BUSINESS MEN IN BUSY MEETING

Commercial Club Holds Interesting
Meeting at Auditorium Last Friday Evening

The Chamber of Commerce met Friday night at 7:30 at the school auditorium. Mr. R. E. Jaggars was present and presided. Minutes of last meeting were read and approved.

Mr. John A. Moore gave the report of his committee on the validity of the last bond election to provide sewer and water system for the city. The committee recommended that an election on the bond issue to provide a water system for Marion be called by the present City Council. The report of the committee was accepted and on motion of J. N. Boston, seconded by T. H. Cochran, the recommendation was accepted. This motion was passed unanimously.

Mr. John A. Moore then made a talk on the light situation, making a motion that a committee of two be named to get full particulars as to a transmission line for current from either the West Ky. Coal Co., at Sturgis, or the Kentucky Utilities Co. at Earlinton, stating that he understood that current could be gotten from Sturgis provided that a transmission line be built and that the latter would build the line to the city limit. John A. Moore and J. N. Boston were named on this committee.

The secretary was directed to write a letter to Ben Weille urging that appropriation for the Ohio River road from Perry Ferry to Marion be made at the meeting to be held Monday.

After the general business had been discussed Mr. Jaggars and Mr. Brown made short talks on the need of funds for athletic teams for the school. Mr. Brown stated he had $200 and that so far as he was concerned the boys were to have the needed material if it took this money to get it. Mr. Cochran then took the floor and made a motion that a committee be named to raise the desired amount to purchase the needed material. Mr. Cook, T. H. Cochran and O. R. Lamb were named on this committee. Mr. Brown was assured that the needed material would be had without his putting up his own money.

Meeting was adjourned to meet on Sept. 22.

Dr. F. W. Nunn attended the Fruit Growers Association at Henderson last week.

FLUORSPAR INVESTIGATIONS IN KENTUCKY AND ILLINOIS

A. B. Ladoo, mineral technologist of the U. S. Bureau of Mines, recently spent a month in the southern Illinois and western Kentucky fluor spar field in order to complete the investigation of the fluor spar industry. The outstanding feature of the fluor spar situation is that our known reserves are very low, says the bureau, and, unless new deposits are found, fluor spar will be very scarce and expensive within a few years. The development of possible substitutes is being considered. The object of the fluor spar investigation is the eventual preparation of a bulletin on all phases of the situation.

WOMAN'S CLUB

After an adjournment of a month the Womans Club held its regular meeting at the club room Wednesday with Mrs. Ted Boston and Mrs. W. G. Clifton as hostesses. Having no program for the afternoon plans for the winter were discussed during the business meeting. One of the first attractions the Womans Club brings is Miss Marguerite Josephine Penick of Emerson College of Expression, Boston, on the evening of September 21. At the close of the business meeting delicious refreshments were served.

Lyon County Active

EDDYVILLE, Ky., Sept. 13.—With Clifton Rhodes of Harrodsburg here the campaign for the Dark Tobacco Growers Association has been speeded up in reality. In every school district visited the sign up has been large. One district signed up 99 percent and other districts have done as well. Lyon county promises to go over with a considerable margin to spare.

V. Y. M. BARBACUE

Eighty-five members of the V. Y. M. Bible Class of the Methodist Sunday School were present at the barbecue given at Orme's Park on last Thursday. A sumptuous dinner was served at 5 P. M. consisting of chicken and squirrels barbecued in the most appetizing way, served with sandwiches, pickles, watermelons and other things good to eat.

Appropriate addresses were made by Mr. V. Y. Moore of Madisonville founder of the Class; Congressman A. W. Barkley, Judge J. W. Blue and others.

ENFORCEMENT OF 18th AMENDMENT

Some Editorials Showing Drift of Public Opinion on Enforcement of 18th Amendment

Drunkenness on Decrease,
Hotel Clerks Assert

(Editorial, Memphis Press)

At least around the principal hotels the Volstead law is being enforced. In years gone by, if a visitor to Memphis did not stage a party or so while in the city he didn't have a good time at all. But now everything is changed. Even after the Volstead law became effective a good bit of red firewater was still in evidence and an unlimited supply of "white mule." The parties kept up and a man gloriously stewed was not anything out of the ordinary in the lobbies.

