NEW REGISTRATION LAW

All citizens of Kentucky must register hereafter in order to vote, made so by the enactment of a law by the recent session of the Legislature, passing both houses over Governor Morrow's veto. The old law did not require citizens living in the country districts to register. The new law requires all citizens to register, but the man or woman who registers once is not required to register again in a life time, unless he or she changes his or her address.

The first general registration in Kentucky will take place in July, the registration officers being named by the County Election Boards and must be divided equally between the two parties. In September there will be another registration to take care of those who failed to register in July. The law provides for a new registration each year to take care of new voters.

THE FARM BUREAU

Some of the people of our county, (and I am sorry to say) some of them are farmers are opposed bitterly to the County Agent and the Farm Bureau. They say that the Farm Bureau is not accomplishing anything and that the County Agent is not worth the salary paid him by the County. I ask those people who think this way to please note the following facts:

On Friday and Saturday of last week the Crittenden County Farm Bureau loaded a car of chickens. The price paid for these chickens was 22 1-2 cents per pound for hens and 10 cents per lb for cocks. Prior to this the local buyers were paying 17 cts per lb for hens and 7 cents for cocks. This was 5 1-2c per pound less on hens and 3 cents per pound less on cocks than the Farm Bureau paid. The Farm Bureau bought 14594 pounds of hens and 1136 lbs of cocks. The 14594 lb of hens at 5 1-2 cents equals $892.67. The 1-136 pounds of cocks at 3 c equals $40.88 or $933.55 total profits that the Farm Bureau paid to the people of the county above the price the local dealers had been paying. The Farm Bureau and County Agent were directly responsible for this sum of money being placed in the hands of the people of the county and the people are just that sum better off than they would have been if the Bureau and County Agent had not interfered with local conditions.

Also they were indirectly responsible for other gains for when the Bureau boosted the price of chickens at least two of the local dealers met these prices. The local dealers handled about 9200 pounds of poultry which according to the best information that could be obtained, yielded the people of the county about $500 more than they would have received at the price of chickens before the Farm Bureau began its operations.

$836.75 (amount the Bureau cleared for the people) plus $500 (amount the local buyers cleared for the people by paying the Farm Bureau prices) equals $1336.

Now you will remember that the Fiscal Court appropriated only $1000 for the County Agent's salary and here it is paid back to the people of the county in just two days time.

ELECTRIC LIGHT FRANCHISE PURCHASED BY R. L. MOORE

At a public auction sale Monday the 20-year electric light franchise was purchased by Dr. R. L. Moore for $150, his being the only bid received.

At a meeting of the City Council Monday night the bid was accepted. Dr. Moore paid for the franchise and executed a $1,000 bond for the furnishing of lights, power and heat for the city within six months. Dr. Moore has not decided as yet whether he will build a plant, purchase machinery and furnish his own current or build a transmission line to Princeton and connect with Utility Co. and get the current from there.

Fuller particulars will be given later.

THE SPLIT-LOG DRAG

I have been an ardent advocate of the split log drag in connection with the grader for working the roads of this county. But having had an opportunity to see the fine results obtained by E. Champion under his system of road working on the Salem and Marion road, I have decided that we can build good dirt roads with the use of the drag and plow, the plow used only enough to open the ditches on each side of the road.

Ten months ago the Fiscal Court contracted with Mr. Champion to keep the Salem road, in good condition from Marion to the county line. When Mr. Champion took charge of the road it was almost impassable. This road has been kept in good condition during the entire winter months with practically no other implement except the drag, notwithstanding the heavy traffic. There has been more spar hauled over this road this winter than for some time to say nothing of the tons of coal hauled to Tell, Sheridan, Salem, Hampton, Lela and other points.

After all this heavy traffic the road is as smooth and firm as it usually is in summer time. Being an expert road builder Mr. Champion knows when and where to use the different drags. It never gets too cold or too rainy for E. to drag his road or open a ditch.

To my way of thinking it would be a loss of work and money to go back to the old way of working the roads. Hoping our Fiscal Court can see its way clear to give us this system, I am yours for good roads,

TEACHERS' EXAMINATION

The next teachers' examination will be held in May on the third Friday and Saturday, the 19th and 20th. The questions on Theory and Practice for the year will be based on the Course of Study and The Classroom Teacher by Scraper and Ingelhardt. The American Book Co. have sent a few copies of this book to my office which teachers may secure for $1.35.

