FLUORSPAR COMES FROM KENTUCKY

Marion Center for Output of Mineral Essential to Steel and Other Industries

Ralph Coghlan, writing for Louisville Post recently says the following about the Fluorspar industry in Crittenden county:

Where fluorine originates no one knows. It emanates somewhere deep in the earth's interior. It finds its way thru volcanic channels and in those few spots where it has been discovered, combines itself with calcium and becomes fluorspar. Almost invariably fluorspar is found in crevices of the earth—what geologists speak of as faults—and runs in vertical veins. These two facts indicate the belief that it shoots upward from some deep buried caldron.

Its mining, of course, is a process far different from coal mining, where the veins are lateral. Fluorspar mining involves sinking a shaft down the perpendicular vein and following the vein downward rather than crosswise. It has never been determined how deep are the Crittenden county deposits. Mines have been sunk to the extent of 600 feet, but geologists believe that the bottom has not nearly been reached—that the deposits extends thousands of feet farther.

Nor can it be broken up with a pick as can coal. It is dislodged from its resting place with pneumatic drills called jack hammers and then dynamited and brought to the surface on steam hoists. Spar is marketed in three different forms—in lumps, in gravel which is obtained by washing the earth in fluorspar districts and in a high state of pulverization. It is very heavy and sometimes is found in beautiful crystal formations, the prevailing hue of which is a delicate heliotrope. These crystals are used in the manufacture of cheap jewelry. Gravel fluorspar sells for approximately $17.50 a ton. In the making of steel some ten or twelve pounds of spar are used to the ton of steel. Lump spar which goes into the manufacture of hydrofluoric acid, is of high grade and brings $40 or $45 for a ton.

As has been said, the region around Marion supplies about 85 percent of all the fluorspar used in the United States. Although spar is found elsewhere, such discoveries are in most cases merely of interest to the mineralogist and form no basis for commercial mining. This section, then, has a practical monopoly of the mining of the product. This does not mean that Crittenden county alone has the monopoly. Rich deposits are found just across the Ohio in Southern Illinois. Some, too, are found in Livingston county. But the whole industry is within a radius of some thirty miles from Marion.

It need hardly be said that Kentucky has not made the most of the industry. Marion, the big shipping point for Kentucky fluorspar, lacks adequate transportation facilities, both roads and railroads. Road-building now in progress will solve one difficulty at least in part, but railroad service sufficient for full development of this section remains as a handicap.

As long ago as 1907 the possibilities of this section as a great iron and steel center were foreseen. In the geological survey of that year may be found the following words, which are as true today as they then were: "The Western Kentucky lead, zinc and spar district has iron ore of good quality in quantity within its borders, as well as an abundance of high-grade calcite and limestone flux and coals of the Western Kentucky coal field within easy reach, so that with the fluorspar it has it should, with additional transportation facilities, become, at no very distant date, a center of iron and steel manufacture."

In other words this part of Western Kentucky has been gifted extraordinarily by nature. It has the raw material for such manufacture, the fluxing medium and the coal. It has also the advantage of proximity to large markets—Louisville, Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Memphis and many other cities. Nature has done all it is ever going to do for this section. It remains for man to do the rest.

LYCEUM COURSE TO BE GIVEN HERE

School Improvement Club Backing Another Good Enterprise School Auditorium

The ladies of the school improvement club have relieved the Senior Class of the responsibility of this season's Lyceum course. They undertook this not for financial reasons but because they knew that the four numbers comprising the course had been selected with much thought and care and would more genuinely benefit the students than would any equipment they might buy for the building.

The cost of the enterprise is $450 a sum to assure good talent.

The first program on Nov. 2 is given by The Clifford Foot Trio, and consists of trios, duets, solo, water color paintings, readings and original one act plays.

The second number on Feb. 9 offers a program of violin, viola, cello, cornet, piano and vocal solos, ensemble numbers, duets and trios of the various instruments; mixed quartets, organ chimes played by entire company; vocal solos with chimes accompaniments; character impersonations, playlets and sketches by company.

Much pleasure is taken in the announcement that Arthur Walwyn, Evans, the distinguished Welsh orator will be here on Feb. 21. He has been voted time and again as one of the Lyceum best.

Kater a master magician concludes the course on March 12.

Season tickets are now on sale by the ladies of the club at $2. and $1.25 Come and enjoy four good programs.

SPECIAL MEETING AT COLORED METHODIST CHURCH

Rev. C. G. Prather, pastor of the Methodist Church South of this city, will preach at the Colored Methodist church here next Sunday afternoon at 3:00 P. M. This will be a special Mission meeting for this church and all are invited to attend.