But times have changed. In the last few months very little drinking has been in evidence. One hotel clerk says it is the hot weather that has caused the slump. Another says that "red licker" is hard to get and that the village drunkards are filled up on "corn." Another clerk declares that people are just naturally getting good and leaving Demon Rum alone.

Screen Not to Assist Nullification
(News Item, Los Angeles, Cal.)

Will Hays, when asked if the report were true that the liquor interests were trying to use the motion picture screen to help in their campaign to modify the Volstead Act and repeal of the Eighteenth amendment voiced an emphatic "no." "Why should anyone want to take up the cause of a minority?" says Mr. Hays.

Notoriously Intoxicating
(Editorial Des Moines Register)

What reason is there to believe that a congress can enact a wine and beer law that the Supreme court will uphold? Wine and beer are notoriously intoxicating, a fact within the personal knowledge of members of the court. Half the American people can be made drunk in two hours on wine and beer unmixed, while taken in proper rotation ninth-tenth of the American people can be made drunk.

Co-operation
(Director Elias Marsters in Address at Coeur D'Alene, Idaho.)

Co-operation is the keynote upon which the success of the law is based, and those who will not co-operate in its enforcement because they think it is to their political interests not to do so, are un-American and sooner or later will wake up to find that they have taken the objections of an active minority for the will of the majority. There is no middle course when it comes to American citizens upholding the Constitution of the United States. You cannot be a good American and not uphold the prohibition act the same as any other law of the land.

A SPLENDID ROAD

Travelers going from here to Fredonia and points south of here complement very highly the road one half mile south of Crayne at the Henry Bealmer farm, leading into Fredonia. This road detours one half mile from the main road but can be made in less time by motor cars and other vehicles owing to the splendid condition of the road-bed. Messrs. Bud-die Deboe and Loren Stallions are the overseers and worthy to be emulated by other road overseers.

CARD OF THANKS

Words will not express our appreciation of the kindnesses shown us by the many good people of Marion and Crittenden county in our sad bereavement, but wish to thank each one for your sympathy, the beautiful floral offerings and other kindnesses bestowed in memory of wife and sister.

THE CRITTENDEN COUNTY FAIR

Our fair will be held at Marion on September 30, 1922. We want every one who has good hogs to bring them to the fair.

Liberal premiums will be given for the best shown that day.

We want to have the best hog show on that day that the county ever held. It will do us all good to see each other's hogs so everybody bring your best hogs and give the mortgage lifter a big boost.

Farm Bureau Notes

Cover Crops

Everyone who farms should be interested in cover crops and interested right now. Scientists have figured out how much plant food is lost each year when a field is left bare and left so that it washes. Sufficient to say that immense quantities of valuable plant food are lost in the sloping bare fields of Crittenden county letting alone the gullies that are formed which require more labor to get the ground in shape in the next spring. Rye is an excellent cover crop and it is used in practically all cases except where wheat is grown as a regular farm crop. Farmers in Calloway county for example who never before had used cover crops seeded 1000 acres of rye last year and they plan to increase this year.

Every bare field should be seeded in the fall to some crop that will protect the soil from erosion and leaching during the winter. The more sloping the land and the looser the soil the greater will be the need for protection of this kind.

Fields that have been in cow peas should be covered during the winter as it is well known the loosening action they have on land. When peas are all taken off of land for hay and the land lies bare all winter the land goes down steadily in fertility. Get away from the idea that putting land in peas and taking them all off adds anything to the land for it does not.

Tobacco fields furnish a good example of the kind that are particularly in need of some growing crop for protection during the winter. Tobacco is carefully cultivated, not a weed is allowed to grow and the soil is left fine and mellow. When fall and winter rains come, the water flows unretarded over the mellow surface taking with it the rich surface soil that contains the manure and fertilizer which were applied to the growing tobacco crop. Plan this year to cover up your tobacco field. You have taken extra care with it to raise your crop and don't make the mistake of neglecting it during the winter for that is expensive.