No high school or normal work will be required to enter the May or June examinations this year. After July 1st before an applicant can enter a teacher's examination one year high school work and five weeks normal training will be required. Certificates in force are good for the time for which they were issued and are not affected by a change in law.

TRISLER MONROE GOES TO PEN

Trisler Monroe, under a joint indictment with Russell Damron, charged with breaking into Watson Bros. Store near the Livingston county line in June 1921, was tried before a jury in Circuit Court Thursday of last week. The trial occupied the entire day and both sides of the case were ably represented, acting Commonwealth, Atty. J. Elliott Baker and County Attorney E. D. Stone for the prosecution and T. C. Bennett for the defense. After the evidence was all in and the attorneys had spoken the jury returned a verdict of guilty and placed his punishment at one year in the penitentiary. Russell Damron in separate trial was acquitted.

FISCAL COURT

The Fiscal Court met in regular session Tuesday. The County Judge, County Attorney and all the Magistrates being present.

The principal work of the Court was to adjust the pauper claims and to fix the price for the use of the plow and team on the road.

Considerable reduction in the pauper claims was made and the price for plow and team was fixed at $2 per day.

CITY COUNCIL NEWS

The City Council met in regular session Monday night with Mayor Boswell and all the members of the Council present.

A. H. Cannon was given a permit to erect a two story business building on the north side of West Bellville Street.

The bid of $150 for the 20-year electric light franchise by R. L. Moore was accepted by the Council. Dr. Moore being present paid over the $150 and executed bond to the amount of $1,000 as a guarantee of furnishing lights etc., for the city in six months.

The City Tax Collector was authorized to take steps necessary to collect city and school taxes by May 1.

MANLEY AFTER THE MOONSHINERS

Former Deputy Sheriff George H. Manley, Federal Prohibition Agent, in company with eleven others, including U. G. McFarland, of Glasgow, has just returned from an official trip through Larue, Green, Taylor, Marion, Edmonson, Nelson and Washington counties.

During the two weeks trip through these counties, he reports, they captured and destroyed 22 stills of from 50 to 150 gallon capacity. One still of 150 gallon capacity in Nelson county was run by a steam boiler. Five hundred gallons of moonshine whisky and 40,000 gallons of mash were destroyed besides a large number of fermenters.

Nine alleged moonshiners were arrested, three taken before U. S. Commissioner Chas. C. Baldwin at Lebanon, the others before U. S. Com. W. M. Graham at Hodgenville. All the prisoners were held for their appearance at the U. S. Court in Louisville, in May.

In making these arrests three alleged moonshiners were wounded but not seriously. This company was working under the direction of Sam Collins, Prohibition Director of Kentucky and were equipped with Springfield Army Rifles.

Cut Price Paid on Wool Tied With Binder Twine

Losses as high as 7 cents on each pound of wool were experienced last year by Kentucky farmers who tied their wool with ordinary binder twine according to a sheep specialist. The shearing season will soon be here and it will pay the farmers to use the proper kind of twine which is paper twine.

In te past buyers have been inclined to discriminate against wool tied with binder twine because fibers from it adhere to the fleece and can not be removed except with the use of expensive machinery. If left in the wool, these fibers cannot be dyed and appear in the cloth as white stripes which must be picked out by hand. Wool containing these fibers is classed with that containing burs.

Alfalfa Seeding

Spring seeding of alfalfa in Kentucky is not as reliable as summer seeding because weeds may prove as troublesome that the crop is smothered. However on land which adapted to alfalfa and which is inoculated, the chances of getting a stand by following the methods generally practiced with clover are excellent.

This is especially true of T clover seed is used and the seeding done as soon in April as the ground can be worked. The cost of seeding in this way is less than the cost of summer seeding and the method is well worth a trial. If a failure results the field can be reseeded again in August. Weeds are apt to be troublesome since the weed seeds are near the surface in freshly worked ground and ready to grow. The station workers have succeeded in keeping weeds and grasses out of spring-sown alfalfa but it has been at the cost of large amounts of labor for clipping and cultivation.

In one case on the station farm where spring-sown alfalfa was completely destroyed by weeds which could not be controlled, the ground was rebroken and cultivated frequently until the alfalfa was seeded in August. The crop was completely free of weeds for three years and produced an average of a little more than one and one half tons of hay an acre in each cutting.

