LETTER FROM E. JEFF TRAVIS

Written as Explanation of the Duties of County Board of Tax Supervisors

Editor Crittenden Press,
Marion, Ky.
Dear Sir:

I have been requested to write for publication an explanation of the duties of the Crittenden County Board of Tax Supervisors.

The Kentucky laws created a State Tax Commission whose duty it is to act as supervisors and apportion taxation among the counties just like the County Supervisors act to apportion taxation among the citizens or individuals in the county. This same law gives the State Tax Commission the power to say when a county is assessed too high or too low just as the County Supervisors have the power to say whether an individual is assessed too high or too low.

The assessment that was made in the fall of 1921, from which must come the revenue for 1922, showed the county nearly two million dollars lower than the year before. The State Board put a raise of $1,000,000 on the county. Mr. L. E. Guess and I went before the Board and succeeded in getting them to lower our raise to $800,000. At the regularly appointed time the County Tax Supervisors met and proceeded to equalize the assessor's books as required by law, but failed to get the amount asked for by the State Board. When the results were properly reported to the State Board they flatly refused to accept the same and ordered the County Clerk to not make up any tax bills. At the same time they notified me of the matter and cited me to the law in the case.

In case the raise is not met, the Fiscal Court of the county may convene and institute a suit to be prosecuted in the Franklin Circuit Court; second, the State may send a man or men and reassess the county at the county's expense; third, the County Board of Equalization may reconvene and make an equalized raise.

Our Board reconvened on the 17th day of this month and after a whole day's discussion and consideration decided that the cheapest way out would be to try to get the $800,000 asked for by the State Board. After eight days hard work they went over the assessor's books the second time and still lacked $112,000 reaching the required amount as demanded by the State Board.

I am writing this explanation at the request of our County Board which is composed of eight as good, honest, discreet men, tax payers, as will be found in Crittenden county.

I am not undertaking to say that taxes are too high or too low; that the law on the matter is right or not right, but I do say that no citizen of this county should be so indiscreet or unreasonable as to blame the members of the County Tax Supervisors for having to make this raise. If you will take just a little time you will see that they had to do just what they have done, or the whole county would be involved in a law suit that would retard all business in county affairs for a year or more.

If you don't like the law begin NOW to have it repealed.

Yours very truly,
E. JEFFREY TRAVIS,
County Judge.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Sisco went to Evansville Tuesday.

IMPROVEMENTS BEING MADE

The Illinois Central Railroad Company is making many improvements on the Evansville District, by building additional tracks to handle the increased business. Marion is getting her part of the increased payroll by the extension of the side track 35 car lengths, the construction of this track has employed 20 men with teams and two steam ditchers for the past two weeks. Ten additional men have been added to the section crew in order to make improvements on the track.

Marion and Crittenden county has given her share of this increased business. During the month of April 125 carloads of flourspar or approximately 11,000,000 pounds were shipped from this county, which moved mostly to eastern points and is a nice increase over last years business.

DECORATION EXERCISES

The Decoration exercises at Maple View Cemetery Sunday afternoon was attended by the largest crowd ever present on that occasion. This was an encouraging feature to the Cemetery Association.

For the past three years the Decoration exercises have been held on Sunday afternoon before the 30th, in order that more people could attend and hence become interested.

Special music was rendered by the Male Quartet and also the Misses Guess. The Cemetery business talk was made by J. Frank Dodge, of Sturgis, a former Marion man, and one who had much to do with the early days of the organization of the Association. He emphasized the need of co-operation of every lot owner with the Committee in order that the Cemetery may retain its present beauty and further improve same. A financial statement of past year's work was read.

The Memorial address was made by Rev. Hart of Princeton. This was very interesting and appropriate and the speaker had the attention of every ear during his talk.

The old Board of Directors was elected: J. W. Blue, W. T. McConnell, L. E. Crider and H. V. Stone. Mrs. W. B. Vandell, Treasurer, will retain Nellie Walker, Secretary, will retain their offices for the coming year.

After the close of the exercises, every grave in the cemetery had some flowers placed on it. Many lot owners have moved away and had no representative present, but their graves were not overlooked, some kind hand dropped flowers there.

The Secretary of the Cemetery Association tells us that already she has received numerous checks from lot owners now living in California, Colorado, Florida, Kansas, Missouri, Arizona, Michigan, Pennsylvania and Tennessee and other towns through Kentucky for the new year's work. Still there are some who live in Marion who have never been interested enough to place the care of their lots in the hands of the Committee. This ought not to be. If Marion has aught of which to boast it is her Cemetery and every citizen, whether lot owner or not, ought to cheerfully make some contribution each year to its upkeep.

MRS. STOVALL PASSES AWAY

Mrs. Adaline Stovall, widow of the late W. W. ("Buck") Stovall, died at her home in the Chapel Hill section Saturday night, May 27, after an illness of several months, aged 70.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES

First Class to Graduate From the Frances High School

The Commencement exercises of the first graduating class of Frances High School was held at the Presbyterian church of that place on the evening of May 28th.

Like most other high schools the first class was small consisting of two graduates: Pauline Pogue and Louis Vandell.

The program was splendid and appreciated.

Louis Vandell rendered the class history which contained much valuable information of educational progress in south Crittenden since 1840.

Pauline Pogue read the class poem. The Commencement Address was delivered by Prof. Lewis Matthews of Livermore City Schools, a Frances boy who has achieved success in his eight years work at Livermore and has been called to the Superintendent of the Franklin City Schools. It was a most remarkable address. A call to arms of the county classes for rural high schools and all kinds of community welfare service. Larger and better country schools as the hope of the nation.

The Baccalaureate sermon was preached by Rev. Hart of the Presbyterian church.

His subject was the "Potter and the Clay" and was handled in his masterful way. No one who heard it can well forget that the school must form and finish for time as the church does for eternity.

Frances High School has been recommended by the State Inspector for a place in "B" grade. The enrollment this year was 36 and the outlook for a splendid graduating class next year is bright.

CHAPTER XVI—Continued.

"Good-night, old girl!" Something in the tone touched her, with a vague hint of unhappiness, but she did not stop to analyze it. She went back through her room, and through the little passage, and rejoined Martin. The freedom of Peter's apartment Alix had always taken as naturally as she did the freedom of her father's.

"Can't hear us, eh? Martin asked, when again she stood beside him.

"Positively not!" she answered. "Look here," he said, abruptly. "What brought me up here is this. Who's making love to Cherry?"

Indignant, and with rising color, she stared at him.

"Who—what?"

"She's having a nice little quiet flirtation with somebody," Martin said, with a significant and warning smile. "Who is it?"

"I don't know who's been talking to you about Cherry, Martin," Alix said, sharply. "But you know you can't repeat that sort of rotten scandal to me!"

"I don't mean any harm—I don't mean any harm!" he assured her, with a quick attempt to quiet the storm he had raised. "Don't get mad—don't get mad! But I happen to know that there's some attraction that's keeping Cherry here, and I came up to look over the ground for myself, do you see? Come on, now, put me on!"

Alix made an effort at self-control. "Martin, you're mistaken!" she said, quietly. "You have no right to listen to any one who tells you such things, and if it wasn't that you're Cherry's husband I wouldn't listen to you! But you'll have to take my word for it that it's a lie. We three have lived up here without seeing any one—any one! Cherry has hardly spoken to a man, except Peter and Antoine and Kov, since she came!"

"Who is this George Sewall?" he asked, shrewdly.

"The lawyer! Oh, heavens, Martin! Why, George was a bean of mine; he's a widower of fifty, and has just announced his engagement to the trained nurse that took care of his boy!"

"He's?" Martin commented.

"If any one mentioned Cherry's name in connection with George," Alix said, firmly, "that was a perfectly malicious slander!"

"Sewall's wasn't mentioned!" Martin said, hastily.

"Whose name was mentioned, then?" Alix pursued, hotly.