Rye is quite dependable as a cover crop but in order to do its best work in saving plant food the cover crop must be seeded as early as possible. This makes it possible to save the plant food that would otherwise be lost through the action of the fall rains.

This rye will make you a good winter and early fall pasture and that is important to every one keeping live stock. Turn this rye under in the spring before it heads for green manure. It is fine for that purpose.

The New Salem Community Club will hold a community club picnic at their school and church on Saturday Sept. 16. This will be the first picnic of the club and an enjoyable day is anticipated. Everyone in the neighborhood is invited to bring a basket dinner and enjoy the day.

County Agents meeting at Lilly Dale school on Monday Sept. 18. All interested people are urged to come at 8:00 P. M.

The good people of Olive Branch community will hold a picnic at their school on Saturday Sept. 23. All people in the neighborhood are urged to bring a basket dinner and enjoy the day. Good speaking.

THANKS MR. JENKINS

Many citizens of Marion desire to express their thanks to Mr. S. M. Jenkins for kindly turning on the street lights last Sunday evening, thus enabling all church goers to go to and from their place of worship without danger to life or limb.

NINETY YEARS OF AGE NOW

But Hopkins County Man Doesn't Need Specs to Sign Tobacco
Contract

MADISONVILLE, Ky., Sept. 13.—After a meeting held at Dalton in the interest of the Dark Tobacco Growers Co-operative Association, enthusiasm ran high and after the speaking the growers began to sign the contract.

One of the first to sign was J. A. Quinn of Dalton who pooled his half of a five acre crop. Mr. Quinn is said to be ninety years old, but he signed his contract by the aid of a smoky lamp without wearing glasses.

CELEBRATES 90th BIRTHDAY

In order to appropriately celebrate her 90th birthday a bountiful dinner was given at the home of Mrs. Alvira Wheeler, a few miles east of town Tuesday. Mrs. Wheeler is the widow of the late Isaac L. Wheeler and is the mother of ten children, six of whom are living. The children present to enjoy the occasion were Ida, Tressa, Tennie and Corda and R. F. Wheeler. Albert Wheeler of Texas was absent.

Besides the children there were many other relatives present to wish Mrs. Wheeler the return of many pleasant birthdays, many friends to join in the good wishes, about 100 guests in all. There sat at the table together eleven ladies whose ages totaled 864 years.

The Wheeler homestead is one of handsome country homes of the county and has recently been re-painted and remodeled. It is surrounded by fertile fields of growing crops.

The Wheelers were among the first settlers of this county and this farm has been handed down from father to son for a number of generations.

INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Wednesday morning while Mr. J. Hicklin was motoring near the Cave-in-Rock landing he met with a rather painful though not serious accident. The roads in that section are nothing to brag about and while he was going along the car ran against a stump. When the car wheel hit the stump Mr. Hicklin struck the wind shield of his car bruising and cutting his face in a number of places. He drove home and had the wounds dressed and, it is reported, is doing well. The car was uninjured.

DIES AT DWIGHT, ILL.

Mrs. Marietta Bristow Brown, wife of J. M. Brown, died at her home in Dwight, Ill., Thursday, September 7, aged 62 years. Mrs. Brown, who before her marriage was Miss Marietta Bristow, had been ill for several months. The remains were brought here Sunday for burial.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Cumberland Presbyterian church, Rev. F. L. McDowell, pastor of the church, assisted by Rev. W. T. Oakley and Rev. G. P. Dillon, officiated. The pall-bearers were H. V. Stone, R. I. Nunn, C. D. Haynes, J. N. Boston, Geo. W. Stone and J. D. Asher. The remains were laid to rest in Maple View cemetery. Mrs. Brown is survived by her husband, two brothers and one sister: Emanuel Stephens, of Pembroke; Alvis Stephens, of this city; Mrs. W. D. Cannan, also of this city.

STUCK THORN IN FOOT

Mr. Neville Moore, while out fishing in Barnett's lake a few days ago in company with his father, A. C. Moore, stepped on a thorn which penetrated his foot causing a very painful wound. Mr. Moore hastened home and had the wound dressed and, though he has to limo somewhat, he is now able to use the disabled member to attend to the usual business of his office.