"SMALL HOMES MAKE CITY"

Testimony of Expert Who is Warm Advocate of Building Zone Idea During Town's Youth.

"Make a city of the owners of small homes and you will have a well-run city."

This was the verdict of Edward W. Bassett, counsel of the zoning committee of the New York board of estimate and father of the zoning laws, after an exhaustive review of city development under the building zone system.

"Before the days of zoning," said he, "the head of a family would be forced two or three times to sell his private home because he was pushed out by advancing stores or apartment houses. Then he would usually move to New Jersey, Long Island or Westchester, and New York would lose a good citizen. A home owner takes a lively interest in local improvement and neighborhood welfare. Until New York adopted the zoning plan, there was no encouragement for small home owners inside of the city limits. Now the owner of a small home is better protected in many parts than if he goes out into suburban villages."

"Small detached homes are springing up rapidly in all of the outlying boroughs, especially in Brooklyn and Queens. The home owner sees that in residence location he is protected against invasion of stores, small factories and garages. In the D and E districts he is safe from large tenements and apartments. He is willing to put his earnings in the equity of a small home and pay off his second mortgage by installments because the zoning plan has lessened the danger that would wipe out his home equity."

ALWAYS TIME WELL SPENT

"Cleanup Week," as an Institution, Should Be a Feature of Every Town and Village.

Cleanliness, as we have been reliably informed, is next to godliness. And community cleanliness is just as important as individual cleanliness. If we are to have a pleasant, healthful and decent city to live in.

Milwaukee has always occupied an enviable position among the cities of the country for its civic tidiness, and the annual institution known as "cleanup week" has helped materially to this happy state of affairs.

We have been having a salutary "cleanup" in respect of the moral surroundings of the city. A good deal of rubbish has been dragged out and done away with and stray corners are still being explored and tidied up with excellent results in so far as the moral atmosphere is concerned.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

FOILING SMALL BOY

Because small boys do not seem to be able to refrain from throwing stones, the Los Angeles park commission has protected the glass covered rules and regulations by heavy wire screens.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Practical City Planning.

There is no mystery whatever about city planning. It is only the application of common sense business methods to the development of a city. Too frequently city planning has been understood in this country as relating merely to the esthetic side of city improvement and city development. We must get rid of that notion.

The element of beauty, of course, must never be overlooked, but it would be more to the point to fix as the goal of a city plan the idea of making the city a more practical city. Real city planning must inevitably deal more with the practical than with the beautiful. It must aim for better and more attractive living conditions.—Charles F. Coffin.

Billions Invested in Homes.

There are approximately 8,000,000 families in the United States living in their own homes. This represents an aggregate investment of $30,000,000,000, since builders and contractors declare that the average American home is valued at $3,000. At 5 per cent the American home owners are therefore paying out about $1,500,000,000 for the privilege of enjoying life under roofs that belong to them. The 5 per cent will easily take care of repairs, taxes and interest on the investment.

"Say Less and Do More."

If we could only make our hands move as actively as our tongues, if we could say less and do more for each other's good, not alone would every home be happier, but communities would be greatly enriched thereby.—John Wanamaker.

EMPTY PULPITS

Thirty-five thousand churches in the United States are without pastors, and only 1,450 new ministers were graduated last year (1921). This sum in arithmetic is not answerable in figures.
We must think it out. Either the law of supply and demand is crumbling, or there is an unknown element uneasily awaiting elucidation. The church is not confounded. The age is not degenerate. Tearful pity need not yet sit with sorrow. Fat sinners are not eating the feast while lost souls nibble the scraps of divinity. Nevertheless, pulpitizing is unpopular because it is unprofitable, says Leslie's Weekly.
Fame and wealth, the two spurs to human action, are picked up elsewhere.
The influence of wages is inexorable, whether in philanthropy for pleasure or in grandmarshaling the processional through the sapphire gates. The saint-liest men have earthly needs, and every altar should have an exchequer.

