NEW ORGANIZATION IN MARION

The Marion School Improvement Club, organized in November, already has made itself felt in Marion Schools and the achievement gained only begins to show how great its accomplishments shall be.

An old fashioned box supper was given by the Club in December, with box receipts amounting to near one hundred dollars. This money was placed in the Treasury.

At a meeting the latter part of December the Club, after an inspection of the school building voted to start its improvements with the seventh grade room, as it was considered the one most in need of improvement.

The work is just being completed. The knocked off plastering was replaced, a book-case built in at the back of the room, the walls painted buff color with wood work in brown. New black-boards have been ordered and modern school room shades for the windows. Only one thing nears the new beautiful room and that is the broken cut, paintless, dirty double seats that were placed in that room some time in 1890.

Plans are already made to raise more funds to carry on this excellent work and the Club hopes in time to improve every room in the building.

The last meeting of the Club was held at the school house Friday afternoon, January 7. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Walter McCannell, the Club was called to order by Mrs. Gugenheim, vice-president.

Mrs. Alvis Stephens, member of the committee appointed to look after the improvement of the seventh grade made a report concerning that work.

A publicity committee of Mrs. W. F. Hogard, Mrs. J. H. Orme and Miss Myrtle Glass was appointed.

Miss Ethel Hard, Mrs. Guy Lamb and Mrs. Clarence Mayes were appointed as an enrollment committee.

The Club was divided into four groups, each group to be responsible for some sort of entertainment to obtain funds for the Club.

A. Medames Gilchrist, Orme, O. S. Denny, T. A. Frazier, Hooger, Yates, Perry, Elkins, Press, Guess, Miller, Butler, Reed, Travis, Misses Ethel Hard and Clara Belt.

B. Medames Dunmore, Nunn, J. Henry, Clark, W. Carnahan, J. Belt, Burchfield, R. L. Moore, Dr. Lowery, Kuykendall, C. Mayes, Dave Moore, Shadders, Misses M. Glass and J. Thompson.

C. Medames Gugenheim, Gray, Dwyer, Harpending, Vick, Grubbs, Crider, Strubbling, Kuykendall, Yandell, W. Lamb, C. Henry, Tpwery and Miss Ruby Hard.

D. Medames Blise, Stevens, W. F. Hogard, Tucker, G. Lamb, L. Cook, Hina, Olive, Eaton, R. E. Wilson, A. Henry, Joiner, Misses Morris, Margaret Hard and McCrae.

The first and second name of each group to act as chairman and vice-chairman.

The Club meets in one of the High School Rooms upstairs in the school building the first Friday afternoon of every month, at 3 o'clock. Attendance means membership. Every one interested in better schools for Marion is not only invited but urged to be present at every meeting.

The next meeting of the Marion School Improvement Club will be held February 4th, 3 o'clock, upstairs in the school building. This is a special invitation to you. Surely no loyal citizen of Marion, young or aged, new or old, will fail our MARION SCHOOL.

FIRE AT BLACKFORD

About 9:30 o'clock last Sunday night a blaze was discovered in the Baptist church at Blackford. The church was completely burned also the large dwelling house of Will DeHaven.

No one seems to know where the fire originated but it is believed to have caught from the stove as there was service held at the church that night. The building burned in a few minutes.

The dwelling house of Mr. DeHaven, occupied by Mrs. Alice Horning the Post Mistress, then took fire. Most of the household goods were saved. Further conflagration was prevented by a Bucket Brigade.

The loss was about $4,000 on the church with no insurance and about $500 on the residence with insurance.

FOREST GROVE SCHOOL

Miss Emma Terry closed a successful school at this place Friday, January 14th., with an interesting program in the afternoon and an appreciative audience although the weather was bad.

Six pupils successfully passed the examinations for promotion to County High School, Vena Belt and Wm. Lester Terry, who made the highest average, each making 95 percent, Jewell Graves, Bertha Akers, Ellen Terry and Ralph Burklow.

Believing that this step means much to these girls and boys, they were made chief entertainers in the closing exercises, assisted by the seventh grade in some drills. The boys costumed as "Uncle Sam" and the American Indians, with the girls in the native dress of Holland, Japan, Switzerland and Italy, presented some clever tableaux costume drills, songs, readings, etc.