Former Crittenden Boy in Up-front Film

A Crittenden war veteran, R. L. Cooksey will be seen on the screen when the American Legion's war pictures are shown in Paducah in September. Cooksey now lives in Paducah, was in action in the front line when the signal corps was taking some of the scenes. The scene in which Cooksey appears is a close-up of a shell hole torn out by one of the big guns and was taken October 2, 1918 when Cooksey was serving in the First Division.

Mr. Cooksey is a son of P. K. Cooksey of Dycusburg and is well-known in this county.

Court House News

Anthony Murphy was brought before the court Friday charged with transporting liquor in violation of the liquor laws. The court assessed a fine of $150 and 30 days in the county jail. The case was appealed to Circuit court and the defendant was released under an appeal bond.

Virgil Holloman charged with obstructing road was tried in the quarterly court Saturday. After hearing the evidence the jury returned a verdict of not guilty.

Mrs. R. E. Pickens completed her application for a Confederate pension.

County Clerk L. E. Guess has issued marriage licenses to John E. Hughes and Miss Marie Gass; Sidney Woodall and Miss Cora Fletcher.

GASS-HUGHES

Mr. John Hughes and Miss Marie Gass were united in marriage on Thursday September 7 at the residence of Rev. W. T. Oakley who performed the marriage ceremony.

The groom is a farmer and is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Zeke Hughes. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Gass, is a teacher of the public schools of the county.

MRS. RUSHING DIES

Mrs. Aristo Cole Rushing died at her home in the Crayne section last Monday Sept. 11, aged 77 years. She was the widow of the late Joe Rushing and was the mother of twelve children, five of whom survive her. She was a member of the Sulphur Springs Baptist church.

She was buried in the Rushing graveyard, Rev. W. T. Oakley conducting the funeral services.

Question! Question! Question! ON CORSETS

And Mrs. Estelle R. Dodge, Modart Corset Expert, Has Answers for All of Them. Mrs. Dodge Will Be at Our Store for Three Days Only

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday
September 18, 19 and 20

No woman would willingly make herself conspicuous by wearing tennis shoes with a low-neck gown. Yet to even the most unpracticed eye many women unconsciously create an impression fully as bad and almost as noticeable by going bulging about in a corset they were never intended to wear.

It is so easy to correct these little matters which have such a direct influence upon the health and happiness of every woman that there is no excuse for shutting our eyes to these important matters.

MODART CORSETS
Front Laced

How can I correct that hollow place in my back?

How can I look more trim about my upper figure?

How can I secure more support from my corset?

How can I look well dressed and be comfortable at the same time?

All these and hundreds of more are the questions asked daily of Mrs. Estelle R. Dodge, authority on correct corsetry, who is giving personal attention to our patrons in our Corset Department.

Perhaps you have some question you would like to ask. Your friends, too, may be interested. If so please come in at our invitation and take advantage of this free consultation while it lasts.

For corsetry is an exact science and one which plays an important role in the life and health of every woman. There are some beautiful corsets on display. Some of them no heavier than a filmy bit of lingerie, yet offering full support and wear because they are made and fitted properly.

Be sure to attend this very popular and practical demonstration.

Making 20 Years of Racing Serve Car Owners Today

IN the early days of automobile contests, Barney Oldfield—out to win every race—studied tires. His consistent success led other drivers to ask for tires constructed to his specifications.

Twenty years of road and track victories—with a steady and increasing demand for tires as he built them—convinced Barney Oldfield that these speed tests pointed the way to a better tire for everyday use.

The enthusiastic reception of Oldfield Cords by the public proved he was right. Scores of the most prominent dealers in the country—and many thousands of car owners, experienced in the use of tires—bear witness by their decided preference that Oldfield is doing a bigger and better job of tire making.

This volume, handled in an effective way in every phase of manufacture and distribution, has resulted in price quotations far below what you'd expect on tires known to be better built and more enduring.

Practically every important race event for three years has been won on Oldfields. The Wichita Test Run in which an entire set of Oldfield Cords covered 34,626 miles on rough roads proves the mettle of the Most Trustworthy Tires Built in everyday driving.