The news has come from London that the favorite dance of all times since the Eighteenth century is again coming into favor in London, much to the delight of the mothers. It is not denied, it is stated in the cablegram from abroad, that the fox trot and the one-step still have a big hold on the public, but the waltz is gradually taking its place beside them in popularity, so that now, at all important halls, every third dance on the program is a waltz. To the present generation the waltz has been a difficult dance to learn. The graceful movements that must go with the waltz step have been found hard to master by many, even by experts in the one-step and fox trot. In Civil war times the waltz was in its greatest favor in this country and formed at least half the program. The waltz disappeared fifteen or twenty years ago to make room for the walking dances, such as the one-step and fox trot.

There are many children well grown up who know less of cows than of elephants. These children do not live on the edge of a jungle, as might be supposed, but in our great and prosperous cities that boast of the best school system yet devised, writes H. J.
Waters in the Kansas City Star. The children have been shown elephants at the zoo or in the circus and have been told of the habits of elephants in the school, but they never have seen a cow on a farm, or been told of the habits of cows. What the cow eats, where milk comes from, what the signs of a good cow are and the warning signs of a poor one, what kinds of feed are best adapted to keeping up the milk flow, and how to raise a dairy calf are hidden secrets to these city children. And, indeed, how many farm boys and girls know these facts about dairy cattle or similar facts about other kinds of farm animals?

The project, which was widely discussed before the war, of cutting a canal across Scotland from the Clyde to the Forth, is again under discussion.
The existing small canal will probably be utilized by widening it to take ocean-going craft. The projected canal would cut eighteen hours off the journey by sea from London to Glasgow, and it would put Liverpool, Belfast, and Glasgow in direct touch with Holland, Germany, and Scandinavia.
The canal would be seven years in construction and would cost approximately $150,000,000.

Disclosures regarding the use of impressive limousines for rum running purposes, bring to the humble owner of a flivver the consoling reflection that he is safe from suspicion, as there isn't room in one of those deroed things for a false bottom.

A dollar is worth 10 cents more at a retail meat market now than it was a year ago, but if you can put it in the bank instead of in the meat market, it will probably be worth more at both places in another year.

It is noted that the announcement that men's clothes this year will be "conservative, but with beautiful lines" does not say that they will follow the lines of the figure, but maybe that is merely an oversight.

The man who uses "want ads" to inveigle young women and girls is a scoundrel, generally too smooth to be caught; but when one is uncovered he should get his deserts on some charge that will stick.

An investigation develops that men seeking wives prefer those who are good-looking. That investigation has not added anything to what the cosmetic manufacturers had in mind.

A New York surgeon isolated the heart of a hen to prove that he could keep it beating, but what he should have isolated was an egg to prove that we can keep beating.

People are said to write fewer than an average of ten letters a year in Spain. There may be more prudence than progress in that.

erally come in through the storm door.

GROWLS OF A GROUCH

I always tell the evangelists that I am not anxious to go to heaven—at least, not just yet.

I have never made it a habit to marry Lillian Russell, vote for Bryan nor play bagpipe music.

I think ginger-ale and grape-juice highballs are an insult to a perfectly good, hardworking, trusting stomach.

I believe a man can become a very great athlete by eating lettuce and parsnips if he eats some meat along with them.

I see newspaper pictures of many beautiful women, but I rarely see the picture of a beautiful woman who is also good-looking.

I do not care who becomes minister to Siam, just so it is not myself. I would rather stay here and be just as Siam without one pie.

I see a scientist has announced that parsnips will preserve life. That is a good thing, for there is nothing else that I know of to recommend them.—Chicago American.

EPIGRAMS FROM INDIA

Two pungent thoughts from far-off India:

Money will buy a dog, but only love will make him wag his tail.

Different women are kissed in different ways. Some let it happen; others help it to happen.

THOUGHT RUMBLES

Trying to convert the majority usually takes half a lifetime.

A soliciting committee discovered what an enormous variety of people there are.

Righteousness finally wins because wickedness, after a time, becomes such a bore.

Salvation is free, except that earnest fellow-creatures sometimes want to make it compulsory.

As soon as some of the species of weeds find out they are to be made useful, they will die off.

Too earnest a pursuit of happiness is sometimes a handicap to the "life and liberty" end of that saying.

Atonement!

When William Butler Yeats was a boy, his family moved from Dublin to Bedford Park, as he relates in the Dial. Yeats says, incidentally, that he was not much of a churchgoer, but that he must have gone a few times because he remembers very clearly a wooden sign which hung in the church porch: "The congregation are requested to kneel during prayers; the kneelers are afterwards to be hung upon pegs provided for the purpose."

