THE ELECTION OVER

The election passed Tuesday with good order and a large crowd in town. Everybody was quiet and good natured. The leaders on both sides seemed to be determined and they worked until the polls closed.

Hon. T. C. Bennett, Democratic candidate for Commonwealths Attorney for this Judicial District carried this county over his opponent, Chas. Ferguson with a majority of 510. Judge Carl Henderson ran ahead of his opponent, Hon. Ruby Laffoon by 45 votes, according to unofficial count.

L. E. Guess, Republican candidate for County Clerk, with no opposition, received the largest number of votes of any candidate in the field.

The county officers elected are

County Judge, E. Jeffrey Travis

County Court Clerk, L. E. Guess

County Attorney, Ed. D. Stone

Sheriff, J. T. Wright

Tax Commissioner, Isaac Dillard

Jailer, J. C. Spees

Ruby Laffoon was elected Circuit

Judge with a majority of 2216 over his Republican opponent, Judge Carl

Henderson. T. C. Bennett doubtless won a larger majority over his opponent for Commonwealths Attorney.

Leslie McDonald carried this county

by a small majority but was defeated by H. Walter Pierce, Democrat, of Livingston county, for Representative.

The two Constitutional Amendments voted on were defeated in the state according to reports now available. Crittenden county voted 109 for and 1629 against the First and 154 for and 1656 against the Second Amendment.

In the City election Hebe Boswell

was elected Mayor; A. S. Cannan,

Chief of Police; C. J. Pierce, A. M.

Henry, R. S. Elkins, W. O. Tucker,

C. A. Daughtrey and E. Sullenger,

Councilmen.

Mr. Geo. Belt and T. M. Dean

were elected on the County School Board.

In the election of the Colored City

School Board, there were four candidates tied and the election has not been decided yet.

AT THE BAPTIST CHURCH

In the absence of the pastor, who is assisting in a revival meeting at the First Baptist church of Cloverport, arrangements have been made for a Supply to be sent from the faculty of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary at Louisville and he will preach at both hours next Sunday. You are therefore assured of good messages at these hours and your attendance is invited.

SCHOOL IMPROVEMENT CLUB

The Marion School Improvement Club met Friday afternoon November 4th. There was a special program before the regular business meeting, with entertainment furnished by Misses Baker and Holtzclaw.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by Mrs. C. D. Haynes and approved, after which a talk was made by the president, explaining some of the advantages which would be derived from membership in the State and National Parent-Teachers Association. She urged that a special drive be made to obtain one hundred members in which case the Club would become a Banner and Charter Association.

Various plans were discussed for entertainments by which funds might be raised to continue decorations on the school building.

A motion was made and seconded to begin improving the appearance of the fourth grade room.

The following committees were appointed:

Program—Miss Lena Holtzclaw, Miss Ethel Hard, Mrs. J. P. Guess, Social—Mrs. Sam Gugenheim, Mrs. S. M. Jenkins, Mrs. C. W. Haynes, Miss Ruby Morris, Mrs. G. P. Dillon, Membership—Mrs. G. W. Boogher, Mrs. C. E. Mayes, Mrs. Albert Henry.

Publicity—Mrs. Iva James, Miss Ruby Hard, Mrs. C. D. Haynes.

Mrs. C. W. Haynes, Mrs. C. B. Hina and Mrs. John Birchfield were appointed to draw up resolutions to thank the Board of Education for installing waterworks in the school buildings.

Adjournment.

Miss Gladys Baker left Wednesday for Evansville for an operation on her throat.

Society

Mrs. John W. Blue Jr., gave a dinner Monday evening. Covers were laid for ten. The following guests were present: Misses Virginia Blue, Ruth Flanary, Sara Blue, of Morganfield, Eva Yates and Messrs. Neil Guess, Robert Jenkins, Virgil Threlkeld and Earl Clement.

On Monday evening a dance was given at the Jenkins home by the young men of the town. About thirty couples attended. Music was furnished by an orchestra from Hopkinsville.

Mrs. Houston Orme was hostess last Thursday afternoon to a sewing party for Miss Virginia Blue. The house was attractively decorated in fall colors, yellow predominating. The color scheme was carried out in the refreshments which consisted of ice cream in the shape of love knots, yellow cake, yellow mints in chrysanthemum cups and coffee. At the close of the party the guest of honor was presented with guest towels, a real bride's cake and a dozen yellow chrysanthemums.

Saturday evening from eight until eleven, Miss Ruth Flanary entertained informally honoring Miss Virginia Blue and Mr. Neil Guess. White chrysanthemums were used in profusion in the living room, hall and dining room. Miss Eva Yates gave a lovely musical program during the evening. A two course collation was served. The bridal table bore a tall vase of pink and white roses. The honorees' places were marked by a diminutive bride and groom; while white bridal slippers marked places for Miss Martha Carney of Clay and Mr. Ray Flanary, Miss Sarah Blue of Morganfield and Mr. Virgil Threlkeld. The guest list included Mr. and Mrs. Maurie Nunn, M. N. Boston, E. C. Van Pelt, W. G. Clifton, P. R. Adams, L. E. Guess; Misses Nellie Williams of Providence; Eva Yates, Esther Barnett, Sara Blue, of Morganfield; Martha Canen, of Clay; Messrs. Owen Moore, Neville Moore, John Flanary, Earl Clement, Douglas Clement and Ray Flanary.