The Master Driver and Tire Builder has given the public a new standard of tire wear and tire cost—a true economy that every car owner should know about.

Your Oldfield dealer has these facts—talk to him.

DAIRY FACTS

APPLE-PECTIN AS COW FEED

Pulp Should Prove Valuable Adjunct to Fare of Animal When Compared With Silage.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

That dried apple-pectin pulp should prove a valuable adjunct to the fare of the dairy cow is the conclusion drawn from analyses and feeding trials conducted by the bureau of chemistry, United States Department of Agriculture, in collaboration with the Bureau of Animal Industry. This feed made a favorable showing when compared with dried beet pulp and corn silage. Apple-pectin pulp is the by-product remaining after pectin has been extracted from apple pomace, or, as it is sometimes called, cider-press cake. After the pectin has been extracted about three-fourths of the total weight of the pulp is water, rendering it subject to rapid spoilage. Heretofore it has been thrown away, but it has been found that when the pulp is dried it can be kept for a considerable time and, because of its reduced weight, handled and shipped economically. Some manufacturers have recently installed evaporators for drying the pulp in order to market the product for stock feed.

The feeding experiment included a preliminary test with one cow for a period of 20 days, and a later one with 6 cows. The dried pectin pulp was always mixed with three times its weight of water several hours before feeding. In the first test the cow was fed corn silage for 20 days, then, after a transition period of 5 days, she was given pectin pulp for 20 days, and, after another transition period of 5 days, she was fed corn silage for another 20 days. In all these periods gain was fed in connection with the roughage.

The average production during the corn-silage feeding-periods was 312 pounds of milk and 14.05 pounds of butterfat. During the period when pectin pulp was fed the cow made 356.9 pounds of milk and 15.68 pounds of fat. Although this test showed that the pulp produced 14.7 per cent more milk and 7.1 per cent more butterfat than the corn silage, the results can not be considered conclusive.

In the second and more extended experiment the pectin pulp was compared with dried beet pulp, a feed that it resembles more closely than corn silage. The 6 cows were fed for 30 days on beet pulp soaked with three times its weight of water, then, after a transition period of 10 days, they were fed for 30 days on pectin pulp soaked with a similar quantity of water. The soaking was from one feeding time to the next, but in warm weather the pulp should not be allowed to soak for more than one or two hours. The pectin pulp contained approximately 7 per cent crude fat (not all of which is true fat), 7 per cent crude protein, and 26 per cent crude fiber, as compared with 0.5 per cent crude fat, 8 per cent crude protein, and 20 per cent crude fiber in beet pulp. The two feeds are similar in being able to absorb water readily.

The cows while on the ration containing the beet pulp produced 4978.5 pounds of milk and 171.86 pounds of butterfat; while on the pectin-pulp ration they produced 4378.7 pounds of milk and 152.93 pounds of fat. Forty pounds of the wet pulp were offered to each cow daily. The palatability of the pectin pulp did not appear to be so high as that of the beet pulp, since the cows did not eat it so readily. It seems that pound for pound of dry matter the pectin pulp is superior to corn silage and perhaps intermediate between the silage and beet pulp.

The loss of appetite for the pectin pulp by some of the cows may be attributed to the fact that it was the less familiar feed and that the second test was conducted during the summer when cows are more apt to tire of such feeds.

Poor Cows Don't Pay.

It does not pay to keep poor cows, nor does it pay to stint any cow in the way of the best feed money can secure.

Object in Milking.

Some farmers milk good cows for profit; others milk poor cows for exercise.

Scrub Deserves Medal.

The man who uses a scrub bull deserves a leather medal made out of the bull's hide.

What Is Left of Troy

The Ruins of Troy.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

Within "the Zone of the Straits"—the strip of land bordering the Dardanelles, the Bosphorus and the Aegean sea, whose international control is likely to be altered somewhat by revision of the treaty of Sevres—lies the subject of one of the world's greatest epics: Troy, where two "nations" fought for the fair Helen.

