs wells which have produced for years.

1000 acres lying in Debaco county, New Mexico. Great fields are now being opened up on all sides.

Containing in all 2364½ acres, all leases recorded and titles perfect.

The above acreage is considered very valuable, all these leases were secured some 18 months or two years ago. Leases in this vicinity have sold from $10. to $3500. an acre. The money paid in secure these leases. We do not intend to spend money in developing this property unless the officers see fit. You have several advantages to make quick money off of your investment. We are in touch with the people who will deliver the goods, it is up to us to get behind and push. If you are progressive come in without delay. We are not coaxing any one to take the advantage, if we did not believe we could make good returns as well as put money into this county we would not be in.

"Get in as this is your last opportunity"

Talk to any of the above men at once.

Do you know the above men, what do you think of their judgment? These men are in to boost and to handle any interest for the welfare of the county and city. ARE YOU? What would a 25 barrel well pay to our company, $35,000 capital, oil now $4. a barrel?

Only 13 more interest left, after that is gone your opportunity is gone. Several are investigating but first ones to subscribe will get the advantage.

Put your money to work and reap the benefits of these men's judgment and their work.

We are advertising to give every man an equal chance. It's up to you. Should our number which is 30, be over subscribed, your money will be returned. Each interest is $200. now. You can secure as many interests as you like until the 30 has been subscribed.

Do you ever stop and think that you have great advantages at your door?

The time is coming when all this country will be very valuable as the opportunities are here. The leases that this company owns and controls, we believe makes every man safe. We have other deals now pending, which means a great future to this city and county. If you become dissatisfied your money will be refunded.

Opportunity knocks at every mans door. If you are interested get busy at once. For further information see