Miss Virginia Blue was the honoree of a kitchen shower Tuesday afternoon given by the Womens Club at the home of Mrs. Alvis Stephens. The home was decorated with potted plants and cut flowers. The guests were entertained with an interesting contest and a piano and flute duet by Mrs. S. M. Jenkins and Mrs. M. N. Nunn, also music by Miss Gwendolyn Haynes. After which the honoree was presented with a basket containing useful articles for the kitchen.

The out of town guests were Mrs. Krause, of St. Louis, and Miss Sara Blue, of Morganfield.

Mrs. J. B. Rochester and Mrs. S. M. Jenkins were hostesses of the Woman's Club Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Jenkins. Political subjects were discussed. After the program delicious refreshments were served.

METHODIST CHURCH

Go with the crowd to the Methodist Sunday School which meets every Sunday morning at 9:30. There are classes for all ages. Do your best for your department. Watch that line of men next Sunday. Everyone will be disappointed if you are not there.

Preaching by pastor 10:30 A. M. Epworth League at 6 P. M. Preaching by the Pastor 7 P. M. Let us fill the church at each service. The biggest thing in the world is the religion of Christ. Let's make the world think about God.

THANKS

I desire to express to the voters of Crittenden county, both Democrat and Republicans, who cast their vote for me for jailer in Tuesday's election, my sincere thanks for their support, and I shall try to prove my gratitude to you by giving the very best service in the office that I am able to render.

Mine Sincerely,

FOOT-BALL DOPE

Marion High Loses Game To Morganfield in Final Half

The battle of Marathon, B. C. 490; defeat of the Athenians at Syracuse, B. C. 413; battle of Arbela, B. C. 331; battle of the Melaurus, B. C. 207; victory of Arminius, A. D. 9; battle of Chalons, A. D. 451; battle of Tours, A. D. 732; battle of Hastings 1066; battle of Orleans, 1429; defeat of the Spanish Armada 1588; battle of Blenheim 1704; battle of Pultowa 1709; Burgoyne's defeat at Saratoga, 1777; battle of Valmy, 1792; battle of Waterloo (French style) 1815; battle of Waterloo (Marion style) November 5, 1921. Just a brief memory chaser for those historically inclined—the sixteen decisive battles of the world.

Heretofore the writer of this "football doped" column has resorted to the amusing incidents of the game for the subject of the discourse on previous games played by the Blue and White. Who goes to a football game to see the serious side of football? If Marion wins and there is a juicy layer of comedy colored with a few sensational plays, why its fine eating and good food for discussion on the streets. On the other hand—ah, me, on the other hand—Therefore if the reader expects to be amused in his reading of the Press this week let him refrain from continuing in these columns, but let him turn to another page. If we should accidentally get funny kindly press the third button from the right which has direct electrical connection with the muffler. Morganfield defeated Marion last Saturday 29 to 0.

Well, it was a real nice game at that. Marion started in with a rush and outplayed Morganfield in the first quarter. Morganfield elected to play the punting game in the first quarter but sad to state Mr. "Mutt" Wilson developed a spasm of that terrible disease, the "twitching foot" and out-punted Morganfield's kicking expert. The second quarter was about even, but the third and fourth quarters—alas, alack! In the third and fourth quarters Morganfield put over three touchdowns which was about two more than the necessary quota because Marion's offensive was mis-routed in transit from Greenville and anxious tracers sent out by the local management have thus far been unsuccessful. There was only one penalty measured out in the entire game and that was when Morganfield was set back fifteen notches for embracing a Marion man while Morganfield was on the offensive. It is always bad form for a lineman to embrace his opponent when a member of this lineman's own team has possession of the football.

The work of Dillard and Wilson in the backfield together with the playing of F. Belt and Travis on the ends featured the game so far as Marion was concerned. As usual, Oliver played a nice game at center, and the Blue and White still claims the best center in the C. I. A. Conway and Jones starred for the visitors. A word of praise should be said for the faultless work of the officials of the game.

The only consoling result of the game was the attendance and the brave spirit manifested by the people of this city in their control of their injured pride—there being at least fifteen who were brave enough to come up town Saturday night to do their weekly shopping.

ANNUAL CONFERENCE IN SESSION HERE

The Annual Conference of the Colored M. E. Church is in session here at Stewarts Chapel. Bishop N. C. Cleaves of the Fifth Episcopal District is presiding. Notwithstanding the inclement weather, the delegation the opening day, Wednesday, was large. There are a number of visitors present including four of the general officers of the church.

Local interest runs high and the attendance is good and the delegates and visitors cared for nicely.

INTRODUCING OUR COACH

Ladies and Gentlemen, meet Mr. John Young Brown, product of the Cypress Creek section of Crittenden county, alumnus of Centre College and football coach extraordinary. Mr. Brown also teaches English at Marion High School.

Last summer the Marion Board of Education decided that the football and athletic situation at Marion High

JOHN YOUNG BROWN
Football Coach M. H. S.

School had gone about as low as was polite for a good High schools athletic situation to drop without casualties, so said Board of Education began casting about for a "Caesar", a "Hannibal" all in one. Result Mr. Brown.