"Well, nobody's name was mentioned," Martin took a great many creases and rubbed papers from his vest pockets, and shifted them over. Finally, with a fat, deliberate hand he selected one and put the others away.

"This is from my mother," he said. "My aunt, Mrs. North—"

"We saw her here, a week or two ago!" Alix said as he paused.

"Well, she was in Portland, and saw the folks," said Martin. "And my mother writes me this—"

"That's all of that," said Martin, folding the letter. He eyed Alix keenly. "Well, what do you think?" he asked, triumphantly.

"I think that's a mean, wicked thing to say!" she said, indignantly. "No, Martin," she said, silencing him, as he would have interrupted her, "I know she is beautiful and young, and I know—because she's told me—that you and she feel that your marriage is a mistake, but if you think—"

"Oh, she said that, did she? Now, look here," with his air of assurance. "By George, she had something on her mind when she met me today. She was fussed, and it wasn't all the surprise of seeing me, either. First she wanted to telephone you—then she fussed over your message—"

"Cherry gets fussed very easily!" Alix reminded him.

"Well, she was fussed all right this morning. She said not to mention it to Alix, because she had promised that it should go on time. I thought maybe she meant that you wanted her to go herself; no, she said, a note would do—"

"I don't know what you're talking about!" Alix said, puzzled.

"Your note!" Martin explained. "What note! I didn't write any note," Cherry telephoned—"

"No," he said, patiently and perfunctorily, "you wanted—Cherry—to say—good-by—to—those—people—who—were—sailing! That was all. She wrote it; it got there in time. I guess. Anyway, I heard the girl say + rush it to the boat!"

"Oh!" Alix said. "Oh—" she added. Her tone betrayed nothing, but she was thoroughly at sea. "Did I ask Cherry to say good-by to any one?" she asked herself, going back to the beginning of the long day. Instinct warned her that nothing would be gained by sharing her perplexity with Martin. "I give you my word that she hasn't been five minutes alone with any one but Peter and me!" she said, frankly, looking into Martin's eyes.

"Now, are you satisfied?"

"Sure, I'm satisfied!" he answered. "I'll take your say-so for it." He yawned. "Trouble with Cherry is, she hasn't enough to do!" he finished sapiently.

"I'm a poor person with whom to discuss Cherry!" Alix hinted, with an unsmiling nod for good-night.

And she looked at Cherry's corn-colored head, ten minutes later, with a thrill of maternal protectiveness. Cherry was evidently asleep, buried deep under the blue army blankets. But Alix did not get to sleep that night.

She did not even undress. For it was while sitting on the side of her bed, ready to begin the process, that through her excited and indignant and whirling thoughts the first suspicion shot like a touch of flame.

"I'll tell Peter all this when Martin has gone," Alix decided. "He'll be furious—he adores Cherry—he'll be furious—he thinks that there is no one like Cherry—"

The words she had said came back to her, and she said them again, half-aloud, with a look of pain and almost of fear suddenly coming into her eyes.

"Peter adores Cherry—"

And then she knew. Even while the sick suspicion formed itself, vague and menacing and horrible, in her heart, she knew the truth of it. And though for hours she was to weigh it and measure it, to remember and question and compare all the days and hours that she and Peter and Cherry had been together; from the moment the thought was born she knew that it was to be with her an accepted fact for all time to come.

For a few seconds Alix felt ill, dazed, and shocked almost beyond enduring. She sat immovable, her eyes fixed, her body held rigid, as a body might be in the second before it fell after a bullet had cleanly pierced the heart.

Then she put her hand to her throat, and looked with a sort of terror at the silent figure of Cherry. Nobody must know—that was Alix's first clear thought. She was breathing hard, her breast rising and falling painfully, and the blood in her temples began to pound; her mouth was dry.

With a blind instinct for solitude she went quickly and silently from the sleeping porch, and into the warm sitting room. For a few minutes Alix stood, with one foot on the chain that linked the old brass fire dogs, her elbow on the mantel, and her cheek resting against her arm.

"No," she whispered, almost audibly, "no—it can't be that! It can't be Cherry and Peter—Oh, my God! Oh, my God, it has been that, all the time, that, all the time—and I never knew it—I never dreamed it!"

"It's Peter and Cherry! They have come to care for each other—they have come to care for each other," she said to herself, her thoughts rushing and tumbling in mad confusion as she tested and tried the new fear. "It must be so. But it can't be so!" Alix interrupted herself in terror, "for what shall we do—what shall we do? Cherry in love with Peter. But Peter is my husband—he is my husband—"

And in a spasm of pain she shut her eyes, and flung her head as if suffocating. The beating of her heart frightened her. "I shall be sick if I go on this way!" she reminded herself. "And then they will know. They mustn't know. But Peter—" she whispered suddenly. "Peter, who has always been so good to me—so generous to me—and it was Cherry all the time! Even those years ago, when we used to tease him about the lady with the crinolines and ringlets, it was she. But why didn't he ask her instead of me?" wondered Alix, and with an aching head and a frowning brow she began to piece it all together.

The terrible truth rose triumphant from all her memories. Sometimes for a second she would flood her with almost painful joy, but inevitably the truth shut down upon her again, and she died, and she realized afresh that sorrow, stronger than before, was waiting to seize her again.

"Well—I can't stand it in here!" Alix said, suddenly. She crossed to the door, and opened it, and slipped noiselessly out into the night, catching a coat from the rack as she passed.

The night was wrapped in an ocean fog, there was no moon and no stars, but the air was soft and warm. With no goal in view, Alix climbed upward, walking rapidly, breathing hard, and frequently speaking aloud, as some poignant thought smote her, or standing still, too sick with pain, under an unexpected rush of emotion, to move.

"He would have told me about it—why didn't I let him?" ran Alix's thoughts. "I thought of some older woman, I don't know why—anyway, I didn't care so much then. But I care now! Peter, I care now! I can't give you up, even to Cherry. It is nonsense to talk of giving him up!" Alix told herself, sitting down in the lanky dark, on a log against which her wild walk had suddenly brought her, "for we are all married people, and we all love each other. But oh, I am so sorry! I am so sorry, Peter," she whispered, as if she were speaking to him. "You couldn't help it, I know that. She is so pretty and so sweet, Cherry—and she turns to you as if you were her big brother!"

She got to her feet and went on. "What am I thinking about—it's absurd! Can't people like each other, in this world, just because they happen to be married? Peter would be the first to laugh at me. And is it fair to Cherry even to think that she would—"

"Oh, but it's true!" the honest impulse interrupted, mercilessly. "It is true. Whether it's right or wrong, or sensible or absurd, they do love each other; that's what has changed them both."

And she began to piece it all together.

And she began to piece it all together.

And she began to piece it all together.

RED CLOUD VICTOR IN AN AMERICAN WAR

THE average school histories assert that America has been victorious in all of her wars. But they are strangely silent about a conflict in which one man defied the power of the United States and dictated his own terms of peace. That man was Red Cloud (Makpaya Luta), chief of the Ogallala Sioux.

When government commissioners sought the right to build forts along the Roseman trail to the Montana gold fields, Red Cloud steadfastly opposed this encroachment on the choicest hunting grounds of the Sioux. In a council of his people he declared: "Dakotas, I am for war!"

Col. H. B. Carrington entered Wyoming, nevertheless, to build the forts and Red Cloud sent him this defiant message: "I shall stand in the trail." A war followed in which the Ogallala leader killed 81 soldiers under Colonel Fetterman near Fort Phil Kearney. This loss was avenged the next year when Red Cloud lost half of the 3000 warriors whom he sent against 22 soldiers in a wagon box corral.

Despite this reverse Red Cloud remained master of the situation. In 1868 he delivered his ultimatum to a peace commission. The forts must be abandoned and all further attempts to open the Montana road must cease. More than that, he fixed the boundaries of the Sioux country to suit himself. The commissioners agreed to every demand, for the Ogallala chief refused even to meet them until the garrisons had actually been withdrawn. His victory was complete.