Mr. Billy Terry with the generosity and community spirit characteristic of him tendered the use of his graphophone which was a wonderful help in the program and furnished music enjoyed by all.

As those bright faced boys and girls sat before us while their teacher spoke words of commendation and encouragement and handed them their promotion certificates, I'm sure there was a thrill of pride in each heart; pride in the individual child, pride in the class, pride in the teacher and the school as a whole—then came an overwhelming feeling of shame and self reproach, the consciousness of a duty only half done, because we as citizens of the county of the community, as parents, if you will, have not put a High School within the reach of every child. It's due them. Every boy and girl in that class would be found entering High School next session if it were accessible to them, as it is, one, maybe two will enter County High School, necessitating their absence from home during the very years of the child's young life when he most needs the home influence and parental supervision and guidance. Is it fair?

We have been fortunate in having a teacher with enthusiasm, school spirit and grit to surmount difficulties of great proportions.

Give us a consolidated school and High School, a square deal, if you please, that these eager eyed children that filled the little one-roomed school may have the training and preparedness to meet life in the best way as it unfolds before them.

A PATRON

Arrangements have been made for observing thrift week in Crittenden County. Thrift essay contests will be held in the schools. The local banks have offered prizes to the successful contestants.

It has been requested that every church in the city have thrift services on Sunday January 23. All the churches have responded and some time during the day there will be a brief address on "Share with Others."

A household budget book giving a simple method of keeping accounts of household expenses will be distributed during the week by the Senior Class of the Marion High School. These books will be distributed free of charge. Each person that receives a book will be given a card which when signed will entitle the holder to membership in the Kentucky Budget Club.

The Crittenden Press Job Department has recently gotten out 1,000 copies of the Kentucky Hardware & Implement dealers' Program, of Sturgis. In regard to the work Mr. A. T. Byron, President of the association, in a letter to J. M. Stone, secretary, says under date of Jan. 12:

Dear Jack:

I am just in receipt of 1921 program, and cannot resist this brief letter of congratulation in its production. It is by far the most complete, as well as the most artistic and best arranged program yet presented by the Kentucky Association. Assuring you of my complete satisfaction and appreciation of your efforts, I am yours truly,

A. T. BYRON

Mrs. Edgar Howerton of Repton, was visiting Mrs. W. K. Powell this week.

KENTUCKY FARMERS DISCUSS RAILWAYS

Farmers in Union county, Kentucky, were interviewed recently by a representative of the Illinois Central System, who is charged with finding out the attitude exhibited by farmers towards the railways, especially the Illinois Central. The interviewer's report, published in the January number of the Illinois Central Magazine, which is just off the press, declares the farmers were uniformly friendly toward the railway.

The reporter's visit was for the purpose of discovering what features of railway service farmers especially like or dislike. A large number of the agriculturists with whom railway questions were discussed praised the brand of courtesy exhibited by trainmen and local agents with whom they come in contact, expressed their pleasure at the co-operation received from the railway system in handling their shipments, commended the plan inaugurated by the Illinois Central for getting in personal touch with patrons of the road and approved of service generally, according to the reporter. Some had complaints to make. One farmer suggested the adoption of a policy of allowing farmers access to the right of way in draining their farms. Another thought right of way woven wire fencing should be of wider material to make the fencing hog proof. Others thought agents should be allowed greater discretion in dealing with individual problems. One suggested more adequate accommodations for passengers at flag stations.

JUDGE HENDERSON'S RECORD LAUDED

State Inspector and examiner James holds up as an example the record of Circuit Judge Carl Henderson and Commonwealths attorney Charles Ferguson of the fourth Judicial District in holding down jury fees and collecting fines and forfeitures as a model for court officials. Care in arranging the docket, the report of the inspector said, so that cases might be tried on the day set kept down fees for witness attendance, 44 petit jurors in Livingston County for example, did not average more than a weeks service each in the period from November 1918, to December 1920. For the last year the four counties of Crittenden Hopkins, Caldwell and Livingston averaged $441.50 for petit jurors, as compared to $1,974.50 for the state, and $129.50 for all jurors as compared with $24,572.00 for the state. Fines collected averaged $3,559 to the county, although the county average for the state was only $3,109.