Farm Bureau Notes

Good Interest in Pullet Sale

Considerable interest in better poultry was evidenced here Saturday when a large crowd of farmers and townspeople attended the pullet sale.

The pullets were carefully graded by Mr. Burley Winton, Extension Poultryman who pronounced them the best lot of pullets he had seen anywhere in the state.

Mr. Winton was assisted in the receiving and grading by the Asst. Farm Agent, H. K. Warth.

The pullets were all of the White Wyandotte variety and the majority were very well matured.

The eggs were furnished by the Farmers Bank and Trust Co., and distributed to Junior Club members by County Agent John R. Spencer.

The pullets were sold in lots of six and the entire offering was purchased by raisers of Crittenden county.

With the increase of standardized poultry and the practice of better feeding and housing the future of the poultry industry is encouraging.

Farm Agent's Work Continues

In the absence of J. R. Spencer the Assistant County Agent Mr. H. K. Warth, will be in the office or in the field assisting the farmers of the county.

If you need help, he is ready to help you at any time.

Field Agents Here in Interest

Of Boys and the Girls

Miss Anita Burnam, field agent for the boys and girls club work was here Monday of this week.

Mrs. Burnam called a conference to meet in the County Agents office with Mrs. F. E. Gilbert, leader of one of the girls sewing clubs.

The projects were outlined by Mrs. Gilbert and approved by Miss Burnam who said that Crittenden county needed more enthusiastic leaders like Mrs. Gilbert to really put the club work on the map. We can if we will.

CAMPAIGN ENDS SATURDAY NIGHT

This is Final Week in the Drive to Organize Dark Tobacco Growers Co-operative Association

HOPKINSVILLE, Ky., Oct. 25—Midnight of Saturday of this week will be zero hour for dark tobacco growers of Kentucky and Tennessee to join the Dark Tobacco Growers Co-operative Association. The campaign which began last March and which has been waged systematically and vigorously since that time and which has been the chief matter of interest during that time, will end then so far as the 1922 crop is concerned. If any grower is holding back thinking he can join after that time he is going to be foiled, for all the leaders in the movement have announced most emphatically that no pledges will be accepted after midnight of October 28. So those growers who haven't yet signed a contract, had better make up their minds to do so this week or content themselves with remaining outside this year at least.

Naturally this week is proving one of the most feverish activity all over the district. Not only in the way of signing members but the job of completing the tobacco acreage census in each county must be done. Many counties have completed their census, some have put it off until the last, while others have partially completed. Notice has been given to the organization committee that this census must be completed and must be accurate, for it will be the basic upon which is determined whether or not the necessary percentage has been signed.

A meeting of the district organization committee will be held soon to go over the reports from each county and make the final and official decision as to whether the association is a go or not.

But there seems nothing to indicate that the association will fail to go over. On the other hand there is plenty of indication that not only the minimum two-thirds have been secured but that it has been considerably exceeded. Therefore everybody is confidently expecting the district committee to declare it an organization and to proceed at once to organize for handling the tobacco.

JUDGE JOHN W. BLUE MADE EFFECTIVE TALK WEDNESDAY

Judge Jno. W. Blue, who owns a fine farm in that section, addressed a meeting at Spring Grove Wednesday night on the Dark Tobacco District Pool. Judge Blue is strongly in favor of the pool and made a most effective talk. We are told there were 81-1/2 acres of unpoled tobacco in that section. After Judge Blue's address 44 1/2 acres of this was signed up. It is probable that practically all of it would have been pledged had all of the growers been present, as only one grower at the meeting failed to sign.—Morganfield Sun.

“PREPARED FOR THE PUBLIC”

PLOW UP BARN LOTS YEARLY

Turning Over Soil Helps to Get Rid of Pests and Forage Makes It Profitable Job.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Hog raisers may accomplish two desirable results by plowing up the barn lots at least once a year, says the United States Department of Agriculture. In the first place, hogs need good succulent pasture as much of the time as possible, and in the second place they need protection against internal parasites, such as roundworms, the eggs of which remain in the soil. Turning over the soil in the lots helps to get rid of the pests and the crop of forage makes it a profitable operation. In addition to providing cheap protein feed, pasture crops aid as a laxative and require the hogs to take a certain amount of exercise, which is necessary to breeding animals and growing pigs.