The results of Mr. Brown's coaching are very pleasing to everybody except the natives of Providence, Clay, Morganfield and Sturgis. Thus far Marion has already won three times as many games at football as she ever won prior to this time in all time. The record stands six won and three lost. This far Marion has had 101 points scored against her and has scored 179 points on her opponents.

We are informed, reliably or otherwise, that John Y. is but 21 years of age. He has no stature to speak of, being built on Napoleonic plans. No one would deny that John has personality, that is no one would deny it after having seen how the football team especially and the High School boys generally stick by him. More power to him!

POPULAR COUPLE WED

Miss Virginia Blue and Mr. Neil Guess were united in the holy bonds of matrimony on Wednesday morning in the parlors of the Blue home on Wilson Avenue.

The house was attractively decorated in white chrysanthemums and Southern snail and only the relatives and intimate friends of the contracting parties were bidden to the marriage.

A musical prelude was rendered by Mrs. Jenkins as the guests assembled. Miss Eva Yates then played Schubert's Serenade and "O Promise Me". At nine thirty o'clock as the strains of the Wedding March from Lohengrin were heard, the groom and best man appeared followed by the maid of honor and lastly the bride escorted by her father. Rev. G. P. Dillon performed the ceremony using the Episcopal ring service which made the happy couple one.

The groom and best man, Mr. V. Threlkeld, were attired in conventional blue with gray gloves. The maid of honor, Miss Ruth Flanary, wore a navy blue three piece suit, hat, gloves and shoes of reindeer ton and corsage of Ward roses. The bride was charming in a suit of bolivia with squirrel collar and cuffs and portrait blue hat and carried a shower bouquet of Ward roses and maiden hair ferns.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Guess left for a motor trip to Cincinnati.

The out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Emil Krause, of St. Louis; Miss Sara Blue of Morganfield and John William Blue, University of Kentucky.

The bride and groom were the recipients of many beautiful gifts which attest their popularity and the good will of their friends.

BASKET-BALL

The Marion and Morganfield girls basketball quintets met on the Marion court Saturday in the fastest game that has been played here this season. The final score of the game was a 34-34 tie. Both teams were in the best of form and the game was very interesting throughout.

Both teams displayed excellent teamwork and passing but there was a lack of good goal tappers. Neither team scored a very high percentage of goals tried.

The most brilliant star in Marion's lineup was Ruby Birchfield who most ably filled the position of guard. She broke up numerous plays and played a great game both offensive and defensive. The stars of the Morganfield team were Waller at guard and Harris at forward. Both teams showed the results of experienced coaching.

REVIVAL MEETING

Rev. W. A. Hughes, Synodical Evangelist of the Southern Presbyterian church, will commence a series of meetings at the Southern Presbyterian church in this city Sunday morning November 13.

All are cordially invited to attend.

JOHN FRANKLIN DIES SUDDENLY

John Franklin, one of the county's best known and most influential citizens died at his home near Tolu last Friday evening about eight o'clock. Mr. Franklin had been in failing health for a number of years and for the past several days had been feeling worse than common. Friday, however, he spoke to his wife, who for the past thirty years and more had looked after his every want as only a devoted wife can, of feeling better than he had for several days. He retired early Friday afternoon and a few minutes later his wife heard him breathing heavily and hasted to his bedside. A few seconds later he passed quietly and peacefully away.

The news of his death spread very quickly and soon men and women and children, both black and white, were calling and coming to see if the sad news were really true and to offer a word of sympathy to his faithful wife, who together with her big hearted husband had endeared herself to the hearts of hundreds of people in their own neighborhood and elsewhere.

The funeral was held at Union church where for a number of years and Mr. Franklin had been a member, a place which perhaps next to his own home he loved better than any other place on earth. He is survived by his wife, who was Miss Annice Dunaway, his mother, Mrs. Mary Franklin, three brothers, Jas., Pete and Si, and sister, Mrs. Ada Watson.

CONTRACT LET

The contract to build the State road from here to Caldwell county line known as Project No. 10, has been let. W. R. Campbell of Madisonville has the contract to build the road ready for the metal. Mr. Campbell is expected to move his teams and tools this week and begin at once on the construction.

The Press is reliably informed that if the right of way over the Ohio River Route was secured that contracts would be let early in the spring to build this road. As the contracts will not be let until the right of way is secured it does look like the proper officials ought to get busy and take whatever action is necessary to procure the right of way and report to the proper authority so work may begin in the spring on this road. Unless the right of way is secured the road will not be built. This would be a calamity to the county. So let's get busy.

INFANT DIES

Last Tuesday evening at 5:45 the Death Angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Humphrey and took to its home in Heaven their darling and only child, Everett Eugene, Jr., who was only 13 months and 28 days old. He was laid to rest Wednesday afternoon in the Campbell graveyard near Mexico. Bro. Mott officiated. A large number of relatives and friends met the bereaved ones at the last resting place of their darling.

The floral offerings were beautiful.