PEA ROOT-ROT FOUND IN WESTERN STATES

Much of Seed Grown in Montana, Idaho and Utah.

Survey Indicates That There Are Incipient Cases of Disease in Nearly All of the Most Important Districts.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Does pea root-rot, so destructive in the pea-growing sections of the Eastern and Central states, occur in the important seed-producing sections of the West, or is there some basis for the belief of the growers there that their climate and soil safeguard them in some way from loss? Is there any danger of the spread of pea diseases with western seed?

Answers to these questions have been made by specialists of the bureau of plant industry, United States Department of Agriculture, who have studied the pea disease situation during the past season, which has been one of heavy loss in some of the older sections of the country, where pea root-rot has now become so common that many fields are unproductive and the continuation of the industry seems uncertain in some localities.

Much of the seed used in the East is grown in Montana, Idaho, and Utah, where the industry is relatively young. A survey of these states, however, indicates that there are incipient cases of pea root-rot in nearly all of the important districts and that under present conditions it will be only a matter of time before this type of trouble is as widespread as it is in the East.

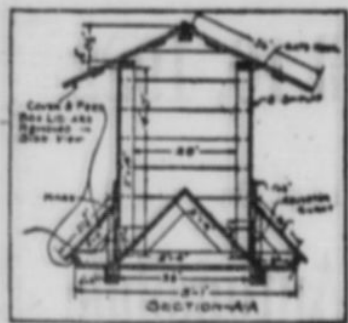

In the same way the western potato growers, who formerly escaped root troubles, now find their yields very greatly curtailed by Fusarium blight, Rhizoctonia, and other fungus parasites which have increased with the longer culture of the crop. The western climate cannot be depended upon to keep plants healthy. Growers should therefore watch carefully for the appearance of pea root-rot and practice the longest possible rotations to prevent its development. The situation is not one to justify undue alarm, but these findings should be taken seriously if the interests of the pea crop in later years are to be safeguarded.

The danger of spreading pea diseases with the seed is minimized by the department specialists, who point out that only one disease, the leaf and pod spot, is carried in this way, and this is not as general or extensive as has been believed.

ADVANTAGES OF SELF-FEEDER

Inverted "V" at Bottom of Device Compels Grain or Feed to Slide Out Into Trough.

This self-feeder for hogs, as perfected by Director Christie at Indiana experiment station, is made as shown by this cross section. It will be seen that the inverted "V" at bottom of feeder compels the grain or feed to slide out into the trough. The side gate can be adjusted to let out as little or as much feed as desired. The pigs will themselves raise the outside cover, which drops down when they are through eating. This feeder has some advantages over other types. Other types are described in Farmers' Bulletin 1008—free from Department of Agriculture, Washington.

DETERIORATION OF WOODLOTS

There is Usually Almost No Young Growth of Tree Species Where Pastured Heavily.

Heavy pasturing of farm woods has been one of the chief causes of their deterioration. It has been found by the forest service, United States Department of Agriculture. The severity of damage depends largely upon the number of stock and the make-up of the woods. In heavily pastured woods there is usually almost no young growth of the valuable tree species.

Cattle, horses, sheep, or goats eat young seedlings, particularly the hardwoods, trample them out, or else break them off. Hogs eat some kinds of seed and thus prevent reproduction from starting or root young seedlings out of the ground and sometimes eat the roots.

In those parts of the southern long-leaf pine region where hogs run wild they are known to do a great deal of damage to the seedlings and often damage trees several feet in height. When driven out of the swamps by high water in the late winter and early spring they root up the long-leaf pine seedlings and devour the heavy roots. Observations carried on in Louisiana have shown stands of several thousand long-leaf pine seedlings per acre where protected against hogs and no seedlings on adjacent areas which were unprotected.

If you search on a map of Malaysia long enough you will find the Sunda islands. They are located to the south and west of Sumatra, and, like Sumatra and Java, and other isles near by, are under the rule of Holland. Perhaps if you have a large map you may be able to discover a tiny speck, attached to which will be the name "Bali."

The island of Bali is about 2,800 square miles in area, and is a most picturesque isle. Long ago it was conquered by hosts from India.