From the day he signed the treaty he kept his promise to live at peace with whites. "Ninety-one years old, blind, almost deaf, he sits dreaming of the past," writes one who visited him then. "No wonder he is irritated by the idle information seeker. Who would be called back from the dreams of his youth? Rightless and infirm, he is reliving the days of his youth when he sat on his horse as king, the pride of the great Sioux nation."

"To his ears must come the roar of the hunt as the countless bison herd, like a tidal wave, rolls by. And again the great day of his life, when his red-blanketed band swept down on the hapless Fetterman troop. Even now his heart must seem to stand still as he lives over again that fearful day of the Wagon Box fight, when he hurled the pick of the Sioux nation against the riflemen."

On December 10, 1900, the old man's dreams ended and Red Cloud, the greatest war chief of the Sioux, died.

CHIEF'S NAME WAS OLD-MAN-AFRAID-OF-HIS-HORSES

DURING the Sioux war of 1866-67 the head chief of the Ogallalas was a man known to his people as Tashunka Kokipapi. Once a careless interpreter translated this name into English as Old-Man-Afraid-of-His-Horses, and this title, with its implication of cowardice, stuck with him through history.

Accustomed as the white man was to curious Indian names, this one was particularly interesting and many attempts were made to explain it. The literal interpretation that he feared his own horses was scarcely complimentary to a war chief of the Ogallala Sioux. Then there was a story that he owned a great many horses which he was constantly afraid of losing and that once when the Shoshones attacked his camp he left his family in the hands of the enemy to run off his horses.

More creditable was the interpretation of his being such a great chief that even the sight of his horses inspired fear in the hearts of his enemies. The true interpretation of his name, as given by his son, Young-Man-Afraid-of-His-Horses, was "He Whose Horse They Fear" (literally: "Ta, 'his'; shunka, 'horse'; kokipapi, 'they fear it'). This arose from the fact that he had a vicious pony.

His English name is an example not only of the frequent poor translation of Indian names by the whites but also of the fact that some insignificant incident may be the deciding factor in naming a great Indian warrior. Old-Man-Afraid-of-His-Horses retained his position as head chief of the Ogallala until 1878. At his death in the late '70s the name passed on to his son, Young-Man-Afraid-of-His-Horses, who was prominent during Ghost Dance troubles of 1890.

After the troubles were over a Washington newspaper correspondent was sent to interview Young-Man-Afraid. The correspondent took an interpreter with him to the chief's tepee. Young-Man-Afraid asked them to dinner. They ate. Then wanting to do the right thing but not knowing whether it was proper to tip a big Indian chief, the newspaper man dropped three silver dollars into the hands of the chief's wife and had his interpreter say: "In my country a compliment to a man's wife is thought a double compliment."

The interpreter repeated the statement to Young-Man-Afraid who grunted, rose, left the tepee and came back with four more wives!

"Bucky! Did You Miss Me, Old Fellow?"

and glory of it swelling in her tired heart. She was still sitting on the log, dreamily watching the expanding beauty of the new day, when there was a crashing in the underbrush behind her, and wild with joy, and with twigs and dried brown grasses on his wet coat, Buck came bounding out of the forest, and leaped upon her.

"Bucky!" she faltered, as he stood beside her, his quick tongue flashing ecstatically, close to her face, every splendid muscle of his body writhing with eager affection. "Did you miss me, old fellow? Did you come to find me?"

She had not cried during the long vigil of the night, when a storm had raged in her heart, and had left her weak and sick with dread. But there was peace now, and Alix locked her arms about the dog's shoulders, and laid her face against his satiny head, and cried.

MONARCH A MEAN NEIGHBOR

Sennacherib, Ancient Ruler of Egypt, Evidently a Bully of the Highest Order.

Going about knocking down other king's cities when they failed to "kiss his feet," was one of the playful habits of Sennacherib, ruler of Egypt some two thousand years ago, according to cuneiform tablets just placed on exhibition at the University of Chicago.

Sennacherib kept a "diary" of his "playful habits." The big stone slabs were brought to the United States, with other records of ancient Egypt, by Prof. James H. Breasted. "In my third campaign I marched against the land of Hatti (Palestine)," said Sennacherib in his "diary." "The kings of the west land brought rich gifts before me for the fourth time and kissed my feet." "Hezekiah, the Judean, who had not submitted to my yoke, I besieged and took 40 of his strong-walled cities, together with countless small cities, by assault of battering rams and siege engines, attack by foot soldiers and by mines and breaches. I captured some two hundred thousand people, some small and great, men and women, oxen and innumerable sheep."

"Hezekiah himself I shut up in Jerusalem like a caged bird." Other tablets showed that Sennacherib had a Cheops "jazz band," a dromedary "toddler" and desert "home brew."

TANLAC KEEPS HIM FIT, SAYS MCGRAW

Has Used It for Years With Splendid Results—Fine for Run Down Condition.

"For four years Tanlac has kept me in the pink of condition as I take a few doses of it every time I feel a little run down and it always builds me up again," said Wm. A. McGraw, 207 Beach Place, Tampa, Fla.

"I began taking Tanlac first about four years ago when I was in a very bad state of health and had been run down for several years. I was always taking laxatives, too, but I believe they did me more harm than good."

"Tanalac made me feel like a brand new man in a very short time and I have never had a return of any of my old troubles. The reason of this I am firmly convinced is that I always have Tanlac handy and take a few doses every time I feel a bit under the weather."

Tanalac is sold by all good druggists.

LEGION WOMAN, MOTHER OF 21

Mrs. Jacob Caranek, Healthy and Happy, Holds Record Among Producers of Americans.

Mrs. Jacob Caranek, who runs a neat little grocery store in New Orleans and therein sells butter and eggs, bread, meats, canned corn and maybe the necessities for making those delicious Southern pecan candies, is also champion mother of the American Legion Auxiliary. She is, at least, until some one comes along who is the mother of 22 children, to beat Mrs. Caranek's 21.

A child had come to Mrs. Caranek's house each year for 21 years when America entered the World war. Which of the 21 was dearest to her she herself could not tell, but when the two eldest boys, Joseph and Louis, went away to war the large Caranek family was cast into shadow. "What else should I do?" Mrs. Caranek questioned. "They are Americans and their country needs them. If it is a duty to raise children, it is right to make them love their country." But when Joseph and Louis came home—Joseph served overseas with the Rainbow division and fought in four big battles, while Louis fought in and around Camp Beauregard—the little grocery store could scarce contain the joyful celebration.

Mrs. Caranek came to America when she was fifteen years old, leaving her native village of Petruvica in Czechoslovakia. She is forty-seven years old now and her husband is fifty-eight. The youngest child is six years old and the oldest twenty-eight. Mrs. Caranek has been to but one motion picture show in her life and she left before that one was over. She works from five in the morning until ten at night in her grocery. And she hasn't a gray hair and has never been sick but once and enjoys life.

LEGION 'QUEEN' IS DIPLOMAT

Miss Ruth Metcalf, Burlington (Ia.) Girl, Names Her Brother Carnival "King."

Women began practicing the art of diplomacy when Eve was about three days old, and the present generation of fair ones are not so bad at it, the world knows. Even the distinguished foreign diplomats who wear red stripes across their chests at formal dinners will give the palm to a sweet Iowa girl, however, and if they hesitate, a number of Iowa men might have a word to say that would prompt them.

It happened that the American Legion of Burlington, Ia., having a high carnival and desiring a queen, chose one. The girl selected for her outstanding beauty, wit, and spirit was Miss Ruth Metcalf, who later displayed tact. Miss Metcalf being duly and fittingly crowned queen, now would choose one of the ex-soldiers as king, it was announced, whereas some hundreds of assorted male beauties struck attitudes of attention. After looking closely over the assembled Legionnaires, Miss Metcalf calmly picked out her own brother and crowned him king. Whereupon the issue was settled with nice diplomacy and the big carnival parade got under way.

Since the passing of the dime novel, the 40 redskins who used to bite the dust so frequently have become lost to the world. But the exploits of old Sitting Bull may well be remembered, even today, when the marble-shooting generation is reading deep volumes that puzzle exasperated parents.