COLLIN HODGE FRANKLIN

Collin H. Franklin was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elijah B. Franklin and one of the county's most promising young men. He had been in ill health for several years and had recently returned from a trip to Colorado, having gone there hoping that in the different climate he might regain his health. The search for health however was futile and he came back to his farm near Salem a few weeks ago. At the time of his death he was spending a few days with his mother at Levas. His condition was regarded as hopeless but even the members of his own family did not realize that death was so near. Saturday he talked pleasantly with friends but at two o'clock his condition grew suddenly worse and at three o'clock Saturday afternoon he passed away as one going to sleep. The funeral was held at Union where he was a loyal and faithful member, Sunday afternoon at the same time the funeral of his cousin, John Franklin was held. Both funerals were conducted by Rev. T. C. Carter, pastor of the Baptist church at Union, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Ben Franklin of Louisville.

Collin Franklin is survived by his wife, who before her marriage to Mr. Franklin was Miss Corrine Alley, one child, a baby boy, three years old, his mother, Mrs. Dean Franklin, two brothers, Lucian and Lawson Franklin and one sister, Mrs. Eva Allison.

One of the largest crowds ever assembled at Union was there Sunday afternoon to pay their last tributes of respect to these lovable and noble men of one of the oldest families in this part of Kentucky.

Farm Bureau News

Don't miss the Agricultural motion pictures at the Marion High School Auditorium Saturday evening November 12. Dr. Polk, Extension Veterinarian from the University of Kentucky will explain tuberculosis eradication work as carried on in this state. The two reels "Out of the Shadows" is a very interesting story of a dairy farmer who notes something wrong with his stock but does not know what. He sends some hogs to market that have been fed on skim milk and they are reported as badly diseased with tuberculosis. That starts things and the remainder of the picture shows the testing and cleaning up of his herd. The climax comes with the return of his daughter from a sanitarium where she has been sent to recover from tuberculosis contracted from drinking the milk of her pet cow. There is nothing objectionable in any of these pictures, they are very interesting and bring out some very significant facts.

There will be shown also five reels entitled "Hearts and Jerseys" showing the building up of a run down farm to prosperity with a good herd of Jerseys. A very interesting romance runs thru the picture making it doubly attractive.

No charge, all free of cost Saturday night at 7:30 at the Marion High School.

The Forest Grove Community Club play given at their school Saturday evening was a howling success. The Proposin' Day, the Singing School, the Goblin drill and the music all made the evening one long to be remembered in the community.

The Crittenden County Farm Bureau will hold a general meeting at the school building in Marion the evening of Saturday Nov. 19. A prominent agricultural speaker will be present to address on a timely subject. Don't stay away because you are not a Farm Bureau member but come out and learn something of the Crittenden County Farm Bureau.

Mr. C. W. Buckler, Junior Agricultural Club leader spent a few ours in Crittenden county Tuesday in the interest of the Club work. The Farmers and Merchants Bank at Tolu are making plans for an extensive Junior Club Program next year. One project in the growing of baby beef will start Dec. 1, and run thru the winter, spring and summer until State Fair time next year. All boys and girls living near Tolu interested in this work are urged to see Mr. Grimes at the bank.

Orchardists have you looked over your spray outfit to see if it is in good condition for the dormant tree spray? Spray with lime sulphur of proper strength after leaves fall up to the time growth starts in the spring. Get a spray calendar at the County Agents office.

The Advantages of Dairying
It takes less fertility out of the soil than any other form of agriculture.

It can be combined readily with other forms of agriculture.

The dairy provides in winter a quantity of stable manure in which straw and other bedding is profitably utilized.

Dairying gives constant and regular employment of a light character to every member of a farmer's family.

The by-products from the cow, skim milk, whey and buttermilk are a source of income in raising pigs and calves.

It gives a steady income each week the year around

CHAPTER V.

At the River Again.
John Moreland met Dale at the gate.
"What did ye find out?"
"I learned," was the answer, "that the Littlefords all lost their guns just as the Morelands did."
"The devil!"
The mountaineers began to crowd about Dale.

"And who," asked their leader, "do ye think done it?"

Bill Dale shook his head slowly and threw out his hands.
"How should I know?" He went on: "Babe told me about the Littleford guns disappearing. I saw her down at the river; she was fishing."
"Did she say anything," pursued John Moreland, "at sounded like she knewed whar them guns went to?"

"She told me," said Dale, "she would give her life to stop the fighting. She seemed rather badly worked up over it."
From the cabin's front doorway came a woman's sorrowful voice:

"And me, too; I'd give my life to stop this here fightin'. I had a boy, a big strapping boy—"

John Moreland frowned toward his wife and interrupted. "Now, Addie, honey, don't do that."

It ended the talk.
Mrs. Moreland dried her eyes on a corner of her freshly ironed gingham apron and announced the noonday meal. The mountaineers dispersed. Grandpap Moreland went away clanking at his long white beard and grumbling over the loss of his beloved old Lancaster.

An hour later Dale cornered the Moreland leader on the vine-hung front porch and suggested that they look over the coal property that afternoon. He was eager to go to work, eager to be doing something worth while, he told Moreland. The hillman stood very still for what seemed to the other a very long time, and had no word to say. Evidently the feud had all his mind now.

When he did speak, he said simply: "All right, Bill."

After half an hour of fighting their way through thickets of blooming laurel and ivy, they drew up before an old and miledown cabin at the north end of David Moreland's mountain. Moreland led the way in and pointed to a spot under a small, paneless window.

"That," said he, "is whar we found my brother David."

