MARION WINS FROM CLAY

Marion High School Defeats Clay in First Dual Track Meet Of The Season

In the first dual-track meet of the season Marion High School defeated Clay and his assistants from Clay by the score of 44 to 38.

Aside from the all around performance of the afore-mentioned Nall of Clay the meet was featured by the close finish in the mile race in which Jeffrey Travis of the Bell Mines section finished ahead of Freer of Clay by what was estimated unofficially at several hours, a few minutes and some seconds, Central Time, (Daylight Saving Schedule). In compliance with the demands of the rail-birds Mr. Travis sprinted on the last lap in approved manner although it was quite unnecessary and finished in 4:25. Freer finished just before the final call for the shot put.

Capt. Dillard, of football fame, was sidetracked in the 220 dash and trotted down to the intersection of the Hopkinsville Division of the I. C. R. R., much to the discomfiture of the spectators. When approached by our representative, Capt. Dillard stated that he misinterpreted the traffic signals at the first turn to the left, thereby establishing a neat alibi.

The events follow:
Half Mile: King, Cochran, 2:15
100 yd dash: Nall, Hicklin, :11
220 Hurdles: Brown, Williams, 29
4.5 seconds.

Pole Vault: Dillard, Nall, 9ft, 2 in.
440 Dash: Brown, Williams, :60
High Jump, Nall Wilson: 5 ft. 2 in.
Broad Jump, Nall: 17 ft 11 in.
220 dash: Nall, 25 seconds.
Mile: Travis, Freer: 4:25
Shot Put: Dillard, Nall, 35 ft 7 in.
Relay: Marion, Nunn, Belt, Small, Brown, 4:04.

TRACHOMA SPECIALISTS HERE

Dr. C. B. Robert, director of the Trachoma Bureau, who is working under the auspices of the Kentucky Board of Health, came to Marion on Friday of last week and established headquarters at the office of Dr. T. A. Frazer, County Health Officer.

With Dr. Robert are also Mrs. Mattie Petty Snedaker, of Lagrange, and Miss Barbara Cochran, of Mayfield, both public health nurses. Dr. Robert is now at Smithland, but will return here Monday when he will treat free of charge all persons afflicted with trachoma.

Mrs. Snedaker and Miss Cochran, with Dr. Frazer, have visited the High School and the first and second grades of the Graded school, and after an examination of the students found a large number who were more or less afflicted with trachoma. Out of 339 examinations made up to Wednesday they found 39 had this disease. A surgical clinic will be held at the Graded School building on Wednesday and Thursday of next week. The people living in the country will be given the preference on Wednesday and the town people Thursday. All examinations and treatments will be free.

J. W. JEFFREYS FOUND DEAD

John W. Jeffreys, 73 years old, who resided near Nunn's Switch, in this county, was found dead in his bed Sunday morning at the home of his son, Clarence Jeffreys. He had been in feeble health for some time and his friends think it probably heart trouble that caused his death.

Squire Charles LaRue held an inquest over the body Monday morning. The jury's verdict was that the deceased came to his death from natural causes.

Kennedy leads with 21.6 eggs; Mrs. Lettie Lucas second with 21.1 eggs, and Mrs. Paul I. Paris third with 19.2 eggs. Song Adjournment.

Tobacco

The kind of tobacco you take to market next winter will depend partially upon the kind of plants you set out this spring. Watch your plant beds. The following treatment has proved very helpful for pushing the plants along rapidly, 10 pounds of nitrate of soda to a barrel, 50 gallons of water, use five gallons of this to every 200 square feet of bed. This equals an application of about 200 pounds of nitrate of soda per acre. Follow the application of nitrate with clear water, as the plants may be injured by the solution sticking to the leaves. Apply this treatment when the plants are about the size of a nickel or a quarter.

Dairy Show

Arrangements are being made with the Extension Division of the Illinois Central Railroad to bring in their Dairy Show the last week in April. This will consist of motion pictures, slides and charts and two expert dairymen to talk on the advantages of dairying. Interested communities desiring a meeting are urged to see the County Agent.

More Sheep Needed

A few good sheep on every farm would keep the weeds in check and furnish some cash for wool and some more cash for the lambs. Best spring lambs sold Monday, April 10, on the Louisville market for $19.

They have been running around $15 and $16 for some time. Push your spring lambs right along by supplementing theirs and the ewes feed and get them to 70 to 75 pounds in June that is the size the market wants. A carload of docked and castrated lambs is being made up for shipment in June. The early lambs docked and castrated get the money. Arrange with the County Agent to have your lambs in this car.

There will probably be a wool pool also this year. The larger the pool the more it will be sought by the buyers. Remove burs before shearing by all means. Roll the fleece toward the neck flesh side out and tie with paper twine.

Get your boy or girl in the Junior Agricultural Club. A farm boy or girl could join nothing better.

COURT HOUSE NEWS

Duke Glore, the fourteen-year-old son of Rube Glore, was brought before the Juvenile court Tuesday on a charge of disorderly conduct. He was found guilty as charged and his father was made custodian for the boy, and to be held as such for a period of six months.

"If the Child Labor law" said Judge Travis, "and the Enforced Attendance laws of the schools in the town of Marion and Crittenden county were enforced to any degree of efficiency, there would be fewer cases of disorderly conduct, boot-legging, etc., besides the pauper fund, or much of it, could be appropriated for more profitable purposes."

COUNTY COURT DAY

Despite the threatening aspect of the clouds and in face of the weather man's predictions of rain, an unusually large crowd attended County Court Monday. They came from the four corners of the county from even across Tradewater and the Caldwell and Livingston county lines. They came in from everywhere and from all directions, on the trains, in automobiles, in buggies and wagons, on horseback and afoot. They got here somehow and filled the streets full. Everybody was in a good humor and was glad to see everybody else. No disturbances occurred and no arrests were made during the day. The policeman had nothing to do but shake hands with his friends.

The horse traders were here and showed off their "trading stock" to the best possible advantage. The razor stro salesman and the blind man's organ vied with each other as to which could make the most noise and attract the biggest crowd.

It was Implement Day with the firm of T. H. Cochran and Co. and they displayed and demonstrated and sold many of their implements. The ladies of the Women's School Improvement Club gave a dinner in the courthouse yard, which was liberally patronized. Along toward night the crowd adjourned to meet again at the May term of County Court.

EIGHT TRAVIS BROTHERS MEET

It was not a prearranged "Travis reunion" but just a chance meeting here on the streets of Marion on County Court day. They just ran up on each other by chance.

The eight brothers who met were Deputy Sheriff Joe Hunter Travis, L. D. Travis, O. S. Travis, John R. Travis, Dan J. Travis, Ervin Travis, Albert H. Travis and Herman B. Travis.

These brothers are the sons of the late James Harvey Travis, are all splendid citizens and all republicans except Joe Hunter, who is a Democrat. They all live in this county except L. D. of Eldorado, and Ervin and O. S. of Blackford. Their sister, Mrs. John Cullen resides in this county. Four brothers and two sisters have passed away.

ELECTRIC LIGHTS

It is known that the contract that Mr. S. M. Jenkins has with the City Council terminates the last day of this month and Dr. R. L. Moore, who bought the franchise recently, is not obligated to furnish lights for six months.

The public wants to know what arrangements, if any, have been made to furnish the city light until Dr. Moore begins operations.

MRS. ORBY MAY PARIS

Mrs. Orby May Paris, wife of Ivan S. Paris and daughter of Isaac and Maggie Hunt, died of pneumonia on April 6, 1922. Mrs. Paris was 21 years old and was married August 28, 1921.