The Trojan walls, unvisited by the idle tourist, are still in evidence; those same walls that defied the onslaughts of Agamemnon and Menelaus, of Ajax, Nestor, Diomed, Ulysses and Achilles, to fall at last by stratagem. They remained as a ruined and abandoned stage minus its paraphernalia, whereon was played so many centuries ago an insignificant little drama compared with modern events; but it was a drama so big with human interest divinely told that the world has never known its equal.

To be sure, it was all in the telling; and what would Troy have been without its Homer? Still, as the theater of the world's greatest epic poem, it deserves a visit any year, every year. In the thoughts and emotions it revives and stimulates, in the aroused sense of indebtedness of all subsequent literature and art, it richly repays a visit. The classical student will leave it in a daze of meditation upon things more real to him than the actual things he has seen and touched.

In visiting the ruins of Troy, one sets out from the village of Dardanelles for a five hours' hot and dusty ride.

After a couple of hours' travel through the plain the road grows rougher and begins to ascend into hilly country. The traveler realizes that he should be nearing historic ground now and he glances around the horizon to see if he can identify Mt. Ida, and toward the sea for a first sight of Tenedos; but no, this is only common soil. Rounding the summit of the next rise one sees the road leading down into Eren Koul, a Turkish village, a convenient halting place for coffee. Then the road begins to wind through the village in a gradual descent until it makes a sudden jerky little turn into the open country, and behold! the plain of Troy; not the plain of the historic action, but the drainage area which includes Troy.

To the Hill of Ilium.

The road leads straight toward a ridge in the distance, "the Hill of Ilium," at the lower point of which will presently appear the ruins. It was down that identical ridge, or so one tells oneself that the angry god, Apollo, strode toward vengeance, while the arrows in the quiver on his shoulder changed in ominous music.

Yonder the summit of Mt. Ida, where the gods in solemn conclave so often sat. Away over there, skirting the ridge of Ilium, is Simois' stream, or should be; but the bridge across it shows upon approach that modern Simois is no more than a creek. Worse than that; following its attenuated course, less than a mile downstream, one discovers that it ends in a morass instead of joining the Scamander as of yore. And the latter stream is scarcely less disappointing, for it is no more dignified in size or appearance. In fact, their sluggish currents united can scarcely boast of banks except at occasional intervals, for both streams are now only broad swales merging with the adjacent plain, with no continuous current toward the sea except in seasons of high water, if such are ever known.

Behold the ruins at last! A long, low ridge, some four or five miles in length, ends abruptly like a promontory projecting into the sea, above which it rises about 30 feet. The ridge is the so-called "Hill of Ilium," the sea is the floodplain of the Simois and Scamander, historically known as the plain of Troy, and the promontory, with its crown of ruins, is Troy itself. You walk around the ruins and make the surprising discovery that if the walking were good you could easily do it in ten minutes. Astonishing! Is this all there was of Troy, and did this little stronghold withstand a nine years' siege and still remain unconquered by force? Impossible! The whole Hill of Ilium may have been fortified and to some extent populated; otherwise how was the garrison provisioned? Unpoetic details like these never troubled Homer, so why bother about them.

Unearthed by Schliemann.

Every student knows of the remarkable work of Schliemann in unearthing these ruins and establishing their identity as those of the veritable Troy of Homer; of the indefatigable zeal, the determined search for the location, the half-willing consent of the Turkish government, and the financial and physical obstacles to be overcome. But the work did begin at last, and the first walls to appear beneath the spade were strange walls, not those described by Homer, and the order was to dig deeper. Still further ruins of city after city were unearthed, till Homer's Troy, all that is left of it, was laid bare.

Only the antiquarian can see the significance of all these things as he scrambles up and down within and among these disordered piles of what once was masonry; but even an uninformed tourist can see the difference between the rubble walls of a later date and the wrier structures which preceded them.

There are walls, too, which show the marks of a mighty conflagration, and these, it is opined, are the same whence Aeneas

"Did from the flames of Troy upon his shoulder
The old Anchises bear" on that last terrible night of destruction. One instinctively looks for the gap in the wall through which the wooden horse was introduced, but he looks in vain. Earthenware cisterns of some 20 gallons capacity, for holding oil or wine, were built into the walls, while bits of iridescent glass, pieces of pottery, cobblestones and clay were filled in around them.