Sitting Bull also bit the dust in approved fashion and, while touring through Bismarck, N. D., recently, Hanford MacNider, national commander of the American Legion, had the pleasure of meeting the gentleman who caused the Bull's downfall. It was none other than old Chief Red Tomahawk, Sioux warrior, whose years ago captured Sitting Bull's pet, and who came from the reservation to greet the big chief of the white tribe. With Red Tomahawk came a number of the younger Sioux braves who fought in France with the A. E. F. and gave the Germans the surprise of their lives.

While in North Dakota Mr. MacNider smoked a peace pipe with the Sioux chief and received congratulations of the chief of the first Americans for the organization which is endeavoring to keep America for the present Americans.

Physical Deterioration. "Physical examinations of regular army officers show the most clear-cut evidence of physical deterioration which is due to strain incident to the World war," the army medical department reports. That investigation may bring to light a scientific explanation of some part of the restlessness among former soldiers which can be laid to their having undergone a severe nervous strain.

Alaska Has the Wealth. Alaska could not only pay for adjusted compensation, if it were rightly developed, but the whole war developed, according to Albert B. Falk, secretary of the Interior. What is believed to be the greatest oil field in the world is in the Arctic near the Aleutian Islands. A tremendous coal belt in Alaska is undeveloped, and the greatest copper mine in the world as well.

Legion Asks for New Law. "Oh-o-o say can you see-o-o?" The band-organ man ground out the national anthem and the monkey danced and squinted his sharp eyes. Then the band-organ man passed the hat. Jeff Macallister didn't join out with the All America Shows till the circus had been on the road for three weeks and Harry Thomas, the head ticket wagon man, was on the point of jacking his job. Then the "old man" came to Jeff's terms and wired for him to relieve the amiable but impossible Herbert as soon as the limited would bring him. Big show ticket sellers are born. Jeff was as good as the best. Thomas and he made the finest team in the business. It was big money that the old man had to pay to get Jeff. "My last year at it," Jeff told Thomas when the letter had joyfully greeted him. "This season's pay will fix me for the peach orchard."

Herbert was working out his last show, a slim matinee. So Jeff, shaking hands with old acquaintances by the way, drifted over to the big top. He was swapping jovial insults with McCarron, the show's detective, near the performers' entrance, when two girls, wearing robes of flame and white, passed close on their way to No. 1 ring. "Who's that?" demanded Jeff, with his eyes on the second of the pair.

"Lay off, bo," laughed McCarron. "They're the Montrose Sisters—a do-pip of a double on the swings. But the black one'll bite your eye out if she sees you looking at the yaller haired one. They're sisters, all right, and the brunettes' boss."

"Humph!" was all the rejoinder Macallister made, for his eyes were on the girls as they swung their gay robes to an attendant and ran into the ring. Veteran of the circus as he was, Jeff to his amazement found himself curiously concerned about that slender, infinitely graceful figure with the golden hair that was being lifted by the running rope to that perilous perch far up under the canvas. He didn't stop to think that he had seen scores of women risk their lives on the trapeze, on hundreds of occasions, without a tremor; he only knew that he wished this girl, if she must needs be a circus performer at all, were in some less perilous line than that.

It proved to be, indeed, a splendid act, as McCarron had said, with three-fourths of the risk devolving on the light-haired sister. But Jeff Macallister only enjoyed its very end, when, with the running rope spiraled about one lavender-clad leg, the girl slid slowly, with extended arms, back to solid earth again. Then he drew a long breath, like any of the licks in the audience.

It was stout Mrs. Boyle, an old-time loyal friend of Jeff's, who, by virtue of her office as dresser and an inborn love of matchmaking, introduced Macallister to the younger of the Montrose Sisters—at his earnest solicitation.

And when Patty Montrose—Patty Kaw, at home as she promptly confided to him—met Jeff's earnest brown eyes with her own almost violet gray ones, her heart beat faster than it had ever done when she looked up the far length of a 50-foot center pole at the beckoning trapeze.

Within a week—though nowhere is there a more time-killing business than that of a circus on the road—Jeff Macallister had made so many opportunities for confidential talks with Patty Kaw despite the expert opposition of the handsome, dominating Laida, that Patty knew all about the peach orchard down in Delaware, and would have been blinder than any circus girl ever was had she not realized whom it was that Jeff hoped to make mistress of his home. So when Jeff, on the Sunday lay-off, circumvented Laida and took Patty for a drive in a hired car, she was prepared for his proposal.

"If I wasn't a hard-boiled show guy," declared Jeff, "and didn't know that the second season was the safest, I'd have you of those swings and quit the game tomorrow, even if I had to stick a plaster on the orchard. But never again, sweetheart, after next fall—no more of the road or the high perches, for my wife."

He took it so for granted that Patty only sighed happily.

It was in the sleeper, over on the siding that night that Patty, not without misgivings, confided the great news to Laida. Laida, bending over her black train trunk, was portentously silent, seeking self-control. When she faced Patty pity was written on her countenance. "You poor kid!" she exclaimed. "If I had only known! You'll have to get over this, girlie—all over it. That Jeff Macallister is all wrong."

"All wrong? Laida, what do you mean? What do you know about him? You said you didn't know him at all!"

"It was today, dearie, Mrs. Boyle—you remember how she talked to us when we came with the show—how she said, 'Circus folks, performers, are as straight as anybody and better than most, but a girl can't have anything to do with men from the executive car.'"

"But it was Mrs. Boyle that introduced us," protested Patty, near to tears.

"Yes," assented Laida; "that's why she came to me this afternoon and said she was worried and blaming herself. 'It was Macallister,' she whispered to me, 'that made that little French wire walker throw herself under the train—the one I told you about.'"

For ten minutes Patty Kaw stared at nothing. Then she roused herself, kissed Laida and said, "Don't worry, dear, I shall never speak to him again. Mrs. Boyle wouldn't lie."

Patty sent a chuck tent boy to Jeff with a bitter, final little note, and tore up without reading the note the boy brought back. Twice that Monday Laida's sheer strength of fingers alone saved Patty from a fall. And Patty felt that she wouldn't have cared. At the night performance Jeff intercepted her on her way from ring to dressing tent. And Patty, white faced, appealed to the ringmaster, who happened to be close by.

"Sorry, Jeff," said the autocrat of the big top during show hours, "if the lady says 'no' it's 'no,' even to the old man himself."

So crashed into wreckage of misery the new-born romance. Patty was deprived even of the potential solace of talking about her troubles with Laida, for on the very next day Laida entered upon a romance of her own which consumed all her thoughts.

There had come to the show on Patty's happy Sunday an iron-gray, reserved looking person whom the old man had introduced to executives and tent bosses as "Mr. Haight, my friend and guest," instructing them that Mr. Haight was to have the run of the show.

Quietly, with the eyes of a keenly intelligent novice, the visitor saw everything, was everywhere. He saw Laida—handsome, fearless, queenly Laida—and thereafter saw little else. He talked to her quietly, almost diffidently, but persistently. And Patty thought she had never seen her inscrutable sister so pleasantly excited as she seemed to be. Haight lingered on with the show, traveling in the old man's car.

Two weeks from that fatal Sunday night Patty was wondering why Laida hadn't returned to the steeper when the portress brought her a note.

As she opened it a check fell into her lap. She read:

"Dear Kiddle—I'm married—to Mr. Haight. He is really more than half owner of the show, a widower, with oodles of cash. Sorry to bust up our team, but—you know! Philip says to give you this check and tell you to go home—I think you'd better. Of course it'll be all right with the old man—got to be. Ta-ta! We're going to Florida for the trip. I'll write."

"Laida."

"P. S.—Oh, I forgot. Maybe I was kind of mistaken about Jeff Macallister. Forgive me, Kiddle, but I couldn't have got along in the show business without you."