Funeral services were held at Pleasant Hill conducted by her pastor, Eld. J. B. Paris, assisted by Revs. Oakley and McDowell in the presence of a large congregation of relatives and friends. Her remains were laid to rest in the Pleasant Hill Cemetery.

THE FEDERAL HIGHWAY

The Crittenden county delegation, composed of W. R. Crave, J. W. Blue and County Judge E. Jeffrey Travis, who went before the State Road Commission at Frankfort on Monday, report that there is little hope for any further road work in Crittenden county this year, unless the Federal Government makes an appropriation for roads at this term of Congress. Should the Federal Congress make no appropriation this year there will be no work on the Federal Highway thru Crittenden this year, but if such be the case, they have a promise that the work will be taken up by the state next year.

LOTS OF BABIES

A few weeks ago Mr. George Travis, of the Travis Studio, advertised in the Press that for ten days following April 1, he would make a specialty of making babies' pictures. He reports that during those ten days he took photographs of 150 babies, in addition to those of children and grown ups. An ad in the Press brings wonderful results.

Messrs. Marion and Ed Dean, of Deanwood, were in the city Monday.

HOORAY! THE RED WAGONS ARE COMING

Hugo Bros. Great Consolidated Shows will exhibit in Marion, Friday April 21st at Flynn's show grounds.

This announcement is hailed with delight by the juvenile element, while some of the "older boys" are already looking about for their stray nephews and nieces. They are saying they will probably have to go and carry the children to see the animals. But deep down in their hearts they know they would not miss the big show if there were not a small boy within a thousand miles of Marion on circus day.

Many new and novel features will be seen in this year's program of the Great Hugo Bros. Show. Foremost among these will be the Flying Jordans, daring and intrepid aerialists; the Silverton Trio, dancers on a lofty double wire; the Alpine Sisters, dainty and marvelous equilibrists; the peerless Pottres, gymnasts; the Nelson family acrobats and two-score educated Shetland ponies, monkeys and dogs. The clown congress is a large one and is headed by Arthur Berry, Andy Rice, Sam Lewis and Valdo. In the menagerie will be seen Tom Tom the largest elephant in captivity. The big show travels aboard its own special train of railroad cars.

There will be two performances, at 2 and 8 p. m., the doors opening an hour earlier to permit a concert of popular and operatic music by Prof. James Norman and his military band. A series of free exhibitions will be given on the show grounds at 1 and 7 p. m., in addition to a band concert on the downtown streets at noon. The town and surrounding country is heavily billed for the appearance of the big show and local merchants anticipate a large crowd in town on show day. The big show is under the ownership and management of the Campbell, Bailey and Hutchinson Circus. An immense menagerie will be seen with the show this season, including Tom Tom, a giant elephant, 10 ft 4 inches high and weighing 10 tons. (Advertisement.)

LETTER FROM J. M. PHILLIPS

I was born and raised in Crittenden county Kentucky on the place where my father was born and raised near the spot where lies the ashes of my grandfather, grandmother, some of my Uncles, Aunts and Cousins, one brother-in-law, several of my friends and acquaintances, on the south side of Hoods Creek a quarter of a mile above the village of Gladstone. I was never out of the county more than two months at a time; never was in school except the private and public schools of the county, neither of those very much.

The first school I went to, I went with my sister (I was about five years old) to Uncle Tommie Broadfoot, who was teaching in a little log cabin on Uncle Evans Crowell's place. I got tired of school before noon, they had to take me home. I never liked to go to school and did not go much until I was nearly grown, had rather stay home and help do the work. I never got but one whipping in school, that was by a young Baptist preacher by the name of John Long. Some people now sometimes call me "Long John." He whipped me for laughing. I sat on my cousin's book, he came in and tickled me under the arm. I laughed out. Teacher says "Hey what's the matter there?" I replied that Wayne had tickled me. He told us to come out and I will tickle you. He tickled both of us. I have never laughed half as much as I ought to since.

The most of the public schools I attended were taught by a Baptist preacher. One of the best teachers I ever went to is a Presbyterian preacher. Uncle Tommie was the first teacher, Miss Mollie Johnson the last. All my teachers except Bro. James Price and Mrs. I. D. Nunn and many of my school mates have passed over the river. I hope to meet them on the other side "some sweet day."

If there is one living who attended the Broadfoot school or was at the 'possum hollow school house when I got the Long whipping I would be very glad to hear from you either by card letter or otherwise. Address J. M. PHILLIPS, Cassad, Ky.

Mr. J. W. Reid, who spent the winter in the south, was in our office Wednesday. He reported that he would leave soon for Illinois, where he will make his home.

MAIN STREET PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

A union meeting was held at the Main Street Presbyterian church on Wednesday evening when the pastor, Rev. E. N. Hart, gave his stereopticon address, which was both interesting and instructive.

On Easter Sunday night the Cantata "Calvary" will be given. This is a beautiful and appropriate musical service. Time necessary one hour and a half.

All are cordially invited.

A MINATURE CYCLONE

A cyclone visited the farm of Dr. T. A. Frazer, near town, on Wednesday of last week. It was a real twister and was "miniature" only as to the extent of the territory visited.

Eyewitnesses of the storm say that a small cloud came over from the southwest and the wind in spiral form came swooping down striking the earth on the west corner of the Frazer farm. After pulling up ten fence posts and scattering them it crossed the road to the north east, struck a telephone pole and pulled it up, a dozen more fence posts hurled out, then the spiral shape ascended and the storm was over. Its path was not more than fifteen feet wide and fifty feet long and did not last more than one minute.

MRS. BILLY THORP DIES

Mrs. Billy Thorp, 65 years old, died at her home near Irma, Tuesday of a complication of diseases.

Funeral services were held, officiated by Rev. J. W. Flynn, interment at Watson cemetery Wednesday.

Mrs. Thorp was survived by her husband and seven children: Mary, Ida, Jessie, Ethe, Marshall, Odus and Alvin.

BILLY YATES AT LITCHFIELD

Evangelist W. B. Yates returned home Monday from Litchfield where he had been assisting Rev. W. C. Christie, pastor of the Methodist church of that city, in a two-weeks' revival meeting. Rev. H. H. Jones pastor of the Scottsville Methodist church, did the preaching. It was a great meeting and resulted in 76 conversions and 67 additions to the Methodist church. Mr. Yates will leave this week for Stanford to assist Rev. E. K. Arnold in a revival.

LOST FOUR HORSES

Mr. James Bell, of the Sheridan section, was among those who came to town County Court day. Mr. Bell reports that he lost four horses last week, which were all he had, from blind staggers. He also lost a cow. He thinks that the cause of the loss of his stock was from eating defective corn.

ARM DISLOCATED

Mr. J. Everett Bebout, of the Sheridan section, was in town Monday with his arm in a sling. He reports that while hauling a load of hay last week his wagon was overturned, hurling Everett and the hay to the ground, painfully bruising and dislocating his right arm.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON LAW ENFORCEMENT AND MORAL REFORM, ADOPTED BY HENDERSON DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

Slaughters, Ky., April 6, 1922.

As leaders of religious and moral forces in this section of Kentucky, we, the members of the Henderson District Conference M. E. Church, South, hereby call upon our christian citizenship to exert every possible influence which may lead our people to a patriotic and conscientious respect for the laws of our nation and state.

In view of the apparent organized and determined effort to nullify the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution and the amendment to our own state constitution, we call upon our people to use every agency by which this popular amendment to the constitution of the United States may be universally respected.