Rye is probably the best crop to use for fall, winter and spring pasture for hogs. Throughout the corn belt it may be sown from August 20 to about October 1, depending on the latitude. In warmer climates the crop may be put in at various times up to as late as December. By putting in successive plantings from two to four weeks apart it is possible to have fresh pasture all the time. Seeding for pasture should be much

WORMS CAUSE SERIOUS LOSS

Farmers Should Exercise Special Care Against Stomach Infection for Rest of Summer.

"All farmers who have sheep should exercise special care regarding stomach worm infection for the remainder of the summer," says A. E. Darlow, assistant professor of animal husbandry at Oklahoma A. and M. college.

"All spring lambs grown for the market should be rushed and put on the market at the first possible date. Stomach worms in connection with short pastures cause serious financial losses, especially with lambs."

"Wherever possible the sheep should have a change of pasture and where flockmasters are prepared to furnish a change of good pasture danger from stomach worms is small."

"Aside from changing pasture and rushing lambs the best method of overcoming the stomach worms is drenching," Darlow says. Oklahoma station bulletin 137 by J. E. Gubert gives directions for preparing and administering this drench.

VITAMINES IN YELLOW CORN

Experiments Conducted at Wisconsin University Show White Variety Is Inferior.

Feeding experiments at the University of Wisconsin indicate that white corn and skin milk when fed to pigs in drylot, is decidedly inferior to yellow corn and skin milk. Two pens fed on these two rations were fed for six months. Results were alike. None of the fed white corn did well; those fed yellow corn produced fairly good returns. Over half the pigs given the white corn were seriously affected and two or three died before the test was completed.

This experiment is in further proof of previous tests both at Wisconsin and elsewhere, indicating that in yellow corn there is a much larger percentage of vitamins. If these can be supplied through green crops, white corn according to the experiments is satisfactory.

LIVE STOCK FACTS

Unhealthful Mud Puddle Which Affected Stock at All Times Has Been Abolished.

CONCRETE MAKES BIG CHANGE

Any Farmer Can Build Device Similar to One Shown in the Illustration If He Will Follow Instructions Given.

The day of the unsightly, unsanitary mud-hole water tank in the barn lot is a thing of the past.

American farmers, who in the old days struggled against the worst possible conditions in the care of their stock, today have available for their service the most modern methods known to the building trade.

A water tank, often considered of old a minor detail in farm equipment, now is recognized as an important item in the health of farm stock and farm occupants.

Formerly a breeding place for germs, vermin and mosquitoes, the site of the unhealthful mud puddle which affected stock both summer and winter now can be spotlessly clean, dry and sanitary.

Principal Requirement.

While the principal requirement of a water tank is of course that it be watertight, sanitation and permanence also must be considered. Concrete tanks when properly constructed fulfill all of these requirements at a reasonable first cost, with practically no upkeep expense.

Any farmer can construct a water tank similar to the one shown in the picture if he follows these instructions.

The forms, which should preferably be of one-inch material for a large tank, should be prepared so far as is possible before concrete work is begun, then excavation is made about one foot below the ground line of an area a little larger than the proposed tank. If the site is not well drained it may be well to excavate a little deeper. A base of cinders or gravel is then tamped into place and upon it a bed of concrete about six inches thick of a mixture of one part of cement, two parts of sand and four parts of gravel is laid.

As soon as the concrete has hardened enough so that it will support some weight, the forms for the walls of the tank are put in place and the filling made as rapidly as possible.

A rich mixture of concrete, preferably one part of cement, one and one-half parts of sand and three parts of pebbles or broken stone, is used for this work, and enough help and material should be available so that the entire wall can be constructed in one continuous operation.

In order to make the bottom watertight, the inner forms should not reach to the concrete bed first laid, but a two-inch gap should be left and a layer of concrete equal in thickness to this should be placed so as to be continuous with the concrete in the walls.

Reinforcement Needed.

Reinforcing is, of course, necessary and it is well to have this made "L" shaped and set in the concrete so that the steel extends up into the walls. Bars bent at a right angle should be placed at the corners, with straight rods extending horizontally in the ends and sides of the tank.

Though not shown in the illustration, a concrete pavement five or six feet wide around the tank is desirable. It can be cast separately and made not less than six inches thick of a 1:2:4 mixture.

HOGGING OFF THE CORN PAYS

Pean Regarded as an Economical Method; Cattle or Sheep Clean Up Much Left.