SAVES TWO FROM DROWNING

Stephen H. Hayward, son of E. J. Hayward formerly of Marion, saved two persons from drowning in Eau Gallie river, in Florida, Monday. The Haywards now reside in Elizabethtown and the News of that city in reporting the heroic incident says:

Young Hayward, a student of K. M. I. now in winter quarters at Military Park, Fla., in company with a collegemate, T. J. Smith of Louisville were enroute to Eau Gallie when they saw a large touring car break through the iron railing on the bridge over Eau Gallie river. The car was seen to turn turtle and plunge into the river below.

Young Hayward and his companion rushed to a nearby boathouse, where they secured a rope and returned to the scene of the accident. They saw a man struggling in the deep water below the bridge and after fastening the rope to the bridge plunged into the river and rescued the man.

After the latter was assisted to shallow water he told his rescuers that his wife who was driving the car was still under water.

Taking the rope in one hand, Smith dived and attached the rope to one wheel of the submerged machine. Then the boys succeeded in raising the auto enough for Hayward to open the door of the car and drag out the lifeless body of the woman. The rope was then fastened about her body and she was pulled up to the bridge.

Although the body had been trapped in the car beneath the river's surface for more than fifteen minutes the youths were able to resuscitate her after ten minutes of strenuous work. The woman was dispatched to a hospital where she was found to have received no serious injuries.

The rescued couple were Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Donegan, of Orlando, Fla. Their car was a Studebaker touring it was demolished.

When Hayward and Smith reached Eau Gallie they were greeted as heroes.

Memorandum of meeting of the Chairmen of the Democratic County Committees of Crittenden, Livingston and Union counties, held at Marion, Saturday January, 15th, at which were present the following:

J. I. Clement, Chairman for Crittenden County, John L. Smith, proxy for Dr. G. L. Crawford, Chairman for Livingston County, J. E. Lilly, proxy for J. H. Bingham, Chairman for Union County, constituting the Fourth Senatorial District.

It was unanimously agreed that for the sake of party harmony and the preservation of good and cordial relations in the Democracy of the said three counties that in the nomination of a Democratic candidate for State Senator from said district a system of rotation between the counties for such nominee be inaugurated and observed, based upon the alphabetical position of the list of counties.

Crittenden county being the first in the list alphabetically, and having the present Senator, it was agreed that the next nominee should come from Livingston county, next in the alphabetical list, and after Livingston county the nominee would come from Union county, and after Union county the nominee would come from Crittenden county.

The alphabetical system of rotation was unanimously agreed by the said three chairmen and they recommend that the Democracy of the three counties observe it in the selection of nominees for State Senator from said district.

J. I. CLEMENT, Chairman, Crittenden County.

G. L. CRAWFORD, Chairman, Livingston County.

S. H. BINGHAM, Chairman, Union County.

PROSPERITY AHEAD

There is much comfort to be had from the statement recently of Judge Elbert H. Gary, head of the United States Steel corporation, the greatest business concern the world has ever produced.

Judge Gary says a long period of wonderful prosperity is just ahead of the people of the United States.

When Judge Gary opens his mouth he is in the habit of saying something and he never says a thing unless he knows what he is talking about.

He has been a wise prophet in the past, because he possesses the ability to read conditions and possibilities as they are.

There is no reason why his prophecy should not be one of wisdom in this case, because there is no reason why we should not prosper and every reason why we should.

Banks and financiers generally think that we have passed through our worst period of depression and are now on the up-grade. Only the wildest kind of pessimism can hold us back.

And who wants to be a pessimist when every human instinct spurs us on to optimism?

Let's demonstrate our faith in the return of prosperity by recognizing the fact that it is here and by doing our share toward its maintenance in this community.

Let the watchword be production, wisdom in spending, and the employment of a systematic course of saving.

A proportionate amount of the prosperity of the country belongs to the people of this community.

Biennial Settlements with Fiduciaries

The Kentucky Statutes, Section No. 1065, directs all County Judges to require all guardians, executors and administrators, once in two years to settle their accounts, unless there is an action pending in the Circuit Court for such settlements; and fixes the penalty at a fine of Ten Dollars, for each day any fiduciary fails or refuses to settle after notice.

Therefore you are hereby notified to appear in the office of the County Judge in Court House at Marion, Ky., on any week day between the first day of February, 1921, and the first day of March, 1921, and settle your accounts as such fiduciary.