We note with gratitude the gradual growth of a more vigorous and effective policy upon the part of the Federal government in stamping out the nefarious work of the illicit still and breaking up of the ruinous business of "bootleggers" and "white mule" vendors. We are thankful for the present drastic law enacted by our own Commonwealth and for the rising tide of indignation against all this un-American and Bolshevistic business. It is gratifying to note that among our new officials coming into office the first of the year there are a number, who observing their oath of office, are dealing some telling blows in bringing to justice these insolent violators.

This conference hereby commends and encourages without reservation the good work of all who are trying fearlessly and honestly to enforce the law impartially against all violators. We further condemn as traitorous, treacherous and contemptible, all officials who knowingly and flagrantly wink at crime and refuse to go the reasonable limit in suppressing every clear violation of the law. We include not only judges, sheriffs and other guardians of the peace, but we emphasize the tremendous importance of the observance of the oath taken by men who serve on our grand and petit juries, for much depends upon the attitude of citizens composing juries. The unscrupulous juror is a traitor to his country and a menace to society.

We warn our people against the subtle evils of gambling, Sabbath desecration and violation of all other plain laws of this country.

This conference here and now commits itself to an open, fearless and uncompromising fight against the vice of race track gambling, as permitted under the laws of Kentucky. With shame we face the fact that only under the laws of Maryland, Nevada and Kentucky is this vicious business legalized.

We make this declaration of war today, asking no quarter and giving none, till a legislature is elected in our state which shall forever banish from our borders the resorts of these rich, red-faced gamblers and diamond-bedecked women who follow in the trail of these blighting courses.

Since but a few days ago articles of incorporation of the "Green River Jockey Club," were filed in Henderson county, we therefore protest against this shameful evil and urge all good citizens to refrain from buying stock or lending any kind of sympathy or support to this proposition.

We urge both preachers and people to speak and to deal sanely, tactfully but forcefully and fearlessly with all these evils and build up such a respect for the laws of God and man that flagrant violations shall be unknown.

PETER AND ALIX.

Synopsis.—Doctor Strickland, retired, is living in Mill Valley, near San Francisco. His family consists of his daughters, Alix, 21, and Cherry, 18, and Anne, his niece, 24. Their closest friend is Peter Joyce, a lovable sort of recluse. Martin Lloyd, a visiting mining engineer, wins Cherry, marries her and carries her off to El Nido, a mine town. Peter realizes that he loves Cherry. Justin Little woos Anne. Cherry comes home for Anne's wedding. Cherry realizes her marriage is a failure. Peter tells Cherry of his "grand passion," without naming the girl. Martin comes for Cherry. Martin and Cherry drift apart. Dr. Strickland dies. Peter returns from a long absence.

"I can't tell you how surprised I am at Anne," Peter said.

"Well, we all were!" Alix confessed. "But it's just Anne's odd little self-centered way," she added. "It was here, and she wanted it. Well—I let Hong go, and as soon as I can rent this house, I'm going to New York."

"Why New York, my dear girl?"

"Because I believe I can make a living there, singing and teaching and generally struggling with life!" she answered, cheerfully. "Cherry gets most of the money—they are always somewhat in debt, and I imagine that the reason she is able to have a nice apartment and a maid now is because she knows it is coming—and I get the house, and enough money to keep me going—say, a year, in New York."

"Do you want to go, Alix?" he said, affectionately.

"Yes, I think I do," she answered. But her eyes watered. "I do—in a way," she added. "That is, I love my singing, and the thought of making a success is delightful to me. But, of course, it means that I give up everything else. I can't have home life, and—and the valley—for years, four or five anyway, I'll have to give all that up. And I'm twenty-seven, Peter. And I'd always rather hoped that my music was going to be a domestic variety!" She stopped, smiling, but he saw the pain in her eyes. "George Sewall most kindly asked me to mother his small son—" she resumed, casually. "But although he is the dearest—"

"Sewall did?" Peter exclaimed, rather struck. "Great Scott! his father is one of the richest men in San Francisco."

"I know it," Alix agreed. "And he is one of the nicest men," she added. "But, of course, he'll never really love any one but Ursula. And I felt—oh, I felt too tired and alone and depressed to enter upon congratulations and clothes and family dinners with the Sewalls," she ended, a little drearily. "I wanted—I wanted things in the old way—as they were—" she said, her voice thickening.

"I know—I know!" Peter said, sympathetically. And for a while there was silence in the little house, while the rain fell steadily upon the dark forest without, and soaked branches swished about eaves and windows. "Can you put me up to-night?" he asked, suddenly. He liked her frank pleasure.

"Rather! I think Cherry's room was made up fresh last Monday," she told him.

She had risen, as if for good-nights, and was now beside the old square piano, where she had placed the lamp.

"I haven't touched it—since—" she said, sadly, sitting on the stool, and with her eyes still smiling on him, putting back the hinged cover. And a moment later her hands, with the assurance and ease of the adept, drifted into one of the songs of the old days.

"Do you remember the day we put the rose tree back, Peter?" she asked.

"When Martin was almost a stranger? And do you remember the day we made biscuits, over by the ocean?"

"I remember all the days," he answered, deeply stirred.

"We didn't see all this, then," Alix mused, still playing softly. "Anne claiming everything for her husband, you and I here talking of Dad's death, and Cherry married—" She sighed.

"She's not happy?" he questioned quickly.

"She's not unhappy," she told him, with a troubled smile. "It's just one of those marriages that don't ever get anywhere, and don't ever stop," she added. "Martin has faults, he's unreasonable, and he makes enemies. But those aren't faults for which a woman can leave her husband. Oh, Peter," she added, laying a smooth, warm hand on his, and looking into his eyes with her honest eyes. "don't go away again! Stay here in the valley for a week or two, and help me get everything worked out and thought out—I've been so much alone!"

"Dear old Alix!" he said, sitting down on the bench beside her and putting his arm about her. She dropped her head on his shoulder, and so they sat, very still, for a long minute. Alix's hand went to her own shoulder, and her fingers tightened on his, and she breathed deep, contented breaths, like a child.

"Somebody ought to wire Mrs. Grundy, collect," she said, after awhile.

"We will defy Mrs. Grundy, my dear," Peter said, kissing the top of a soft brown braid, "by trotting off hand in hand tomorrow and getting ourselves married. Why, Alix, he gave us his consent years ago—don't you remember?"

"He did wish it!" she said, and burst into tears.

"I seem to be doing things in a slightly irregular manner," she said to him the next day, when they had gotten breakfast together, and were basking in the sunlight of the upper deck of the ferryboat, on their way to the city. "I spend the night before my marriage alone—in a small country house hidden in the woods—with my betrothed, and propose to buy my trousseau immediately after the ceremony!"

Her voice fell to a dreamy note, and she watched the gulls, wheeling in the sunshine, with thoughtful, smiling eyes. The man glanced at her once or twice, in the silence that followed, with something like hesitation, or compunction, in his look.

"Look, here, Alix—let's talk. I want to ask you something. There's never been anything—anything to tell you—or your father, if he was here," Peter said, flushed and a trifle awkward. "I'm not that kind of a man. But there has been that one thing—that one woman—"

Flushed, too, she was looking at him with bright, intelligent eyes.

"But I thought she never even knew—"

"No, she never did!" Alix looked back at the gulls.

"Oh, well, then—" she said, indifferently.

"Alix, would you like to know about her?" Peter said bravely. "Her name—and everything?"