The two men turned for the point at which the coal vein ran out to the light of day.

Dale picked up a piece of the shining black stuff. Judging by the little he knew and the great amount of description he had heard, the vein was very large and the coal itself of the finest grade.

"It was a big find," he told his companion, "a big find. It was a pity to let it lie here untouched for so long; and yet it's worth more today than it was ever worth before."

His enthusiasm ran warm, and Moreland caught it quickly. Together they hastily planned out the little railroad that was to wind its way through the wilds and connect with the big rail road at the Halfway switch.

"I know I'm a-doin' right about it," the mountaineer said twice for the benefit of his conscience. "I know pore David he would want me to do this if he could know."

"I'm sure of it," agreed Dale. "I'll start for Cincinnati tomorrow. I've got enough money to take me there and back. I have a very wealthy friend there—his name is Harris; I think I can borrow enough from him to finance the beginning of this thing. And I'll buy a locomotive and cars, and all the other necessary machinery, while I'm in Cincinnati—unless I fail to get the money from Harris. When I get back, which should be within eight days, we'll start the work. At a guess, I'd say we'll need twenty men. Can we get them?"

"Shore," nodded the mountaineer. "And all Morelands at that."
They turned homeward. At last Bill Dale was happy. He had something to do now—an aim in life. He had difficulties to overcome, obstacles to remove, barriers to surmount—it was his big chance!

It was almost sundown when Dale returned from his visit to the coal vein—Big Pine mountain hid the sun at a little after three in the afternoon. He borrowed a fishing rod and a minnow pail, which made his going to the river seem proper enough to John Moreland, and set out to meet Babe Littleford. He was glad that nobody expressed a desire to accompany him. He found Ben Littleford's daughter where he had found her twice before—sitting on a stone the size of a small barrel. She was fishing with an un-baited hook, which was equal to fishing not at all, and she seemed pleased when she saw him coming. He sat down on the stone at her side. She moved over a little shyly, and tried to cover her feet with her calico skirts. "Needn't bother to hide them," laughed Bill Dale. "They're pretty enough. Most feet, y'know, are necessary evils, like chimneys and rain-spouts!"

Babe Littleford blushed. He went on, to hide her confusion. "Tell me about the rifles."

"You must shore keep it a secret," she told him.

"I promise."

"Better put yore hook in, so's ef anybody comes along—"

Dale threw out an empty hook.

"I want to tell ye some other things first, so's ye'll understand better when I come to the part about the rifles," Babe began, looking thoughtfully across the water to where a kingfisher sat in watchful waiting. She continued slowly, choosing her words carefully. "I was brought up to hate them Morelands, but—I don't think I do. My people is just like the Morelands. The biggest difference ye can find is that one side mostly has grey eyes like you and t'other side mostly has brown eyes like me. All but their everlastin' fightin', they're good people, Bill Dale."

"Each side, ye see, is brought up to hate t'other side. I'm ashamed to tell it, but—I understand the fast pain words my Uncle Saul Littleford's last t'ing said was these here: 'D—n John Moreland!' It started a long time ago, and it started over nothin'. Grandpap Littleford and John Moreland's pap got in a dispute over whether Kaintucky was in Virginia or Nawth Carolina, and went to fightin' about it. Purty soon my Uncle Saul and Abner Moreland happened along, and they went to fightin', too. Thank goodness, it was on Sunday, and some of 'em didn't have their rifles with 'em. What-ever else we are or ain't up here, Bill Dale, we generally respects the Sabbath day to keep it holy."

"I see," Dale muttered sympathetically.

"I've seen my own mother set down in the floor and take her boy's head in her lap—oh, such a big, fine boy he was—while the blood run through her dress from a Moreland's bullet. He died with mother's arms and mine around him. It was all we could do to him, was to love him. I've seen sisters watch their brothers die from Moreland bullets, and young women watch their sweethearts die, and wives watch their husbands die."

"I tell you, Bill Dale, them Morelands never misses when they have even half a fair shot. You'd be perfectly safe in a lettin' any of 'em shoot times from an eleven yore finger and thumb all day. And it's the same way with the Littlefords. They're fighters, too, every one, and they don't give in any more than the Morelands does."

"Addie Moreland knows what it is to take her dyin' boy's head in her lap, whilst blood run through her dress to her knees. His name was Charley, and he was bad; he'd drink, and once he shot up Cartersville. But Addie, she alius loved him better'n Cale or Luke. Women like her alius loves the worst boys the best; 'cause they need it the most, the worst boys does."

"It's the women that pays, Bill Dale, when the's fightin'. The women o' this valley is right now on needles; they're afraid the men'll find their rifles. You can guess whar the guns went to now, can't ye? The women hid 'em last night after the men had gone to sleep! By good luck, they had almost a whole night for it. You must be shore to keep it to yourself—but I know ye will. Addie Moreland, she started the idee. She got t'iranny Moreland to spread the word amongst the women o' my people. When the fightin' fever sort o' dies down the guns'll all be brought back and put whar they belong."

She arose and stood there smiling down upon him. He was staring at the swirling water without seeing it at all.

Her voice brought him to himself.

"Whar're you a-thinkin' about, Bill Dale?"

Dale went to his feet. He saw that she was smiling, and he smiled, too.