Given under my hand as presiding Judge of the Crittenden County Court, this 21st day of January, 1921.

R. L. MOORE, County Judge.

WOMANLESS WEDDING COMING TO TOWN

Ever hear of a womanless wedding? If you have not better get ready to do some listening for you are going to hear a lot about one during the course of the next few days.

The Marion Improvement Club is going to put on an entertainment soon that will be called by that name. No use in trying to keep it a secret so will tell you right now that they are going to do it to raise some money to fix up the school house some more. This would be a worthy cause if the building didn't need it, but no one who has ever seen the building will dispute the fact that it is sadly in need of some fixing and you'll admit that it costs money to fix things.

So take heed and save up your money and get ready to have a nice enjoyable evening while you are helping the women folks raise some necessary coin.

It has not been made public who are to be the participants in the wedding part of the entertainment but it has been whispered that it will either be "Dude" Pierce or R. J. Counts. They have so far escaped the wiles and smiles of the pretty girls of the county, which said county produces the peer of all beautiful girls, and it is barely possible that they can be persuaded to succumb in this instance. As an added inducement it might be a good idea to have Judge Henderson have a special session of court going on to care for any emergency should an immediate divorce be essential for the future happiness and peace of the contracting parties.

HIS LUCKY DAY

By WINIFRED FORD.

(© 1919, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Dick Morrison was visiting a friend he had met the summer previous at Ingewood. Ingewood was a favorite summer resort of Dick's family. Ned Greenwood had rescued Dick from drowning at Ingewood beach one morning when Dick was seized with cramp. Friendship had developed from this incident and now Dick was at the Greenwood farm having the time of his life.

"And will you ever forget that gypsy fortune-teller at Ingewood and the things she predicted?" laughed Ned.

"Come to think of it, now, she did predict that Thursday would be my lucky day. By the way, Thursday is the day I return to town—I'm going to be on the look-out for luck," and at the mere thought of ever being superstitious over lucky days or fortune-tellers, Dick smiled. It was incredible to both Dick and Ned that any of the gypsy's predictions could ever come true.

The 8:14 was late, as usual, Thursday morning, and Edna Walton paced up and down the platform at Newfall station mentally critiquing the railroad and all connected with it. On her maneuvering parlor windows in Whittier City was written, "Open at 8:30," and now it was close on to 10:30. She had spent the week-end with a girl friend at Newfall and was in a hurry to get back to the city and her business. Edna Walton conducted a maneuvering parlor called Muse. Walton's maneuvering parlor. She was twenty-one, rather small, had large laughing brown eyes and a wealth of curly brown hair.

Dick Morrison jumped from Ned's rear at the station and grasping Ned's hand, assured him of the delightful weeks spent at Newfall at the Greenwood farm. He hurried to the platform, deposited his grip on the ground, and signaled to a passing newsboy for a morning paper. The boy did not notice Dick, as he was busy counting his money at that moment.

In the meantime Edna saw the train approaching at a distance and unconsciously deposited her grip close to Dick's, and took a tiny mirror from her pocketbook and made sure the curls were all tucked in neatly. She, too, saw the newsboy and went after him for a morning paper. Dick returned, and with his eyes on the approaching train, picked up a grip and moved forward. Edna, with the paper under her arm, also picked up a brown leather bag, and as she entered the train she secretly thought how light the bag had grown since she last carried it. When she was seated in her chair she looked at the bag, and alas! in place of her travel-worn bag was a beautiful leather one with the initials D. M. printed on the side.

"What have I done and where is my grip?" was all she could say, and tears of vexation appeared in her eyes.

In the meantime in the smoker Dick was surely blessing the gypsy who had produced all sunshine and good luck for him on Thursday, and here before his very eyes was an unfamiliar bag.

"Of all the luck—how am I going to get that bag back to its owner and how the deuce shall I recover mine?" and Dick's thoughts were anything but pleasant.

Upon leaving the train Dick immediately set out for a newspaper office and inserted an ad (he left the bag at his home to be called for), stating in the ad that he would like to recover a certain brown leather bag.