"Oh, no, please, I'd much rather not!" she intercepted him hastily, and after a pause she added, "Our marriage isn't the usual marriage, in that way. I mean I'm not jealous, and I'm not going to cry my eyes out because there was another woman—is another woman, who meant more to you, or might have! I'm going into it with my eyes open, Peter. I know you love me, and I love you, and we both like the same things, and that's enough."

Three weeks later he remembered the moment, and asked her again. They were in the valley house now, and a bitter storm was whirling over the mountain. Peter's little cabin rocked to the gale, but they were warm and comfortable beside the fire; the room was lamp-lighted, scented by Alix's sweet single violets, white and purple, spilling themselves from a glass bowl, and by Peter's pipe, and by the good scent of green bay burning.

The Joyses had had a happy day, had climbed the hills under a lowering sky, had come home to dry clothes and do cooking, for Kow was away, and had finally shared an epicurean meal beside the fire.

Peter was wrapped in deep content; the companionship of this normal, pretty woman, her quick words and quick laugh, her music, her glancing, bright interest in anything and everything, was the richest experience of his life. She had said that she would change nothing in his home, but her clever white fingers had changed everything. There was order now, there was charming fussing and dusting, there were flowers in bowls, and books set straight, and there was just the different little angle to piano and desk and chairs and tables that made the cabin a home at last. She wanted bricks for a path; he had laughed at her fervent. "Do give me a whole carload of bricks for Christmas, Peter!" She wanted bulbs to pot. He had lastly suggested that they open the town house while carpenters and painters remade the cabin, but she had protested hotly. "Oh, do let's keep it just as it always was!" Smiling, he gave her her way.

CHAPTER XI.

Cherry had a flat now in Red Creek "Park." It differed from an apartment because it had no elevator, no janitor, no steam heat. These things were neither known nor needed in the crude mining town; the flat building itself was considered a rather questionable innovation. It was a wooden building, three stories high, with bay windows. Cherry had watched this building going up, and had thought it everything desirable. She liked the clean kitchen, all fresh white woodwork, tiles, and nickelplate, and she liked the big closets and the gas-log. She had worried herself almost sick with fear that she would not get this wonderful place, and finally paid twenty-five dollars for the first month's rent with a fast-beating heart. She had the center floor.

But after the excitement of moving in died away, she hated the place. She had enough money to hire a maid now, and she had a succession of slatternly, independent young women in her kitchen, but she found her freedom strangely flat.

Now and then a play, straight from "a triumphant year on Broadway" came to town for one night; then Martin took his wife, and they bowed to half the men and women in the house, lamenting as they streamed out into the sharp night air that Red Creek did not see more such productions.

The effect of these plays was to make Cherry long vaguely for the stage; she really did not enjoy them for themselves. But they helped her to visualize Eastern cities, lighted streets, restaurants full of lights and music, beautiful women fitly gowned. After one of these performances she would not leave her flat for several days, but would sit dreaming over the thought of herself in the heroine's robe.

One day she had a letter from Alix; it gave her a heartache, she hardly knew why. She began to dream of her own home, of the warm, sweet little valley whose breezes were like wine, of Tamalpais wreathed in fog, and of the ridges where buttercups and poppies powdered a child's shoes with gold and silver dust. She began to hunger for home. Nothing that Red Creek could offer shook her yearning for the remembered sweetness and beauty of the redwoods, and the great shade of the mountain. She wanted to spend a whole summer with Alix.

She was athirst for home, for old scenes and old friends and old emotions! She had only to hint to Alix to receive a love letter containing a fervent invitation. So it was settled. With a sort of feverish brevity Cherry completed her arrangements; Martin was to use his own judgment in the matter of boarding or keeping the flat. Some of their household goods were stored; Cherry told him that she would come down in September and manage all the details of settling afresh, but she knew that her secret hope was that she might never see Red Creek again.

Alix met her sister at the ferry in San Francisco on a soft May morning. She was an oddly developed Alix, trim and tall, prettily gowned and veiled, laughing and crying with joy at seeing Cherry again. Peter, she explained between kisses, had had to go to Los Angeles three days ago, had been expected home last night, and was not even aware yet that Cherry was definitely arriving.

"Of course, he knew that you were coming, but not exactly when," Alix said, as she guided the newcomer along the familiar ferry place on to the big bay steamer for Mill Valley. Cherry drew back to exclaim, to marvel, to exult, at all the well-remembered sights and sounds and smells.

"Oh, Alix—Market street!" she exclaimed. "And that smell of leather tanning, and that smell of bay water and of coffee! And look—that's a cable-car!"

"We'll come over to San Francisco soon, and you'll see the new hotels," Alix promised when they were seated on the upper deck, with the blue waters of the bay moving softly past them. Cherry's happy eyes followed a wheeling gull; she felt as if the world was suddenly sunshiny and simple and glorious again. "But now, I thought the best thing was to get you home," Alix went on, "and get you rested."

"I can't get used to the idea of you and Peter—married!" Cherry smiled.

"We're well used to it," Alix declared, smiling, too. But a little sigh stabbed through the smile a second later. Cherry's exquisite eyes grew sympathetic; she suspected from the letter Alix had written that there would be no nursery needed in the mountain cabin for a while, and she knew that to baby-loving Alix this would be a bitter cross.

Sausalito, fragrant with acacia and rose blooms, rose steeply into the bright sunshine beyond the marshes skirting the bay glittering in light. Cherry's eager eyes missed nothing, and when they left the train at Mill Valley, and the mountain air enveloped them in a rush of its clear softness and purity she was in ecstasies.

She gave an exclamation of delight when they reached the cabin. It was a picture of peaceful beauty in the summer noon. There were still buttercups and poppies in the fields, and in the garden thousands of roses were growing riotously, flinging their long arms up against the slope of the low brown roof, and hanging in festoons from the low branches of the oaks. Beyond the house the mountain rose; from the porch Cherry could look down upon the familiar valley, and the rivers winding like strips of blue ribbon through the marshes, and the far bay, and San Francisco beyond.

Inside were shady rooms, bowls of flowers, plain little white curtains stirring in the summer breeze, peace and simplicity everywhere. Cherry smiled at the immaculately clad Chinese stirring something in a yellow bowl in a spotless kitchen whose windows showed mandarin and wild lilac and madrone trees; smiled at the big, smoked fireplace where sunlight fell on piled logs down the chimney's great mouth; smiled as she went to and fro on journeys of investigation. But the smile quivered into tears when she came to her own room, just such a room as little Charity Strickland had had, only a few years ago, with white hangings and unpainted wood, fresh air streaming through it, and redwoods outside.

Cherry stumbled into the airy, dark, sweet little bedroom, and somehow undressed and crept between the cool sheets of the bed that stood near Alix's on the wide sleeping porch. Her last thought was for the heavenly redwoods so close to her; she slept, indeed, for almost twelve unbroken hours.

"Oh, Sis, I do feel so deliciously lazy and happy and rested and—and everything!" said Cherry, as she settled herself at the porch table where service for one was spread.

"Cherry, you're prettier than ever!" Alix said, eyeing the white hands so busy with blue china, and the bright head dappled with shade and sunshine coming through the green rose vine.

"Am I?" Cherry said, pleased. "I thought myself that I looked nice this morning," she added, innocently. "But it is really because the air of this place agrees with me, it makes my skin feel right and my eyes feel right; it makes me feel normal and smoothed out somehow!"

"Oh, there's no place in the world like it!" Alix agreed, rubbing some dried mud from the back of her hand with the trowel. "If Martin continues to migrate every little while, I wish you could have a little house here. Then for part of the time, at least, we could be together."