"I was thinkin'," he said, "of the difference between you and some other women I know."

Her clear brown eyes widened.

"And I reckon I seem purty so 'count, don't I?"

"No, not at all. It is—er, quite the opposite, Babe. You make them appear unreal, artificial."

Babe Littleford's countenance brightened. She did not doubt that he meant it. He was not of the sort that flattered. She began to like Bill Dale at that same moment.

And Bill Dale told himself as he went homeward that he was beginning to like Babe Littleford. He did not fight the feeling, because it somehow made the world seem a better place.

Early the following morning Dale made ready for his journey to Cincinnati. Having learned the evening before that he was going, Bill Heck had come to accompany him to the Half-way switch.

The two set out. They had three hours in which to cross David Moreland's mountain before the arrival of Dale's train, and they walked leisurely.

They had not gone a dozen rods when there came from somewhere down near the river the sound of a rifle shot. Both stopped and faced about quickly.

"I'll be dadgummed ef the Littlefords ain't found their weepsons!" exclaimed Bill Heck. "They have, 'god, as shore as daunt!"

"How do you know?" Dale's voice was troubled.

"I shore know," and Heck narrowed his gaze. "At was Ben Littleford's old 45 Winchester. I'd know that gun ef I heered it at the nawth pole. The barl' it's been cut off, and it don't sound like other Winchester."

"Caleb Moreland was down near the river cleaning out the springhouse ditch," Dale muttered, facing his companion. "I think we'd better go back."

Together they went back to the cabin. John Moreland and his wife and their son Luke were standing at the weatherbeaten front gate, with their eyes turned anxiously toward the river. Caleb was coming up through the meadow, and he carried his hat in his hand.

"Who fired that shot?" asked Dale.

"Ben Littleford," John Moreland answered readily.

Two minutes later Caleb leaped the old rail fence on the other side of the road and approached them hastily. He was breathing rapidly and his strong young face was drawn and pale—with the old hate.

"Well," said his iron father, "what is it?"

Caleb held up his broad-rimmed black hat and ran a finger through a hole in the upper part of the crown's peak.

"He didn't miss!" snapped John Moreland.

"No," quickly replied Caleb, "he didn't miss. He don't never miss. You know that, pap, as well as ye know God made ye. He done it jest to show me he meant what he said. He told me to go and tell you to gether up yore set o' rabbit-hearted heathens and come down to the river for a lead-and-powder picnic, unless ye was a-skereed to come! He said to tell ye the womenfolks had hid our guns, and we'd find 'em under the house floors."

John Moreland took it with utter calmness, though his face was a little pale behind his thick brown beard. He turned to his wife, who looked at him squarely.

"Addie, honey," said he, "I'm mighty sorry."

"Ef—ef you was much sorry, John," Mrs. Moreland half sobbed, "ye wouldn't go down thar to the river."

"Me a coward?" Moreland appeared to grow an inch in stature. "Me let a Littleford send me news like this here whilst Cale brings, and not do nothin' at all about it? I thought you knowed me better'n that, Addie."

He faced his two stalwart sons. Always he was the general, the leader of his clan. He sent Caleb in one direction and Luke in another, to arouse his kinsmen.

Then he beckoned to Dale, who had been trying hard but vainly to think of something to do or say that would be of aid to the cause of the women.

"I don't want you in this here mix-up," he said decisively. "You must stay clean out of it. You ain't used to this way o' fightin'. Asides, you're our hope. More'n that, mebbe, you owe yore life to Babe Littleford; you cain't get around that, Bill Dale."

He went on, after a moment, "Ef I git my light put out today, I want ye to do the best ye can with the coal. But o' course ye will. I want ye to do me two favors, Bill Dale, ef I have my light put out today. Will ye do 'em for me, my friend?"

"Certainly," Dale promised.

"Much obliged to ye, shore. The first is this: I want ye to take good pay out o' what the coal brings, pay for yore work. The second is this: I want ye to go to Ben Littleford after I'm done—provided he is yet alive—and tell him about the end o' my bed-time prayer; I want him to know I went him one better, at I was a bigger man inside 'n him. Remember, Bill, you're done promised me. Now you go ahead to Cincinnati, and do jest like ye didn't know the least thing about this trouble we're a-goin' to have. No long to ye, an' good luck!"

"I don't like the idee"—Dale began, when the big hillman interrupted sharply.

"Go on! You cain't do no good here!"

Heck started. Dale turned and followed the lanky mountaineer; there seemed to be nothing else to do.

When they had reached a point a little way above the foot of David Moreland's mountain, the pair halted and looked back. They saw the Littlefords and the Morelands, every one of them armed, going toward the river. It had a strange and subtle fascination for Bill Dale, a fascination that he did not then try to understand.

As the fighters reached dangerous ground they dropped to their hands and knees and began to crawl through the tall grasses, the ironweed and the meadow clover. They were intent upon reaching the shelter of the trees that lined the banks of the river without being seen. The stream here was more than fifty yards wide; this was Blue Cat shoals. The two lines of trees stood back a rod or so from the water, making the final shooting distance some seventy yards.

Drawled Heck: "Let's set down here and watch it; hey?"

Dale was silent. The very air was filled with the spirit of tragedy. The far-off tinkle of a cowbell seemed tragic; tragic, too, sounded the song of a bird somewhere in the tree branches overhead.

