DO WE NEED A FARM AGENT?

This Is An Age of Advancement
—Farmers are Falling Behind the Times

By Rev. E. N. Hart, B. A., Pastor
Main Street Presbyterian Church, Marion.

We are living in an age of tremendous advancement; an age in which things are forging ahead with alarming rapidity. Science has made many wonderful and startling discoveries. It is indeed a glorious and wonderful period, one in which we all should be glad that we live. What wonderful advancement the world has made along the lines of science, mechanics, aviation, shipping, chemistry, economic, and many other lines too numerous to mention. In order for a man to succeed he must keep abreast of the time.

In most of the professions mentioned above we are keeping well up, but in some we are sadly falling behind. One of these is the farming profession which has been neglected. While others have forged ahead the farmer has lagged behind. There is no work so important to the very existence of the country as the work of the farmer. Without him we would in a very little while perish. Upon him and his labors millions of people depend. Let him stop and the world starves. I cannot emphasize this strongly enough, or find words adequate to express the greatness and importance of this occupation.

We are faced with one great fact today, that while it is true that the farming world has made progress, and has advanced in many lines, and we have many wonderful improvements over the past years, still there are today many who are still jogging along in the same old ruts that their great grandfathers did centuries ago.

The government has realized the importance of national existence of the work of the farmer, and in order to further this work to the best advantage to the nation, has expended considerable sums of money to experiment along scientific lines, in order to ascertain, if possible, the best methods of producing the best results from the land. Farming has today become a science, and the man who merely follows the lines of least resistance, and still drags along in the same old way will soon find that he is hopelessly left behind. He will find that his land values will decrease, and his yearly yield become smaller, while his more progressive neighbor will get larger crops, increase his land value and grow rich.

How is all this to be accomplished? The government offers aid to all who will accept it. After experimenting along all lines of agriculture the government has opened schools in which men are trained in the latest and most scientific methods of farming, and are then sent out into the rural districts thoroughly equipped and ready to impart this knowledge to the farmer in order that he might be benefited by it. Into each county an agent is placed, the State deeming it worth while to expend thousands of dollars to do this, asking that each county will contribute its share. We have in this county one of the best farm agents in the state, a man of untiring energy, whose desire is to place the county on a higher scale and to co-operate with every farmer in having better farms and better homes, and to make the county the best in the state. Do we need this man another year? I most emphatically say YES. We need him, you need him, and if we do not keep him with us, it will mean that good old Crittenden county will take a backward step. Shall we allow our beloved county to do this and be looked upon throughout the state as a backward county, which spurns state and national aid, as one which does not care for advancement and is perfectly satisfied to remain behind the times in modern and up-to-date methods in farm life? Shall we be content to rank as only a fourth rate county, or have we enough county pride to say we will accept these modern and up-to-date methods, and use every effort to make our county the model county of the state. Yes, I know we will do that, for if I know the citizens of the county, we are all desirous of doing the best.

Think what Mr. Spencer has already done. How much better fruit crops we would have if we would adopt the principles he sets forth as to spraying and pruning. Why not

FOR FILM ACTRESSES

Catherine Murphy, who plays the part of a lady-in-waiting in "The Three Musketeers", the latest United Artists production starring Douglas Fairbanks, believes that the best screen actresses will be those who lay their foundation for fame on a convent education.

"The girl educated in a convent," says Miss Murphy "is shut away from the world until she is almost out of her teens. Then when she goes out to grapple with the problems of life, everything that confronts her is new. With powers of observation that are unusually keen and a mind as sensitive and impressionable as the photographic film itself, she naturally develops ability above the average to interpret life as she sees it. For this reason I believe the convent-educated girl has an excellent chance to achieve fame as an actress."

Miss Murphy was educated at the Madames of the Sacred Heart Convent, Menlo Park, Calif. Her first theatrical work was with Arthur Maitland at his theatre in San Francisco, after which she went on tour with Margaret Anglin. She was scheduled to appear on Broadway this year with Miss Anglin in "The Woman of Bronze," but sickness in her family called her back to San Francisco. Now that she is in pictures, Miss Murphy says she intends to stay. Her first film appearance was with Douglas Fairbanks in "The Nut," following which she played in "The Great Moment", "Two Weeks With Pay" and several other features, before joining Fairbanks in "The Three Musketeers" which will be the feature at the Savoy Theatre, Princeton, Ky., February 13 and 14th, matinee and night.

KENTUCKY LEGISLATURE HAS FIRST GIRL PAGE

For the first time in its history, the Kentucky Legislature has a girl page. She is Miss Louise Hubbard, daughter of State Senator Charles J. Hubbard and Mrs. Hubbard, of Hendersonville, and is ten years of age. She is a page in the Senate.

produce here in Crittenden county the best fruit of the state? We never will unless we keep abreast of the times. How much better crops we could have if we only knew just how to treat the soil and make it yield to the best advantage. How much better cattle we could have, if instead of keeping scrub cows we followed his advice and have the best pure bred stock which pay better in the long run bringing to the owner a larger profit. Why not have better hogs, which without extra cost bring to the owner a larger profit? Why not have better hens, instead of a few scrubs? Why not raise better horses which likewise would be of greater value. Why not learn the soil and produce larger and better crops. The County Agent is here to help everyone to learn how to do all these things and to help the farmer to understand more fully his profession.

I do not mean to say that we do not know how to farm, or that we are poor farmers. I simply mean to say that there are many new scientific discoveries that will give greater knowledge, and to assist the farmer to get a better yield and consequently a better profit. There may be some who will say "Well, he does not help me any, I have never seen him." If you have never seen him that is not his fault but yours. Remember Crittenden is a large county and he is only one small man. If you should get sick, would you sit around the house and wait till the doctor came and found you? No you would call him to you, otherwise he would never know you needed help. If you were in trouble and needed a lawyer, would you let him find you? Why, no you would call him and tell him your needs and ask his advice. Well, do the same in this case. We have an agent. If you need help send him the word and he will come as fast as he can get there. Now people let get behind this good man. We need him, you need him, the county needs him. Without him we shall go backwards. Let every one go to his Squire and tell him to vote to keep him when the Fiscal Court meets next week. Let every farmer who has learned the value of his work do all he can to get the Court to retain him. Now then, all together, pull work, and forge ahead to make Crittenden the most progressive and prosperous county in the state.

Farm Bureau Notes

Heavy Corn Feed Hurts Brood Sows

Many farmers make a common mistake of feeding their brood sows too liberal an allowance of corn the week preceding farrowing with the result that the animals develop a feverish condition before the arrival of the pigs, according to experienced swine breeders. This trouble can be prevented by including linseed oil meal in the ration and reducing the amount of corn feed during the week preceding farrowing. Linseed oil meal is valuable as a laxative and may be used to supply the protein in the ration.

At this time of the year the sow should be receiving a ration that will enable her to gain from 50 to 75 pounds between the time she is bred and the time that she farrows since the average sow will lose this much weight in farrowing and nursing her litter. A good feed for use at this time is 60 pounds of middlings and 40 pounds of corn and 10 of tankage 30 parts of corn and 10 of tankage make a good ration also.

A good mineral mixture to keep in a self feeder before the sows as well as the other hogs at all times, is composed of 2 bushels of slack coal two quarts of air slaked lime, two pounds of salt, one bushel of wood ashes and 1 1-4 pounds of copperas.

Best results are obtained in the management of the sow if she receives nothing but clear drinking water, with, possibly a small allowance of slop, the night before she is due to farrow. A good slop may be made by adding a double handful of middlings or bran to water. The same feed may be given to her on the day after farrowing, after which the amount of middlings or bran should be increased by one double handful a day until the 5th day when no increase should be made and the same slop given the sow for the following three days.

After a few days, better a week, a small amount of grain may be added to the feed and gradually increased till the full feed. The sow should be fed a ration that will stimulate milk production since the pigs make the cheapest gains of their lives on their mother's milk.

Farm Building Circular

A new publication which is just off the press at the College of Agriculture and which is being sent to interested farmers contain a list of more than 50 plans for farm buildings prepared by the farm engineering section of the college for distribution among the farmers of the state. The list of buildings for which plans can be furnished includes all types of barns, poultry houses, hog houses, storage houses, hay and machinery sheds, water tanks, milk cooling tanks and hay stackers. The new circular may be obtained free by writing the Experiment Station, Lexington.

Don't doze with your feet to the fire these winter days when work is slack. Put your feet under your desk or the table and begin to plan carefully and definitely all of your rush work for the spring months. Head work that points hand work right always pays big dividends on the farm.

TO DRILL FOR OIL

A company has bought up the leases of a large acreage of lands around Tolu and arrangements have been perfected to begin drilling for oil in the next few weeks. A geologist has given close inspection to the conditions and assures the company that oil in paying quantities will be found. The promoters are confidential of a good find.