"The old house," Cherry said, dreamily.

"Well, why not?" Alix echoed, eagerly. "It's in pretty bad shape, after being empty so long, but it would make a darling home again! Would Martin object?"

Cherry filled her coffee cup a second time, gave him an appreciative smile as he put a hot French loaf before her, and said, indifferently:

"Martin has a constitutional objection to whatever pleases me, and would find some objection to any plan that gave me pleasure!" Her tone was light, but there was a bitter twinge to her lips as she spoke.

"Oh, Cherry!" Alix said, distressed.

"However, I'm not going to talk about Martin!" the younger sister decreed, gaily. "I'm too utterly and absolutely happy!"

There was a worried little cloud on Alix's forehead, but it lighted steadily, as the happy morning wore on, and half an hour later, when she and Cherry were sailing a frog on a shingle, on the busy little stream that poured down the hill near the cabin, both were laughing like children again.

She was youth incarnate, palpitating, flushed, unpoiled

Stories of GREAT INDIANS

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

KING HENDRICK TRADES AN EMPIRE FOR A COAT

NO OTHER white man in history ever had more influence over the red man than Sir William Johnson, colonial superintendent of Indian affairs. At his baronial mansions in western New York, "the Hall" and "the Castle," he received members of the Iroquois confederacy as equals and it was his influence which made them allies of the English instead of the French during the French and Indian war.

One of the chiefs who frequently visited Johnson Hall was a Mohawk named King Hendrick. One day Sir William received from England some richly-embroidered clothing. King Hendrick was present when it was unpacked and the gaudy attire caught the fancy of the red man. The next morning he approached Sir William. "Brother, I had a dream," he announced. "Indeed," replied Johnson, "what did my red brother dream?" "I dreamed that you gave me one of those fine coats," said the Mohawk, and Sir William, greatly amused, gave him the garment.

Some time later Johnson visited Hendrick's camp. They smoked awhile in silence. "Brother, I had a dream last night," finally stated Johnson. "What did my pale-faced brother dream?" asked the chief. "I dreamed that this tract of land was mine"—and Sir William described a square of the richest land in the Mohawk valley, containing nearly 100,000 acres.

Hendrick was completely taken aback by the enormity of the request, but he could not be outdone in generosity. After a moment he said: "Brother, the land is yours." "But," he added earnestly, "you must not dream again!" By playing Indian on Hendrick, Sir William had acquired land which made him one of the largest landholders in the colonies.

During the French and Indian war Johnson persuaded King Hendrick to join him in marching against an invading force of 2,000 French under General Dieskau, who was coming from Canada. On September 8, 1755, they met the French at Lake George.

When Johnson decided to detach a part of his force for a flank attack he asked King Hendrick if he thought a certain number would be enough. "If they are to fight, they are too few," replied the chief. "If they are to be killed, they are too many." Acting upon this advice, Sir William kept his force together and attacked. A great battle followed in which King Hendrick was killed while fighting bravely at the head of his warriors.

CHIEF LOGAN, THE CAYUGA: HIS IMMORTAL SPEECH

"APPEAL to any white man to say if ever he entered Logan's cabin hungry and he gave him not meat; if ever he came cold and naked and he clothed him not? During the course of the last long and bloody war, Logan remained idle in his camp, an advocate for peace. Such was my love for the whites that my countrymen pointed as I passed and said, 'Logan is the friend of the white man.' I had even thought to have lived with you but for the injuries of one man."

"Colonel Cresap, the last spring, in cold blood and unprovoked, murdered all the relations of Logan, not even sparing my women and children. There runs not a drop of my blood in the veins of any living creature. This called on me for revenge. I have sought it. I have killed many. I have fully glutted my vengeance. For my country I rejoice at the beams of peace; but do not harbor a thought that mine is the joy of fear. Logan never felt fear. He will not turn on his heel to save his life. Who is there to mourn for Logan? Not one!"

What American has not at some time in his school career recited from his reader that speech, not realizing the historical inaccuracy of some of the statements nor the fact that the chief was doing a great injustice to Col. Michael Cresap, a daring borderer and a brave officer of the Virginia riflemen during the Revolution? For the man who was guilty of the murder was Daniel Greathouse, a disolute trader.

But even such errors in fact cannot detract from the greatness of the speech and of the man, nor from the tragedy of his life. For Logan (Tah-gah-jute—literally: "His Eyeslashes Stick Out"; figuratively: "Sighing") was unwavering in his friendship to the whites until the massacre of his people in 1770 sent him on the war-path, raging like a wild animal. He was the leading figure in Lord Dunmore's war, one of the bloodiest in frontier history.

Occasionally his better instincts prevailed during that war. Once he saved the life of Simon Kenton, the famous scout, when Kenton's old friend, Simon Girty, the "white renegade," had failed.

He had been an intemperate drinker before the Greathouse murder. After that he became an utter sot, which only added to his cruelty. In 1780 his nephew killed him during a drunken brawl. His wife survived him, but there were no children. So his mournful statement, "there runs not a drop of my blood in the veins of any living creature," was true to the last.

SAYS CALOMEL SALIVATES AND LOOSENS TEETH

The Very Next Dose of This Treacherous Drug May Start Trouble.

You know what calomel is. It's mercury; quicksilver. Calomel is dangerous; it crashes into your bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tonic for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

Don't take calomel! It makes you sick the next day; it loses you a day's work. Dodson's Liver Tonic straightens you right up and you feel great. No salts necessary. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and can not salivate.—Advertisement.

MINERALIZED WATER ROUTS CHICKEN LICE

Tablets Dropped into Drinking Fountains Banish Vermin, Make Fowls Grow Faster and Increase Egg Yield.

Any poultry raiser can easily rid his flock of lice and mites, make chickens grow faster and increase their egg yield by simply adding minerals to the fowls' drinking water. This does away with all bother, such as dusting, greasing, dipping and spraying. The necessary minerals can now be obtained in convenient tablets, known as Paratabs. Soon after the fowls drink the mineralized water, all lice and mites leave them. The tablets also act as a tonic conditioner. The health of the fowls quickly improves, they grow faster and the egg yield frequently is doubled. Little chicks that drink freely of the water never will be bothered by mites or lice.

The method is especially recommended for raisers of purebred stock, as there is no risk of soiling the plumage. The tablets are warranted to impart no flavor or odor to the eggs and meat. This remarkable conditioner, egg tonic and lice remedy costs only a trifle and is sold under an absolute guarantee. The tablets are scientifically prepared, perfectly safe, and dissolve readily in water.

Any reader of this paper may try them without risk. The laboratories producing Paratabs are so confident of good results that to introduce them to every poultry raiser they offer two big 12 packages for only $1. Send no money, just your name and address—a card will do—to the Paratab Laboratories, Dept. 825, 1700 Coors Cola Bldg., Kansas City, Mo., and the two $1 packages, enough for 100 gallons of water, will be mailed. Pay the postman $1 and postage on delivery, and if you are not delighted with results in 10 days—if your chicken is ar not healthier, laying more eggs, and entirely free from lice and mites—your money will be promptly refunded. Don't hesitate to accept this trial offer as you are fully protected by this guarantee.

IMPLEMENT DAY

Monday was the annual day that has been observed by the T. H. Cochran Hardware Co for several years. It is a day worth while to the people of the county. Last Monday was no exception and according to Mr. Alvis Stephens, one member of the firm, Monday was one of the best if not the very best days they had ever experienced. There were twenty sales people waiting on the throng that crowded the house all day.

