REVIVAL AT MAIN STREET CHURCH

The revival meeting which began Sunday at the Main Street Presbyterian Church continued Monday night, held daily through the week. This is the first time in the history of the church that such an event has been held. The church is facing a critical time in its history as it is facing the need to raise funds to pay off its mortgage. The community is rallying around the church to support its cause. The meetings have been well attended and are expected to continue throughout the week.

LET'S GET TOGETHER

E. E. LAKERS

A letter of the chairman of the Revival Committee. This letter is a call to action. It is a call for everyone to come together to support the church and its mission. The letter encourages people to attend the meetings and to participate in the fundraising efforts. It also mentions the importance of prayer and faith in this challenging time.

SHALL PROHIBITION RETURN TO WASHINGTON?

By Dr. H. B. Davis, of Maryland

Prohibition has been a topic of debate for many years. It is an issue that has divided the country. The letter discusses the pros and cons of prohibition and its potential impact on society.

WHAT DOES YOUR CHILD LEARN AT HOME?

Frances E. L. B. R., R. R. R., Father of the Blue Ridge Presbyterian Church

The letter is a commentary on the idea of home-schooling. It discusses the advantages and disadvantages of this option. The letter also mentions the importance of providing quality education for children.

Rev. B. L. C. R., R. R. R., Pastor of the Blue Ridge Presbyterian Church

The letter is a response to the previous letter. It supports the idea of home-schooling and emphasizes the importance of parents taking an active role in their children's education.

PUBLIC SALE!
Douglas O. Carnehan Real Estate
AT MARION, KY.
Monday, February 13th, 1922

By order of the referees in Bankruptcy, Hon. W. L. Gehron, for the District Court of the United States for the Western District of Kentucky, the undersigned trustee of the bankruptcy, Douglas O. Carnehan, will at 10 o'clock A.M., on Monday, February 13th, at the premises hereinafter described in the city of Marion, Ky., expose to sale at public outcry to the highest and best bidder, the above described two tracts of real estate herein described. Sides will be made upon a credit of six months, and the purchaser or parties purchasing shall execute bond or bonds, with approved security, payable to the trustee having the force and effect of a judgment and statutory in re, and bearing dates from date of sale and not to be paid until paid due, and a fee will be retained upon the property sold as further security, for the principle bond and the surety or parties purchasing, to the satisfaction of the trustee, the trustee will reserve the right to reject any or all bids.

Sold real estate is described as follows:

—A certain store house and lot on the corner of Saline and Main Streets in Marion, Ky., known as lot No. 1 and lot No. 14, fronting 44 feet on Saline Street and backing back on Main Street, sometimes called Fisher Ferry Street, 85-1-2 feet (see deed of W. T. McCullough and W. P. Davis dated October 10th, 1919, B. R. E. No. 49 page 342 Cravensville County Court Clerks Office) which is indistinguishable in kind without materially impairing its value.

—Also one lot fronting 50 feet and 11 inches on Main Street in front of the Court House in Marion, Ky., immediately north of the P. F. Wheeler grocery running back at right angles in Main Street 130 feet to an alley, same described in the last real estate under the will of W. G. Carnehan (See will book page 47 Cravensville County Court Clerks).

CHAPTER XVII

The Last Fight

It was a cold, dreary March day, the snow lay thick on the ground, and all nature seemed to be in a gloomy mood. The air was damp and heavy, and the sun shone through the gray clouds with a sickly light. It was a day to recall the winter's death, and to mourn the coming of spring.

The church tower loomed high above the surrounding landscape, its steeple pointing to the sky. In the small town below, life went on as usual. The children played in the streets, the farmers tended their fields, and the villagers went about their daily tasks.

In the midst of this scene, a figure appeared on the street. It was a man, dressed in a dark coat and hat, and carrying a cane. He walked slowly, with a heavy step, as if burdened by some deep sorrow. He passed by the church, and continued on his way, his mind filled with melancholy thoughts.

The man was John H. Smith, a former soldier of fortune. He had fought in many battles, and had seen much blood. The war had left its mark on him, and he carried the memories of his past with him always.

John had been ESP in the war, and had been captured by the enemy. He had been held prisoner for months, and was finally released with a promise of parole. He had returned to his hometown, hoping to start a new life and forget the days of war.

But the memories were too strong, and the past too vivid. John found it difficult to adjust to the peace and quiet of civilian life. He longed for the excitement and danger of battle, and yearned for the thrill of combat.

John had heard of a group of ESPs who were organizing a new army, and had decided to join them. He had been training for weeks, and was ready to fight again.

The ESPs had planned a battle, and John was one of the few who were willing to fight. He knew that the ESPs could win, but he also knew that they could lose.

John stood on the battlefield, his heart pounding with anticipation. He looked out over the grassy plain, and saw the enemy troops approaching. He knew that he was about to die, but he was prepared to accept his fate.

The battle was fierce and brutal, and John fought with all his might. He was wounded several times, but he continued to fight, until finally he fell. The ESPs were victorious, but John was left for dead.

John was carried to a nearby village, and was tended to by the villagers. They were surprised to see him, and were moved by his courage.

John lived for many years after the battle, but his memories of it stayed with him always. He had seen too much, and had fought too many battles. The war had left its mark, and he could never forget.

John H. Smith died in peace, but his memory lived on. He was a hero, and his name was remembered for generations to come.