J. W. CUSTARD DEAD

J. W. Custard died Monday of last week and was buried Tuesday in Piney Fork Cemetery. He had been in failing health for some time but was not thought to be in danger until a few days before he passed away.

The funeral was conducted by Rev. Roucher. Mr. Custard leaves a wife and five children.

KENNETH GASS DIES

Kenneth Gass, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Gass, who was attending school at Evansville, died in that city Friday of pneumonia following an attack of influenza. The remains were brought here on the four o'clock train Saturday. Interment Sunday at Crooked Creek cemetery. Funeral services were conducted by Elder H. C. Paris.

A GREAT DAY FEB. 17

Child-Welfare Day, Feb. 17, is the anniversary of the founding of the National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Association. Next month's anniversary is the 25th or Silver Anniversary of its birth and all should join in making it a great day.

Marion now has a live organization one that has not only done a great work in the past year, but is preparing to do even greater work for our little ones. If you are not yet a member you are earnestly asked to join the Association. Your help is needed. We must constantly strive to do more and more for we believe with Ex-president Roosevelt that "No school can be considered ideal until it has connected with a live helpful Parent-Teacher Association."

Remember the date Feb. 17, remember the time, 7:30 o'clock and remember the place, the school auditorium.

Watch for the Program in next week's Press.

Dr. T. A. Frazer attended the National Health Association in Louisville last week. He was honored with a Post-graduate Certificate in Public Health.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

The Marion Chamber of Commerce held its regular meeting at the new school building on last Friday evening with a large number of business men present.

The committee on Constitution and By-laws made its report and after the reading of the constitution and by-laws they were approved and accepted. Following the adoption of the constitution election of the Board of Directors was held and T. H. Cochran, E. Jeffrey Travis and J. H. Orme were elected unanimously and these men with the Chairman R. E. Jagers and Sec. J. C. Bourland, go to make the Board of Directors for this year.

The following special committee to prepare a program for the next regular meeting was appointed: Neil Guess, O. R. Lamb, J. A. Stephens, Bebe Boswell and Ed D. Stone. The meeting went on record of endorsing the work of Jno. R. Spencer as County Agent and to use their influence in securing him as County Agent for this year. A committee was appointed to meet with Fiscal Court and use their influence to get the court to appropriate funds for a county agent for another year.

Several new members were added. The date for the next regular meeting was set for Friday evening Feb. 17 at 7 o'clock at the new school building.

REVIVAL AT STURGIS

We clip the following from Sturgis correspondent to the Morganfield Sun giving the report of the revival at the Methodist church in Sturgis. Rev. Dillon is preaching some strong sermons. He is not a man of great oratorical ability, given to painting beautiful word pictures, but he is a man of deep spiritual life and his sermons are gripping the hearts of his hearers because of that and because of his earnest pleading for the Christ life.

Mr. Yates is proving a power in song. He sings with a contagious fervor and spirit which just "breaks out" all over the congregation and people sing who just simply "could not sing a note." He has a large choir composed of members from all the churches in the city, with a children's choir of about fifty voices, and they fairly "make the welkin ring."

Miss Eva Yates, who presides at the piano, is an accompanist of rare talent and she is assisted by an orchestra of from six to eight pieces. Their music is a great asset to the meetings and people linger at the close of the service, charmed by their playing.

WILLIAM O. MOORE SHOT

On Thursday of last week William O. Moore was shot while on guard at the Bonded Ware House in Paducah.

About 3 o'clock in the morning William saw a man walking from the warehouse with a can in his hand. William hurried up and called the man to halt. The man drew his gun and fired. W. O. returned the fire as the man ran, one shot taking effect in the fleeing man's leg. William received a slight wound about the groin.

FOILS ROBBERS

On Jan. 23, in Palms California, W. E. Carnahan, manager of the bank in that city, was attacked by two bandits while in the bank. A bandit handed Ernest a bill for change and while looking in the drawer for change the bandits covered him with their guns. Mr. Carnahan caught the gun and turned it down and the shot went astray. A tussle followed till some one turned on the alarm which frightened the bandits and they fled in an automobile.

TENNESSEE CENTRAL MAY EXTEND LINE TO PADUCAH

A special from Paducah states that the new owners of the Tennessee Central Railroad were considering favorably a plan to extend the western division of the road from Hopkinsville to Paducah, a distance of seventy miles, to connect at that point with the lines of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad.

FARM FOR SALE

About 25 acres, mostly tillable, good house, blacksmith shop, grist mill and store house on premises. Located at Cave Spring church. Will be sold cheap.

JAPAN SEES U. S. IN NEW LIGHT

Declares Arms Conference Was A Revelation to The World

EYES OF PEOPLE ARE OPENED

WASHINGTON—The proposal of the United States government for the convening of the Washington Arms Conference was "a stroke of genius," which has resulted in a service to the world which "will live in history as long as history lives," Baron Kato, head of the Japanese delegation said recently in a statement commenting on the meeting. The agreements signed here he added contain nothing that is calculated to impair the security of any nation, but on the contrary, "have given such reassurance as few but visionary dreamers had contemplated up to three months ago."

"With America's wealth and resources" Baron Kato said, "she could have dominated the seas. She chose however, the wiser course, the way of truer greatness, which has commanded the admiration, respect and love of the whole world."

"At the same time every nation represented here has benefitted immensely as a result of the earnest discussion and the notable series of understandings that have been reached. In Japan we realize that a new spirit of moral consciousness has come over the world, but we could not bring ourselves truly to believe that it had struck so deeply into the souls of men until we came to Washington. We came and we have learned; and in turn we have, I think given evidence such as no man can mistake that Japan is ready for the new order of thought—the spirit of international friendship and co-operation for the greater good of humanity—which the conference has brought about."

ROBBERY AT I. C. DEPOT

A robbery is reported to have taken place at the I. C. Depot office Sunday evening just as the 9:05 south-bound train was standing at the station. About $300 is said to have been taken.

It is thought some one must have slipped in while the officials were busy with the train, taken the money and escaped. So far as can be learned no clue to the robbery has been found.

MRS. ENOCH BELT DEAD

Mrs. Enoch Belt died at her home near Deer Creek church Sunday, after an illness of a few days of pneumonia. She was 60 years old and leaves her husband and two children. She was a member of the Baptist church at Lela.

Her remains were laid away in Deer Creek Cemetery Monday. The funeral was conducted by Elder Hosea C. Paris.

A MESSAGE TO TIRED, SICK FOLKS

Don't Drag Through Life Half
Sick and Half Well.
Take This Advice.

Go to your druggist and ask him for Gude's Pepto-Mangan and take it with your meals for a few weeks and see how your health improves.

If you are pale, tired, lack ambition and vigor, you know yourself that if you had plenty of red blood that you would not feel tired and half sick all the time. The only sure foundation of permanent health is good blood. Gude's Pepto-Mangan builds up your blood with a form of iron that gets into your system quickly. It is wonderful. You will like it and it will make you feel so well and strong. Life will be worth living again. Try it and you will thank us for telling you about it. Druggists sell Gude's Pepto-Mangan in both liquid and tablet form. Advertisement.

"The Way to the Heart"

A Long Island bachelor was showing a friend from New York over his estate. When they reached the sheepfold the woolly inmates, catching sight of their master, came bleating to the gate.

"See how these innocent creatures love me, Harry," said the landholder.

"Love, nothing!" chorried the city man. "They come to you because they're hungry, and they think you're going to feed them."

"Harry," replied the other solemnly, "when you have reached a certain age that passes for love."—American Legion Weekly.

MOTHER! OPEN

CHILD'S BOWELS WITH CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP

Your little one will love the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup" even if constipated, bilious, irritable, feverish, or full of cold. A teaspoonful never fails to cleanse the liver and bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the sour bile, and undigested food out of the bowels and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup," which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.—Advertisement.

Humility.

"It would appear," observes a Southern minister, that humility, as a virtue, is in some quarters at least, fast disappearing. Our fathers used to preach humility to us—respect for our superiors, contentment with our humble station and so forth. 'He who is down need fear no fall,' said one of the old-timers to a dandy in his employ.

"Just so, suh," answered the darkey, but he's shore to get set on and walked over."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

A Feeling of Security

You naturally feel secure when you know that the medicine you are about to take is absolutely pure and contains no harmful or habit producing drugs.

Such a medicine is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, kidney, liver and bladder remedy. The same standard of purity, strength and excellence is maintained in every bottle of Swamp-Root.

It is scientifically compounded from vegetable herbs.

It is not a stimulant and is taken in teaspoonful doses.

It is not recommended for everything. It is nature's great helper in relieving and overcoming kidney, liver and bladder troubles.

A sworn statement of purity is with every bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

If you need a medicine, you should have the best. On sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large. However, if you wish first to try this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

Through Various Grades.

Freda, a neighbor of ours, called in to see me one morning, wearing a red sweater, which was rather large.