The Company advertises freely and then they have the goods and prices and the people come again. They carry one of the most complete stock of Hardware in this end of the state and deserve the large volume of trade they handle yearly.

Monday was also a good day with the firm of Yandell-Gugenheim Co., one of the oldest and most substantial Dry Goods firms in the county. It deservedly enjoys a large patronage.

So it was reported that all the business houses did a splendid business Monday.

A UNION OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

Healthy Housewife---Happy Home

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Has Helped Form Many

For the ailing, half-sick housewife such a union is impossible. Often times even the slightest form of housework cannot be accomplished. Yet the work must be done.

Many women struggle along for years suffering from some form of female trouble that make their lives miserable and their homes far from happy.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped thousands of just such women regain their health and strength. Just give your thought to the following letters and remember that the women who wrote these letters knew how they felt before taking the Vegetable Compound and again afterwards. It helped them—let it help you.

Had Nervous Spells

Horatio, Ark.—"I had nervous spells and awful bad feelings. My right side and my back hurt me all the time and I had been going down in health for six or seven years. For three years I had not been able to do my work without help. I weighed only 95 pounds when my husband's mother persuaded me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Now I heartily recommend it to all suffering women, as I have gained weight and health. I can do all my work, anything I want to do."—Mrs. JIM HANRICK, Horatio, Arkansas.

The Wool Combers.

In the Latin quarter of Paris one often sees groups of barchanded women, sitting in some quiet corner of the street, perhaps within a church door, picking and combing the wool of their mattresses. No matter how poor a French peasant may be, he almost always possesses a comfortable bed with a wool mattress.

A sworn statement of purity is with every bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

If you need a medicine, you should have the best. On sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large. Reading, Pa.—"I was a nervous wreck and could hardly do my housework. I always had to have help or I would never have got it done. Through the advice of friends I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for my nerves and Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine for my blood and I am feeling fine and doing my work all alone. I can recommend these medicines to any one, for they certainly helped me. I suffered for five years and Lydia E. Pinkham's medicines pulled me through."—Mrs. WALTER U. STOVER, 1218 Mulberry St., Reading, Pa.

Recommends the Vegetable Compound

New Orleans, La.—"I have found relief from my troubles by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I praise it wherever I go. I could not do my work as it should be done for I would sometimes have to lie down because of the pains I had. A friend induced me to take your Vegetable Compound and I have got great results from it. I keep house and am able to do all my own work. I recommend your Vegetable Compound to my friends who have troubles similar to mine."—Mrs. T. FORCKLER, 1915 N. Derbigny St., New Orleans, La.

WILL WRITE POST'S HISTORY

Rupert Hughes, Author, Will Chronicle Happenings to Members of Robert Stowe Gill Body.

The history of one American Legion post will be written by no less a light than Rupert Hughes. With an eye to his versatile pen, members of the Robert Stowe Gill post of the Legion in New York, have made the author their historian. The membership of the post is made up entirely of members of the Lamb's club—writers and actors for the most part.

"Long in time and short in importance" is the way Mr. Hughes describes his military career. As a matter of fact he was a fairly important soldier. He started as a private in the Seventh regiment in 1897. Ten years later he was offered a lieutenant colonelcy, which he did not accept. He served on the Mexican border as a captain, and only deafness kept him from service abroad during the World war. During the raising of troops in New York he served as adjutant general, where his deafness was an asset rather than a liability with the parafists tooting their tin whistles, and then he became a captain in the Intelligence service, being just as intelligent when deaf as when sharp of hearing.

"I joined the Legion," Mr. Hughes wrote, "because I believe in its principles and I believe it to be one of the most important organizations in the country." Mr. Hughes has recently come into public notice for his stand against censorship.

HIGH ON LEGION HONOR ROLL

Minnesota Newspaper Man Wrote 3,236 Personal Letters to "Home" Workers During World War.

One of the world's most enthusiastic letter writers is M. W. Grimes, editor of the Le Sueur (Minn.) News. For his remarkable service as "self-appointed correspondent" during the war, he stands high on the honor roll of the Minnesota department of the American Legion.

Le Sueur and vicinity sent 230 men and seven women to the colors. Editor Grimes sat down and wrote them 3,236 personal letters while they were away from home, an average of one letter a month for each fighter or nurse. In addition he mailed a copy of the hometown paper to each of them every week. The letters were not the "Dear Jim-I remain yours-truly" variety; they contained the bits of "home gossip" and local color for which the doughboys were willing to give their last cigarette.

When the veterans returned, Editor Grimes assisted in the formation of a post of the American Legion and devoted an entire edition of the News to reproducing the pictures of every Le Sueur boy that had lost his life in the war.

AN EYE ON NEXT CONGRESS

Official Washington is Speculating on How Many Ex-Service Men Will Be Returned.

Official Washington is wondering how many ex-service men are to be returned to congress at the election next fall. Speculation is rife, with the bonus controversy at full tilt.

Veterans of the World war already have formidable strength in the house, 31 seats being occupied by former service men, according to a canvass by the American Legion. The senate has two veterans—Senator Newberry of Michigan, and Senator Elkins of West Virginia. Twenty-one states are represented by ex-service men in congress, New York leading with four, Massachusetts and Tennessee being second with three each.

Far-sighted persons have hazarded the opinion that when the votes are counted in November, it will be found that the number of ex-soldiers in the house has been materially increased.

CHINA OWES EMPLOYEES

Been in Debt to Department Workers For Many Months.

Peking.—The Chinese government is in arrears of from one month to nearly two years in the payment of salaries to employees in 19 of its 23 departments, says the Chen Pao, a Chinese daily.

Officers of the general staff have 21 months' pay coming to them, the paper says, but the average period of delayed payments in the other departments is about five months.

LEGION MAN BUSY AVIATOR

Earl Vance, Miles City (Mont.) Ex-Soldier, Did Not Quit When the War Ended.

Before the war, Earl T. Vance was a stenographer. He could scarcely type for 60 seconds without making a mistake, but when he got into aviation he managed to fly 1,000 hours without an accident.

Lemuel Bolles, national adjutant of the American Legion, was so impressed with this record that, after turning down dozens of offers to ride, he took his first flight with Vance while touring the country in Montana. Vance had returned from his airplane honeymoon, which he devised as a means of avoiding old shoes and rice, and which his bride thought was "too thrilling for words."

When Vance got out of the service, he found himself in Texas. Not being entirely decided on the best place to live, he stepped into a plane and started "north." When he arrived over Montana he looked down and thought the country looked good. So he landed, and he is in Miles City, where he runs an airplane company. Doctors, and even horse doctors, patronize his taxi service to make their long calls—Montana miles being among the longest in the world. Vance always makes it a point to fly to conventions of the American Legion.

"SERVICE" FOR LEGION ALSO

Raymond Brackett, of Marblehead, Mass., "Delivered the Goods" During the World War.

When Raymond O. Brackett was running a hotel in Marblehead, Mass., he believed in giving his guests "service." When his patrons ordered up an oyster stew, they were sure to find plenty of oysters in it.

When the war began to be mentioned in the papers, Mr. Brackett, whose grandfather, uncle, and great-uncle all had been in the army in the Civil war, closed his desk, hung up his "be back later" sign, and joined the navy. The Germans having ordered up a war, Mr. Brackett, in his customary style, saw to it that they got "service." If war was what they wanted, he was willing to fill their order. On October 1, then a full-fledged lieutenant, he steamed out in his U. S. S. Lake View and filled the North sea so full of mines that there was very little actual water left. It was on the Lake View that he witnessed the sinking of the German fleet at Scapa Flow.