Of course it was to Mrs. Boyle that Patty straightway repaired. "Did I ever hear anything against the boy's character?" indignantly protested that good lady. "Would I have sided him on to a good little girl like yourself, then? Go on with you! He's as straight as a string!"

Patty did forgive Laida. It was when she settled herself in the home-bound express, with the feel of Jeff's kiss on her lips and his words in her ears: "I'll come for you, dear, the day the show closes in the fall."

"CALLED OUT" FROM WORLD

"Christadelphians" Rather Remarkable Religious Sect Established Here and in Great Britain.

The Christadelphians, or "Brethren of Christ," form a religious sect founded by Dr. John Thomas in Great Britain and the United States in 1848. The sect meets in what they call "ecclesiastical," derived from the Greek "ekklesia," to call, the members regarding themselves as "called out" from the world, and from professing Christians, to adopt the "doctrines declared by Jesus." With no minister, and in the absence of the Spirit, no rulers, they meet "on the basis of brotherly love and good sense" to "break bread" and discuss the Bible. They believe in conditional immortality, in Christ as "the son of God by conception and the son of men by birth," in a kingdom of God which is a divine political administration to be established universally at the visible advent of Christ, who will raise the standard at Jerusalem. Dr. Thomas, the founder, who lived at different times in London and in the United States, wrote a book on the subject of his religion, entitled "What Is the Truth?"

How to Grow Physalis.

The physalis is also known as the ground-cherry or husk-tomato. Sow the seed in a hotbed or coldframe and transplant to the garden after danger of frost is past, or the seeds may be sown in the row where the plants are to remain and thinned to 12 or 18 inches. No particular care is required except to keep them free from weeds. There are a large number of varieties of physalis, and the fruits vary in size and color. The variety commonly used in gardens produces a bright yellow fruit.

She Was Identified.

"I'm afraid I shall require some proof of your identity, madam," said the bank cashier, when the none-too-fair lady presented a check for payment. And he looked the kind of man who thoroughly enjoys a little unpleasantness.

"Oh, I will give you as many proofs as you like," she answered sweetly. "I'm the 'old girl with the face' on the other side of the fence, who will have her 'infernal piano' up against your dining-room wall. Last night when you got in, your wife said to you: 'If you don't turn up at a respectable hour tomorrow night, I'll give you such a piece of my mind as you've never heard yet, you unfeeling, selfish—'"

"Notes or gold?" hastily interrupted the cashier.

SUCCESS IN HATCHING EGGS

Care and Attention to Detail Are What Makes One Man Succeed Where Another Fails.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Between making or losing money in raising chickens there is only a narrow margin. Contrary to many persons' ideas, no magic road leads to success in this work. Care and attention to detail are what make one man succeed while another one with similar equipment fails.

The following suggestions on incubation are given by poultry specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture:

Have everything ready beforehand, and start your hatching operations early in the year.

A well-ventilated cellar is the best place to operate the incubator.

The machine should be operated according to the manufacturer's directions.

See that the incubator is running steadily at the desired temperature before filling it with eggs. Do not add eggs to a machine during incubation.

Turn the eggs twice daily after the second and through the eighteenth day. Cool the eggs once daily, according to the weather, from the seventh through the eighteenth day.

Turn the eggs before caring for the lamp.

Attend to the machine carefully at regular hours.

Keep the lamp and wick clean.

Test the eggs on the seventh and fourteenth days.

Do not open the machine after the Care is the Keynote of Success in Hatching Eggs.

eighteenth day until the chickens are hatched.

Eggs saved for hatching purposes should not be subjected to high or low temperatures.

In cold weather place from 10 to 13 eggs under the hen; in warm weather from 13 to 15.

Always try the hen on china or nest eggs before setting good eggs.

Given proper care and attention, the hen is the most valuable incubator for the farmer.

Use insect powder freely to exterminate lice when necessary.

February, March, April, and May are the best months for hatching, depending on the section of the country.

If several hens are set in one room, it is desirable to confine them to their nests.

Straw and hay make good nesting material.

Broody hens should be moved to the permanent sitting nest at night.

While corn is a good feed for sitting hens, water, grit, and dust baths should also be provided.

All eggs should be tested by the seventh day, which often makes it possible to reset some of the hens.

Which Hens to Keep

Strong, healthy, vigorous hens with short, neat heads and strong beaks.

The hens with long, deep, rectangular bodies and parallel top and bottom lines.

The hens with large, bright eyes, active appearance and short, well-worn toe nails.

The hens with dusty, worn feathers, especially worn tail feathers, but having a bright, healthy look.

The hens that molt late and those that molt rapidly.

The noisy, happy, friendly hens.

The early risers and those late to roost.

The vigorous hens with the faded beaks and shanks.

The hens with the thin pelvic bones spread wide apart.

The early-hatched, well-grown pullets.

Large, strong, active, quick-maturing cockerels of desired variety type and high-producing mothers.

CHANGE OF LIFE WOMAN'S TRIAL

Proof That Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is of Great Help at This Period

Metropolis, Illinois.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it is all it claims to be and has benefited me wonderfully. I had been sick for eight months with a trouble which confined me to my bed and was only able to be up part of the time when I was advised by a friend, Mrs. Smith, to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills. I was so much benefited by the use of these medicines that I was able to be up and about in two weeks. I was at the Change of Life when I began taking the medicines and I passed over that time without any trouble. Now I am hale and hearty, do all my housework, washing, ironing, scrubbing, and cooking, all there is to do about a house, and can walk two or three miles without getting too tired. I know of several of my neighbors who have been helped by your medicines."—Mrs. EMMA CULVER, 706 E. 7th St., Metropolis, Illinois.

Depend upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Nervousness, irritability, heat flashes, headache and dizziness, are relieved by this splendid medicine.

WHY I DO LIKE MARION

There appeared in the Press of last week an interview between our reporter and a traveling man who tells his objection to Marion as that he was asked to pay over five cents for a glass of Coca Cola here when he got it in other towns for five cents. It is owing to a man's viewpoint of likes and dislikes. If a man's life consists in drinking cold drinks then he should live in a town where he could buy his life's chief asset for the least money.

Fortunately for Marion this writer is persuaded that we have very few citizens whose chief object in life is cold drinks.

The price of any commodity depends on the cost of getting it ready for the market. Every business is due a fair profit. No man can hope to remain in business unless he makes a living profit. We have as high class merchants in Marion as any other town, big or little.

Sober, upright industrious citizens make up a town worth-while living in, and we have them.

OUR NEW HIGHWAY

During the winter and spring months, owing to continuous rains, slow progress has been made on the Marion and Princeton road. But conditions have changed and work is progressing well. Much gravel and sand has been hauled from the depot here and placed ready for the concrete bridges and culverts.

On June 25 contracts will be let for the road from Princeton to the Crittenden county line.

Here's hoping for the early completion of this road.

MAPLE VIEW CEMETERY

Maple View, located just west of the city, is a beautiful cemetery with nicely laid out walks and driveways. The ground lies beautifully with lovely shade trees along the driveways.

In the last year the Association had tiling placed under ground which adds very materially to the cemetery by improving the drainage.

This is one of the prettiest cemeteries in all the country and is nicely kept. One thing needed is for all who own lots to pay a small amount to the Association so all the lots may be cared for which would add much to the beauty of the place.

PENSIONS PAID MONTHLY

Made so by the new pension law, after July next, everyone on the government pension roll will be paid monthly instead of quarterly, as heretofore, the House last week having agreed to Senate amendments to the bill ordering the change.

Farm Bureau News

Experiment Field Meetings

Each year the Experiment Station holds a field meeting at their various experiment fields over the state. A soil and crop specialist is at each one of these meetings and explains fully the various practices used and their results. A trip to attend one of these meetings is time well spent. The meeting nearest to Crittenden county are as follows: Lone Oak Field near Paducah, June 12; Greenville Field, Saturday June 3rd.

The hours are from ten until three. Go if you can. A cordial invitation is extended to all interested parties.