I said to her, "Freda, does not that sweater belong to your big sister?"

She evidently did not have the word "shrink" in her vocabulary, for she answered, "It used to belong to sister, but every time mamma washes it it grows younger and younger until now it fits me."—Chicago Tribune.

MARTIN LLOYD.

Synopsis—Doctor Strickland, retired, is living with his family at Mill Valley, just out of San Francisco. Anne, the doctor's niece, is twenty-four. Alix, the doctor's daughter, is twenty-one. Cherry, the other daughter, is eighteen. Their closest friend is Peter Joyce, an odd, lovable sort of recluse. He is secretly in love with beautiful Cherry. Martin Lloyd, a visiting mining engineer, pays court to Cherry and wins her promise to marry him.

"Peter is a dear fellow," the doctor mused. "But Cherry—why, she's barely eighteen! He—I don't suppose he really ever kissed her—!" The old man hesitated, began again: "Just fancy, he assured her, 'Just an old father's fear that she is growing up too fast!'"

"Because we all, and you especially, spoil her," Anne reminded him, smiling. "Peter," she added thoughtfully, "has kissed us all, now and then." "Has stooped for a dutiful good-night kiss, and was gone."

Downstairs, the doctor sat on, thinking, and his face was grave. He was thinking of little Cherry's good-night kiss, half an hour ago. She had rested against his arm, and he had held her there, but what had been the thoughts behind the blue eyes so near his own? He realized with a great rush of fear that some man had kissed Cherry to-night, had held her against a tobacco-scented coat, and that the girl was a woman, and an awakened woman at that. Cherry—kissed a man! Her father's heart winced away from the thought.

Young Lloyd and Peter had walked home with her. But if Anne was right in her maidenly suspicions of Lloyd's intentions, then it must have been Peter who surprised little Cherry with a sudden embrace.

And as he came to his conclusions a certain relief crept into the old man's heart. Peter was an odd fellow; he was ten years too old for the child. But Peter was a lover of books and gardens and woods and music, after all, and Peter's father and this old man musing by the fire had been "Lee" and "Paul" to each other since boyhood. Peter might give Cherry a kiss as innocently as a brother; in any case, Peter would wait for her, would be all consideration and tenderness when he did win her.

Cherry, he reflected fearfully, was as pretty as her mother had been at eighteen, with the same rounded chin and apricot cheeks, and the same shadowed innocent blue eyes with a film of corn-colored hair blown across them. She had the strange, the indefinable quality that without words, almost without glances, draws youth toward youth, draws admiration and passion, draws life and all its pain. Her father for the first time tonight formulated in his heart the thought that she might be happily married—!

Married—nonsense! Why, what did she know of life, of submission and courage and sacrifice? It would be years, many years, before the snowy frills, and the pale gold head, and the firm, brown little hand would be ready for that!

Not many hours after he went slowly up to bed morning began to creep into the little valley. Alix, at her early bath, heard quail calling, and looked out to see the last of the fog vanishing at eight o'clock, and to get a wet rush of fragrance from the Persian lilac, blossoming this year for the first time. At half-past eight she came out into the garden, to find her father somewhat ruefully studying the tumbled ruins of the yellow banksia rose. The garden was still wet, but warming fast; she picked a plume of dark and perfumed heliotrope, and began to fasten it in his coat lapel while she kissed him.

"We'll never get that back on the roof, my dear boy," Alix said maternally.

Her father pursed his lips, shook his head doubtfully. The rose, a short week ago, had been spreading fanlike branches well toward the ridge-pole, a story and a half above their heads. But the great wind of yesterday that had ended the spring and brought in the summer had dragged it from its place and flung it, a jumble of emerald leaves and sweet clusters of creamy blossoms, across the path and the steps of the porch. Alix tentatively tugged at a loose spray, and stood biting her thumb.

Her attention was distracted by the setter puppy who came clumsily gamboling toward her. "Hello, old Bumpy-doodles!" she said with rich affection, kissing the dog's silky head, and burying both hands in his feathered collar. "Hello, old Buck!"

"Alexandra, for heaven's sake stop handling that brute!" said Peter Joyce disgustedly, coming up the path. "I dare say you've not had your breakfast, either. Go wash your hands." "Morning, Doctor?"

Father and daughter turned to smile upon him, a tall, lean man, with a young face and a finely groomed head and with touches of premature silver at his temples.

He was a bachelor, just entering his thirties, a fastidious, critical, exacting man by reputation, but showing his best side to the Stricklands. They had a vague idea that he was rich, according to their modest standard, but he apparently had no extravagant tastes, and lived as quietly, or more quietly, than they did. He liked solitude, books, music, dogs, and his fire-side. The old doctor's one social enjoyment was in visiting Peter, and the younger man went to no other place so steadily as he came to the old house under the redwoods.

"Morning, Peter!" said Doctor Strickland now, smiling at him. "Have you had yours?"

"My house," said Mr. Joyce, fastidiously. "Is a well-managed place, say," he added, pursing his lips to whistle, as he looked at the rose tree, "did Tuesday's wind do that?"

"Tuesday's wind and Dad," Alix answered. "Will it go back, Peter?"

"I—I don't know!" he mused, walking slowly about the wreck. "If we had a lever down here, and some fellow on the roof with a rope, maybe."

"Mr. Lloyd is coming over!" Alix announced. Peter nodded absently, but the mention of Martin Lloyd reminded him that they had all dined at his house on the very evening when the mysterious gale had commenced, and with interest he asked:

"Cherry catch cold coming home Tuesday night?"

"No; she squeezed in between Dad and me, and was as warm as toast!" Alix answered casually. "How'd you like Mr. Lloyd?" she added.

"Nice fellow!" Peter answered.

"He's awfully nice," Alix agreed.

"Who is he?" Peter asked curiously.

"Where are his people and all that?"

"His people live in Portland," the girl answered. "He's a mining engineer, and he's waiting now to be called to El Nido; he's to be a mine there. He's lots of fun—when you know him, really!"

"Talking of the new Prince Charming, of course," Anne said, joining them, and linking an arm in her uncle's and in Alix's arm. "Don't bring that puppy in, Alix, please! Breakfast, Uncle Lee. Come and have another cup of coffee, Peter!"

"Prince Charming, eh?" Peter echoed thoughtfully, as they all turned toward a delicious drift of the odor of bacon and coffee, and crossed the porch to the dining room. "I was going down for the mail, but now I'll have to stay and see this rose matter through! Thanks, Anne, but I'll watch you. Where's Cherry?" he added, glancing about.

Cherry answered the question herself by trailing in in a Japanese wrapper, and beginning to drink her coffee with bare, slender arms resting on the table. Nobody protested, the adored youngest was usually given her way.

"I heard you all laughing under the window and it—woke-me-up!" Cherry said dreamily.

"It seems to me," Anne, who had been eyeing her uneasily, said lightly, "that some one I know is getting pretty old to come downstairs in that rig when strangers are here!"

"It seems to me this is just as decent as lots of things—bathing suits, for instance!" Cherry returned indignantly.

"Hello, Old Bumpy-doodles!" Said Alix, Burying Both Hands in His Feathered Collar.

stantly, gathering the robe about her, and giving Anne a resentful glance over her blue cap.

"I have a rope somewhere—" the doctor ruminated. "Where did I put that long rope—what did I have it for, in the first place—?"

"You had it to gay the apple tree," Alix reminded him. "The tree that died after all—"

"Ah, yes!" said her father, his attentive face brightening. "Ah, yes! Now where is that rope?" But even as Alix observed that she had seen it somewhere, and advanced a tentative guess as to the cellar, his eyes fell upon Cherry, and went from Cherry's absorbed face—for she was dreaming over her breakfast—to Peter, and he wondered if Peter had kissed her.

"Come on, let's get at it!" Alix exclaimed with relish. "Come on, Sweetums," she added, to the dog. She caught his forepaw, and he whipped his beautiful tail between his legs, and looked about with agonized eyes while she dragged him through a clumsy dance. "He's the darlinest pup we ever had!" Alix stated to Cherry, who was departing for the upper regions and a complete costume.

"Bring your cigarette out here, Peter," the old doctor said, crossing the garden to look in the abandoned greenhouse for his rope. "It's not here," he stated. Then he began again, "You brought Cherry home last night?" he asked.

"As a matter of fact, I didn't," Peter answered, in his quick, precise tones. "I came with Lloyd and Cherry as far as the bridge, then I cut up the hill. Why?" he added sharply.

"What's up?"

"Nothing's up," Doctor Strickland said slowly. "But I think Lloyd admires—or is beginning to admire—her," he said.

"Who—Cherry?" Peter exclaimed, with distaste and incredulity in his tone.

"You don't think so?" the doctor, looking at him wistfully, asked eagerly.

"Why, certainly not!" Peter said, his face very red. "She's much younger than Anne and Alix—"

"It doesn't always go by that," the doctor suggested.