Although the Dutch rule Bali, and a Hollander sits at the table about which a Balinese raja gathers his chiefs to make laws, the true hand is light in Bali. Indeed, a Bali overlord is permitted many wives, many dancing girls, many houses and as much pomp and gorgeous display of his high estate as his most regal ancestor ever contrived to show. Feudal rule in all its magnificence—but minus much of its impressiveness—is to be seen at its best or worst in Bali today.

Some of the Balinese, particularly the farmers, are virtually serfs. But they manage to live better, perhaps, than their brothers on the mainland of India. One reason may be, is that the caste system is not so oppressive in Bali as it is in India.

The ears of the Balinese maiden are pierced when she is a baby! When she grows up, into the lobe of her ear is thrust a cylinder of bone. When a Balinese girl becomes a wife the bone cylinders give place to cylinders of silver or gold. But when a Balinese wife achieves the proud position of a mother then the earrings vanish entirely.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

BEFORE THE DAY OF GLASS

Leather Bottles Were Once in Common Use, and Served Their Purpose Admirably.

In past days England had many bottles and other receptacles made from leather. This was largely owing to the scarcity of native pottery and glass and the costliness of such things when they were imported.

Among these leather vessels were the water bouget, the leather bottle, and the blackjack, the last named including all pots made in leather. The water bouget was a pair of water-tight leather bags joined together by their necks like a pair of glass oil and vinegar bottles. The leather bottle was used until the end of the eighteenth century, its later use being in the harvest fields.

English leather drinking vessels and bottles had the characteristics of strength and solidity and were made of tanned oxhide, which was thick and rigid; while foreign-made bottles generally seem to have been—and still are, where they exist—composed of a lighter and thinner leather obtained from the goat, pig or sheep, which was cured in such a manner as to remain flexible.

There is great variety among these leather vessels, which were made of plain and stamped leather, and about which many particular uses and associations sprang up.

Parrot Fish Chews Cud.

Native to the Eastern Mediterranean is the parrot fish that chews its cud like a cow. In other words, it cuts off its food in relatively large bits, stores it away until it has time for the business of thoroughly chewing, and then reduces it to a fine pulp. Curiously enough, the ancients called this fish a ruminant, but their tales of it had been taken with many grains of salt, until recently, by modern naturalists. A writer in the Scientific American Monthly notes that as far back as the Fourth century B. C., Aristotle asserted that the parrot fish is to be classed among ruminant animals. This story was repeated by the Roman writer on natural history, Pliny. It passed as a fable, like so many other ancient statements of fact since verified.

Torn Bill Tip Brought Results.

"Walter, I'm going to be here for five or six days," said the keen business man from Chicago, as he sat down in a New York restaurant, according to the Sun.

Whereupon he removed from his wallet a crisp $5 bill and carefully tore it in half.

"This half you are to keep, and if you give me good service during my visit here I will deliver the other half of the bill to you just before I go away."

"Yassir," beamed the waiter. And the keen business man from Chicago had no complaint to make about the excellent service he received at this restaurant during his stay. The promise was fulfilled.

Ancient Form of Adornment.

Tattooing, that very apparent means of proclaiming one's love for the briny deep, is an ancient form of adornment, and in ancient times most honorable. The Polynesians are known to have been adepts in the art, and from that time to this there have always been people who have been attracted to this form of beauty. These decorations have taken all sorts of forms, from the plain black and white work to that in the most variegated colorings, to say nothing of the method of "gash" tattooing, which consists of cutting deep gashes in the desired design, filling them with clay and then letting them remain as a sort of glue on the flesh.—Detroit News.

NEWS IN BRIEF

William Cabbell, 41 years old was drowned in a ditch of the Springfield pike near Lebanon. Cabbell was riding in a wagon drawn by a blind horse and, it is believed, went to sleep and the horse, wandering from the road, overturned the wagon and its occupant into the ditch.

The Liffell block, the largest in Sturgis, was destroyed by fire Wednesday of last week. The building was covered by insurance.

A number of prisoners came near effecting an escape from the Madisonville jail Thursday night of last week, and would have done so but for the vigilance of Jailer Thomas, who discovered a prisoner thrilling through the brick wall.

Major J. F. Cornell has been appointed by Director Forbes as the commanding officer of the Dawson Spring Sanitarium at Dawson. It is also stated that patients will be brought there the latter part of this month.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of Isaac Young Hunt, the son of John and Sarah Hunt, was born Jan. 3, 1878 and passed from this life March 26, 1922.