When Lieutenant Brackett returned he took down his sign, opened his desk, and found a notice of his election as one of the national vice-commanders of the American Legion, in which capacity he is still giving "service."

Carrying On With the American Legion

Baseball is in full swing with the American Legion in Buenos Aires now.

Twenty-two squares of Quincy, Mass., have been dedicated by the American Legion to as many war dead.

King Victor Emmanuel favors the plan of having 1,000 British and 1,000 American soldiers visit the Italian battle front next summer.

"Start them right" is the motto of the American Legion at Colone, N. D., which has taken over the instruction of the local troop of boy scouts.

Borrowing American Legion buttons to obtain sympathy in the courts has been a practice of prisoners in the Los Angeles county jail. The judge is "wise" now.

A huge dormitory, commemorating Harvard men who lost their lives in the war, may be erected in Cambridge.

Valuable war documents of every description will be kept in a national archives building at Washington, rough as for which have already been drawn.

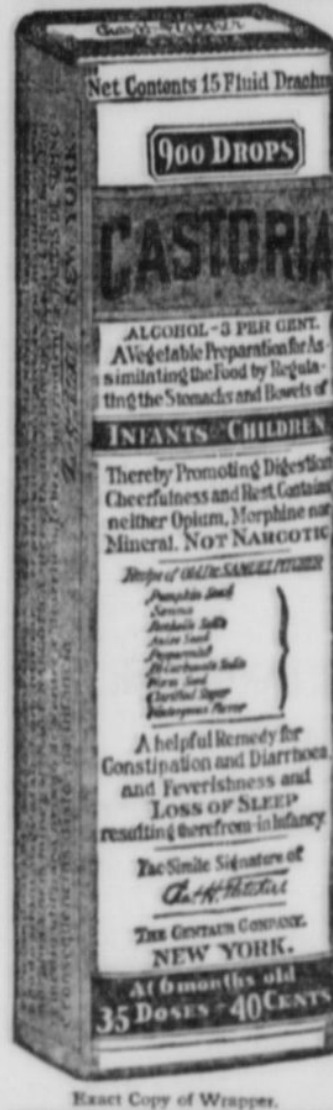

With logs hauled from nearby forests, legion men in Stilger, Okla., erected a genuine cabin for a clubhouse. Tossing their toes before a roaring fire they fight the war again in solid comfort.

Will Go After Crooks.

San Francisco, Cal.—Grand jury investigation of worthless stock promoters reported operating in San Francisco, preying upon widows and men with small savings, will be started as soon as the Arbuckle case is out of the way, District Brady announced.

Forces Will Be Cut.

Macon, Ga.—A five-day notice has been given shophmen of the Central of Georgia railroad here that a cut of 8 to 10 per cent in the working forces will be made effective on March 15.

Pointing to a bottle filled with perfume costing $8 an ounce, she asked to sample it.

Because the woman looked as if she might make a purchase, the clerk, in violation of the store rules, for perfume deteriorates when opened, permitted the woman to take a whiff of it.

"Now, that's pretty good," the customer replied. "I think I'll take a quarter's worth."

"Why, madam," the astonished clerk managed to answer, "you've already had a quarter's worth."

How Uncle Sam Spends Your Money in Conducting Your Business

JUST KEPT GROWING

The origins of these antiquated, cumbersome, costly, inefficient pieces of the national machinery that we call the executive departments show how any establishment if well watered with government money will expand and hold together, no matter how conflicting and incongruous its functions. Hardly one of these great business establishments—for that is what they are—was planned. As they are today they just happened.

Take the Department of Agriculture, for example, one of the greatest and most complex and widespread of all the departments. It is in closer touch and more directly affects the greatest number of people in the United States than any other branch of the government with the possible exception of the post office. It began in 1839 with an appropriation of $1,000, taken from the patent funds for the distribution of free seeds and the collection of agricultural statistics by the patent office, then a bureau in the State department. Now look at the darned thing. It is all over the place.

The title of the department indicates its most important field of activities, but its functions have been extended to include the whole range of rural industry and some branches of administration only very indirectly related to agricultural interests. For about 60 years subsequent to the Revolution the general interests of agriculture were left almost entirely to individual initiative. Federal activity was confined to relatively narrow limits and was merely sporadic. Soon after the national government was organized some attempts were made to establish a board of agriculture; but neither the first proposal in 1790 nor a second effort in 1817 was successful.

Shortly after the Revolution, following the example of Benjamin Franklin while in England, as agent of the colony of Pennsylvania during the years 1764 to 1775, American consuls and naval officers began the practice of sending home foreign seeds and cuttings for new crops, and of aiding in the introduction into the United States of new breeds of domestic animals. Even such small governmental participation was, in the beginning, rather extra-official.

In 1836 the commissioner of patents, one H. L. Ellsworth, began the distribution of considerable quantities of seeds and plants received from government representatives in foreign countries; and three years later through his influence an appropriation of $1,000 was made for the purpose of procuring and distributing seeds of new plants, carrying agricultural investigations and collecting agricultural statistics. This was the historic beginning of the much-talked-about free seed distribution.

By an act of congress in May, 1862, since generally called the organic act, the activities of the government affecting agriculture were placed under a separate and distinct organization known as the Department of Agriculture. It did not rank, however, with the other executive departments, and the commissioner was not entitled to a seat in the President's cabinet. Isaac Newton, chief of the agricultural section in the patent office, was appointed the first commissioner of agriculture. Other officers provided by the organic act included a statistician, a chemist, an entomologist and a superintendent of the propagating garden and experimental farm.

The chrysalis was now ready to be broken. In 1889 the Department of Agriculture was elevated to the rank of the other executive departments and its commissioner was made secretary of agriculture with a seat in the President's cabinet. This was in Grover Cleveland's administration. In honor of its new rank a few more functions were taken on.

But that's enough detail. It kept on growing. Beginning with an appropriation of $1,000 and two or three clerks, the department had, in 1910, employees to the number of 12,480, and an appropriation of $12,965,000. Five years later the appropriation had grown to $19,865,832 and the employees to 16,223. The employees in May, 1920, numbered 18,608 and the appropriation given by congress for the fiscal year 1921 was $31,475,368.

The department has increased its cost of living in 82 years from a mere $1,000—that is, $83.33 a month—to more than $31,000,000 a year—$2,622,947.38 every month. That shows as clearly and as sharply as it can be shown how the high cost of government living affects your own cost of living.

We, you and I, paid out of our savings and earnings every red cent of that increase from $1,000 a year to more than $31,000,000. It may have been well spent. We probably got a run for our money; but nobody knows, except in a general way. We have a right to know. It is simply fatheadedness on our part not to find out.

HAPHAZARD EXTENSION

The Department of Agriculture is one instance of how governmental establishments grow and spread and extend their activities, once they get started. The bureau of fisheries, in the Department of Commerce, is another. It had a modest beginning, and not so very long ago. Prior to 1871 there was no branch of the federal government especially charged with the consideration of fishery affairs.

Several of the states had established fish commissions and these state authorities, supported by private interests, began to agitate for a national bureau devoted to fishery interests.

So it came about that by 1871 congress was ready to yield and begin to make appropriations. The first one was for $5,000 and provided for a commissioner of fish and fisheries to prosecute investigations and inquiries "with the view of ascertaining whether any and what diminution in the number of food fishes of the coast and in the lakes of the United States has taken place; and also whether any and what protective, prohibitory or precautionary measures should be adopted in the premises; and shall report upon the same to congress."