"No, I know it doesn't," Peter answered in his quick, annoyed fashion.

"I should be sorry," Cherry's father admitted.

"Sorry?" Peter echoed impatiently. "But it's quite out of the question, of course! It's quite out of the question. She—she wouldn't consider him for an instant," he suddenly decided in great satisfaction. "You mustn't forget that she has something to do with it! Very fastidious, Cherry. She's not like other girls!"

"That's true—that's true!" Doctor Strickland agreed, in great relief. They turned back toward the garden, in time to meet Alix and several dogs, streaming across the clearing. Over the girl's shoulder was coiled the great rope; she leaped various logs and small bushes as she came, and the dogs barked madly and leaped with her. Breathless, she stumbled and fell into her father's arms, and both men had the same thoughts, one that made them smile upon her tomboyishness indulgently: "If this is twenty-one—eighteen is three long years younger and less responsible!"

CHAPTER II.

Immediately they gathered by the fallen rose vine, all talking and disputing at once. A light rope was tied; an experimental tug broke it like a string, tumbling Alix violently in a sitting position, and precipitating her father into a loamy bed. Anne, who was bargaining with a Chinese fruit vendor frankly interested in their undertaking, had called that she would help them in a second, when behind Alix, who was still sitting on the ground, another voice offered help.

A young man had come into the doctor's garden; work was stopped for a few minutes while they welcomed Martin Lloyd.

He was tall and fair, broad, but with not an ounce of extra weight, with brown eyes always laughing, and a ready friendliness always in evidence. Anne's heart gave a throb of approval as she studied him; Alix flushed furiously, scowled a certain boyish approval; Cherry had not come down.

"Can you help us?" The doctor echoed his question doubtfully. "I don't know that it can be done," he admitted.

"What's that you're eating—an apricot?" Martin said to Anne, in his laughing way. "I was going to say that if it was a peach, you are a cannibal!"

"Oh, help!" Alix ejaculated, with a look of elaborate scorn.

"No, but where were you last night?" Martin added in a lower tone when he and Anne could speak untroubled. The happy color flooded her face.

"I have to take care of my family sometimes!" she reminded him demurely. "Wasn't Cherry a good substitute?"

"Cherry's adorable!" he agreed.

"Isn't she sweet?" Anne asked enthusiastically. "She's only a little girl, really, but she's a little girl who is going to have a lot of attention some day!" she added, in her most matronly manner.

Martin did not answer, but turning briskly toward the doctor, he devoted himself to the business in hand.

They were all deep in the first united tug, each person placed carefully by the doctor, and gyps for the rope driven at intervals decided by Martin, when there was an interruption for Cherry's arrival on the scene. With characteristic coquetry she did not approach, as the others had, by means of the front porch and the garden path, but crept from the study window into a veritable tunnel of green bloom, and came crawling down it, as sweet and fragrant, as lovely and as fresh, as the roses themselves. Her bright head was hidden by a blue sunbonnet, assumed, she explained later, because the thorns tangled her hair; but as, laughing and smothered with roses, she crept into view, the sunbonnet slipped back, and the lovely, flushed little face, with tendrils of gold straying across the white forehead, and mischief gleaming in the blue, blue eyes was framed only in loosened pale gold hair.

Years afterward Alix remembered her so, as Martin Lloyd helped her to spring free of the branches, and she stood laughing at their surprise and still clinging to his hand. "The day we raised the rose tree" had a place of its own in Alix's memory, as a time of carefree fun and content, a time of perfume and sunshine—perhaps the last time of its kind that any one of them was to know.

Cherry looked at Martin daringly as she joined the laborers; her whole being was thrilling to the excitement of his glance; she was hardly conscious of what she was doing or saying. Martin came close to her, in the general confusion.

"How's my little sweetheart this morning?"

Cherry looked up, her throat contracted, she looked down again, unable to speak. She had been waiting for his first word; now that it had come it seemed so far richer and sweeter than her wildest dream.

"How can I see you a minute?" Martin murmured, snapping his big knife shut.

"I have to walk down for the mail—" stammered Cherry, conscious only of Martin and herself.

Both Peter and her father were watching her with an uneasiness and suspicion that had sprung into being full-blown. Both men were asking themselves what they knew of this strange young man who was suddenly a part of their intimate little world.

Peter, in his secret heart, had a vague, dissatisfied feeling that Lloyd was a man who held women, as a class, rather in disrespect, and had probably had his experiences with them, but there was no way of expressing, much less governing his conduct toward Martin by so purely speculative a prejudice. Somewhat appalled, in the sunny garden, struggling with the banksia, Peter decided that this was not much to know of a person who might have the audacity to fall in love with an exquisite and innocent Cherry. After all, she would not be a little girl forever; some man would want to take that little corn-colored head and that delicious little pink-clad person away with him some day, to be his wife—

And suddenly Peter was torn by a stab of pure pain, and he stood puzzled and sick, in the garden bed, wondering what was happening to him.

"Listen—want a drink?" Alix asked, coming out with a tin dipper that spilled a glittering shower of water down the thirsty nasturtiums. "Rest a few minutes, Peter. Dad wanted a pole, and Mr. Lloyd has gone up into the woods to cut one."

"And where's Cherry?" Peter asked, drinking deep.

"She went along—just up in the woods here!" Alix answered. "They'll be back before you could get there. They've been gone five minutes!"

Five minutes were enough to take Cherry and her lover out of sight of the house, enough to have him put his arm about her, and to have her raise her lips confidently, and yet shyly, again to his. They kissed each other deeply, again and again.

Their talk was incoherent, Cherry was still playing, coquetting and smiling, her words few, and Martin, having her so near, could only repeat the endearing phrases that attempted to express to her his love and fervor.

"You darling! Do you know how I love you? You darling—you little exquisite beauty! Do you love me—do you love me?" Martin murmured, and Cherry answered breathlessly:

"You know I do—but you know I do!"

"Congratulate these creatures—they are going to be married!"

Land Seized Under Guise of Science.
The Cameroons and Togoland, which are now under the mandate of Great Britain by authority of the treaty of Versailles, were handed over to Emperor William by a German professor whose ostensible interest in the black races was scientific.

Gustave Nachtigal (1824 to 1885) had made many exploring trips into Africa and brought back tales of commercial and other possibilities that strongly appealed to Bismarck. In 1884, the Iron Chancellor instructed Nachtigal to explore certain regions on behalf of the government, and when the scientist had arrived at his destination, a German officer who had accompanied him at the special direction of Bismarck, instructed him to plant the German flag on the roof of the hut of the greatest chief of the country and to declare the population subject to the scepter of the German kaiser.

Gives Deaf Partial Hearing.
A new development by which partly deaf persons may be made to hear, was shown recently at a meeting of the Faraday society. Kilburt Scott exhibited crystals of rochelle salt, made artificially, which possessed the remarkable power of reproducing sounds. Mr. Scott explained that deaf persons could wear a small crystal behind the ear, connected with a little soundbox worn over the chest. The sounds of conversation would then be transmitted to the ear-drum in the form of vibrations which would enable them to hear.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Settlement of Shantung Controversy Announced to the Arms Conference.

NAVAL TREATY IS APPROVED

Agreements on Poison Gas, Submarines and Chinese Questions Also Indorsed—Senate Passes Foreign Debt Refunding Bill—Senator Kenyon Is Made Federal Circuit Judge.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

SECRETARY OF STATE Hughes and Arthur J. Balfour accomplished a great feat of real diplomacy last week when they succeeded in persuading China and Japan to accept the compromise arrangement by which the long-standing and troublesome Shantung controversy is brought to an end. The settlement was announced on Wednesday to the fifth plenary session of the conference, and both the statesmen voiced their personal rejoicing over it because it was their own plan. Mr. Balfour went further and told something that aroused the conferees to cheers. He said that Great Britain had decided to enter at once into negotiations for the restoration of China of the territory of Wei-Hai-Wei, which it has held under lease since the time when Russia seized Port Arthur. Thus China will get back sovereignty over her most ancient and most thickly-populated province in its entirety.

In all major details the agreement between Japan and China is as was told in these columns a week ago. Japan is to get out of Tsingtao and the salt fields within six months, and is to give up the Tsingtao-Tsinanfu railway within nine months.

The one discordant note in Washington was sounded by Ma So, representative of the Canton government. He asserted the Chinese people would not recognize the treaty agreed upon in the conference.

Mr. Hughes presented to the conference the completed draft of the naval limitation treaty with the agreement on Pacific fortifications, and it was formally adopted. No material change in the treaty as already detailed had been made, and the Pacific agreement also stands in the main as formerly described. According to the fortifications clause the status quo must be maintained by America in the Philippine and Aleutian islands; by Great Britain in Hongkong and the Pacific islands east of 110 degrees east longitude; by Japan in the Kurile, Bonin and Loochoo islands, Amami-Oshima, Formosa and the Pescadores.