Wheat Variety Tests

The four varieties of wheat, Ashland, Kamred, Comels Prolific and Fulcaster on test at Mr. J. I. Clements farm show some interesting things. At this stage the beardless varieties are showing up the best. This test is right along the road and it would be of interest for every wheat grower in the county to see it.

The Crittenden County Wool Pool of 5,000 pounds was sold Wednesday for 41, 36, 32 and 28 cents for clean light, medium, hard, burry, respectively. Delivery is to be made Saturday June 3rd at the Depot in Marion. This pool was run under the auspices of the Farm Bureau and illustrates well one of the many ways in which a Farm Bureau can serve the farmers of the county. The price secured in this pool runs over 11 cents per pound above what could have been secured by small individual amounts.

Illinois Central System Calls Attention ### to the Careful Crossing Campaign

The safety section of the American Railway Association has announced its "Careful Crossing Campaign" to be in progress from June 1 to September 30. In the past, these four months have been the worst third of the year for motor vehicle grade crossing accidents. In preparation for the campaign, the country has been covered with posters and stickers bearing a picture of a grade-crossing scene showing a locomotive in the act of striking an automobile occupied by men, women and children. Above the picture are these words in large letters "Cross Crossings Cautiously."

The public will understand the seriousness of this problem when it is explained that the number of motor vehicles registered in the United States increased from 1,033,096 in 1912 to 10,449,785 in 1921. There is now one motor vehicle for every ten persons in the United States.

Some believe that it is the duty of the railroads to protect motor vehicle users from their own carelessness by separating the grades at crossings. There are 252,000 railway grade crossings in the United States. It has been estimated that it would cost $12,600,000,000 to eliminate them, or two-thirds of the total value of the railroads as established by the Interstate Commerce Commission for rate making purposes. It will be seen therefore that grade crossing elimination is out of the question, at least for a long time to come. If the drivers of motor vehicles can be educated to "Stop, Look and Listen" at crossings this will give the same result as the expenditure of $12,600,000,000, so far as safety is concerned.

The railroads have made splendid progress in reducing the number of accidents resulting in injury to their passengers and employees. However motor vehicle grade crossing accidents have been steadily increasing for years. These accidents are caused almost entirely by the negligence of motor vehicle drivers, and for that reason the efforts of the railroads to reduce them have been unavailing.

During 1920 there were 3012 automobiles struck on grade crossings. In these accidents there were 1,273 persons killed and 3,977 persons injured. If the drivers of the motor vehicles involved in these accidents had "Stopped, Looked and Listened" at the crossings, not one of the accidents would have occurred.

A motor vehicle in the hands of a careful driver is an agency for safety. It can be driven up close to the railway track and stopped in perfect safety—differing from horse-drawn vehicles in that respect.

The Illinois Central System heartily approves the "Careful Crossing Campaign" of the safety section of the American Railway Association. We appeal to our patrons and friends and our employees to co-operate in every way possible to make the campaign successful.

We want the public to know us and what we stand for. Our motto is "Service." By co-operation with our patrons we have found many ways in which we can render them exceptional service and our patrons in turn have served us well. Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

C. H. MARKHAM,
President, Illinois Central System.

HOW AMATEUR CAN BUILD A RECEIVER

Instructions for Setting Up the Antenna and for Assembling the Tuner.

In order to pick up sufficient energy with the simple radio receiving set it is necessary to connect one terminal to an antenna consisting of one or more wires suspended in the air and insulated from all grounded material and the other terminal to a ground, usually the water supply pipe. The height of an antenna used with a small receiver should not be less than 30 feet. As the received energy varies directly as the height of an antenna, the higher the antenna the louder will be the signals or voice produced. The length of an antenna for short wave reception should not be less than 50 feet nor should it be longer than 200 feet. The minimum wave length to which a simple receiver can be adjusted for electrical resonance will be above that used by amateurs if the receiver be connected to an antenna 200 feet or more in length.

A simple radiophone receiver capable of picking up radiophone stations similar to KDKA at East Pittsburgh, can be assembled by a novice for from $4 to $15, depending upon the builder's ability to use his hands. If the builder will construct most of his apparatus he will appreciate it much more and probably will understand more about its operation than if he buys a set already made. However, for those who have not the ability or the time to spend constructing their own apparatus the following description will not only give the details as to the construction of each component part of a receiver but also what standard ready-made parts can be purchased and used in its stead.

The material can be purchased at any electrical supply store.

In erecting a simple antenna for use with the receiver shown in the diagram, the antenna proper and the lead-in are of stranded hard-drawn copper wire, strand No. 22, costing about 1 cent per foot. The two insulators are of molded material and can be purchased for about 25 cents each. The antenna shown is supported between a house and a pole. It may be found more convenient to support it between a tree and a house, two houses or even between two chimneys on the same house. In bringing down the lead-in care should be taken that it is kept as far away from grounded material as possible and when bringing through the wall or under the window into the house it should be brought through some sort of an insulating tube, such as rubber or bakelite.

In making the ground connection the same kind of wire can be used as was purchased for the antenna. You can clean a section of the waterpipe thoroughly and solder the ground wire to it.

MAKING THE TUNER

To make a tuner for this receiver, the following raw material will be required:

1 Piece of cardboard tubing three inches outside diameter and five inches long, costing about 10 cents.

100 feet No. 22 double cotton-covered magnet wire costing 25 cents.

Standard slider (see sketch) for 1/4 by 1/4 brass rod, 40 cents.

1 six-inch length of 1/4 by 1/4 brass rod (square) 20 cents.

2 binding posts (see sketch) 20 cents.

2 circular blocks of wood whose diameter is just equal to the inside diameter of the piece of cardboard tubing and between 3/8 and 1-2 inch thick.

Some shellac or varnish is also required.

Starting one-half inch from one end of the cardboard tube wind on the No. 22 D. C. C. wire within one-half inch of the other end of the tube. Fasten one end of the winding to the tube but allow some surplus wire on the other end for making a connection. After the winding is in place give it a coat of shellac or varnish to hold the turns in place. Assemble the circular-cut pieces of wood in the geometrical center of the square blocks and then shellac or varnish them for the appearance's sake.

When thoroughly dry slip the two end blocks into the wound tube and by means of a few finishing brads driven through the cardboard tube, fasten the end blocks to the wound tube. The slider is to be mounted on top of the coil and should be capable of making contact with any turn of the wire on the tube. In order to remove the insulation from the wire just under the rod where the slider moves back and forth, wrap a piece of sandpaper around a thin piece of wood and using another piece of wood as a guide, sandpaper the insulation from the winding. Drill a hole one-eighth inch in diameter through the slider rod about one-fourth inch in from each end so that the rod can be fastened by screws to the end blocks. After the slider rod is fastened in place see that the contact finger on the bottom of the slider can at all times make good contact with the winding. Mount a binding post on either end of the coil, attaching one by means of a wire to the slider rod and the other to the end of the wire wound on the tube and the tuner is complete. A tuner can be purchased already assembled for about $3.50 to $4.00.

LINKING MOVIE AND RADIO

British Scientists Have Some Success in Wireless Transmission of Motion Pictures.

British scientists are reported to have met with more or less success in developing a method of transferring motion pictures by radio. Some months ago a photograph was transferred by wireless from the Copenhagen newspaper, the Politiken, to England, and later from England to a ship in mid Atlantic, so that the possibility of linking the movies with the new art is not remote.

If perfected the new development of the already versatile art will make it possible for one to see on his own receiving instrument things that are happening at a great distance. For instance, a ship is sinking at sea. The transmitting station of the vessel, instead of sending a message of the disaster, sends a picture that anyone with a receiving set will be able to see just as the present broadcasting programs are heard.

That all sounds remote now, but the telephone was considered even more so, and the wireless, even after Marconi's immortal message had bridged the Atlantic, was generally believed to be akin to the idea of perpetual motion.

TIPS TO THE RADIOIST

A crystal detector cannot be satisfactorily amplified.

Insulate ends of aerial wires with several small insulators.