"Great Scott! I can't go into the office with hands on me like this and my nails are anything but pleasant to look at." So at a few minutes before noon he stopped at Mme. Walton's maneuvering parlor and after a short wait Mme. Walton was carefully trimming his nails.

A gentleman came in at the same moment and told Edna that he had been there at 10:30 for a manicure, but the place was locked.

"Yes, Mr. Forbush, unfortunately it happened to be Thursday, my unlucky day, and not only was the train late but I lost my bag and ran away with some one else's," and Edna smiled as Mr. Forbush said "that would never do," and left the shop.

Dick heard every word, and suddenly the hand that Edna held jerked itself away, and Edna looked up to see what was the trouble. "Pardon me—er—er—I believe I made a similar mistake this morning. I—I also ran away with a bag that did not belong to me. Do you—do you think it would be possible that you took my bag and—ah—"

"Why, I have it right here—I mean the one I took by mistake," and Edna soon produced a bag that looked ever so familiar to Dick. He explained how he had advertised her bag and that it was at his home. She said she was going to lunch just then, but she would call for it later in the day.

"But I am awfully grateful to have my bag returned. Won't—won't you allow me to take you to lunch and then escort you to my home and properly return your bag to you?" and as he saw the twinkle in the laughing brown eyes he hoped she would not refuse him.

Some time later Ned received a letter which read: "And, Ned, old boy, that gypsy fortune teller was correct, Thursday sure was my lucky day, and she is the sweetest little girl ever!"

THE FLIVVER

By F. G. HARRINGTON.

(© 1919, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

When you go to New York they show you the Woolworth building or the Brooklyn bridge, and when with craned neck or bulging eyes you merely gasp and exclaim "By heck!" then your Manhattan friend nonchalantly turns away with the remark, "Not a bad little building."

Just so do the natives of Woodfield conduct their visiting friends to the Stafford poultry farm. Strangers invariably admire the magnificent home and grounds of the millionaire owner, and at sight of the immense farm just black with poultry houses invariably their eyes bulge, they gasp and declare, "Good night!" "It's certainly some place," they say, "but one thing puzzles me. You say this Stafford is a millionaire?"

"Yes, sir, Ted Stafford made his pile all right," and Cy smiles to himself as if enjoying some secret joke. "Well, why under the sun doesn't he buy a real automobile? These flivvers of his are camouflaged with wire wheels and made-to-order bodies so they almost deceive you, but still they're only flivvers when all's said and done."

Aha! Cy knew that was coming. He flicks his chops and begins. For of all the stories that Woodfield likes to tell about her citizens that is the favorite.

It was eight years ago in the month of June. Ted Stafford and his mother lived together on their little farm doing a very prosperous egg business, the nucleus of the Stafford poultry farm. When Ted graduated from Harvard two years previous he was entirely satisfied to settle down as a farmer.

This June afternoon, however, Ted was not farming. Just after dinner he took a bath and donned his "city" clothes. When he walked into the kitchen, straw hat in hand, his mother appraised him with an expression of proud admiration.

"Dear me, Ted," she joked, "it's no wonder Ruth likes Woodfield. I certainly admire her taste."

"Aw, cut it out, ma. Say, ma, do you like this tie?"

Of course she did. And if ma did, then Ruth surely would.

Just now he was setting out for the station to meet the 3:45, which was bringing Ruth from the city.

It was about quarter-past three when Ted alighted from the depot wagon. He hustled into the station and shouted a greeting to Ira Jones, who performed the duties of ticket agent, baggage master and telegraph operator, and whose official title was "station agent." Ira was the news center of Woodfield, since he picked up the doings of the surrounding towns from the agents along the line. Outside of this, the use of the telegraph in Woodfield was negligible.

"What's new, Ira?" queried Ted.

"Well, they got a new barber down in Johnsonville, and there's a burlesque show comin' inter Eastway Thursday night. Reckon Woodfield's male population will be kinda depleted Thursday p. m. Think you'll go down?"

"No, I guess not, Ira."

Here their dialogue was interrupted by the clicking of the telegraph receiver. Ted sauntered over to the gum machine and surveyed himself as best he could in the little circle of mirror. He bestowed a second or two on his tie and began to caress his moustache. At least Ted claimed it was a moustache; but were he not a six-footer some of his acquaintances might have differed. However, it was still very young and, like all young things, was rather weak, with its best days before it.