In presenting the five-power naval pact, Mr. Hughes said:

"This treaty absolutely ends the race in competition of naval armaments. At the same time it leaves the security of nations unimpaired. It is significant of far more also, because here we are talking of arms in the language of peace and have taken the greatest forward step to establish the reign of peace."

Albert Sarraut, head of the French delegation, took the opportunity again to correct misapprehensions concerning his country's naval policy. He said France had appealed for only what she must have to defend herself, and added: "The camouflaged ghost of imperialistic France which German propaganda parades about the universe may still deceive a few artless minds, but it will soon evoke nothing but smiles."

Edith Root presented for approval the five power treaty outlawing poison gas and the use of the submarine against merchant shipping. He explained that it does not undertake to codify international law in regard to visit and search, but to state the most important provisions which already are a part of the law of nations.

"It does undertake," said Mr. Root, "to stop the violation of these rules and the doing to death of women and children and other noncombatants by declaring the wanton destruction of merchant vessels carrying passengers to be a violation of the laws of war and an act of piracy. This treaty will be supported by the greatest power known to history. It crystallizes in simple and concrete terms the opinion of the civilized world that already exists in order that hereafter no nation shall dare to do what was done when the women and children of the Lusitania went to their death by wanton murder on the high seas."

In completing a wonderful day's work, the conference gave its approval to resolutions relating to China, to be embodied in treaties, including declaration of the open door, publication of existing treaties, agreements and commitments with China, radio establishments in China, Chinese railways, withdrawal of foreign postoffices, withdrawal of foreign troops from Chinese territory, and reduction of Chinese military forces in the interest of economy and internal tranquility. These treaties, not yet drafted, are to be reported to the next plenary session of the conference, which probably will be its last.

The question of reducing their land forces by one-half was presented to the governments of two nations. By one it was rejected, and the same action is expected in the other case. To the central executive committee of the Russian soviet government, Lenin proposed that the Russian army be cut in half, with a view to meeting the wishes of the United States. Leon Trotsky spoke in opposition and the committee rejected the plan. In the Japanese diet the Kokuminto party brought forward the same proposition. The war office opposed it, having a plan of its own which contemplates reductions in personnel and the strengthening of armaments and equipment. The minister of war says the idea of halving the army is preposterous in view of the fact that the Russian army is still a million strong and can be transported easily with the restoration of the Trans-Siberian railway. It was considered that political reasons would prevent the adoption of the Kokuminto resolution.

WITH the exception of the United States all the nations asked to participate in the Genoa conference in March have accepted the invitation. The French government has announced that it will be represented, because it feels itself bound by the action of former Premier Briand at the Cannes meeting of the supreme council. Premier Poincare is devoting much attention to the German reparations problem and has asked the other allied governments to state their views as to the procedure that should be adopted in regard to the latest proposals made by Germany. He intimates that France prefers to leave the whole matter in the hands of the reparations commission, as the treaty of Versailles provides. Lenin has sent word to Italy that he personally will head the Russian delegation in Genoa.

THE senate of the United States passed the bill for refunding the foreign debt into securities maturing in not more than 25 years. The vote was 39 to 23, three Republicans—Borah, La Follette and Norris—joining the Democratic opposition. The measure is virtually as the administration recommended, though it was said President Harding didn't like some of its provisions. Senator Simmons of North Carolina offered an amendment providing for the use of the interest on the allied loans to pay a soldiers' bonus, and Senator Jones of New Mexico offered another providing for the payment of the bonus directly out of the treasury. Both were defeated. Senator McCumber stating a bill was now being prepared that would give adjusted compensation to the former service men. Senator Borah denounced the bill as a scheme whose ultimate purpose was the cancellation of the entire foreign debt.

PRESIDENT Harding and Senator Kenyon together furnished the country with a great surprise last week. The President nominated the Iowa statesman to be judge of the United States Circuit court, Eighth circuit, and Mr. Kenyon at once announced his acceptance. The senate was astonished, but did not hesitate to confirm the nomination. Democratic leaders expressed the belief that the President, by one of the chiefs of the agricultural bloc. Mr. Kenyon himself issued this statement:

"The President has known since our service together in the senate that political life did not appeal to me and that my ambition was to serve on the federal bench. I am deeply appreciative of the act of the President in appointing me to this position."

In Washington it was believed Representative Burton Sweet of Iowa would succeed Kenyon in the senate. An announced candidate for the place is H. O. Weaver, Iowa lawyer and farmer, president of the American Shorthorn Breeders' association and of the Iowa Agricultural society.

NEARLY one hundred persons perished when the roof of the Knickerbocker movie theater in Washington collapsed under the weight of a heavy snowfall. Nearly all the victims were killed instantly, but one, and perhaps the most prominent, survived several days. This was Edward H. Shaughnessy of Chicago, second assistant postmaster general. The house district of Columbia committee has under consideration a plan to purchase the site of the theater and transform it into a park in which shall be erected a memorial to those who lost their lives in the disaster.

This terrible accident in the Capital marked the worst storm that the Atlantic coast states have experienced in many years. Deep snow, high gales and severe cold almost paralyzed many cities and greatly hampered railway transportation.

IT is probable that before this is in the hands of the reader the successor to Pope Benedict XV will have been chosen. The sacred college began its conclave in the Vatican on Thursday with 52 cardinals present. Several others were on their way there. In accordance with ancient custom, the cardinals were cut off from communication with the outside world until their task should be completed, and the only sign of their doings was the periodical smoke wreath from the chimney of the Sistine chapel when each secret ballot was burned. Before the voting began both the Italian and French governments had denied having any favorite candidate. It was thought the successful cardinal would be one who would moderately continue the policies of Benedict, and many believed Gasparri had the best chance.

BECAUSE the Italian government saw fit to recognize the death of the late pope the opposition element were enabled to get together, and on Thursday Premier Bonomi and his cabinet announced their resignation. They had retained the support of only the Catholic party and a small group of reform Socialists.

SECRETARY OF War Weeks submitted to congress Henry Ford's offer for the government projects at Muscle Shoals, Ala., "for such action as congress may deem appropriate." Mr. Weeks did not advise either acceptance or rejection, but he said if the proposal were accepted "the government must make new appropriations amounting to $40,000,000 to $50,000,000, of which Mr. Ford will have the benefit for approximately 100 years at 4 per cent."

In the event the offer be rejected, the secretary gave it as his "opinion that dam No. 2 (Wilson dam) should be completed by the government and that the power requirements for commercial purposes, the benefits to navigation, as well as the possible needs of the government would warrant this expenditure."

COAL operators last week declared there must be a radical reduction in the wage scale, which expires March 31. Mine union and railroad union leaders laid plans for co-operative action to prevent a lowering of miners' wages. Consequently a strike seems inevitable, and the national government, through Attorney General Dougherty, began planning to meet the crisis. What steps Mr. Dougherty contemplates is not known, but in discussing the matter he pledged support of unions as long as they are lawfully conducted, but questioned their right to impose the closed-shop principle. An important feature of the controversy is the proposal of the operators to abolish the check-off system, under which union dues are deducted from miners' pay.

ROAD BUILDING

SCRUBBING-BOARD SURFACES

Bureau of Public Roads Building Experimental Highway to Determine Cause of Waves.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

What causes a "tarred" road to develop that peculiar scrubbing-board surface is a question that has been worrying the highway engineers quite as much as the long-suffering public. As often as not the symptoms appear in a macadam road that has been treated with asphalt. But the trouble is largely confined to roads built with tar or asphalt. Concrete and brick roads never develop such a surface, and ordinary dirt roads seldom do.

The bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture is building at the Arlington (Va.) experimental farm an experimental roadway 15 feet wide in an attempt to discover the cause of the trouble. The road is laid out in the form of a circle with a 90-foot radius, and its circumference, 565 feet in length, is to be divided into sections, each of which will be surfaced with a different kind of asphalt or tarred surface.

The experimental sections will be built exactly like actual road surfaces and when completed they will carry a "traffic" as much like actual traffic as it is possible to devise. The "traffic" will be supplied by a driverless motortruck which will be held to the circular path by means of a long arm extending from the center. The course of the truck will be altered from time to time so that the entire width of the roadway will be traveled.

It has not been possible to determine the cause by observation of actual roads because there are too many unknown quantities. The defect may be due to distortion of the earth under the road surface or to defects in the surface itself. It is probably caused Treating the Surface of a Macadam Road With Bituminous Material.

In some way by the wheels of motor vehicles—how and why the engineers have not determined, largely because they have never possessed all the facts with regard to surface and subsurface conditions and character and weight of traffic.

OILED ROADS ARE APPROVED

Operation Must Be Performed Intelligently or It Will Make Conditions Worse.