Wall of Priam Still Stands.

But there is still left one precious bit of Homeric architecture, if the archaeologists are correct, raising its crown as high as any of the walls of subsequent date. It is part of a bastion facing toward the Hill of Ilium and known as the "Wall of Priam." It was meant to stand throughout the ages, whoever was its builder, and one ardently wishes to give the credit for its construction to those times. It is a noble wall, well pointed, well laid, well preserved, capable yet of withstanding such assaults as when

"Ajax strives some stone's vast weight to throw."

From its corner overlooking the plain of Simois an outside stairway descends toward the river, possibly a later feature. Could this have been the corner of the wall where stood the Scæan Gate; where the venerable Father Priam brought the beautiful Helen in order to show her the enemy, her own countrymen and kindred, on the plain below; where he pointed out the leaders, naming them individually?—"and there is Menelaus, thy former husband." It may well have been the same, and romance at least will have it so.

Scattered about are bits of sculptured marble, the remains perhaps of Roman or Alexandrine occupation. Off in the dreamy distance lies Tenedos—sinister Tenedos, not discernible except in the clearest weather—and by the shore near where the Dardanelles meets the sea, whence Thetis might at any moment arise, is a tumulus known as the tomb of Achilles, and nearby another, the tomb of Patroclus.

The excavations at Troy have revealed that no less than nine layers exist upon which at various times during the past 5,000 years, human habitations have been built.

OBITUARY

Marietta Bristow Brown was born October 22, 1860. She was the daughter of John and Henrietta Bristow. She was left fatherless at the age of about two years. Her mother was later married to P. C. Stephens who took Etta as his own. She professed religion at an early age and united with the Cumberland Presbyterian church at Sugar Grove in which she lived a devoted member for several years she was deprived of the privilege of attending services yet she lived in accordance with her church vow.

Her friends could only be counted by her acquaintances. She had been a great sufferer for more than two years but bore it with all patience. On the seventh of Sept. 1922 God called and said that He had a place for her where there was no suffering. She leaves a husband two brothers, Emmuel Stephens of Pembroke; Alvis Stephens of Marion; one sister, Mrs. W. D. Cannan of Marion.

FARM LIVE STOCK

BABY BEEF MOST PROFITABLE

Young Animals Give Greater Return Than Older Ones—Can Be More Economically Fattened.

The phrase "baby beef" has been in existence for many years. At first it was to some extent a term of reproach, but any stigma attached to it has worn off, and it is now part and parcel of modern farming.

Baby beef is early maturity in concentrated form. An animal that loses its calf flesh may yet be finished at a fairly early age, but it will never make baby beef. The latter, in addition to early maturity, must combine quality, finish and thickness of flesh. There are many cattle that cannot be fattened early; breeding will play its part in this as in other things.

Experiments carefully planned and carried out have demonstrated that young animals will give a greater return in beef for food, and can, therefore, be more economically fattened than older ones.

The advantage is from 25 to 50 per cent in favor of the younger animal. This is quite sufficient margin to induce many who have not yet essayed baby beef to try it. It has another advantage in being ready for the market at any time, and can be sent off if trade is good or held back if prices are low. There is a quicker turn-over, a greater profit, and a better choice for markets. The main factors are better breeding and better feeding, both good in themselves apart from baby beef.—English Livestock Journal.

WOOL AND MEAT FROM SHEEP

Animals Require Very Little Grain and Are Valuable in Destroying Noxious Plants.

An average high grade sheep can produce a fleece weighing from five to eight pounds, and raise a lamb weighing 50 pounds in a year. If necessary it can live without a single mouthful of grain, since forage crops and permanent pastures will carry the sheep the year round. Sheep have two important advantages over other classes of live stock. They require practically no grain and they destroy brush and bushes.

MINERAL MIXTURES FOR HOGS

Wood Ashes, Salt and Lime Increases Appetite for Feed and Improves Health.