"Did ye hear me, Bill?"

"I think," Dale muttered, "that I'd better not go away until tomorrow. I can't leave matters like this. Do you know of any way to stop that down there?"

By Heck shrugged his shoulders.

"Do you know of any way to stop the risin' and settin' o' the sun?" he grinned.

They went back to John Moreland's cabin.

Southern Baptists Wage Vigorous Warfare Against Tuberculosis In This Section

WOMAN'S INFIRMARY BAPTIST SANATORIUM

FOUNTAIN PLAYS IN CENTER OF COURT BETWEEN TWO INFIRMARIES

A RECREATION PATIO BETWEEN MEN'S AND WOMAN'S BLDG.

INVITING CORNER OF MEN'S INFIRMARY

In one of the most extensive fights that has ever been made by any religious body in America for the eradication of disease, Southern Baptists, through their Home Mission Board, have undertaken the task of combating tuberculosis in the 18 states comprising the territory of the Southern Baptist Convention. The first step in this direction was the recent establishment on a tract of 145 acres at El Paso, Texas, of the Southern Baptist Sanatorium, where $500,000 from the 75 Million Campaign has been invested and where $200,000 more will be placed by the end of the Campaign period. The institution is located at an altitude of 4,500 feet on the side of Mt. Franklin and commands an excellent view of the mountains of New Mexico, Western Texas and Old Mexico, whose border is only six miles distant. Dr. H. F. Vermillion is superintendent.

Included in this plant at present are the administration building, the newly completed women's infirmary and men's infirmary, a heating and refrigerating plant and the superintendent's quarters. Provided for in the building plans for the future are a medical and educational building, nurses' home, children's building, dormitories for convalescent patients, an occupational and vocational therapy building, chapel, laundry and minor structures.

150 People Die Daily.
Indicating the need of additional effort looking to the elimination of tuberculosis in the South, reliable figures gathered by the public health agencies of the South and the Nation show that there are 150 deaths daily from tuberculosis in the 18 states comprising the territory of the Southern Baptist Convention, making the death toll of the white plague in this section of the country alone

$7,782. The death rate from tuberculosis is 14.2% higher in the South than in the Nation as a whole. One reason for the exceedingly high death rate in the South is the great prevalence of the plague among the negroes who are especially susceptible to tuberculosis, the death rate among them being three and one-half times that among the whites. But inasmuch as the negroes will doubtless continue to be intimately associated with the whites in domestic and other work in the future, the whites will never be safe from infection until the negroes, as well as the whites, have been freed from the plague.

It has been estimated that the total economic loss from the ravages of tuberculosis in the South is $175,000,000 a year, and in projecting their warfare against the plague the Baptists hope to greatly reduce this loss, as well as to save the life and promote the health and general efficiency of the whole people.

Would Educate the People.
In addition to providing treatment for persons who have already occu-tracted tuberculosis, the sanatorium is carrying on an educational work that seeks to inform the public at large through the printed page, as to the danger of tuberculosis, how it can be avoided and how, once it is contracted, its progress can be arrested through proper sanitary measures at home. Other phases of the educational program include the training of workers inside the sanatorium and occupational and vocational work for patients. The extension department is widely disseminating literature on how to combat tuberculosis. An endowment fund that is being created for the institution will make possible a much larger circulation of literature and will also enable the institution to take care of indigent patients.

The sanatorium is at present seeking to devise special plans whereby it can serve the negroes of the South in combating tuberculosis. It is felt that the negroes' inability to help themselves in the matter entitles them to this consideration and that this assistance should be given, furthermore, as a means of self-protection on the part of the whites.

Other Phases of Baptist Work.

In addition to the Tuberculosis Sanatorium, Southern Baptists have a string of seventeen regular hospitals in operation and seven others under course of construction. This hospital property is valued at approximately $7,600,000 and these institutions last year treated 46,000 patients many of them being charity cases. Southern Baptists also operate 19 orphanages in which approximately 5,000 orphan boys and girls are cared for, educated and trained for Christian citizenship.

TEMPORARY SHEEP PASTURES

Results of Experiment Made by Department of Agriculture on 30-Acre Field in Maryland.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

On a 30-acre field in Maryland, used by the United States Department of Agriculture to test the carrying capacity of temporary pastures for sheep, sufficient pasturage was produced to furnish an average of 545 days' grazing on each acre for a mature ewe. This is equivalent to about two sheep an acre for a season of 250 days, or two and one-half sheep for a 200-day period.

This pasturage is much more than could be obtained from perennial grass grown on land of the character and value of that used in the experiment, the department sheep specialists say, but not more than can be obtained from the best blue-grass pastures, good land used for such a succession of temporary pastures should produce from 50 to 100 per cent more pasturage than is now obtained.

Lambs on Pasture in Maryland.

as than was obtained in this instance. In such a system as the one under trial there is not much choice of crops to be used in different months. It is chiefly necessary to make sure of having one crop ready when the preceding one is finished. All the crops used in 1919, the third year of the experiment, stimulated a good flow of milk in the ewes, produced good growth in the lambs, and, after weaning, put the ewes in good condition for fall breeding.