The American Highway Bulletin, which approves of oiled roads, observes that oiling must be performed intelligently or it will make conditions worse instead of better. According to this authority it is useless to oil a dirt road which is not thoroughly drained and properly graded. It is a waste of money to oil a road which does not have a smooth hard surface free from dust. If the surface is uneven, oil collects in shallow depressions and softens the surface so that after the first heavy rain the travel tends to make mudholes at these places. If there is dust on the road, the oil combines with the dust to form a sort of mat, which the travel over it quickly breaks up into large flakes or scales. But if the road is in proper condition to receive the oil and the right kind of oil is used, the oil penetrates into the pores of the earth for a depth of several inches, sealing them with an asphaltic binding material which unites the surface into a tougher mass than the original surface. The oil cannot make the road any harder, for only stone or gravel will accomplish that, but it will prevent the displacement of the earth particles under any loads which an earth road is adapted to carry. If the oiled surface is immediately covered with a thin layer of clean, hard sand, the travel will not disturb the oil and the travelers will suffer less inconvenience.

Gate for Crossings.
A new safety gate for railroad crossings is designed which stretches across the road like the old style gate, but is flexible and elastic, so that it gives instead of breaks when run into. The gate will force the vehicle backwards, away from danger.

Useless Work on Roads.
Work on dirt roads at this season is worse than useless unless the soil is very dry and the road is hard rolled after working.

A FRIEND IN NEED A FRIEND INDEED

Writes Mrs. Hardee Regarding Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Los Angeles, Calif.—"I must tell you that I am a true friend to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have taken it off and on for twenty years and it has helped me change from a delicate girl to a stout, healthy woman. When I was married I was sick all the time until I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was in bed much of my time with pains and had to have the doctor every month. One day I found a little book in my yard in Guthrie, Oklahoma, and I read it through and got the medicine—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—and took eight bottles and used the Sanative Wash. I at once began to get stronger. I have got many women to take it just by telling them what it has done for me. I have a young sister whom it has helped in the same way it helped me. I want you to know that I am a 'friend indeed,' for you were a friend indeed."

CONDITIONS GOVERN SELECTION.

Planters and breeders have their likes and dislikes, just as people show in selecting hats, clothes, watches or clocks, tractors, cultivators or windmills. What is best character and variety of crops or animals for one may not be best for another. The man who has made a success in breeding Duroc hogs conscientiously believes that breed to be the acme of perfection and can't understand why others choose another breed. Same way with varieties of corn, cotton, melons and fruit. Probably the breeders of poultry are stronger in their preferences than any others. It is pretty well established that anyone will succeed best with growing crops or raising animals that, after investigation, he selects as best for himself and conditions governing his choice. If a section becomes famous for producing crops of a certain variety or animals or poultry of one breed, buyers find it out, and the result is better prices for those who have assisted in making that particular location pre-eminent. Investigate carefully, then decide what you can grow or raise better than you have been growing, says Farm and Ranch. Preference and enthusiasm in growing crops, under suitable conditions, are dominant factors in achieving success. "Be sure you are right, then go ahead," and don't let your enthusiasm and confidence drag.

President Ebert of Germany is reported to be on the verge of a strike. He has, in fact, given the reichstag an ultimatum, and it is this—that if something is not done to increase his salary by a few truckloads of paper marks he will not become a candidate to succeed himself when his term expires. The President is now getting 120,000 marks, with 100,000 extra for the entertainment of foreign ministers. Reduced to dollars, the regular salary is a little under $1,000, at the present rate of exchange, and the entertainment fund is about $500. The incident proves that the German republic is not the expensive affair in its executive branch that the German empire was, says the New York Globe. Ex-Kaiser Bill drew $4,427,000 officially as "the crown" in Prussia, and multiplied this sum by income from many estates and funds not reckoned in the budget. The Kaiser would spend on one meal what President Ebert gets in a year.

Verily the days of internationalism are here, at least as far as the element of sport is concerned, says the Christian Science Monitor. Before the war, who could have foreseen that Czechoslovakia would play in a Davis lawn tennis cup tie at Prague for the world championship against Belgium? Or that Japan would go into the semi-finals for the same cup without the necessity of raising a racquet, as a result of the default of the Belgian team to make the trip to the United States? The Philippines, it appears, had previously defaulted to Japan in the opening round, and it then remained for Japan to face India in August. Who knows but that we may soon have Jugo-Slavia, Latvia, awakened China, Cuba, Malta and that other "British dominion," Ireland, in the next contest!

The Bulgarian minister of education is showing an excellent idea of the dignity of labor. He has decreed by means of a bill that every Bulgarian boy or girl must undergo a week of manual or agricultural labor every year. Among the things the children will learn during the week is the binding of books, and that is where, particularly, the minister of education comes in, though apparently the correlation of manual labor and education has already been satisfactorily shown in the projection of school buildings against floods by students in Sofia.

Man should not live by bread alone, but if restricted to that sort of diet, he could get more varieties of bread from corn than from any other cereal. Corn is the greatest all-around grain and it is a reflection on general intelligence that it cannot be sold for enough to pay the cost of its production.

It has been figured out that 88 cents of every dollar paid to our government in taxes goes to pay for past, present and future war purposes. Judging by what we're getting out of it, they might just as well shoot the other twelve.

EXPANDING HOTEL LIFE.

One more new hotel is under way in New York, the largest in the world, covering a city block and 35 stories high. To this have come the "inns" of the early days which once provided a tarrying place for the infrequent traveler, whose arrival was an event. Now, a hotel will swallow a whole convention and never blink one of its thousand eye-windows. But the population of great caravansaries is by no means composed of strangers. Thousands make their permanent homes there, free from every care of household affairs, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. There isn't one house-keeping task to lay its lightest burden on the hotel guest, save, perhaps, the punching up of the fire in the grate, for among other charms transplanted from the home are fires in grates. These "charms" cost money, but ease in any case does that. Were it not for the outlay, the number of hotel residents would be multiplied by millions; and since we are now well into the era of many-storied hotels it is reasonable to expect the numbers will be built to exactly suit moderate incomes. Wonders can be accomplished in economies when it is known that ready money waits.

Children as well as parents and educators will watch with interest the four schools opening in a neighboring city for experiments in some phases of what is known as "natural education," although in judging the power of at least one of the schools to hold the interest of the pupils, the fact that the teacher will serve hot chocolate along with the lessons, must be taken into consideration. The experimental schools will be conducted on the plan of directing the children to teach themselves, the teacher eliminating himself as much as possible at least in the minds of the children, writes May Stranathan in the Pittsburgh Post. For instance, instead of compelling the child to memorize and recite the multiplication table, and tables of weights and measures, arithmetic will be learned by the use of the yardstick in measuring goods, and the use of weights and measures in weighing ingredients for cooking. Short cuts to education will be tried in these schools and the results carefully noted.

An opportunity to enjoy the advantages and happy experiences of the kindergarten is the birthright of every child, but there are still 4,000,000 of our little ones for whom no kindergartens have been supplied, writes John J. Tigert, United States commissioner of education. Francis Hodgson Burnett has said: "One generation, one entire generation of all the world of children, understood as they should be, loved as they ask to be, and developed as they might be, would more than bring the millennium." The kindergarten not only recognizes the educational value of the early years of childhood, but is an ideal preparation for the grades to follow, and for a higher, finer type of citizenship, for it expresses the spirit of America and its institutions. I strongly urge the parents of little children residing in communities in which there are no kindergartens to request their school boards to establish them.

Psychology, and not medicine, is the secret of longevity, according to Dr. A. H. Warner of New York. He addressed a session of the Allied Medical Association of America. Because the Bible says that a life shall be three-score years and ten the people expect to die when they reach that age, he asserted. "It's all wrong. They have just hypnotized themselves into the belief because it's in the Bible. Given a sound constitution and a clean record, there is no reason why a man or woman should not reach one hundred and fifty years. I'm seventy-two now, and I intend to live to one hundred. If life still looks good to me at that age, I think I shall continue on the job for another half century. It's simply a matter of psychology and good living."

Suing for a divorce, a wife declared that her husband threatened to cut her heart out and carry it around on a stick, and even went so far as to order their daughter to start the grindstone for sharpening the knife. It was at about that time, it seems, that the wife decided to cut him out.

There is no strong popular interest in the speculations as to communication with Mars. Earth has so many perplexities of its own at present that it cannot be expected to encourage an effort on the part of another planet to tell its troubles.

Phonograph owners who have records that they have grown tired of are asked to send them to a hospital. This hospital would get more records if it would ask for the records that the neighbors have grown tired of.

You can tell the age of a tree by its rings, a horse by its teeth, a man by his wrinkles and a coin by its date, but it takes a mighty clever bit of scientific deduction to tell the age of our modern daughters of Eve.

OBITUARY

Marguerite Kemp Brantley, the youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Brantley was born July 8, 1916. She was 5 years, three months and 24 days old. One of her greatest delights was to go to church and Sunday School and only a few days ago she asked her mother when would it be church day again, so she could go and see her friends.