Hogs crave something in addition to the feeds given to them. When fed mineral mixtures containing ingredients such as wood ashes, salt and lime, they not only seem better satisfied, but have a greater appetite for their feed and the general health is improved.

MIGHTY GOOD FEED FOR HOGS

Oats Are Recommended Where Scattered on Clean Floor—Barley Also Is Favored.

Oats is a common crop on most farms, and oats is a mighty good feed for hogs. It is better not to feed it in a self-feeder for brood sows, but to scatter on a clean floor all the sows will eat up quickly. Barley is also good for swine and may be soaked and fed whole.

Scours and Thumps.

Scours and thumps are among the dangers which are apt to beset the young pig during the first few days of its life.

Purebreds Bring More Money.

Pure bred live stock costs no more to feed than common stock and brings more money.

Horse Easily Poisoned.

A horse is very easily poisoned and many deaths have resulted from feeding moldy silage.

FARM JOURNAL SAYS

We don't care how much a man says if he only says it in a few words.

Evil cannot be fought once and done with. It must be faced and conquered day by day.

It costs less to keep a coal fire over night than to leave it go out. Sallie Ann Ivins says so.

Girls, mistrust a man who will not take the last hot cake, but prefers to wait for the next batch!

At this season of the year, out of respect for their age (if not at all seasons, in order to do them justice), potatoes should be baked.

Just think what would happen if, when you needed a doctor, you had to wait as long for him as he sometimes has to wait for his money.

Peter—"You didn't have a very good time at your birthday party yesterday." Paul—"I did so!" "You didn't then why ain't you sick?"

One of the saddest and most vexatious trials that come to a girl when she marries, is that she has to discharge her mother and depend upon a servant girl.

Uncle Levi Zink says that to the American boy there is an awful, majestic difference in weight between the butt end of a fishpole and a hoe handle.

GERMS

A million microbes may be found on the point of a pin.

The germ theory of disease holds there is a specific germ for each definite disease.

Microbes are never found on gold coin; paper money is an ideal harboring place for them.

Webster defines bacterium: Microscopic organism of various forms and shapes; a disease germ.

Bacteria are minute vegetable organisms, many species of which are harmless; others are harmful to man, but all are of more or less value in the economy of nature.

The average number of bacteria in a teaspoonful of milk, kept under the most sanitary conditions, is 6,000,000. Some of them are probably doing useful work, but the others are decidedly pernicious.

The germ theory of disease implies that these living organisms are communicated from an infected person, principally by food, drink or air, grow and multiply in the body with which they have come in contact and produce the disease of which they are characteristic.

VAGARIES OF HUMAN LIFE

More men than women are color blind.

Four per cent of children are left-handed at birth.

Only one man in 200 is more than six feet in height.

Medical science is unable to explain the cause of warts.

One side of a person's face is better looking than the other, and experts agree there is no exception to this rule.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Emma Long Jacobs was born October 24, 1842 and passed to her reward August 3, 1922 being in her 80th year. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Long. She was married to W. A. Jacobs who preceded her to the great beyond. To this union were born seven children, five of whom survive her; B. A. Jacobs, Jacksonville, Fla.; W. T. Jacobs, Phillipsburg, Kansas; F. H. Jacobs, Paducah; Mrs. T. G. Travis Marion and Mrs. L. L. Stallions of Crayne. Two children, G. H. Jacobs and Mary Belle Jacobs have preceded her to her heavenly home. Two sisters are also left to mourn for her: Mrs. Jane Brookshire and Mrs. W. H. Ordway.

Since her husband's death she has made her home with her youngest daughter Mrs. L. L. Stallions of near Crayne. She was a loving and devoted wife and mother. She was one of the old-fashioned home loving mothers.

She professed religion in early life and joined the Cumberland Presbyterian church and lived a consistent christian life. She loved her home, family and church and often talked about her heavenly home.

Her funeral was conducted by Rev. W. T. Oakley at the church at her home at Crayne in the midst of a host of sorrowing friends and relatives whose presence and floral offerings were indicative of the high esteem in which she was held. She was laid to rest by the side of her husband in the Crayne Cemetery.

In her passing away the community and church have lost a most faithful friend.