He was 44 years and two months old and a victim of complications which followed flu and pneumonia. He professed religion in the autumn of 1898 at Chapel Hill. He was one of those shining professions like we seldom see. His face glowed as a shining light and his first and one thought was for his mother to know of the wonderful blessing God had given him.

He joined the church at Pleasant Hill November 22, 1899 and lived a faithful member until God in His wisdom saw fit to say "It is enough, come up higher."

He was married to Miss Maggie Long, Jan. 4, 1899 and to this union was born thirteen children, eleven of whom with their mother survive him. They are: Orly May, wife of Ivan Paris of the Midway section; Ruby Belle, wife of A. Moore of near Fredonia; Jamie, of Conrad, Iowa; Lavine Ruth, Naomi, Carl, Linnie, Elbert Annice and Dorothy Lee at home. Besides his wife and children he leaves four brothers to mourn their loss. They are: Messrs. Henry and John Swansy, Wyatt and Josie Hunt all of Crittenden county. A host of relatives and friends. But our loss is his eternal gain.

The funeral services were held at Pleasant Hill church and conducted by his pastor, Eld. J. B. Paris, in the presence of a host of relatives and friends. He was laid to rest in the Pleasant Hill cemetery. The floral offerings were abundant and beautiful.

Marvelous Are the Uplifting Effects Produced on One With a New Outfit of Clothes.

It's wonderful what a brand new and exhilarating outlook on life comes to one with the possession of a new suit of clothes, new shoes, new linen, a new hat, new ties and a new appearance of one's self when he stands before the mirror—and reflects, then, that after all the years are not telling on him so badly as he thought, and the casual observer may mistake him for a millionaire.

Everybody knows how much finer the home atmosphere is, and how much better content seems to brood in it, when the house cleaning is done in the spring, when the furniture is moved about into new positions, the old wall papers go down, new paint and brightness finds its way to kitchen and to floors, new rugs appear, new curtains and a new aspect of cohesiveness which cheers the whole family.

The new outfit for the individual has just this same sort of happy effect, says a writer in the New York World. We know it, but how long we so often stupidly postpone the blessing! How long we gloom unnecessarily in coats that feel so greasy to the touch, in trousers that shine, in shirts and neckwear that seem like an old home week whenever they are fastened together; in hats that are dingy and shoes that do not suggest staidness, urbanity, social standing or affluence to any to whom they may be exhibited.

The most pardonable spendthrift in the world is he who after a proper generosity to his dependents puts money on his own back. Finds pleasure in being an object of envious admiration on the street and when he confronts his fellow man for business or pleasure looks as if optimism were his bosom companion and worry the last low thought of self-indulgence in his soul.

SAW VALUE OF STEAM POWER

Newspaper of 1821 Hailed With Joy the Passing of the Day of the Sailing Vessel.

The clouds of prejudice and fear appear to recede at the test of experiment and reason, says the National Gazette of Oct. 4, 1821. The steamship Robert Fulton was full of passengers from New Orleans and Charleston, and each trip which this splendid vessel makes not only gives ample proof of safety and dispatch, but adds to the number of converts in favor of steam navigation on the ocean. What a gigantic improvement in science! Those who are in the habit of crossing the Atlantic who are compelled to pass days and weeks in a dead calm, when the unruled surface of the ocean that reflects like a mirror, and when the sun pours down his fierce and intolerable rays and the sails fly to and fro, can imagine what their feelings must be at seeing the steamship pass them rapidly; the wheels in quick motion and the smoke rolling in curled volumes from the furnace; to see myriads of well-dressed passengers walking the decks.

The best improvement of value is to make steamships carry freight—say 150 tons of fine goods; and those which run from Montreal to Quebec may serve as models. There is yet much to be done in this way and from the enterprise of our citizens there is no doubt it will be done in time.

Beautiful Coconut Palm.

The coconut palm is a beautiful tree. The trunk seldom exceeds 20 inches in diameter at the base, and rises in a slender, graceful column to a height of 80 or 100 feet, where it bursts into a canopy of dark green foliage. It has been likened to a rocket, rising to a hundred feet or more and bursting into a shower of fronds. The space beneath is cool and inviting, partly and sometimes wholly shielded from the rays of the tropical sun. A coconut grove on a coral beach, washed by the waves of a tropic sea and splashed by the filtered beams of a silvery moon, is an enchanted place, and that one on the island of Oulmaria across the strait from Bulo, was a fairy-land, well-fitted as the dwelling place of the entrancing Delores in "Floradora."