The ewes and lambs were all pure-bred Southdowns. Some of the ewes raising lambs received a half-pound of grain each daily until May 10, and 22 head of ewes in a fall-breeding experiment received a light feed of grain during September and October. All the lambs were kept for breeding purposes and were fed some grain throughout the summer. In calculating how far the feed actually produced would go for grown sheep it was considered that a lamb ate one-fourth as much as a sheep until July 1, and after that one-half as much. A total of 520 hours' work for a man and a team was required for plowing and seedling the 30 acres used in 1919.

Under the conditions of this experiment fall-sown wheat and spring seedings of oats and peas sown together at the rate of 1½ bushels per acre have been most satisfactory for grazing in spring and early summer. Soy beans are ready for grazing about the middle of July and furnish most of the feed until October. In November fall-sown wheat and rye have been used most, though late seedlings of corn and velvet beans were used in 1919 for the first time on 1½ acres that had received an extra top dressing of manure.

The number of days of grazing from one acre of each crop in 1919 was as follows, calculated on its pasture value for one mature ewe:

Days	Days
Rape	30 Cowpeas
Soy beans	30 Alfalfa
Oats and peas	30 Barley
Wheat	30 Rye

TYPES OF BABY BEEF COWS

Three Important Factors Should Be Kept in Mind in Making Selection of Breeders.

In selecting cows from which baby beef is to be produced, three very important factors should be kept in mind:

1. The cows should have at least a fair amount of beef blood. Pure breeds are not necessary, but two or three crosses of such breeding is essential. Cows with a preponderance of dairy blood will not do for the production of baby beef.

2. Cows best suited for this type of breeding usually weigh 900 pounds or over in thrifty breeding condition. So long as early maturity is not sacrificed, the heavier cows are the most suitable for baby-beef production. Size of frame rather than weight should govern in selecting cows which are to be used for this purpose.

3. The cows used to produce baby beef should produce enough milk to keep the calves fat and growing without much additional feed up to weaning time.

In addition to these three factors, such things as constitution, uniformity of breeding, color, size and early maturity should be considered.

Red Cross Trains 147 Blind Vets In Useful Work

Training designed to fit them for the battle of life was taken by 147 blinded ex-service men at the Red Cross Institute for the Blind, near Baltimore, Md., during the fiscal year 1920-1921, according to the report of the Institute for that period.

Of this number, 19 have gone on to other institutions, in almost every case to institutions where those having slight are receiving advanced education. The blind ex-service men who have entered such institutions are provided with special text-books in Braille, reading which they were taught at the Red Cross Institute.

Twelve men have passed from the Institute to successfully carry on some occupation or business for which they were fitted by special training. A few have withdrawn from the Institute because of poor physical condition, 14 are receiving further "training on the job" and 57 are still in training.

Red Cross Plans $6,000,000 Effort To Save Children

Medical care and clothing for thousands of children in Central and Eastern Europe are outlined as the activities of the American Red Cross in Europe for the current year, says a statement on the eve of the Annual Roll Call of the organization. These activities, supplemental to the feeding operations of the European Relief Council of which Herbert Hoover is chairman, are designed to provide the most adequate and balanced relief within the resources of private philanthropy.

Through the establishment of child welfare stations in the centers of population of those countries where adequate medical care is not now obtainable, the American Red Cross plans to provide the medical assistance needed to restore these children to a normally healthy life. The sum of $6,000,000 has been made available for this work.

Red Cross Gives $310,000 to Aid 'Clean-Up' Drive

An appropriation of $310,000 for Red Cross work in connection with the "clean-up" campaign instituted by the Government to bring the claims of all disabled service men who are entitled to Federal aid before the proper government bureau for action, has been made by the American Red Cross. The Executive Committee of the American Red Cross in making the appropriation authorized the appropriation of $35,000 of this sum to the American Legion to defray the expense of the Legion representatives assigned to the various districts of the Veterans Bureau.

The remainder of the appropriation was authorized for apportionment among the several Divisions of the Red Cross for carrying on that part of the "clean-up" work that falls directly upon the Red Cross organization.

Young America Sends Vast Relief To Needy Abroad

Various relief projects of the Junior American Red Cross in European countries resulted in helping 237,000 destitute children during the last fiscal year, according to the annual report of the American Red Cross for that period. The growth of the activities of the Juniors abroad is manifested by a comparison which shows this figure is 200,000 larger than that of the previous fiscal year.

The National Children's Fund raised by school children, members of the Junior American Red Cross, was drawn upon for $420,557 for these projects. Receipts for the National Children's Fund during the last fiscal year totalled $155,317.

America Succors Russians
Food, clothing and medical relief costing $700,000 has been provided by the American Red Cross for the thousands of Russian refugees stranded last year in Constantinople and vicinity.

The Evidence Is at Your Door

Marion proof is what you want and the statement of this highly respected resident will banish all doubt. Geo. A. Clark, E. Depot St., Marion, says "Doan's Kidney Pills in my estimation are mighty good kidney remedy. I have had a great deal of trouble with backache at different times and my back would be so lame across the small of it I could hardly straighten up after bending. When I have had these attacks I got Doan's Kidney Pills at Haynes and Taylor's Drug Store. A few of Doan's has never failed to rid me of backache. I am glad to recommend them to anyone in need of a good kidney remedy."