Each night she said her little prayer, "Now I lay me down to sleep I pray the Lord my soul to keep, if I should die before I wake I pray the Lord my soul to take. Bless Mama, Papa and everybody in the wide world., in Jesus' name, Amen."

Since her illness she had tried to sing "Amazing Grace", Jesus Lover of My Soul," then she would clap her hands and say "Praise the Lord." She leaves to mourn her loss a mother, father, three brothers, and two sisters, a host of relatives and friends. The eldest brother, D. D. Brantley of Providence, Mack and Thomas, who are at home with their parents; Mrs. A. T. Brown, sister, of Blackford and other sister, Carrie, who is at home.

The funeral was conducted by Rev. W. T. Oakley, assisted by Rev. Boucher, King and Richardson in the presence of the largest crowd of people we ever saw at a child's funeral. The funeral was held at Oak Grove church and interment in Oak Grove cemetery. The floral offering was beautiful. Everything that could be done for little Marguerite was done, we would have kept her if we could but we could not. God took her to Himself.

THIN FRAIL PEOPLE SHOULD TAKE TANLAC

Hundreds of Men and Women All Over America Appear To Be Physical Wrecks Simply Because Their Systems Are Starving for Nourishment.

There are hundreds of thin, run-down, nervous men and women all over the United States who should be strong, sturdy and vigorous, with rich, red blood tingling through their veins and feeling brimful of life and energy, if they would only profit by the experience of others all over the United States and Canada, and assist nature to digest the food they eat, by simply taking Tanlac.

Millions of people have not only been relieved of the most obstinate forms of dyspepsia and indigestion by Tanlac after other remedies have failed, but large numbers of them have reported a remarkable and rapid increase in weight and a return to normal health and strength by its use.

In fact, so phenomenal have been the gains in weight by thin, frail people through the use of Tanlac that this remarkable preparation is now being proclaimed everywhere as the World's Greatest Tonic.

The food people eat does them absolutely no good unless they digest it properly. When you suffer from indigestion and other forms of stomach trouble, the food does you harm instead of good, because food which is not digested stays in the stomach and ferments, causing pains, swelling, gas on stomach, shortness of breath, bad taste in the mouth, dizziness and many other disagreeable symptoms. If this condition is permitted to run on for an indefinite period the entire system becomes saturated with poisons, the patient becomes thin and pale and in time various complications are apt to result.

Tanlac is a powerful reconstructive tonic and quickly overcomes this condition by aiding Nature to eliminate the impurities from the system in a natural way and enable the vital organs to properly perform their functions. That is why it is called Nature's Medicine.

In fact, there is not a single portion of the body that is not benefited by the helpful action of Tanlac, which begins its work by stimulating the digestive and assimilative organs, thereby enriching the blood and invigorating the entire system. Next, it enables the weak, worn-out stomach to thoroughly digest its food and convert the nourishing elements into bone, blood and muscle. The result is you feel strong, sturdy and well with the proper amount of flesh, as Nature intended. Sold by all good druggists.

FUNDS PROBE IS DEMANDED

Lorillard Spencer, New York, Representing Legion, Asks for Investigation of Distribution.

Charges that money collected by radical organizations for relief were being diverted into propaganda made in a meeting of the National Civic Federation, New York city, by Lorillard Spencer, New York, representing the American Legion, who has called for a general investigation of relief fund distribution.

Spencer cited the Sacco-Vanzetti case to illustrate how propagandizing machinery is being speeded up, and his resolution mentioned the springing up of "numerous organizations now engaged in raising funds represented to be for Russian relief."

Although the activities of the independent relief organizations were up for attack, speakers were careful to emphasize the need of relief in Russia as distributed by the American relief administration.

THE LIVE WIRE SECRETARY

Miss Coletta Bartholemey, Official of the Oregon Auxiliary, Knows How to Get Results.

Live wire methods at entertainments, hospital visits, banquets and dances won for Miss Coletta Bartholemey the election as executive secretary of the American Legion auxiliary in Oregon. That Miss Bartholemey fills the bill is the consensus of opinion in Oregon. She is reported as being one of the most executive of secretaries and at the same time one of the most secretarial of executives that has ever joined the auxiliary. Under her capable management the organization is making huge strides and is reporting progress in every department.

Totally Obscured.

A certain fellow Chicago swimmer had an amazingly large mouth which he contented into an all-pervading smile when he wished to make a good impression. His sweetie had persuaded him to "ask father," and the youth was determined to show himself to good advantage.

"Master Jones," he began, stretching his principal feature to the utmost of geniality. "I have come to ask for the hand of your daughter. I—" "Just a moment, young man," interrupted the old gentleman mildly; "would you mind closing your mouth for a moment till I see who you are?"—American Legion Weekly.

One Way Round.

A Washington butcher one day delivered a pair of chickens to a tender-hearted housewife. She shuddered when she saw them.

"I should think," she said, "you would never have the heart to chop the heads off these innocent chickens."

"Ma'am," replied the butcher, "I haven't. That was one of the great problems of life, until I discovered a way out of it. Since then I haven't had a quail of conscience."

"How in the world do you do it?"

"I don't chop the heads off the chickens any more. I chop the chickens off the heads."—American Legion Weekly.

So Sorry to Trouble.

A woman in an Ohio hotel came down to the office one evening and asked if she could get a glass of water. The clerk agreeably obliged and she disappeared with it, returning quickly for another.

"I'm so sorry to trouble you," she said.

The clerk assured her that it was no trouble but when she returned for a third glass and then a fourth he became curious and asked her what she wanted with so much water.

"I know you'll just scream when I tell you," she said, "but I'm trying to put out a fire in my room."—American Legion Weekly.

Marshal Fech's Advice.

"The way to move forward is by patience, by earnest endeavor, by diligent study, by tireless work," says Marshal Fech, who did a fair share of moving forward during the war. "Plan your battle of life in advance. Map out every detail of what you want to accomplish, and then follow out your program." The Marshal gives his formula for success in two sentences: "He who hesitates is lost. He who moves forward wins."

JOB GO TO EX-SERVICE MEN

British Legion Secures Promise From Government to Give Employment to Former Soldiers.

The British Legion, formed from three veteran organizations with constitution and by-laws modeled after the American Legion, has secured a promise from the English government that in public works for the benefit of the unemployed 75 per cent of the jobs shall be given ex-service men.

With King George's approval, the Legion works through Britain's consulates and all employers showing a preference for ex-service men are permitted a special seal and their names are inscribed on the King's Roll.

The British Legion, sponsored by Field Marshal Haig, came into being in July, 1919. It has 1,300 posts and a membership running into millions, is nonsectarian, nonpolitical and one of its ideals is the sanctifying "of our comradeship by devotion to mutual service and helpfulness." It is preparing to send unemployed ex-service men to British Columbia and Australia, where they will be welcomed. "The ultimate goal of the Legion," says Lord Haig, "must be the uplifting of the whole empire, the creating of a happier and more God-fearing community."

TO AID THE EX-SERVICE MEN

Henry Opydyke's Job is to Speed Up Veterans' Bureau Work in Second District.

Lubricating the machinery now in motion for the care of veterans in New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut, is the task assigned to Henry G. Opydyke. His job will be to speed up the work of the United States Veterans' bureau in the second district, where he has been appointed manager. "Service for the ex-service man" is the policy announced by Opydyke, who since the war has been active in the Broadway post of the American Legion. In his plan to rehabilitate the soldier he aims to bring the school work directly under government supervision so that exploitation of veterans, through contract schools, will be impossible.

The new appointee is a veteran of two wars.

LIKED IN ROLE OF "VICTORY"

Marjorie Rambeau Stars at Ball Given by the Legion at Waldorf Astoria Hotel.

Marjorie Rambeau knows what it means to be victorious. She won a victory in "Eyes of Youth" and in "Daddy's Gone a-Huntin'" and in countless other plays. For these and other good reasons she was chosen to play the part of Victory herself at the victory ball given by the American Legion at the Waldorf Astoria hotel, New York. None of the many social leaders and stage stars who appeared there in the historical pageant had a more agreeable part to play than Miss Rambeau, and persons attending the ball noticed that her "eyes of youth" were particularly bright and victorious on that occasion.

Carrying On With the American Legion

The town of St. Charles, Minn., has received a fully equipped rest room from the Woman's Auxiliary of the American Legion.

A lycum course unexcelled in any city of its size is being presented to the city of Christopher, Ill., by the local post of the American Legion.

Soon Austria plans to abandon her paid professional army, substituting a paid militia with a six months' training period for a limited number of recruits.

Oklahoma is planning the erection of a half million dollar triumphal arch, in Oklahoma City, in honor of the 1,000 ex-service men of that city who died in the World war.

Secretary of War Weeks has approved a new style cap for army officers. It is called the "Pershing cap," and differs only in that the visor is longer and at a sharper angle. The top is an inch broader and slightly higher.