"Ted!" Something in Ira's voice startled him, and he rushed to the ticket window. Consternation was written on every line of Ira's face.

"Say, Ted, w-was there some friend of yours on the 3:45?"

"What's the matter?"

"It's gone over the banking at Fairfield Junction. Some mix-up in signals—had a collision."

Ted felt the hot blood surge through his arteries. "My God! Ira, do they—was anybody hurt?"

Ira spent the next few minutes frantically clicking his instrument, while Ted waited tensely, as pale as a statue and as rigid.

"What they say, Ira—what they say?"

"He says they don't know for sure, but they expect considerable injuries an' maybe some deaths." Ira was truthful but not tactful.

Ted commenced to pace the floor in a frenzy of anxiety. If he could only do something—if he could only act! But this suspense . . .

Meanwhile the little instrument was still clicking. This time Ira was taking a message in pencil. With the cessation of the clicking he called out, "A wire from Boston for Theodore Stafford."

Ted devoured the message and when he finished he was weak with joy. To this date he rates that telegram among his most valuable possessions. Mr. Theodore Stafford, Woodfield, Mass.

I missed the 3:45. Will arrive tomorrow morning. Taxi broke down and couldn't get another. It was a flivver. Blame flivvers anyway.

RUTH.

"An' I swan," declares Cy, "Ted ain't never got over his likin' for flivvers, an' if you saw his wife I dunno, I'd blame him either."

HEARD ABOUT TOWN

The holiday trade of Marion merchants and other business men, it seems, would indicate that they have nothing to kick about in that direction, the amount of business done, they assert, comparing favorably with that of other years.

*****

At a recent meeting of the Fiscal Court a motion was made that $1000 be appropriated for the purpose of improving the old Marion and Salem roadway from Crooked Creek bridge to the foot of the Blue hill. Both sides of the question had their advocates but after a lively discussion the proposition was voted down.

*****

The old roadway, leading from the creek past the Elder place and on thru the center of town to Main Street though still legally a public road, has largely gone into disuse, since some years ago a new road was opened up from the foot of the Elder hill, thru the Weldon-Blackburn addition and West Elm to Main Street. This road has received the advantage of the public road work and has become recognized as the main thoroughfare. It has been a boost of course, to that part of town and a detriment to the residence and business section along Salem street. The use of each road as the main thoroughfare has its strong advocates, depending largely on in what part of the town said advocates reside.

Mr. J. O. Tabor not only plants his potatoes in the dark of the moon and digs his post holes in the light of the lunar planet, but he seems also to have a knowledge of the mysterious workings of nature not warranted by science nor fully understood by the general run of humanity. "Do you know, gentlemen," he said the other day to a number of friends on the street, "that the alder bushes along shoot forth their green sprouts on the 12th day after Christmas?" His listeners all shook their heads, denying that they possessed any such knowledge. "Well," Mr. Tabor went on, "they do, not one day earlier nor later, whether the weather be pleasant like this year or as cold as the frigid zone."

To prove that he knew what he was talking about the speaker drew from his pocket a couple of alder bushes and exhibited them to the crowd. After an inspection of the bushes the spectators all nodded their heads, thus acknowledging that the green shoots were there all right. "Now gentlemen," Mr. Tabor explained, "remember that this is old Christmas, the time when the cows kneel down and other animals show forth their devotions. As to the sprouts, they will all disappear like the ground-hog, and shoot forth again when spring arrives. If any credulous fellow wants to wager the set-ups on the next year's outcome, you may tell him where to find me."

EXONERATED

"Whatever did you see in me to induce you to marry me?" she asked.

"Nothing," he replied.

"What?" she cried indignantly.

"Oh, it wasn't your fault, my dear. I evidently had visions and I ought to have consulted an oculist at the time."—Boston Transcript.

Vain Warnings.

An eminent actor-manager tells a story concerning a clergyman and his actor son. Prior to his going on the stage the father wrote to the manager, saying, "My son, John, has threatened to go on the stage, and I want you to stop him." However, shortly afterward, the son did go on the stage, and the manager, meeting him one day, asked how his father took it. "I have not seen him," was the reply, "but he takes some interest in me, because whenever any actor is charged with a crime he underlines the report of it in the newspapers and sends it to me."