Wherever possible run aerial wires at right angles to electric light wires.

The lead wire should be the size of the combined number of wires in the aerial.

Gas piping makes a poor ground, but the cold water pipe ground is excellent.

A crystal detector is never as efficient as a vacuum tube detector no matter what instruments are connected to it.

Within three to five miles from a broadcasting station indoor one wire aerials about 40 feet long stretched from room to room, are generally satisfactory with crystal detectors.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Genoa Conference Ends After Planning Parley on Russia at The Hague.

EIGHT-MONTHS' TRUCE SIGNED

America Declines Invitation to Participate in the New Meeting—Good Work by League of Nations' Council—Pinchot's Victory in Pennsylvania.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

TOTAL results from the Genoa conference that was to bring about the regeneration of Europe, economically and financially, and which has adjourned, appear to be: Plans for new negotiations for a settlement of relations with Russia, to be carried on by commissions which will meet in The Hague in June; a truce of eight months between all the soviet republics and the other European powers; a clearer comprehension on the part of the world of the arrogant attitude and extravagant demands of soviet Russia; and a repeated affirmation of the position of the United States, that it will not participate in the political wrangles of Europe and will not enter into dealings with the Moscow government until the latter recognizes its international obligations.

The last mentioned result came when the Genoa conference invited the United States to take part in the proposed negotiations at The Hague, virtually admitting that without the aid of America's financial resources any agreements for the commercial regeneration of Russia would be useless. Secretary Hughes' reply, after expressing the deep sympathy of this country for the people of Russia and its desire to aid them in every practicable way, continued:

"This government, however, is unable to conclude that it can helpfully participate in the meeting at The Hague, as this would appear to be a continuance, under a different nomenclature, of the Genoa conference, and destined to encounter the same difficulties, if the attitude disclosed in the Russian memorandum of May 11 remains unchanged.

"The inexpressible and ultimate question would appear to be the restoration of productivity in Russia, the essential conditions of which are still to be secured and must, in the nature of things, be provided within Russia herself."

Intense disappointment was caused in Genoa by this answer, and though it seemed final, some of the delegates, especially the British, refused so to consider it. Before the meeting at The Hague gets under way it is likely another attempt will be made to obtain the co-operation of the United States.

ACCORDING to the accepted plan, the nations represented at Genoa will send delegates to The Hague, and from them will be selected a commission that will deal with the financial and economic problems involved in the recognition of soviet Russia, but not with political affairs. The findings will be submitted to the various powers, and, if they are approved, the commission will begin conferences with a commission of Russians. Meanwhile the eight months' truce with the soviet republics will be in effect and the powers will not enter into separate treaties with Moscow or back their nationals in trying to obtain property in Russia which did not belong to them before the soviets came into control there.

Because it already has made a treaty with Russia, Germany is not to be included in the negotiations at The Hague. To this exclusion M. Tschirner made strong objection, on the ground that one of the chief objects of the meeting, credits, was not dealt with in the Rapallo pact. The Russian leader also had a hot exchange with the Japanese, asking whether Japan intended to engage in a truce in the Far East or to continue the state of war in Siberia. Viscount Ishihara's swift reply was that regardless of past differences among the Russians which had necessitated the presence of Japanese troops in Siberia to protect the property of their nationals, Japan was now ready to conclude a non-aggression pact in the Far East if the China republic also complied with the truce.

Tschirner then squabbled with the Poles, Rumanians and others over alleged plans of anti-Bolshevik leaders to organize expeditions against Russia, but was again squelched. When he asked that what is left of General Wrangel's army be removed farther from Russia, Mr. Lloyd George retorted: "Who wants them? We don't." The British premier severely scored Tschirner's defense of Russia as an "innocent, patient, and tolerant model of all the Christian virtues," and in concluding said: "Speaking after 16 years as a minister, longer than anyone else here, I believe the best we can do is to mind our own business. Organizing an expedition under General Wrangel to convert the heathen in Russia or under M. Tschirner and Litvinoff to convert the heathen in our country will only bring trouble."

The Russian delegates have been trying hard to "save their faces" and it is predicted they will not be enthusiastically received by the more extreme communists at home. They have the treaty with Germany to their credit, but they have failed to obtain recognition for their government, and, what hurts more, they haven't the ghost of a show of getting the huge loan which was demanded.

DOCTOR WIEDELFELT, the recently arrived ambassador from Germany to the United States, just before he left Berlin concluded a contract by which the Krupp establishment was granted a concession of 56,000 acres of land in Russia to be used in raising food supplies for the Russians. Berlin says this concession gave rise to the "false report" that the Russo-German treaty contained a secret military clause including Krupp delivery of war materials. Dispatches from the German capital state that the success of the Krupp project depends on the co-operation of America and that one of Doctor Wiedelfelt's first tasks is to persuade Secretary Hoover that America should supply agricultural machinery, grain and seeds, as well as moral support.

NOTWITHSTANDING the decisive defeat of his ally, General Chang, near Peking, Sun Yat Sen, head of the southern Chinese government, is "carrying on" and at last reports was preparing to attack the northern forces in Kiangsi province. General Wu is ready to attack Sun's army in the rear and believes he will soon crush it. Meanwhile Chang has established himself for the time being in Manchuria and has declared the independence of that province and Mongolia. Plans for the unification of China await the result of the coming conflict with Sun Yat Sen's army.

ONLINE Republicans received another jolt last week, in the success of Gifford Pinchot who defeated George E. Alter for the gubernatorial nomination in Pennsylvania. As was the case after the Indiana primaries, the Democrats hailed the result as a blow at the national administration, which was denied by the Republican leaders. Really, Mr. Pinchot, ardent conservationist and former Progressive, owed his nomination largely to the women of Pennsylvania. They took an active part in the campaign all over the state, and appeared at the polls in full force.

Senator Pepper easily defeated Congressman-at-Large William J. Burke for the nomination to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Penrose, and David A. Reed of Pittsburgh was nominated for the unexpired term of the late Senator Knox and for the full term beginning next March.

THE council of the League of Nations adjourned last Wednesday after accomplishing a lot of important work. Among the accomplishments of this session are the signing of the German-Polish treaty settling the Upper Silesia question; the establishment of a financial and economic protectorate over Albania by the league; the throwing open of the court of international justice to all nations, including Russia, Turkey and Mexico; the creation of a commission for international intellectual co-operation with an American member, and the setting of a definite date for disposal of the mandate over Palestine.

The last thing the council did was to decide to support Germany in her protest to the league against the treatment of more than a million Germans residing in Poland. They were barred from citizenship by a ruling that Germans must prove continuous residence in Poland for six years. Nearly all of them were serving in the German army during the war and so are deprived of citizenship. The council determined to urge strongly on Poland the reconsideration of the ruling.

IN PASSING upon the constitutionality of the grain exchange law the Supreme court of the United States found that the taxing features of the measure are unenforceable. Therefore the agricultural bloc in congress, under the leadership of Senator Capper of Kansas, is drawing up a revamped bill to overcome the objections. In place of the taxing power the new bill will probably provide for federal control over exchanges by declaring their activities to be a form of interstate commerce and therefore subject to government supervision.