It is the consensus of opinion among farmers that hogging off corn pays and this fact is borne out by results at most of the agricultural experiment stations. Should you have pigs weighing around 100 lbs. to turn into the corn, you can expect the pigs to gain a pound a day or better when fed a pound of shorts or a half pound of tankage in addition to corn hogged off. With pigs of this size in hogging off corn, they can be expected to consume from five to seven pounds of corn daily. It is an economical method of harvesting an area of corn and if not kept in too late in the season, the cattle or sheep will clean up much of the leaves not touched by the hogs.

The Will Post
October 30

Col. Rosey Conklin Simmons, one of the world's famous lecturers will deliver a lecture at the Court house on Monday night, Oct. 30, 1922. Hon. Mr. Simmons has a world wide reputation and is known extensively by both white and colored to be one of the greatest entertainers in history. He has also held several prominent government positions and is a nephew of the late Prof. Booker T. Washington.

"Sympathetic Magic."

The idea of "sympathetic magic," many centuries ago, made one of its appearances in the form of a jewel or charm. The beetle was the symbol of immortality and must not be harmed. But some genius conceived the idea of carving a beetle out of stone and wearing it, which would then give him a hold over the sacred beetle and a claim to its protection.

FOREST GROVE SCHOOL

NOTICE OF BOND SALE

Three months of our school are gone during this time there have been ten pupils who have attended every day and two who have been absent only one day. During the time taught we have set out a number of flowers on our school ground. Sept. Paris has visited our school once and he made an interesting talk to the patrons and pupils. Dr. Frazer came to our school one day and made an earnest address in the behalf of our birds, the children have spent some time in studying about our common birds.

During the first part of our school year we have been having reading matches in our reading classes. The following pupils have made the most points in their respective classes: Bertie Hoover, Toby Clark and Sheila Akers. On Oct. 28 we are going to have a box supper at our school. Everybody invited.

On Nov. 11, there will be a community and school fair at Forest Grove. All schools of Division Two are invited to come and take part.

We wish to thank H. C. Franklin for the flowers sent us and also Dr. Frazer for the prize offered the pupil for the picture drawn of one of our birds.

MADE LAST EFFORT

A large number of our business men and other citizens went out in automobiles to various sections of the county in a last effort to get signers to the Dark Tobacco Pool. Many of the business houses were closed all day, as advertised and the proprietors and employees alike spent the day in the interest of the tobacco growers of the county who had not so far signed up to become members of the Dark Tobacco Co-operative Association. We go to press too early to publish the results.

SHEEP RID LAWN OF WEEDS

Dandelions and Other Plants on Courthouse Square Eagerly Devoured by Animals.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The courthouse lawn in Elbert county, Colo., like many other lawns, was badly infested with dandelions. The county agent suggested killing them by pasturing rather than plowing under the sod. According to reports received by the United States Department of Agriculture, the test was approved by the commissioners. Sufficient hog wire to fence the lawn was purchased and two pastures 100 feet long and 80 feet wide were made. A farmer living near town furnished six old ewes, which were placed in one pasture May 14, when the dandelions were at their best. A week later four more were added to the flock.

The ewes were changed from one pasture to the other at one-week intervals. They soon had the dandelions and grass eaten down and kept it down. They ate blossoms and buds readily, and the hearts out of the dandelion plants close to the ground. Better results would have been obtained had the sheep been put in earlier, but the experiment proved quite effective in ridding the lawn of dandelions.

PREVENTION IS BEST REMEDY

White Scours in Calves and Pigs Is Caused by Infection—Treatment
Not Promising.

White scours in calves and pigs is caused by infection; virulent colo- bacilli are mostly responsible. Treatment of infected pigs is not promising; the main thing is prevention. Do not feed too heavy a grain ration for a period of two weeks before farrowing. Feed bran, roots and salsify, with a light ration of corn or barley, and be sure to provide opportunity for exercise. However, these things are of little consequence after infection appears. Keep your sows with little pigs on the ground in individual hog houses. This will be safer than keeping them in the same old pens which may still be infected. These hog houses should be kept out in a field and well scattered. This gives opportunity for exercise and lessens the danger of infection. Provide a small amount of litter or bedding for each house. Use disinfectants freely—Veterinary Department, Colorado Agricultural College.

Co-operation the Master Key.

There is no such thing as perpetual motion. The wheel continues to revolve because power is constantly applied to it. Business also moves only when there is enterprise and push behind it. Co-operation is the key to national prosperity.

Society's Real Danger.

The danger to society is not merely that it should believe wrong things—that is great enough—but that it should become credulous, and lose the habit of testing things and inquiring into them, for then it must sink back into savagery.—W. K. Clifford.