Better He Hadn't Insisted.

The author of a few novels, meeting a literary friend, began talking with him about his, the author's latest work. Presently he said: "You go about a good deal, Brown. Tell me what you hear about my book." "I assure you," answered the other, "that I've heard nothing but the most favorable and enthusiastic opinions of it."

"Oh, that's good! Now tell me who has talked to you about it?" "Um—well, I can't tell you that exactly."

"Oh, yes, you can. I insist."

"Well, then, since you insist, you're the only one I've heard say anything about it."—Boston Transcript.

Art is a Science.

Whatever laid down the dictum that "art is a science—the science by which the artist picks, chooses and groups, that beauty may result." And he added, wisely "The artist can leave no more to chance than can the chemist, the botanist or the biologist." This applies quite as clearly to house decoration as to any other of the arts. It is only by picking, choosing and grouping intelligently and according to principles that an artistic interior can be built up.

SAM CARNAHAN

Illinois Central System Shows Railroads Are Growing Safer Constantly

The railroads have been making an excellent record in the reduction of fatalities. The reason for this is to be found in the fact that railway men have been trained to give safety precedence over all other things. To them the most familiar rule in the standard book of railway rules reads: "In case of doubt or uncertainty, the safe course must be taken." While railway traffic has greatly increased in recent years fatalities on the railroads have been decreasing. The Interstate Commerce Commission statistics on this subject for 1921 are not yet available but the number of fatalities in 1920 was the smallest in twenty-two years, although 1920 was a record year for heavy traffic. The following comparisons with 1911 covering a 10-year period tell their own story.

Year	Ton Miles Per cent increase	Passenger miles percent increase	Total Fatalities Per cent Decrease
1912	4.1	0.2	1.8inc
1913	19.2	4.1	5.5
1914	14.0	6.2	0.8
1915	9.6	2.5	17.1
1916	45.1	5.4	9.9
1917	57.9	19.7	3.0
1918	62.5	29.5	10.7
1919	45.8	40.4	32.9
1920	64.1	42.4	33.1

In 1920 the railroads carried 16,239,774 passengers to each passenger fatally injured in a train accident. The reader will better appreciate this comparison when it is understood that to load 16,239,774 passengers into 70-foot coaches having a capacity of eighty-eight passengers each would require 184,542 coaches, which would make up a train 2,446 miles long. Tresspassing and automobile grade crossing accidents contribute heavily to the fatalities of railroads. In 1920, trespassers fatally injured numbered 2,166 while occupants of automobiles fatally injured numbered 1,273. Together these accounted for nearly one-half of all the fatalities on the railroads during the year. Not many would believe that there are nearly as many people drowned accidentally in a year as are fatally injured on the railroads. The following table lists some of the commoner causes of fatalities in United States in 1920

Cause	Rate per 100,000 Population
Falls	12.3
Automobiles	10.8
Burns (not conflagrations)	7.9
Railroads	6.6
Drownings	5.9

The table below shows that the Illinois Central System has maintained its position among the leading railroads in serving the public with transportation and, at the same time, that the fatalities on its lines have decreased in number substantially, the comparison being with 1911 and covering a 10-year period:

Year	Ton Miles percent increase	Passenger Miles Percent increase	Total Fatalities Percent Decrease
1912	3.6	1.9	12.9inc
1913	20.2	1.0	11.0inc
1914	19.2	1.1	1.8inc
1915	24.4	9.2	19.6
1916	45.6	3.2	34.7
1917	78.5	19.2	10.4

The number of fatalities on the Illinois Central System in 1921 was the smallest in 24 years. In the road service of the Illinois Central System there has not been a passenger fatally injured in a train accident in more than four years. In the suburban service at Chicago, only one passenger has been fatally injured in a train accident in the entire history of this service, which was established in 1856 and which has grown until it now handles nearly thirty million passengers a year.

We believe the public will agree with us that the handling of a heavier business with a smaller number of fatalities is a barometer of railway efficiency. The Illinois Central System pledges renewed effort toward rendering to the public a transportation service of safety and satisfaction and asks the co-operation of public. Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.