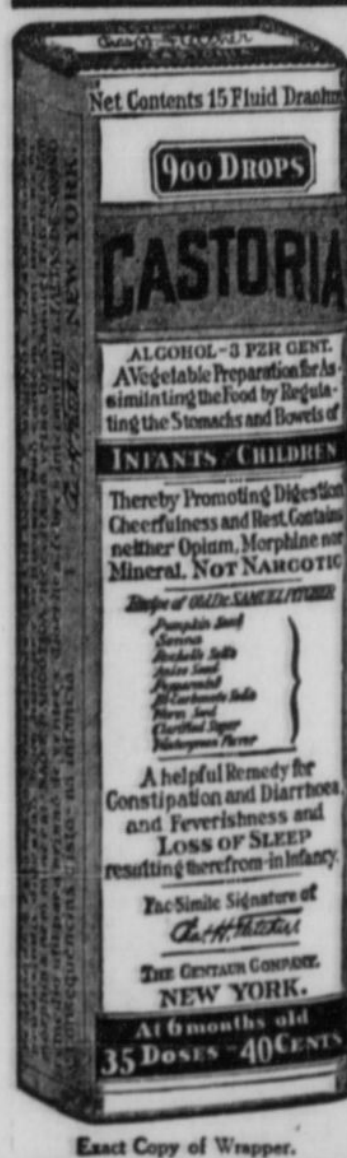

THE Supreme court knocked out another piece of legislation last week, holding that the child labor law, passed in 1919, is unconstitutional, as an attempt by congress to regulate through its taxing power something entirely within the jurisdiction of the various states in the exercise of their police power. The law was designed to regulate the employment of children in any mill, cannery, workshop, factory or manufacturing establishment, under the age of fourteen or in any mine or quarry under sixteen years by imposing an excise tax of 10 per cent upon the net annual profits of those employing such labor. The Supreme court ruling is in effect another victory for the mill owners of Southern states.

PROGRESS in the senate debate over the tariff is outrageously slow, despite the fact that night sessions are being held. This is by no means due altogether to the Democratic opposition. Republican members are so lax in their attendance that Senator McCumber felt called on to take them to task, telling them if they couldn't keep on the job they should resign. The Democrats attack especially the section of the bill which gives the President power to raise or lower duties within a range of 50 per cent and to proclaim American valuation. This, they assert, is unconstitutional.

ANOTHER battle in conference between the house and the senate is presaged by the action of the senate appropriations subcommittee in agreeing that the army for next year shall consist of approximately 140,000 enlisted men and 12,500 officers. This represents a cut of 10,000 from the strength asked by the War department, but is an increase over the house bill of 25,000 men and 1,500 officers.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST is again causing the Democrats of New York state great distress of mind. He has declared himself a candidate for the nomination for governor and told the party leaders that he has done so much for the party that it should do that much for him. Mayor Hylan of New York city has come out strongly in favor of Hearst, and his chief up-state supporter is W. J. Conners, the Buffalo editor. Tammany doesn't know just what to do.

REPRESENTATIVES of Chile and Peru are holding, at the invitation of the United States, a conference in Washington in the attempt to settle the Tacna-Arica dispute that has kept those countries apart so many years.

Massive Silver Set Ordered by Napoleon I Put on Exhibition at New York.

The massive silver set of 919 pieces ordered by Napoleon I, during the hundred days, delivered after his abdication to Louis XVIII, and used by the French royal family at Tuilleries palace from 1815 to 1830, has been placed on exhibition in New York. Two bullet holes in the soup tureen bear evidence of the revolutions it has passed through. Each article bears the Bourbon coat of arms, the fleur de lis surmounted with the crown and is stamped with the official government mark, the mark of the chief craftsman and of the guild. Napoleon I ordered this set of silver from Bienenstein on his return to France from his first exile on the island of Elba. It was made during the hundred days of Napoleon's second reign, but before it could be delivered Napoleon was forced to abdicate and was again exiled this time to end his days on St. Helena. Louis XVIII, his successor, paid Bienenstein for the silver and had the Bourbon coat of arms placed on it. The set of silver passed finally to the heirs of the duc de Chambord and through them has come to North America.

Special Care of Baby.

That Baby should have a bed of its own all are agreed. Yet it is more reasonable for an infant to sleep with grown-ups than to use a man's medicine in an attempt to regulate the delicate organism of that same infant. Either practice is to be shunned. Neither would be tolerated by specialists in children's diseases.

Your Physician will tell you that Baby's medicine must be prepared with even greater care than Baby's food.

A Baby's stomach when in good health is too often disarranged by improper food. Could you for a moment, then, think of giving to your ailing child anything but a medicine especially prepared for Infants and Children? Don't be deceived.

Make a mental note of this:—It is important, Mothers, that you should remember that to function well, the digestive organs of your Baby must receive special care. No Baby is so abnormal that the desired results may be had from the use of medicines primarily prepared for grown-ups.

"DIVORCE RING" THE LATEST

Fad Recently Adopted by Those Freed From the Marital Tie by Court Proceedings.

From time immemorial woman has worn on the third finger of her left hand a plain band of gold as a symbol of her honored position of wifehood. And when death takes from her the partner of her life she signifies her loss and grief by wearing appropriate garb.

But in what a different manner today the widow of the present, that is, the one who by the sanction of the courts, has resigned her job as wife, makes known to all the world her renewed state of single blessedness. For the grass widow of today has just adopted the latest of fads, the "divorce ring." The jeweled symbol of the severance of the marital tie takes the place of the former gold band. It is made of gold or platinum on which is mounted a broken Cupid's bow at the end of which is set a jewel to represent a divorce. Should the wearer once more embark on the matrimonial seas and again come to wreck then another jewel is added to indicate the second divorce, and so on.

Sitting alone at one of the big concerts last winter, I chanced some casual remarks to a man on my left.

After some pleasant conversation I noticed a celebrity in the front row, and, pointing him out to my companion, remarked: "That old fellow used to have a wonderful tenor voice; it's rather painful to listen to. The old man doesn't seem to realize it, though. Don't know him, do you?"

"Yes," replied my companion. "He is my father."

"How many wives have you had?" demanded the examining judge.

"Six, yo' honah," was the reply.

"Why couldn't you get on with them?"

"Well, sah, de fust two spilled de white folks' clo's when dey washed 'em; de thud worn't no cook; de foth was ject nacherally lazy; an' de fifth—I'll tell you, judge, de fifth, she—"

"Incompatibility?"

As He Understood It.

A five-year-old boy was pleading to be allowed to go out to play. His mother became rather cross and said: "When I see fit, you shall go." The boy relapsed into silence, while his mother went hither and thither about her work. In half an hour he asked: "Mamma, have you seen him yet?" "Seen who, child?" "Why, seen fit."

When Hungry Little Muscles Say, "Please Help Me"

DID you ever stop to think who it really is that's talking, when childish voices raise a clamor, "Mother, I'm hungry?"

It's really muscles and bones and nerves and cells worn in the stress and strain of play—that are calling for rebuilding material.

What kind of an answer? The right thing, or just anything? It makes a big difference.

Grape-Nuts, so deliciously crisp and appetizing to taste, and so quick and convenient to serve, is a splendid food for rebuilding young bodies. All the wonderful nutriment put in wheat and barley by Nature, including the vital mineral elements, is there—and Grape-Nuts digests easily, quickly and completely. Served with cream or milk, Grape-Nuts is exceptionally nourishing.

"That's splendid!" says appetite. "That's just the need!" say the hungry muscles, nerves and bones.

Ready to serve right from the package—always crisp and fresh. A favorite dish with all the family. Sold by grocers.

Hail Destroys Millions of Dollars of Tobacco

May Get Yours Any Day

The loss of tobacco by hail in this and other tobacco states within the last five years has run up into millions of dollars with only a small part covered by insurance. Yet, the amount of insurance received by growers who had the foresight thus to protect themselves against such loss, was enormous and should make every grower not only feel the necessity of insuring his tobacco crop against hail storms loss but to do that very thing and do it at once.

What Dr. Halley Says: Dr. Samuel H. Halley, of the Barley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association, upon congratulating an insurance company on lowering its rates on tobacco hail insurance, said: "Within the period that I have had hail insurance I have had four severe losses. The money I received exceeded considerably what I paid in, to say nothing of my peace of mind that I was fully protected in case of a storm. I have always advocated carrying hail insurance on tobacco without which every grower takes a chance to lose all. With it he can, in safety, go into the business of producing a crop which requires, as does tobacco, so much labor, time and money."

Now that the Barley Growers have gone into an organization to handle their business in a modern economic business-like way, I see no reason why all growers can not take out insurance on the reduced rates the companies are now quoting. Look up the insurance agent in your section now, and let him protect you against the loss of your tobacco. Policies effective July 10th, noon.