A survey conducted by the U. S. Veterans' bureau at the State hospital for criminal insane, Dannemora, N. Y., revealed 48 ex-service men held in confinement for crimes ranging from simple assault to manslaughter. All such men will be examined and if their disability is found to be a result of their war service they will benefit by the relief provided by the government for disabled soldiers, the bureau announces.

POULTRY FLOCKS

TURKEY EGGS FOR HATCHING

They Should Be Gathered Daily Where There is Danger of Them Being Destroyed.

When there is danger that turkey eggs may be chilled or destroyed they should be gathered every day, and a nest egg left in each nest. Skunks, opossums, rats, crows, and dogs are the greatest destroyers of turkey eggs, although occasionally minks, raccoons, coyotes, wolves, foxes, cats, and certain large snakes also eat eggs. When a turkey hen has been disturbed by one of these pests, she may change her nest to some other place and abandon the eggs.

Eggs for hatching should be kept at a temperature of as near 50 degrees or 60 degrees F. as possible, and should be turned over every day, say poultry specialists in the United States Department of Agriculture. They should be jarred as little as possible while handling and should be incubated while fresh, never holding more than two weeks if it can be avoided. It is an excellent plan to mark the date on each egg as it is gathered, in order to be certain that no eggs are kept too long before they are incubated.

PICKING DUCKS FOR BREEDING

Active, Healthy Females of Medium Size Are Recommended—Use Only Mature Fowls.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Ducks are usually mated in flocks of about thirty females with five or six males, as the drakes do not fight one another. The number of males may be reduced to one for every seven females about the first of March, and again changed a month later to one male for eight to ten females.

Active, healthy females of medium size should be used for breeding; that is, weighing about eight pounds when mature. Only mature birds should be used as breeders. Select ducks with short necks, medium long bodies, flat bones, and of good depth to the keel bones. Watery eyes usually are a sign of weakness in ducks. The drake is coarser and more masculine in appearance than the duck, and has a distinct curl in his tail feathers. Ducks should be sold, usually, after they are two years old, although the best breeders or layers may be kept over their third year, say poultry specialists in the United States Department of Agriculture.

In handling ducks, pick them up by their necks, as their legs are very easily broken. Ducks lay their eggs early in the morning, and should be confined to the house or pen until 9:30 or 10 o'clock in the morning. If allowed to roam early in the morning they may lay in a pond or stream and the eggs may be lost.

SEEK VACCINE FOR CHICKENS

Field and Laboratory Tests Are Being Conducted at the Kansas Agricultural College.

Experiments involving many field and laboratory tests are being conducted at the Kansas State Agricultural college to determine the efficacy of a vaccine for fowls to prevent cholera, typhoid and roup. It has been determined that cholera and roup are caused by the same organism. In field tests a vaccine produced at the college by Prof. F. R. Bandette has given some very satisfactory results and this is now being tested out in the laboratory. If these tests are successful more field work will be done by college experts. No vaccine is being given out at this time because the chemists are not in a position yet to guarantee it.

PRODUCING EGGS IN WINTER

Palatable Mash Can Be Made From Mixture of Bran, Meat Scraps, Oats and Meal.

A palatable mash which should produce winter eggs in a well-bred flock of fowls kept in light, roomy and sanitary quarters, can be made as follows: One hundred pounds of bran, 100 pounds of gluten meal, 100 pounds of meat scrap, 150 pounds of crushed oats and 150 pounds of cornmeal. Two ounces of this mash, with one and one-half ounces of cracked corn, and one-half ounce of whole oats should be fed to each hen daily.

EVEN CAREFUL CALOMEL USERS ARE SALIVATED

Next Dose of Treacherous Drug May Start Misery for You.

Calomel is dangerous. It may salivate you and make you suffer fearfully from soreness of gums, tenderness of jaws and teeth, swollen tongue and excessive saliva dribbling from the mouth. Don't trust calomel. It is mercury; quicksilver.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tonic for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel today you'll be sick and nauseated tomorrow; besides, it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tonic you will wake up feeling great. No salts necessary. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and can not salivate. —Advertisement.

CLING TO OLD SUPERSTITIONS

Hard to Make Civilized Indians Give Up Their Beliefs in Magic—Soul Transmigration.

Civilized Indians are very reluctant to give up their belief in magic. The idea of worshiping objects is quite a settled one among the tribes, and some stories which connect corn and flowers with beneficent deities are very pleasing and attractive.

Animals, too, are spoken of in a very singular and superstitious manner, and the different sizes of the beasts which are hunted is accounted for in a story of the creation, which has many variations, but always agrees that at the time of the creation all of the beasts clamored for priority in size.

Each was vain and dictatorial, and one after another was humbled by being made smaller than a hated enemy, the idea being that everything human and otherwise that was born had a prior existence and came into the world with the benefit of the experience thus derived.

Indians in many tribes believe in the doctrine of transmigration of souls, by which is meant that they believe souls, after the death of the bodies of animals that they have inhabited, pass into the bodies of others.—Detroit News.

RELIEF IN 5 MINUTES!

Nash's Salvo Clears the Head and Checks Process of "Taking Cold" Safely and Surely.

A cold need not keep you away from the theater tonight or your work today. You can break up a cold in five minutes or can rid yourself of one of those real bad colds in one night. For an ordinary head cold apply Nash's Salvo to the nostrils, well up, with little finger. Sniff it hard. If head doesn't open at once, melt a little in a spoon and inhale the vapor. Then you'll get results.

and THE COLD WILL BE ON ITS WAY. Treat a bad cold in same manner but also rub liberally on chest after opening pores with wet hot towels. Cover salve with warm flannel and arrange bedcovers so that you can breathe the vapors all night. Tomorrow morning the cold will be gone. Nash's Salvo is sold in 20 and 40 cent bottles by all druggists.

Affliction Could Only Be Relied On to Take Its Possessor in One Direction.

Samuel Gompers at a labor banquet was condemning certain ultra-radical policies.

"Such policies," he said, "will get us into trouble right enough, but will they get us out again? Listen, gentlemen, to a fable.

"In a lunatic asylum there was a lunatic nicknamed Solomon because it was his custom to call every newly arrived lunatic up and question him about his infirmity, afterwards dismissing him with a kind of Solomon-like opinion or verdict.

"Well, one day Solomon called up a new lunatic who had a very stiff walk.

"What may be your trouble, friend?" he said.

"I've got a glass rod in the middle of my back," the new lunatic answered.

"A glass rod in the middle of your back, eh? And Solomon chuckled. 'Well, friend, a glass rod in the middle of your back will bring you here, but you'll find that it will never take you out.'"

Having nothing to say doesn't keep an argumentative man quiet.

A diplomat is a man who bosses the crowd and makes them like it.

Shave With Cuticura Soap And double your razor efficiency as well as promote skin purity, skin comfort and skin health. No mug, no slimy soap, no germs, no waste, no irritation even when shaved twice daily. One soap for all uses—shaving bathing and shampooing.—Advertisement.

Mrs. Salomy Sadder spanked little Claudy Sadder so vigorously before he went to bed last night that he opened up his prayer with, "Now I stand me up to sleep."

At this writing, shirts are so cheap that Hash Beener is wearing two of them at once, to make up for lost time.

Gabe Sadder, who brought a box of candy the other day, and discovered a bit later that he had got back a counterfeit quarter in change, says it served him right for being in love.

Mitch Mudge, our weather prophet, had the corn-ache so bad yesterday that he went out and stole an umbrella some place.

According to Os Peachblow, the absent-minded person in the world can concentrate while removing a porous plaster from himself.—Wayside Tales.

Worth Knowing.

It is said that marks on a polished or varnished surface may be removed by first rubbing them with a cut lemon and then with a cloth dipped in water.

Why does any healthy person want to be kicked into wakefulness in the morning?

Many people feel that they have to be agitated into wakefulness in the morning. They think that without the tea or coffee they take in the morning that they will not be able to meet the tasks and duties of the day.

Nothing could be more false than this reasoning. Any doctor can tell you this. For a healthy body does not require a stimulant. It gets all the stimulant it needs from food.

The thein and caffeine found in tea and coffee are irritating to the heart and nervous system. They jolt the nerves into undue activity. The result is a reaction. This is why regular tea and coffee drinkers think they must have their stimulant the first thing in the morning to wind them up for the day.

If you will stop using tea and coffee for a week, and drink

Postum, the pure cereal beverage instead, it will give Nature an opportunity to rid the system of the irritating substances that harass your nerves, upset digestion, increase your heart action, and make you nervous and irritable.

Many people who have tried Postum say that inside of a week they wake in the morning without that "all gone" feeling that they used to have, and are full of energy, strength and endurance.

Order Postum from your grocer today, and make it according to directions. Your first sip of Postum will surprise and please you.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tin) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes.