The commissioner was to draw no pay, for it was provided by congress in the same joint resolution that he should be a civil officer of the government, of proved scientific and practical acquaintance with the fishes of the coast, who should serve without additional compensation. The then assistant secretary of the Smithsonian institution, by name Spencer Fullerton Baird, was chosen as the best man for the job, and so he proved to be. He made the little acorn grow. He was industrious and competent and knew how to get along with congress. He was diligent and he stood before kings. See what happened.

Remember, he started out with $5,000 to discover whether there had been any diminution of the supply of food fishes along the coasts or in the lakes. He was at the head of an independent investigation and reported directly to congress. The thing was kept alive by annual appropriations as an independent institution until 1903, when it was incorporated into the newly formed Department of Commerce and Labor as the bureau of fisheries.

By 1909 the annual appropriation had grown to $803,620, and the bureau had a permanent personnel of 325. At that time the land owned and occupied by the bureau at its fish cultural and biological stations had an aggregate area of over 12,000 acres, with a value of $240,000. The improvements and equipment at these stations represented an investment of more than $1,000,000. Other property of the bureau at that time included four sea-going steam and sail vessels, 20 steam launches and 150 small sail, power and rowboats, with equipment had a value of $300,000. Its six fish-transportation cars were valued at $45,000. Indeed, the total investment of the government in fishery-service property ran to about $1,385,000. That was back in 1909.

Well, it hasn't stopped growing; bigger and busier than ever, as the advertisements say. The appropriation by congress for the fiscal year 1919 was $1,183,140, and for 1921, $1,207,110. Besides what congress gave, the President allotted in 1918 and 1919, out of his private fund "for the national security and defense," $160,000. With the years of its growth and increasing funds the bureau had taken on many new functions and activities.

Until recently the bureau was administering to the best of its ability the laws relating to the terrestrial and arboreal fur bearers of Alaska, but the duty was incongruous to its legitimate functions. Congress finally conceded that the pursuit of foxes does not constitute a fishery. The cultivation of minks cannot be successfully conducted in a fish hatchery.

Apparently, as so many other establishments under the executive branch have, the fisheries service had become all cluttered up with duties and jobs it is not fitted or equipped to handle. All of which is a long, long way from an investigation of the possible diminution of food fish along the coast.

I don't pretend to say of the fisheries bureau that it has performed inefficiently either its proper work or the added activities that have been imposed upon it. For all I know it may be and is a great national blessing, and managed with maximum skill, intelligence and real economy. I hope it is.

I cite it here only as an example of a branch of governmental activity that has grown up haphazard from a small beginning to be a great, costly, far-spreading enterprise that by its own confusion is overlaid with duties, functions and activities unrelated to its legitimate and essential business—the care, propagation and study of a manner of food fish.

POULTRY

CIRCLES HELP FARM INCOME

Excellent Example of Way in Which Home Demonstration Workers Are Aiding Farmers.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Home demonstration workers realize that before substantial improvements can be made in rural home life there must be more cash income with which to install conveniences, correct defects, beautify the surroundings, or improve clothing. On most farms the production and selling of eggs and poultry offer the best immediate possibilities for increasing the income. The home demonstration agents of the United States Department of Agriculture and the state agricultural colleges, therefore have turned their attention to giving help in this field whenever there seemed to be need of it.

The poultry project at Orchard Gardens community, Dakota County, Minn., is an excellent example of the way in which home demonstration work thus meets a real want. The home demonstration agent helped to interest people in poultry raising as a source of income, which would mean income during the winter as well as during the summer.

The poultry project was started by the poultry specialist. During the project the members formed a poultry association. The first work of the association was to pool their orders for feed, thus saving a considerable sum. The second step of the association was to organize an egg circle to make plans for the marketing of the eggs. The egg circle was formed and by-laws adopted, making provision for a guaranty that their product would be of excellent quality. Each member was furnished with a stamp with the name of the egg circle and a number identifying the eggs. In case a bad egg was shipped, it could be traced to the owner.

Through the home demonstration agent a market for the eggs was found with the Women's Community Council of Minneapolis, the office of the Minneapolis home demonstration agent being used as the distributing center. The production from the egg circle soon outgrew this form of marketing and the president of the Orchard Gardens Poultry association then secured a market for the eggs through one of the high-class markets in eggs and butter in Minneapolis.

BAKED BONES FOR POULTRY

Furnish Mineral Matter Which Is of Great Importance—Pound Into Small Crumbs.

Heavy bones of all kinds may be put in shape for chicken feed by baking until brittle, and then rolling or pounding into small crumbs. These baked bones furnish mineral matter which is of great importance in nutrition. Green bone is probably the best source of mineral matter, but green bone is not always at hand, and bones for baking are more or less abundant on every farm.

LICE ARE QUITE INJURIOUS

Parasites Have Been Known to Destroy Dozens of Turkeys in Short Period of Time.

Experienced turkey breeders agree that lice are the most dangerous to adult turkeys during the fall and winter. They have been known to destroy dozens of birds in a few weeks. The usual reason given is that the turkeys are unable to find dust baths at this season with which to fight the pest in their own way, and consequently, the lice get an unusual foothold.

PROFITABLE TO RAISE DUCKS

Fewer Mature Rapidly and Are Ready for Market at Ten or Eleven Weeks of Age.

One of the best sources of profit in poultry raising, particularly where market poultry is concerned, is in the raising of ducks. They mature very rapidly and are generally ready for market at ten or eleven weeks of age, if intended for market purposes. For breeders they bring good prices if matured and held over until the breeding season.

Gude's Pepto-Mangan Is the Best Tonic for Nervous, Tired-Out Wives

Is your wife "all tired out" and cross and irritable much of the time? Do the children "bother her to death" every day, and do the ordinary household tasks that she formerly performed with ease seem now to overtax her? In other words, do you often come home to a house of trouble instead of a house of joy and happiness?

If your answer is "yes" to these pointed questions, don't blame your wife until she has taken Gude's Pepto-Mangan with her meals for a few weeks. She is simply run-down and nervous and needs the kind of iron that she will get in Gude's Pepto-Mangan to give her more vitality and strength. For thirty years doctors have recommended Gude's Pepto-Mangan as a first-class building-up tonic. Sold by your druggist in both liquid and tablet form.—Advertisement.

MOTHER! CLEAN CHILD'S BOWELS WITH CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP

Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup." If the little tongue is coated, or if your child is listless, cross, feverish, full of cold, or has colic, give a teaspoonful to cleanse the liver and bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the constipation poison, sour bile and waste out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.—Advertisement.

So Different From Her Own. "I do enjoy those films with children in 'em," remarked a tired-looking little woman. "When the children romp around on the screen they don't make a particle of noise."

DYED HER BABY'S COAT. A SKIRT AND CURTAINS WITH "DIAMOND DYES"

Each package of "Diamond Dyes" contains directions so simple any woman can dye or tint her old, worn, faded things new. Even if she has never dyed before, she can put a new, rich color into shabby skirts, dresses, waists, coats, stockings, sweaters, coverings, draperies, hangings, everything. Buy Diamond Dyes—no other kind—then perfect home dyeing is guaranteed. Just tell your druggist whether the material you wish to dye is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton, or mixed goods. Diamond Dyes never streak, spot, fade or run.—Advertisement.

The "Strike" Is On. The customer called the waiter. "There's a chunk of wood in my sausage," said he. "I expect to be served with the dog, but I'll be hanged if I'll eat the kennel, too."
